You are confronted in the math test with a mixed series of problems or exercises. They are not necessarily arranged in the same order in which they were presented in the textbook.

You must keep in mind the processes to be used, but you also must understand the principles involved.

You must be able to select the proper set of principles to be used in the solution of a given problem.

Your review for such a test could involve the following steps:

Step One: Go through the materials to be covered and find the principles that apply. Each time you come to a principle, ask yourself: "To what type of problem can this be applied?" And: "How would I recognize the possibility of using this principle to solve a problem?"

Step Two: Go through all the exercises and pick out problems with which to practise. As you attack each problem, ask yourself: "What kind of problem is this" "What principles could be applied in working it?" "How would I recognize this?" "Exactly what is considered to be the solution?"

If your first excursion through the sets of exercises proves rough, if you have to refer too often to the author' solved examples, run through Step One and Step-Two again.

We didn't promise to do away entirely with the labor of learning. We promised to organize it and make it easier and show you how to improve. And after all, which is simpler — going through Steps One and Two a half dozen times or going through the same math class twice?

We have stressed in these chats time and again how important it is in learning to be exact.

Certainly no field requires precision more than science does. So many of the ideas in science are expressed in numbers and must be understood exactly.

In chemistry you must know, without the slightest doubt, the meaning of molecular weight and how to balance an equation.

In physics the laws must be understood in terms of numerical relationship. The same holds true in many areas of the other sciences.

TESTS ON SCIENCE

When you prepare for science tests, try the following:

1. Search through your book and your notes for concepts, laws, relationships which need to be understood in terms of numbers. Think about these ideas until you are able to use them in working problems without hesitation, without guesswork.

2. Memorize significant laws and principles.

3. Make up a list of questions to ask yourself. Form these questions on the basis of questions asked on previous exams. Get them from exercises at the ends of chapters. Shape them from hints given in lectures.

4. Answer these questions, either writing them down or reciting them to yourself.

5. Look for terms the teacher may ask you to define. Study a term until you know exactly the sort of situation in which it could be used. Picture an object or a situation to which the term is related in some important way.

6. Form a pattern for remembering any long lists of names or terms. It is helpful to employ some memory scheme such as caricaturing or exaggerating. But the main thing is to have some system which works for you. The test of the system, naturally, is whether it actually does help you remember.

Preparing for Objective Exams
INDEX

In this and previous chapters, we have talked a lot about how to get ready to take examinations. But getting ready is only part of the chore. Do you know how to take an examination?

St. Andrew's M.C. Holds 'Ladies' Night'

WELLINGTON — The Parish Men's Club of Wellington and Hillier Anglican Churches, held a successful "Ladies' Night" last Thursday in the Legion hall. A delicious turkey dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the Legion Auxiliary, and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mr. Maurice Desrochers, a public relations officer of the Canada Post Office, was introduced by the rector, the Rev. J. J. Rogers. Mr. Desrochers' talk on the activities of the post office department was both interesting and amusing and all enjoyed the color sound movie that depicted Canada's post office at work.

Mr. W. A. Davern extended to Mr. Desrochers the appreciation of the men and their wives, and the round of applause indicated that everyone enjoyed his presentation.

Walter Nind showed two films, one a travelogue through the southwestern United States and Mexico and the other an interesting film on the Canadian north.

It was evident the wives of the members of the Men's Club appreciated this gallant gesture that enabled them to enjoy an evening out with their husbands, dinner, entertainment and even a corsage.

There is no doubt that "Ladies' Night" will have a prominent place on the calendar of the Parish Men's Club in the future.

1,000 Women Sing Valentine For Mrs. John Diefenbaker

By Elizabeth Motherwell
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,000 women roared out a singing Valentine for Mrs. John Diefenbaker Tuesday night at a giant reception in honor of the prime minister's wife.

Quebec Senator Josie Quart, hoarse from more than two hours of introducing Olive Diefenbaker to the 1,000 guests, led off with the singing of Let Me Call You Sweetheart.

Senator Quart, the hostess, said the singing would also allow Mayor Charlotte Whitton to rest her feet — "something unusual for Charlotte."

"She can rest her feet and then wag her tongue," said Senator Quart, setting the bantering theme of the reception.

Mayor Whitton stood in spiked heels next to Mrs. Diefenbaker in the receiving line. The prime minister's wife wore comfortable low heels.

NOTES MORE WIVES

Referring to the 13 wives of cabinet ministers who were also in the receiving line, Mayor Whitton said there had never been as many cabinet wives. Bachelor prime ministers Bennett and King had a "pretty low batting average."

"Mrs. Diefenbaker stands for all the best in Canadian womanhood," concluded Mayor Whitton. "The best testimony of the prime minister's judgment is his choice of Mrs. Diefenbaker —who has carried high the name of Canadian womanhood throughout the world."

Mrs. Quart said Mrs. Diefenbaker had a deep understanding of women's problems, could cope with official life, and maintained "the happiest and most restful home-life for our prime minister."

This --- and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

It probably does not do for the average person in our so-called enlightened group of countries to contemplate all our responsibilities in the world as we find it right now. It would be too frightening and too frustrating. We speak of the necessity of world literacy and get mental pictures of squads of teachers going to the far corners of the earth to accomplish this. That it will take centuries seems much too long when the need is so great and our time is running short.

This is so because just literacy is not enough; there are so many skills to be caught up on, These change now with such rapidity that the job is never - ending.

This latter type of learning applies to our own countries as well as to the backward. In the last issue of UNESCO Courier it states that "in the most industrialized countries it is being recognized that the kinds of distinctions which were once made between education of the young and adult education are no longer meaningful. A great deal of what needs to be taught to adults today was unknown when they were young. Continuing education throughout life has become a necessity in almost every field of life, from housekeeping to atomic physics".

DRASTIC EXPERIMENT

Probably this is when it becomes frightening, when we must face the fact that our own education is never finished. Then it becomes doubly disturbing to read an article such as the one in the last edition of the Imperial Oil Review entitled, "Are we raising a generation of failures?"

This deals with the experiment tried in the Calgary school of putting out of school the students who made consistently poor grades. The policy exerts steady pressure on the student body, but fewer are falling below the pass mark. What had been disturbing to the school was that failure had become respectable. Students who were mentally competent were getting very low grades and were simply not bothering to try.

All this when the next twenty years will probably make greater demands on Canadian iod in our history-utroe ET brainpower than any other period in our history. The art- meet these challenges every last individual must use his mental capabilities to the utmost. There will be no room for leadswingers".

"The waste these students represent to themselves is obvious. But what is worse, they believe that there is some sort of respectability attached to failure and, so, try to convert good students to this new-found prestige symbol".

"In our economy wages have climbed faster than individual productivity. Among many workers the "good life" has come to mean more money for less work. Getting something for nothing has become a virtue in some circles".

MATERIALISTIC EXISTENCE

We also read, on the same day, part of a speech delivered in 1932 by Rabindranath Tagore, writer-sage of India. He stated, "We in the East must ponder seriously before we go in for hasty imitation of Western life in its totality. There is a profound maladjustment somewhere of the very basis of Western life. Everywhere there is some material well-being but happiness has vanished. And how could it be otherwise? Pierce through the veneer of modernity and you find almost primitive barbarism staring at you. What is high-pressure modern life for the multitude but a ceaseless pre-occupation with physical needs — a hot pursuit of dress, expensive cars, elaborate food and housing, that is to say, of materials, which satisfy the elementary need of our animal existence. Such a life has no time for self-realization, for human fellowship, for all that make man's existence significant and precious".

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

BRING YOUR MANNERS TO CHURCH

Today marks the beginning of Lent and a little private soul-searching, concerning our manners when attending church, would seem to be in order. The following suggestions are based on general behavior, for I would not presume, to say anything relative to following the specific rituals observed by different faiths.

To begin with, I think a person should be dressed in a quiet and dignified manner when attending church. Even though some faiths say a hat may or may not be worn by the ladies, it would seem proper that one be worn. For the young girl, a scarf is not improper.

Make every effort to be on time and to get settled before the services start. If you do arrive late, make your enterance as inconspicuous as possible. Remain in the rear of the church until a prayer is over. Taking your seat in one of the back pews during a hymn is the most considerate thing to do.

If attending a church for the first time, be sure to consult an usher so you will not take a seat in a pew reserved for a church memeber. If you have any preference as to the location of your seat — due, for example, to difficulty in hearing — quietly state your wishes to the usher. Follow him down the aisle to the seat he chooses for you. Don't seat yourself someplace else, and leave the poor man hunting for you.

The question is often asked if one should attempt to follow the service rituals in a church which is not of your faith. An attitude of quiet reverence is of course always appropriate. To rise when others rise and to kneel when they kneel are simple matters. Not to do so calls attention to yourself. Whether you wish to do more, such as joining in the singing of the hymns, is up to you.

An obvious greeting, if you see friends when you enter the church, is definitely out of place. A nod and smile are sufficient. Wait until the services are over and you have reached the vestibule before shaking hands or talking.

Listen attentively to the sermon. If it bores you, or you don't quite understand what the clergyman is taling about, never show it. He is trying to deliver a message which he hopes will help you. If you are restless, don't read the church pamphlet or whisper to your neighbor. It is definitely disrespectful. Why go to church in the first place, if you allow yourself to act in this unseemly manner?

If, for some reason, you must leave before the services are over, do so with as little irritation as possible to those near you. Make a quiet exit while a hymn is being sung, rather than during a prayer or in the middle of the sermon.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: When I have a few friends in for a very informal, seated dinner, is it all right for me to use a tea cart when I clear the table for the dessert course? I have no help, and certainly won't let any of my guests pitch in. If I don't use the tea cart it means many trips to the kitchen, because I don't like to stack dishes. What do you think of this idea? — Mrs. P. T. N., New York, N.Y.

Answer: It sounds like a very sensible one to me! By using the tea cart, you can quietly wheel it around the table, placing the used dishes on it. As you say, this does away with marching back and forth into the kitchen with a plate in each hand.

Question — I am very short and look much too young for my age, which is sixteen. To add to my height, and to look older, I have been wearing high heels, and rather sophisticated black dresses to school. My teacher, whom I like very much, took me aside the other day and said I was wrong in doing this. Do you agree with her? — Mrs. F.B.A., Newark, N. J.

Answer — I most certainly do! Dressing for an evening during school hours is definitely out of place. What if you are "short!" There are many tall girls who probably envy you! Why not wear tailored wool dresses, or a good-looking tweed suit, with appropriate shoes and accessories? Either of these would be more fitting for school and you will have added confidence in that you are properly dressed.

Smooth Lines

The all-in-one bra slip is a boon that is best enjoyed by the figure of slender proportions. For the rest of us, the regular foundation or bra and girdle is the ticket.

This bra slip is of Helenca stretch lace, the back elasticized.

The skirt is bias cut with a wide lace border that tones with the black, white or beige of the garment.

Women's Activities

United Church W. A.

Cannifton—The regular dinner and quilting meeting of the Cannifton United Church W.A. was held in the church parlors with Mrs. A. Holgate and Mrs. T. Howard conveners for the February dinner, assisted by many others.

The long tables were prettily appointed in white and centred with potted red flowers, with valentine novelties and pretty valentine serviettes, adding to the attractive scheme. A delicious meal was served to a large number.

The president opened the meeting by welcoming back the members after the Christmas holidays; this being the first meeting of the year, owing to the congregational meeting, held in January. Mrs. Boyd gave a short reading on opportunity and Mrs. W. Brenton read the Scripture. Mrs.D. Brenton gave a reading from the "Study Book" entitled, "Stewardship in the life of women". This was the beautiful story of Dorcas, which issued the challenge that just as the nations in time of need called women to the use of needles, so the church in peaceful days challenges them to respond to the needs of the world. Needles are small articles but by their use the love and loyalty of a whole community may be won. The story asks "Are there needs for needles in your community?" Perhaps there are little children who are ashamed to attend the church school because they lack proper clothing or because their clothes are in need of repair.

A number of members expressed thanks for cards received during illness and bereavement. Mrs. H. Putman, president of the W.M.S. extended an invitation to all, to attend the W.M.S. Presbyterial meeting to be held in Stirling. Mrs. T. Howard was appointed to purchase new silverware. Mrs. Roy Pound brought a request from the C.G.I.T. leaders, asking the W.A. to purchase new sleeve patches for the girls. The president, a former leader was appointed to meet with the leaders and report. It was decided to enquire into prices for new folding tables for the W.A. dinners. Mrs. Boyd spoke briefly on the coming ploughing match. Mrs. Steele received this year's installment of payments, on her coin apron project. The president extended appreciative thanks to Mrs. D. Brenton for painting done by her husband for the association. After other discussions, the president welcomed one new member.

Mrs. D. Brenton and Mrs. F. Furmidge were appointed conveners for the March dinner. There were 19 members present.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Julie H. — My husband feels lost without his brother.

Milton H. — She's just trying to break us up.

Julie H. — I've been married four years, have a two-year-old baby, and now suddenly realize that my 30-year-old husband is the biggest baby I know. He can't make a move without consulting his older brother.

I knew they were close and I admired their relationship as a fine, brotherly loyalty. From childhood up, they slept in the same room, went to the same school, and are now partners in business. But I had no idea that Milton, as an adult and a married man, was so dependent on his brother socially and emotionally. I feel I'm married to a hyphenated person named Milton-Alvin, even though it's only Milton who comes home each night.

My immediate problem is a social one. We spent a pleasant evening at the new home of a couple who happen to know Alvin and his wife, too. While there, Milton remarked that Alvin would feel bad about not being asked along, and that we had all better keep mum about the visit. The upshot? We must return next month with Alvin and wife, and pretend that it's our first visit, to spare Alvin's feelings!

How can a wife grow close to a husband who wants to be 99 per cent brother?

Milton H. — I can't understand what Julie has against Alvin. He's never said a word against her. In fact he liked her from the minute I introduced her to him, and was glad I was marrying her.

I owe a great deal to Alvin and I don't think I can ever do enough for him. He took me into his business as an equal partner, even though I had nothing to offer but my two hands and feet. Our business is thriving. Both our wives get a good allowance, and Julie should be as grateful as I.

About this party coming up next month that has Julie all burned up, all I did was remind our host to do something he meant to do anyway. They really wanted Alvin and his wife along that first time, and it was an oversight. And since I can't bear to see Alvin hurt, we cooked up this little plan for us all to come over together, and play dumb.

If Julie's trying to make me choose between her and my brother, she's just being cruel.

The Council — We can sympathize with Julie in her marriage to the little man who isn't there, because he's mentally back in that childhood berth next to Big Brother. She's reminding him that he'd better take stock and discover where Alvin ends, and he — an entity called Milton — begins.

Under flowery protestations of "brother-love," Milton clings to an almost hysterical involvement with Alvin. Breaking loose seems impossible. And yet, for a successful marriage, it must be done. Julie sees that he can never be wholly hers, because he is not even wholly himself. To find himself, see himself, and stand alone as a whole man, he may need the detached aid of a guidance counsellor. But he must be helped to see that his nervous solicitude for his older brother is the symptom of an unhealthy hunger. To satisfy it, he is sacrificing his marriage.

Julie has a hard row to hoe. On the surface one might suggest that she endeavor to feed her husband's ego so that he may find greater satisfactions in the husband-role, with less need to play the hovering brother. But it's harder to superimpose a new relationship on an old than to start from scratch. Milton came to Julie "with strings attached," tied to his brother. Evidently nobody has yet explained to him (or else, he can't accept) that marriage means "forsaking all others and cleaving only unto thee."

This does not mean abandoning Alvin. It merely calls for a re-alignment of loyalties, in the order of their claim upon his thoughts and actions. In our society, it's Wife and Child first.

Milton has two families, the one he was born into, and the one he was man enough to found himself. The second is his first responsibility. His brother isn't.

Its Fillets Fancy Plain And Tuppence Fancy

By Mary Moore

Many years ago I "emceed" a cooking school at which we demonstrated, among other things, fish cookery.

We were trying to show our audience that professional chefs seldom fry fish. They poach, boil, steam, bake and broil it.

After the show I talked to many of the girls in the audience and one eager housewife I still remember clearly. She said "May I call you Mary?" I was delighted. Then she went on to say she found fish rather expensive for her family of six — all except fish fillets.

For those who observe Lent and for those who do not fish fillets are a good buy because there is no waste. So today I am going to remind you of the well-known Spencer method of baking them. Then I am going on to give you a recipe for fillets Thermidor which calls for a little cooking sherry but you can leave that ingredient out if you disapprove.

FISH FILLETS SPENCER:

2 pounds fish fillets, 3-4 cup milk, 2 teaspoons salt, 3-4 cup fine, dry breadcrumbs or cornflake crumbs, butter.

Cut fillets in individual portions and soak three minutes in milk to which salt has been added. Drain and roll in dry bread or cornflake crumbs. Place fish on a well-greased baking dish and dot with butter. Bake in a very hot oven, 500 deg. Fahr. allowing 10 minutes per inch thickness of fish. Heat may be reduced for larger fish, towards end of cooking time. This serves six.

NOTE:

Fish is baked when it will flake and is opaque when separated with fork at thickest part.

FILLETS THERMIDOR:

For important occasions use sole or flounder fillets for this, but for weekdays regular fish fillets are fine.

To serve 6 you need 2 pounds fish fillets. Cut into serving portions. Make Mock Court Bouillon: 1 1-2 cups boiling water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 thin slices garlic, 1 sliced onion, 1 bay leaf, 6 peppercorns, 1-8 teaspoon thyme, 3 slices of carrot, 1 celery top. Simmer these together for 15 minutes then strain. Add fish and simmer (do not boil) for 15 minutes or until fish will flake and is opaque at thickest portion, but no longer. Carefully transfer to shallow baking dish — preferably one that may be carried directly to the table from the oven. Over low heat combine 1 tablespoon flour, and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine. Stir in the leftover bouillon in which fish was simmered, until it thickens a little. Add 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup commercial sour cream, 1-4 cup cooking sherry (optional) and 2 tablespoons grated Swiss or Cheddar cheese. Do not cook any more but pour evenly over fish in baking dish. Sprinkle with another 2 tablespoons Swiss or old Cheddar cheese. Put close under hot broiler to brown and serve at once. This is delicious.

Contact Club Presents Parting Gift

Contact Club of Christ Church met Monday evening for a social get-together planned by Marge Bunnett's group.

Several brisk games of bridge and euchre, together with one loud game of "Sorry" were enjoyed. Prizes were presented to Betty Yates and Edith Pringle, high and second; and to Dorothy Kelly, lone hand.

The traditional presentation of a farewell gift to Betty Yates was made. Betty, a good member of the club, is moving next week to Toronto. All were happy, on the other hand, to welcome two new members to the club, Marilyn Jeffs, and Beverley Shannock.

The hostesses, Barbara Janes, Maragret Niles and Betty Teed, presented their personal valentines in the form of delicious refreshments, including a decorated layer cake and cupcakes.

The meeting next week will open at eight o'clock in the church, with corporate worship in a Lenten service.

The Experts Say

Compare Values Before Buying Your Fur Coat

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—"A woman doesn't have to know the whole fur industry to know if she's getting a good fur coat," says Toronto furrier Norman Rogul.

He considers suppleness of the fur one of the obvious factors a woman can look for in buying a coat. Furs should be soft and supple and if a fur has been overstretched the pliability and natural beauty of the fur is lost.

The best method, Mr. Rogul suggests, is to visit various reputable stores and compare values. He says a customer will soon learn about furs if she starts comparing them.

If a coat is well finished it's usually an indication that the coat is well made. A cheap lining may indicate cheap material throughout the garment.

"And any woman can check the pockets to see if they are well made."

Look to see if the lining has been sewn into the coat with small stitches or with large irregular ones, he says.

No matter what fur you choose, buy the best available in its category, Mr. Rogul advises.

Some of the advantage of various furs are:

Beaver is available in many flattering colors and can be dressed "up or down."

Persian lamb wears well. The price range is good and it can be well styled. Mr. Rogul expressed a preference for black lamb but said it needs bright accessories or white gloves.

Muskrat is a less expensive fur available in shades particularly suited to young people. It is light in weight and easily styled.

Seal is styled easily, light in weight, has good color and wears well. Squirrel, although it has a reputation for wearing poorly, is fine if the skins are from Western Canada.

Mink is available in colors to suit anyone and its striped effect produces a flattering long slender look. But mink is not intended for daily wear.

Mr. Rogul says Persian lamb, Canadian squirrel and mink are all good value at the present prices. He says the cost of mink is not likely to drop because of the extensive labor necessary to complete a coat.

Alaska seal and Russian broadtail were "out of line" in price.

Canadian women now are asking for more high style in their fur coats. "They used to look at it but never buy it," he said.

Unless a woman lives in a really cold community, he advises her to buy a jacket rather than a coat. "After all, a jacket can be worn six months of the year," he says.

MT. PLEASANT W.M.S.

RAWDON — The February meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S. was held recently in the church hall with 27 adults and three children in attendance.

The worship theme was based on "Into All the World Together," with a large map and blackboard message.

The hostesses were Mrs. John Mulheron and Mrs. Raymond McConnell who welcomed the group as they arrived. Mrs. Burton Sharpe officiated at the piano. Mrs. John Mulheron, the W.M.S. president, read a poem on the theme of prayer. The roll call showed seven life members and eight annual members to date. The secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, gave her report. The treasurer, Mrs. Grant Hubble, reported over $15 for January. Mrs. Donald Knight read a message from Mrs. Lowery of the Dominion Board, on stewardship, from the "Missionary Monthly." She said that great opportunities await those if they will accept the challenge to continue building His church in the world. Through the allocation, one can help her brothers and sisters of all races to a fuller realization of God's great love. The great law of love is that all must share.

Mrs. W. G. Fletcher gave a Lenten message and closed with a poem, "Lord Teach Us To Pray That We May Live As Jesus Lived."

Mrs. Harry McAdam reported that the Mission Band was now divided into two study groups, primary and junior. Mrs. Milford Wrightman said the Baby Band "Travelling Basket" is circulating around the community. Mrs. Donald Johnson told of the recent quilting held at the church hall, and displayed the pair of slippers she had purchased for the allocation in the supply department.

The World Day of Prayer service for Rawdon circuit will be held at Mount Pleasant United Church on Friday, Feb. 17. The group was asked to attend Belleville Presbyterial at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 20 and 21. Two ladies offered to provide cars for transportation.

The president gave a message on "The World Council of Churches" and conducted the study period. The chapter dealt with "A Home for the Homeless." She was assisted by Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Albert Hubble and Miss Gail Scott.

Since World War II the World Council has resettled about 200,000 refugees in all parts of the world. There are a million refugees in the Middle East and as many more in Hong Kong. The goal is to have these people learn to help themselves whenever possible. The Near East Christian Council supports a sewing centre in Bettir, a frontier village, and it has also provided a teacher and sewing machines. The story of "The Old Believers" who are an orthodox agricultural group showed how these folk are now settled in Brazil. Over 300 people are settled on a 6,000 - acre tract of land.

DEVOTIONAL

The devotional was prepared by Mrs. Donald Johnson and Mrs. Milford Wirghtman. Mrs. Ira David read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Wrightman read the commentary based on "Hearing God Talking." Special prayers were offered by Mrs. Frank Spencer, Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mr. Albert Hubble, Mrs. Stanley Williams, Mrs. Don Knight, Mrs. Ernest Spencer and Mrs. W. G. Feltcher. The offering was gathered and dedicated by Mrs. Percy MacMullen. Mrs. Will Jeffs sang "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" with guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Harry McAdam read a meditation on "The Lord's Prayer."

6TH SIDNEY — The president of Scott's Women's Federation, Mrs. A. Martyn, opened the afternoon meeting, following a pot-luck dinner, on February 8. There were nine members present. Six cards were sent and three calls made. Th supply bale, which is to go to a mission in Manitoba, is nearly assembled. It was decided to buy two dozen folding chairs from the building fund.

Mrs. Martyn read "Cascade of Moments" for the meditation and Mrs. Morley Sine dealt with a chapter in the study book, with the help of Mesdames R. McMullen, K. Faul and C. Frost. They showed how the church is using modern methods of mass communication to spread the gospel, and how local leaders are being trained to use the media of communication best suited to their particular situation.

Mrs. McMullen represented a young African who is a radio writer and newscaster. Mrs. Faul took the part of a Buddhist from Burma and showed how many in that country are being won to the Christian faith. Mrs. C. Frost represented a teacher in the Philippines, showing how the "School of the Air" can reach so many.

The United Church annually gives $11,900 to literacy work; $6,000 to International Missionary Council and $14,250 to the radio and visual education.

DEVOTIONAL

Mrs. Polland and her group took charge of the devotional part of the program. She read the message of the new moderator, Mr. Hugh McLeod, as given in the missionary monthly.

After the call to worship Mrs. E. Sine read the Scripture lesson, Luke 4:16-21, and messages were brought from Africa and Asia through readings by members.

Mrs. Faul and Mrs. G. Sine will be program conveners for March.

LEADING LADY

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-born Doris Sauer was chairman of the recent Canadian Consumer Credit Conference held at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Thirty of the 200 delegates were women. In 1958, Miss Sauer became the first woman to be president of the predominantly-male Credit Granters' Association.

SEARCHES FOR AFFECTION — Blonde Bonnie Armstrong, 5, reaches out to touch the face of her nursery school teacher, Helen Nicholl. Miss Nicholl was chosen by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Toronto to lead the way in fitting blind youngsters into nursery school life. Bonnie, who is sightless, started school last fall and has learned to take part in regular school activities. (CP Photo).

Blind Child Enjoys Life, Work in Nursery School

TORONTO (CP) — "I can see you," said the little blind girl as she traced her sensitive fingers over the nose and mouth of her nursery school teacher

Five - year - old Bonnie Armstrong's smile reflected the success of a project sponsored by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind aimed at fitting sightless youngsters into the normal activities of the nursery school.

For although Bonnie cannot really see her teacher, Helen Nicholl, she is happy in this once - strange environment and her experience may lead the way to admission of other blind children to such schools.

"Normal nursery school for these children enlarges their world and lets them learn a different physical setup from their own homes," says Doris Weaver of the CNIB. "They also learn to take direction from someone other than their parents."

When Bonnie is old enough to enter the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford, she will be better prepared for meeting the difficulties of leaving home.

Since last fall when she arrived at the private school in north - central Toronto, Bonnie has learned to play in the yard on her own, climb the slide, use the swings and ride the teeter-totter, paste, finger - paint, put educational toys together, make strings of beads and sing and laugh with the other children.

"A blind child is an asset to the school because she teaches other children consideration," says Miss Nicholl.

At first her playmates were inclined to make too much fuss over her but now they accept her as they would a sighted youngster although one little boy confided: 'I love Bonnie best of all."

"I try not to give her any more consideration than the other children," the teacher adds. "I clear obstacles from her path and tell her when a table or some other item is in her way. But she knows the pattern of the playroom now and gets around by herself all right.

"It's wonderful for her to be with the other children. She learns to give and take. She argues and fights with the others occasionally and has a mind of her own.

"It gets her away from any tendency to rely on over-protectiveness at home. She's not the queen of the roost here and it's good for her."

Y.P.U. Groups Entertain 250 District Y.P.

CAMPBELLFORD — More then 250 young people converged on Campbellford from within a 100 mile radius on Saturday past to take part in the second annual "Snow Shenanigans", held by the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Young People's Union of the United Church of Canada.

The Campbellford YPU group were hosts for the event, which say young people from Perth and Renfrew, Brockville, Kingston, Oshawa, Lindsay and Peterborough taking part.

On Saturday afternoon, following the registration at the United Church, the group travelled by chartered bus and automobile to the outskirts of the town where they skated on the Trent Canal, or skied or tobogganed on nearby hills. Toboggan races, with teams of the various Presbyteries taking part, were also held, during the afternoon.

The group enjoyed their supper as well as a sing-song and 'gab-fest' at St. John's United Church auditorium on Saturday evening, prior to a dance held in the High School auditorium at night. At the dance Carol Morrison of Oshawa was crowned "Snow Queen" by president Ross Drew and was presented with a camera a crown and sceptre.

The visitors were billeted with members of the local congregation, and at homes in Havelock and the surrounding district.

On Sunday, the church was filled to capacity when the group attended, along with the regular congregation, to take part in a service conducted by the young people. Earl Taft of the Campbellford YPU preached the sermon.

The event was arranged by a committee of the local organization consisting of Sandra Vansickle, Ian Reilly, Barabara Smith and Donald Robins, with Alan Nicholls as chairmen.

At a discussion on Saturday evening, the group said they hoped to make plans to hold the event each year in Campbellford, as the town is located centrally and everyone enjoyed the hospitality of the community.

BACK IN LAW PRACTICE — Stuart Garson, federal Liberal justice minister from 1948 to 1957, now lives with his wife and two daughters in Winnipeg where he has returned to his private law practice. CAMPBELLFORD

Lions Club Hears Topic On "Time"

CAMPBELLFORD — Deputy District Governor Lion Bob Garden of District A-3, Region 10, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Lions Club, here, this week.

Mr. Garden spoke of the high esteem in which the Campbellford Club was held by other clubs of the region, because of their outstanding record of accomplishment in community welfare and betterment work. The speaker spoke on 'Time', saying there were 1,440 minutes in a day, and that not one of these minutes should be wasted. "We should always have time, when opportunity knocks", he said and "If we do not have time, we must make time".

People in many parts of the world look at the charitable work of Lions clubs, and wonder where the members get the time, according to the speaker. He said "in the words of the founder of Lionism, time is God-given, and we must always have time to do unto others as we would have them do unto us'.

Lion Governor Jim Clarke of Campbellford introduced the speaker. Lion Colin Collins expressed appreciative thanks.

BUSINESS DISCUSSED

During the business portion of the meeting it was decided to make a donation to the Canadian Mental Health Association.

It was also decided that the club will sponsor a public speaking contest, to be held in the Parish Hall on February 10th. Two trophies were donated to high scorers on the Public School hockey teams.

The Club also made a donation to the Senior Citizens Club of Campbellford.

A Return to Provincial Taxation Naive, Erroneous Says Manitoba Ex-Premier

By STAN McCABE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Stuart Garson, who was largely instrumental in pointing the way to present federal-provincial financial relations, says the idea of returning to provincial taxation is "naive and erroneous."

Provincial treasurer for 12 years before becoming premier of Manitoba in 1943, he was credited with placing the best brief before the Rowell-Sirois commission which investigated pre-war Canadian finances and set the course for government fiscal affairs.

After the start of the Second World War, he was prominent in obtaining agreements with the federal government on wartime taxation, including the transfer of personal and corporation income taxes to federal authority.

Mr. Garson, former Liberal justice minister at Ottawa, was asked in an interview what he thought of the recent suggestion by Prime Minister Diefenbaker that the provinces be given back their rights in such tax fields.

SAME OLD PROBLEMS

"The case—and I think I may say against this naive and erroneous idea—is set out in the brief of the Manitoba government submission to the Rowell-Sirois commission.

"So far as I know there has never been any statement or pronouncement that to any substantial extent challenges the validity of the findings of that commission.

"In my view, if we were to go back to the old methods of the provinces collecting the taxes they have assigned to the federal government, we would again encounter . . . all of the fiscal injustices, financial difficulties and depreciation of provincial services which were the occasion for the setting up of the Rowell-Sirois commission."

And, he added, this would occur to "an even more pressing degree" because of "economic and financial conditions which have changed for the worse."

PRACTISES LAW

Mr. Garson, who spent 31 years in politics between the time he entered the Manitoba legislature at the age of 23 and was defeated in the federal election of 1957 after nine years as justice minister, is back in private law practice here.

Questioned about the possibility he might return to politics, he said: "At my age—62—I question whether, over a reasonably long pull, I could give the service that I was able to give when I was premier of Manitoba and minister of justice . . . and a younger man."

He pointed up one of the differences between being a cabinet minister and practising law when he said:

"Law is a tough job. It is just as intricate and just as difficult—as regards matters of detail more so. However, I don't have to stand up under criticism—both just and in many cases pretty unjust and unreasonable."

And he was careful not to appear critical of the pace of penal reform under his Progressive Conservative successor in the justice portfolio, Davie Fulton.

TOUGH SELLING JOB

"I know how difficult it is to sell 10 different administrations on what the federal government thinks they should be doing in their own sphere. This is by no means an easy task that faces Mr. Fulton as it faced his predecessors. It is not a task that can be done in a short time."

As for Mr. Garson's own accomplishments as justice minister, he had a part in making the Supreme Court of Canada the court of last resort. Under his guidance the criminal code was reduced in size by more than 400 sections. The Fauteux commission on penal reform was set up along with joint parliamentary committees on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries.

And during his term the government never lost a combines case.

It has been suggested that he write his memoirs but he says: "I'm a Scotsman and would expect to receive in compensation for any work I might do writing my memoirs more money than I expect that I would receive from those who purchased them."

Central Pension Agency Recommended in Report

TORONTO (CP) — Increased government supervision of pension schemes and creation of a privately-operated central pension agency are among the recommendations of the Ontario government's special committee on portable pensions.

The committee's recommendations were contained in a 23-page report tabled in the legislature Monday, to be considered by an informal committee of the legislature Wednesday.

The proposed central agency would be designed to hold part of the pension benefits of workers moving from one job to another.

The corporation operating the agency could be a private one with broad investment powers, the committee said, "so the funds transferred to it would remain available for private investment."

Joint chairmen of the committee were George Gathercole, deputy minister of economics, and Professor D. C. MacGregor of the University of Toronto.

MUST MAKE SURE

In recommending more government supervision of pension plans, the report said "it is of cardinal importance both to the employee who transfers jobs and to the one stays with his original employer that he actually receives the pension promised him."

"This can only be assured if pension plans are adequately financed and effectively administered. More safeguards are needed in some areas."

As a minimum, the report suggested, basic information about a pension plan should be filed in a government office where it would be available to employees seeking information.

The committee also recommended creation of a scale of vesting (confirmation of the employee's legal possession) of pension benefits, coupled with restrictions on cash withdrawals of contributions by the employee.

ACCORDING TO AGE

Vesting according to age, rather than years of service, was recommended. Under a suggested scale, transfer of rights would rise from 20 per cent at the age of 20 to 100 per cent for those 34 and over.

"Graduated vesting would serve to reduce the financial incentive for an employer to dispense with an employee's services just before sudden vesting," the report said.

"Vesting at younger ages is not proposed because it would be administratively burdensome, as the turnover in employment is greater at these ages."

The restrictions on cash withdrawal would apply from the same age at which vesting begins. The report suggested a graduated scale, under which 20 per cent of employees' contributions would be retained for pension benefits at 30, and 100 per cent at 34 and over.

WOULD MINIMIZE

"The graduated scale is intended to minimize the incentive to quit employment to take cash," the committee said.

"We believe that a restriction on cash withdrawals is of prime importance in ensuring that workers actually will receive pension benefits. It should be regarded as an unreasonable infringement of freedom."

The report suggested the proposed central agency be set up by asking the principal administrators of pension plans—trust and life insurance companies—for a loan of capital.

The committee warned that current expansion of pension plans "will not proceed quickly enough nor far enough to meet the social needs, unless government inducements are invoked."

LISTS POSSIBILITIES

The report listed four possibilities for a unified partable pension scheme:

1. The Ontario government could require that all or most employers establish pension plans meeting a minimal standard.

2. The federal government could gradually increase its flat universal old-age pension.

3. The federal government could add to the existing flat universal old-age pension a contributory earnings-related pension program.

4 The Ontario government could establish a contributory earnings - related pension scheme. But the report recommended against this possibility as involving too costly an administration.

Grattan O'Leary No Man To Argue With in World Of Languages and Ideas

By DAVE STOCKAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — An encounter with M. Grattan O'Leary in the world of words and ideas can be as stimulating as stepping barefooted into a hornet's nest.

Mr. O'Leary is first and foremost a newspaper man, and an eloquent one; quick to use his command of language to sting or scold—but never to scar.

More recently he has been getting in his lyrical licks as chairman of the royal commission on publications, which is seeking ways of building a better base for Canadian magazines in their struggles against competition from United States periodicals.

To anyone who knows the O'Leary tongue and temper, a humdrum, sweetness - and-light sort of inquiry was unthinkable. He managed nonetheless to raise quite a number of eyebrows.

Witnesses who were targets of his oratory, crashing about them like the breaking waves of a pounding surf, must have trembled to think of the fires kindled by their 71 - year - old questioner when he was a young bucko.

MADE PUBLIC AWARE

A CCF MP grumbled in the Commons about "liverish prejudgment" in the questions and declarations in the three-man commission's barnstorming across Canada.

The Irish in Mr. O'Leary—and there is a lot of Irish in Mr. O'Leary — would probably prefer the term constructive devilment.

Talking in his royal commission office, Mr. O'Leary said the commission's provocative approach scooped in all the information it was after as well as building up public awareness of what the inquiry is all about.

As he said in winding up public hearings in Ottawa:

"Although we have had our lovers' quarrels within this room, no scars have been left, and the memories of these quarrels will in no way influence the decisions we come to. We simply ask you to forgive our trespasses as we forgive you your trespasses against us."

MUST KNOW WHY

The vital need now, Mr. O'Leary said, is to turn out a report of historical depth in which the reasons behind the commission's recommendations to the government can be clearly understood by Canadians and Americans alike.

The report can't simply set out what should be done, he said. It must state with crystal clarity why it should be done.

What is the background of the chairman whose signature will go on the report?

When a young writer with high hopes for starting a Canadian journal of conservative thought described himself before the commission as something of a revolutionary by temperament and a conservative by conviction, Mr. O'Leary said with gleeful enthusiasm:

"You are almost describing me! I wish to God you came within our terms of reference."

It wouldn't be a bad summing up, at that, of a man who has been called the conscience of the Conservative party in Canada through his editorials and commentaries in a newspaper career that has spanned half a century with the Ottawa Journal alone — from $17-a-week reporter to the newepaper's presidency.

RAN FOR PARLIAMENT

In his Journal years Mr. O'Leary has covered the great stories at home and abroad, and has been a confidant of prime ministers. The late Arthur Meighen, Conservative prime minister in 1920-21 and 1926, was his lifelong friend.

But he regrets deeply that he was not able to serve in Parliament himself. He ran in 1925, competing unsuccessfuly for the Gaspe seat held by Liberal Speaker Rodolphe Lemieux in a campaign complicated by a Conservative party member in the riding skipping out with the campaign funds.

There were other invitations in the years that followed by Mr. O'Leary, getting ahead at The Journal and raising a family of five—four boys and a girl—was unable to accept.

As he approached his 72nd birthday, Mr. O'Leary remarked that he can't do nearly as much work as in his younger days when he would fill the Journal editorial page by day and then carry on into the night as a whirlwind free - lance factory.

WAS RADIO PIONEER

For his first 20 years with The Journal he made more money through his outside writing than he did with his home paper — of which he became president in 1957.

As one of the pioneers in radio broadcasting in Canada, he plunged every nickel of his early radio earnings into the stock market and lost it all in the 1929 crash—a point that doesn't seem to faze him particularly on looking back.

There are just two things that smack of the old - fashioned in Mr. O'Leary: The down-the-middle part of his hair and his manners, which are more courtly than are generally found in this century.

The hair still shows only a salting of grey, and the movement of his slight, wiry frame can be almost as quick as his tongue. He could easily be taken for a man 20 years his junior.

"The secret of health is curiosity," Mr. O'Leary told an interviewer. "The trick is to associate with young people."

BORN ON FARM

He was born Feb. 19, 1889, in a small farmhouse in Perce, on Quebec's Gaspe peninsula. He never went to high school, making up for this lack of formal education by reading everything he could get his hands on, and began newspaper work in 1909 with the Saint John Standard.

He harkened back to his Gaspe upbringing in typical fashion in scolding a farm organization representative who appeared before the commission:

"I must say I was a bit hurt, having been brought up on a farm myself, to note what you said about Canadian editors and their attitude towards farmers.

"I was brought up on a very small farm and I think we don't mind being called peasants. It is quite true that no government looked after us; nobody gave us a floor price and nobody fixed the price of our butter — but we looked after ourselves."

Two retired generals representing the Canadian Geographical Journal were chewed out by Mr. O'Leary for not knowing which newsstands sold their publication.

FLOW ONE WAY

"Well," said the chairman, "I think if our circulation manager didn't know where The Journal was being sold this afternoon, he wouldn't be the circulation manager too long."

A spokesman for U.S. magazine publishers was sent reeling back to New York-wishes for a pleasant journey ringing in his ears — after stating that the most varied flow of information in the world exists between Canada and the U.S.

"My dear sir," said Mr. O'Leary, "The flow is all one way.

"Actually, we think we are lucky if occasionally we make the New York Times in this country. In truth, sir, we almost have to have quintuplets to make the American press at all.

"And though we are a vigorous race we can't keep on having quintuplets all the time, and so we don't get things in the American press and this is one of our troubles — to get our message to the American people. . . ."

PRESS FREEDOM ISSUE

Getting the greatest dander up were submissions arguing that tax or tariff action against U.S. magazines would violate principles of freedom of the press.

Said Mr. O'Leary, in concluding a rattling reply to the various contentions of this type:

"There is no absolute press freedom. There is no absolute freedom; ther is no absolute freedom for speech, and for heaven's sake I hope we will hear the end of this, whatever else we do."

With his commission duties, Mr. O'Leary has had time to contribute only two Journal editorials in recent months. One of them was a tribute to C. D. Howe, political foe and personal friend.

He hopes to move back into his Journal office early in March, although it is expected to be April before the final polish is put on the royal commission report.

For the summer, he is planning a trip to Ireland, although he remains firmly convinced that the most Irish of the Irish are found in the countryside where he grew up and not in the Irish homeland.

Canadian Signalmen Taken Out of North Congo Town Of Gemena as UAR Leaves

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — The Canadian Signals detachment has finally been withdrawn from the northern Congo town of Gemena, but for nearly a week there was some question whether they would make it.

The Canadian operation at the little farming community ended after five months, with the withdrawal of a United Arab Republic battalion from the area. The six-man Canadian Signals team had been stationed in Gemena to provide communications for the U.A.R. with United Nations headquarters in Leopoldville and with other Congolese centres.

It was one of the quietest posts in The Congo.

"We had very good relations with everyone," said Capt. D. M. Doran of Camp Borden, Ont., liaison officer with the detachment.

"We got along very well with the 60 or so Europeans, and were friendly with the local ANC (Armee Nationale Congolaise)."

One of the main problems for Capt. Doran and his crew was food. Supplies were provided through the Arab troops, but they lacked many items normally found in Canadian Army diets.

"I would tell the U.A.R. colonel that we needed such and such an item," Doran said. "He'd say, 'My men don't have it and they're okay.' So sometimes we'd just have to do without."

Getting the Canadians out of Gemena with all their communications equipment was a prolonged chore. The airlift of Arab soldiers and supplies occupied most of the UN aircraft available for the job.

One plane sent in to take out part of the signal equipment landed and, for some unexplained reason, took off again almost immediately before Doran could load his supplies.

A twin-engined C-119, operated for the UN by an Italian air force crew of seven, left Leopoldville for Gemena to take out the Canadians. It developed engine trouble and turned back.

One of the engines conked out and it made an emergency landing at a tiny dirt air strip beside the Congo River. The crew was uninjured but technicians had to be flown in to repair damage to the plane before it could take off.

Bad weather caused further delays. The Canadians spent four days with their bags and equipment packed after the last Arab troops left. They made do with what food they could find—mostly, said Capt. Doran, corned beef and rice.

When a UN C-119 finally arrived to take them out, the Canadians needed only 35 minutes to load everything aboard.

"We weren't going to waste any time once the plane was in our hands," said Sgt. L. R. Bottrill of Camp Borden.

Gemena itself—one of seven outposts staffed by Canadians—is a town of about 5,000 centred around cotton plantations, a mill and farms in northwestern Equator Province.

The Canadians lived in a private house rented for them by the UN. For relaxation they swam in the cotton company's swimming pool or visited with the Europeans.

Cpl. H. M. Breiter of Oromocto, N.B., said he doesn't know what the residents of Gemena and surrounding areas will do now for medical attention.

Stationed at Gemena as a medical assistant, Cpl. Breiter had a daily lineup of Congolese seeking attention for various ailments. He gave what help he could.

"They had a nice hospital there, but there were only two Pakistani doctors working in it. They left with the U.A.R. troops and there's no doctor at all now in the whole area."

Others at Gemena included Cpl. Ron Lefebvre of Alexandria, Ont., and Signalmen A. Ciciola of Rosemount, Que., B. R. Keast of Kingston and Jim O'Dell of Williams Lake, B.C.

The equipment from Gemena is expected to be moved by late February to Albertville, on the shores of Lake Tanganyika in eastern Kivu Province. There it will be used to provide communications for large detachments of Nigerians attempting to keep the peace with supporters of the late Patrice Lumumba and rampaging Baluba tribesmen.

The names of those who will be staffing the Albertville detachment are not expected to be announced until shortly before the move.

Rural Municipalities Want Govt. to Assume All Costs of Education

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government should assume all costs of education in Ontario, the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities decided Tuesday at its annual convention's closing sessions.

However, the association voted to eliminate a section in the Orillia Township resolution that proposed imposition of a provincial sales tax to raise the needed funds.

Another resolution passed calls on the province to pay subsidies on heavy equipment needed for snow removal on municipal roads.

John Oakes, Wellington County councillor, said the highways department subsidies cover only machines of 125 horsepower or less. He said such machines are inadequate to clear roads in the province's "snow belt."

Another successful resolution asks provincial permission to levy municipal taxes on gravel removed from pits that had once been farmland. Gordon Gerry of Lobo Township said 40- and 60-acre fields in his township are being stripped down to the hardpan.

The association voted to ask the department of transport to permit pulpwood truckers to carry 100-inch-wide loads. Present regulations provide a 96-inch maximum.

A Carleton County resolution seeking authority for municipalities to set down their own speed limits in build-up areas was defeated.

A five-page resolution from Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry counties defending the county council system was tabled for consideration at the 1962 convention.

The delegates approved a resolution asking the department of highways to pay municipal grants in lieu of taxes on land assumed for the construction of new highways.

John Courlard of Niagara Township said the new Highway 405 connecting the Queen Elizabeth Way with a new international bridge at Queenston will cost the township $2,000 a year in lost taxes.

WOULD ACCEPT GRANTS

Another resolution passed at the convention asks the department of lands and forests to pay grants in lieu of taxes on land assumed for municipal reforestation; another asks re-establishment of grants compensating farmers for livestock lost through rabies infection.

And three other successful resolutions ask increased provincial grants for farm drainage; exemption of municipalities from the 11-per-cent federal sales tax; and exemption of church properties from local improvement levies for water installations.

Nelson Charlesbois of Nayan was elected president for 1961-62. New vice-presidents are John M. Eckert of Seaforth and Harold Varty of Tweed.

WON'T BACK UN BID

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green indicated Tuesday night Canada is not prepared under present circumstances to support Red China's admission to the United Nations. He told the board of directors of the Canadian weekly Newspapers Association the reason is because Red China will not accept recognition unless its claim to Formosa is also recognized.

Mount Everest Seen From Air By Her Majesty

DACCA (AP) — Queen Elizabeth took a good look at Mount Everest Tuesday while flying between West and East Pakistan. Her Britannia airliner detoured to the north for a closer view of the world's highest mountain.

The Queen and Prince Philip flew along most of the length of the Himalayas as she went from the desert climate of West Pakistan at Lahore to the monsoons of southeast Asia at Dacca, capital of East Pakistan.

The Queen is scheduled to go to Katmandu, Nepal, later in the tour. But that visit close to the base of the Himalayan giants will be made in DC-3 Dakotas which are unable to get high enough for the best view of the mountains. Her Britannia, cruising at a height of four miles, gave an excellent view of peaks between five and six miles high.

The Queen and Prince Philip were received in Dacca by East Pakistan's governor, Lt. - Gen. Mohammad Azam Khan, and his wife. A crowd of some 15,000 broke through police lines to get closer to her at the airport.

The royal couple drove into the city along a dual carriageway especially built in time for the visit.

For more than a mile, 50 boys on bicycles and one bicycle rickshaw rode alongside the Queen on the opposite side of the roadway waving handkerchiefs.

Some 100,000 of Dacca's 500,000 population watched the Queen drive by in a blue Cadillac convertible, especially imported for her visit.

Father Never Saw Boy Friend In His Home

TORONTO (CP) — A father took the witness stand Tuesday to testify in the murder trial of Deszo Bakonyi, 21.

Bakonyi is accused of murdering his stepsister, Eva Blumberger, 21, whose decomposed body was found in a trench seven days after her parents had reported her missing last September.

Bakonyi's father testified that his son was present when police were notified the girl was missing. Later, he said, his son joined him in a trip to the police station where they demanded police action.

The senior Bakonyi said he had never seen a boy friend of the dead girl in his home. But he added that Deszo had mentioned she had a boyfriend after he had been questioned about a note she had left him.

The note warned of "trouble" unless Deszo got her some "medicine."

Mr. Justice G. A. Gale called a 10-minute recess when Bakonyi collapsed in the prisoner's dock while pathologist Dr Terry van Patter described the results of an autopsy that showed Miss Blumberger died of a fractured skull.

Earlier, Douglas Lucas of the attorney - general's department testified that bloodstains were found on the floor of Bakonyi's room as well as quantities of wire which matched the wire found around the girl's body.

The trial continues.

Courting Costs Lover Beating By Daddy

ATIENZA, Spain (AP)—The passionate lover of Atienza will not remember Valentine's day 1961 kindly.

Long hours spent courting his sweetheart through the barred window of her room while her mother and father were asleep ended in disaster.

Longing for a kiss, the young lover put his head through the bars. It stuck.

He had to wait several hours for a locksmith to set him free. While he waited a crowd collected.

The noise made by the watchers woke the girl's father.

He beat the young lover as he struggled to get free; and finally sent him home with a bruised head.

He had only one consolation: Police kept his name a strict secret.

PRESIDENT ELECTED

MONTREAL (CP) — Arnold G. Muirhead of Braeside, Ont., was elected president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association Tuesday. He succeeds H. F. Staniforth of Montreal who held the post for the last two years.

Lumumba Kinsmen Gather At Home of Widow to Mourn

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Mrs. Pauline Lumumba lay grief-stricken in a dark corner of an African house Tuesday, amid wails and tears from relatives gathered around to mourn her husband.

More than 200 kinsmen, close friends and colleagues of slain Patrice Lumumba passed through the tiny house to pay respects in a traditional Congolese wake.

The women crouched on the hard floor, silent babies in their arms, tears flowing down their hard, wrinkled cheeks. The heavy air was pierced by shrieks of grief and agony.

"Our strong leader is gone—our great father is no more," they wailed.

Mrs. Lumumba herself was still. Only an occasional gasp passed her lips, then she shook convulsively.

Outside in the tropical sun sat the men, silent, sullen and motionless.

"There is nothing for us to do now," muttered Lumumba's brother-in - law. "He is gone. There is no one to take his place . . . He was a great man."

The relatives gathered from early morning at the house of Joseph Lutula, Mrs. Lumumba's brother and minister of agriculture in Lumumba's short-lived government.

Lutula said "we want to have his body—have they buried his body?"

Did Lutula believe the Katanga government announcement that Lumumba had been killed by angry villagers, or did he suspect an execution?

"I don't know," Lutula said. "We don't know. He is dead. That's all we know."

None of the relatives had seen Lumumba since October, shortly before he fled from Leopoldville and tried to join his followers in Stanleyville. He was arrested on his way and lived out his life in uneasy captivity.

Later the wailing widow emerged and walked before the United Nations headquarters, demanding the return of her husband's body. About 100 mourning friends and relatives accompanied her.

Barebreasted in the traditional Congolese gesture of mourning, Mrs. Lumumba was admitted for a private interview with Rajeshwar Dayal, Indian head of the UN Congo mission.

Dayal, who has described the "dastardly crime," offered Mrs. Lumumba his condolences.

Dog Given Up For Dead Year Ago Now Home

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Tosha, a German shepherd given up for dead a year ago after plummeting into the Niagara gorge, has come home.

The dog, owned by Charles Tiller, fell into the gorge after leaping at a bird. The family gave up hope and replaced him with Big Boy.

A few days ago a bedraggled dog arrived at the Tiller home and a veterinarian recognized a scar on his leg.

A mystery German shepherd was reported ranging the gorge during the summer.

Tosha apparently lay unconscious after his fall, woke to find himself alone, and began his solitary existence.

He lived on small game until immigration men began to woo him back to civilization with hamburger meat. The Niagara Frontier Humane Society decided it would be dangerous to try to rescue him.

A case of dog food was given to Charles Blair, caretaker at the Maid-of-the Mist docks. Gradually he won the dog's confidence, and, successfully rehabilitated, Tosha made his own way home.

Mother of Five Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter

NORTH BAY (CP)—A mother of five children pleadel guilty to a charge of manslaughter and a Timagami guide and trapper was found unfit to stand trial for murder at Ontario Supreme Court hearings Tuesday.

The jury deliberated 21 minutes and decided that Stanley Roy, 40, is unfit to stand trial by reason of insanity in the death of his wife, Jane, 40. She died Sept. 24 following a severe beating.

Mrs. Doreen Coulas pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter which had been reduced from a murder charge. She is charged with the fatal shooting of her husband, Thomas, at their Cross Lake home, 60 miles southwest of Pembroke, Dec. 22. The trial continues.

Vote Against Women In the Ministry

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Tuesday voted 18 to 10 against a proposal to ordain women to the ministry.

The result of the vote will be forwarded to the church's 1961 general assembly, which will decide on the issue on the basis of votes from presbyteries across Canada.

Last June in Guelph the general assembly approved the move in principle and referred it to the presbyteries for a vote.

Speaking in support of the proposal, Rev. John Fleck, of Elmwood Avenue Church, London, said it is not contrary to anything in the scriptures. He expressed fear that a refusal to recognize female candidates for the ministry might contribute to disruption of the Christian church.

Rev. J. M. Wray declared that "this is a living church . . . We are not interested in reproducing the early church of Christianity."

Opposition to the move was led by Rev. Jonas E. C. Shepherd, who said there are many instances to indicate women are subordinate to men. He was supported by others who said women should be allowed to preach and could be elevated to the rank of deaconess, but should not be admitted to the full orders of the ministry.

Someone Let Sir Winston's Pet Bird Out

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Toby, Sir Winston Churchill's yellow and black pet bird, flitted out of his cage and disappeared among the palm trees of the Cote d'Azur Tuesday.

Churchill, as attached to Toby as he is to cigars, immediately posted a 150 francs ($30) reward.

Sir Winston, spending one of his frequent vacations here, missed the bird on returning from lunch. The windows of his hotel apartment were open wide, letting in warm sunshine and letting Toby out.

Someone had left Toby's cage door ajar.

Everyone went on a hunt.

Toby was finally spotted shortly before nightfall by Scotland Yard Sgt. Edmond Murray, Churchill's bodyguard. He was up in the highest frond of a palm tree.

By the time a ladder arrived, Toby had winged away.

The search was abandoned until daybreak.

Diefenbaker Makes Move To Turn His Pro-Canadian Beliefs Into Govt. Action

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government is moving on several fronts to translate his pro-Canadian policies into action. Much of all this affects American economic interests.

The first measure was a sweeping cancellation of substantial tax concessions that had been granted to U.S. investors as an incentive to pour dollars into Canadian industry.

The action was interpreted in some quarters as a notice that Canada no longer was interested in foreign capital but this was emphatically denied. Finance Minister Fleming said it was intended merely to encourage greater Canadian investment.

The philosophy behind the new step, perhaps not encouraging to U.S. capital in the long run, was explained this way by the prime minister:

"Our aim is to assure that Canada's economy and destiny shall be Canadian. To that end steps are being taken to increase Canadian participation in the control of Canada's economy."

The U.S. publication Business Week found in a survey of American businessmen that the Canadian action produced more annoyance than alarm. It was not expected to have any great effect on the flow of U.S. investments.

Willis C. Armstrong, charge d'affaires at the U.S embassy in Ottawa, has gone directly to the Canadian public with a defence of the U.S. role in Canadian economic life. He warned that any attempt at extensive regulation of U.S. enterprises in Canada might produce an unfortunate effect on the Canadian economy and its growth.

"This is not a threat in any sense," he said. "It is simply pointing out that capital is relatively timid, and goes where it will receive a warm welcome."

Americans have about $15,000,000,000 invested in Canada and actually own 27 per cent of all Canadian industry. Thus, Canada is by far the biggest outlet for U.S. investment abroad, surpassing all of Latin America by a substantial margin.

American capital controls all of Canada's sizable motor car industry, nearly all of its oil business and the electrical products industry, more than half the mining industry and a third of the pulp and paper business.

Armstrong assures Canadians that there is nothing to worry about, since these investments are in the hands of private individuals — mostly small stockholders. As he pictures it, there is no question of Washington trying to dominate Canadian business.

"There isn't the slightest doubt," he said, "that Canadians will continue to own the better part of their own industry. Indeed, there is every reason to expect that as Canadian savings grow, Canadian ownership in Canadian industry will increase in proportion to U.S. ownership."

Canada not only is the biggest outlet for U.S. investments. It is also the largest market for U.S. exports. The United States, in turn, is Canada's best customer.

Both countries are seeking new markets, however, and recent figures show a slight shift. During the last four years the U.S. share of Canada's total exports has declined to 57 per cent from 59. During the same period, the U.S. share of Canada's import market declined to 68 per cent from 73.

Both countries have increased trade barriers to some extent and it is generally expected that a change in Canadian tariff rules announced in December will raise tariffs on some U.S. goods.

The United States is watching to make sure U.S. rights are protected. Armstrong explains:

"Any substantial trend toward protectionism on either side would undoubtedly be poor policy from the standpoint of our economies and our relations with each other."

The whole field of trade and investment likely will be taken up between Canadian officials and the Kennedy administration in the near future. A cabinet-level Canadian delegation already has held private discussions with U.S. officials on the question of sharing the mid-western oil market and other questions relating to the oil industry.

Canada's government is under pressure to take steps to prevent US magazines and periodicals from increasing their dominance in Canada. This is a red hot issue. For two months a government commission held hearings throughout the country. Recommendations now are being drafted.

Canadian publishers argue that huge American publications like Time and Reader's Digest—which have Canadian editions and sell advertising in Canada—have an unfair advantage which tends to put Canadian publications out of business.

Proposals placed before the investigating commission include a general tariff on all American magazines, a tax on advertising revenues of U.S. magazines that carry Canadian advertising, and a subsidy to assist deserving Canadian magazines.

One recent positive development in Canadian - American economic relations is a treaty for joint development of Columbia River resources in the northwestern United States and Canada. President Eisenhower and the Canadian prime minister hailed the treaty as a milestone in international relations.

Penal Institution Will Be Established at Elliot Lake

TORONTO (CP) — Abandoned mining facilities at Elliot Lake will be converted for use as a penal institution, Reform Institutions Minister Wardrope told the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

He said the government has arranged a two-year lease at $1 a year on buildings at the old Quirk Lake uranium mine pithead.

The first prisoners and staff will be moved to the site within the next few weeks. The institution will accommodate 200 prisoners and staff of 60.

Mr. Wardrope said the public works department is negotiating for a long-term lease of buildings at another nearby mine site which could be used as an extension of the first location.

A new institution would have cost $2,000,000 and taken about two years to build, the minister said.

"Perishables and other supplies will be purchased locally for both the prisoners and the staff. . . . I hope we will also be able to employ Elliot Lake citizens, currently without work, on the institution staff."

Elliot Lake has suffered serious unemployment since the cancellation of uranium contracts by the United States government.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Wardrope said the mine buildings will be renovated and the prisoners put to work at trade training, building picnic tables and clearing land for the possible establishment of a provincial park.

Given $6,000 In Damages By High Court

KINGSTON (CP) — A Supreme Court jury awarded Joseph Sherboneau $6,000 damages Tuesday against Rene Claesson, who Sherboneau contends ran off with his wife.

The jury awarded $5,000 for alienation of affections and $1,000 for adultery.

Sherboneau, 38, testified Monday he left his job as a highways department truck driver to search for his wife but has not been able to find her.

He said his wife left Kingston last July with Claesson, who ran an office cleaning firm here. The youngest of the three Sherboneau children, 18-month-old Michael, disappeared with her.

Rising Tide of Canadian Nationalism Cannot Be Dismissed as Hysteria

The Associated Press recently sent a reporter of wide international experience into Canada to see how Canadians feel about their neighbors to the south. This is the second of a series of reports he is writing on Canadian - American relations, giving an assessment of this complex problem from the American viewpoint.

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP) — When you talk with Canadiens and with Americans in Canada you come away with the impression that the rising tide of Canadian nationalism cannot be dismissed as a temporary hysteria.

Behind it is a deep-rooted and widespread fear that Canada's identity may be smothered by United States pressure and influences.

Canada is determined not to become a satellite on the U.S. or even to look like one.

That is one of the factors which make it doubly different for those seeking a way to patch up the damaged U.S.-Canadian relations. No clear picture of the goal of Canadian nationalism has yet emerged.

Complicating the problem further, there seems to be no single major grievance against the United States. Whatever pressures there are, most Canadians agree, are purely unintentional and unplanned by the Americans.

One leading Canadian publication said:

"If we have sold too much of our country to our neighbor (and grown rich in the process) this is our own fault, not theirs, and there is nothing any president of the United States can do about it."

CONCERN GROWS

The leaders of Canada's two main political parties are Prime Minister Diefenbaker, a Progressive Conservative, and Lester B. Pearson, a Liberal. They disagree about many things, but agree that Canada has cause for concern in the growing influence of the United States.

Says Pearson:

"Our anxiety over these dangers is as inescapable as the Canadian winter, and as natural."

But Pearson sees no reason to be panicky or foolish. He puts it this way:

"If we have confidence in our Canadian strength, faith in our Canadian destiny, we will be able to maintain a Canadian national identity, strengthen a Canadian national feeling and sense of purpose: keep proud Canada's position in the world; and at nobody's expense."

But Canadianism is more than economics and more than politics, although the politicians have done a lot to speed its growth. Numerous intellectuals—college professors, writers and commentators primarily—sneer at U.S. culture as a creature of New York's Madison Avenue and urge the development of a distinctive Canadian brand of culture.

This type of Canadianism is, perhaps, a revolt against the rather large doses of the U.S which Canadians get every day.

The supermarkets are filled with U.S. brand names. The highways are lined with billboards advertising U.S. soft drinks, automobile tires and movies. Book stores are full of American books. News stands are packed with U.S magazines. In large population centres such as Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, you can watch American television. On top of all this, Canada gets about 30,000,000 U.S. visitors a year.

SEEK OWN IMAGE

It is not the individual pieces of the picture that rile the Canadians, but the mass picture of wholesale American penetration. There is a strong yearning among some Canadians at least for something more Canadian in character.

One of the most outspoken among those who deplore most American imports is writer Hugh MacLennan who says:

"In the long run, nothing will save Canada's future but resistance to the army of conditioned-reflex salesmen who have followed the American investment into the country. It is not the investment that does the damage, it is these mental carpetbaggers.

"Therefore, all native activities that foster a resistance to Madison Avenue — art, literature, education, magazines, radio, television, motion pictures —these should deliberately, whenever possible, divorce themselves from American mass models no matter how loud the advertisers scream."

In a letters-to-the-editor column, Joseph V. Klein of Weston, Ont., dissents. He says most anti-Americanism in Canada is based on "four all-Canadian myths: our superior education system, our racial and religious harmony, our importance in world affairs and our fantastic future."

SORE SPOTS FOUND

Canadianism is not just a slogan. It keeps cropping up in one form or another.

The Ontario Brotherhood of Carpenters says the provincial government purchases office chairs in Grand Rapids, Mich. —and is angry.

Newspapers are flooded with protests against the use of U.S. textbooks and "junior newspapers" in Canadian schools. Some writers call it brainwashing.

A professional football coach, Lou Agase of Toronto Argonauts, says U.S. pro football teams are conducting a smear campaign to discourage U.S. college players from joining Canadian teams.

By law the publicly-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation must maintain a 55-percent Canadian content in its television programs. Entertainment columnists speak of the Canadian content of night club show. There are demands that the government's winter works program for the unemployed use only products made in Canada.

And just the other day the Canadian government got a suggestion that Canada should do something about Smokey the bear, who gives out advice on how to prevent forest fires. Smokey is doing a good job, the government was told, but he is American and, perhaps, a Canadian substitute could do just as well.

Some Canadians are sharply critical of this trend. Says Nobel Peace Prize - winner Pearson:

"We do not prove our Canadianism but only our immaturity when we confuse the defence of Canada's rights with breast-beating; or by war - whooping around whatever symbol of Americanism we think at a given moment requires this treatment."

Tomorrow: The American stake in Canada.

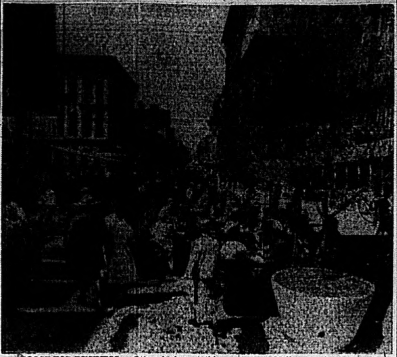
Cross-Canada Survey



BOOST FOR BUSINESS — Ottawa's shopping mall, a three-block-long pedestrian island on uptown Sparks Street, was a business success last year, increasing store sales 34 per cent over 1959. It operated for 3½ months but there is some opposition to its revival this summer. Malls may be re-introduced in Timmins and Peterborough in Ontario and Nanaimo, B.C., this year, but it is doubtful that one will be repeated in Orillia, Ont. (CP Photo).

Shopping Malls Making Dubious Progress in Canada

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The shopping mall is making dubious progress in Canada.

This European import was tried out on varying scales—mostly limited—and with different degrees of success in five communities during 1960.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press indicates that this year will see even more limited use of the mall as a means of boosting business by barring motor traffic from downtown areas and dressing them up for shoppers.

Present plans call for not more than four communities to experiment with the often-controversial mall in 1961. And it's not certain that Ottawa—the only one that made a big production of it last year—will do it again.

Ottawa's mall operated for 3½ months last summer. Others at Nanaimo, B.C., and Orillia, Timmins, and Peterborough in Ontario, ran between three days and three hours.

SOME INDOORS

A variation of the mall came into operation in London, Ont., where a building housing a promenade with banks of stores on either side was opened. Construction is to start this spring on a similar establishment in Halifax.

In Ottawa, uptown Sparks Street a few yards off Parliament Hill was transformed into a strollers' island for three blocks with potted trees and plants, a fountain and pool and gaily-colored benches and canopies.

There were sidewalk cafes, band concerts and outdoor fashion shows. It cost $30,000, split evenly between the city and merchants on the street.

A recent official report termed the mall a business success, and a civic committee's poll of 2,000 Ottawans found 83.8 per cent of them wanting the mall to become permanent.

Sales were up as high as 34 per cent over the same 1959 period in some cases, and in general volume on the mall was "proportionately greater than in Ottawa as a whole or in Ontario."

But there are dissenters. Forty-six owners or tenants of Sparks street properties have filed a petition opposing another mall. One of these is George H. Nelms, who was mayor last year and whose optical business is in the mall area.

On the other hand, 41 others in the Sparks Street Development Association have petitioned the city for permission to operate again.

A main complaint is lack of nearby parking, and the unhappiest are those dealing with the carriage trade.

"There are crowds but you can't sell diamonds on a midway," one jeweler grumbled.

But merchants on Rideau Street, separated from Sparks by Confederation Square, are drafting plans for an even more ambitious project, at a cost of $1,000,000.

Not properly a mall, this would involve letting traffic flow through this arterial section, but the sidewalks would be covered, colored, heated and widened. The street would be extensively landscaped and store fronts dolled up, and wiring would be placed underground.

The plan is still under study.

Nanaimo, on Vancouver Island, was the only community outside Ontario to stage a mall last year—its first. It operated for three days in the heart of downtown section, with about 30 stores participating. A sidewalk cafe, a few benches and some inexpensive trimmings constituted the decor.

Merchants within the mall area reported improved business. Some outside it said their business dropped, particularly in suburban shopping centres.

The intention is to operate it again for three days in June, and possibly to extend the area beyond the single block of last year. However, expansion might be difficult without seriously interfering with downtown traffic.

A plan to set up a more pretentious mall and off - street parking project in Victoria, at a cost of $1,000,000, went down the drain last spring when ratepayers vetoed the expenditure. The mall would have extended 3½ blocks.

Vancouver is planning a sort of semi-mall for its 75th anniversary celebration this summer, but it is not yet definite. It would broaden sidewalks, move in trees and shrubs and perhaps set up sidewalk cafes on several downtown blocks.

Curb parking would be barred, busses and taxis would use bays and the streets would be decorated Paris fashion.

In Orillia, a mall was run for three consecutive days last summer, with the streets decked out in the customary fashion and some merchants staging special outdoor sales.

Opinion on its success was divided, and it is doubtful that it will be repeated this year.

Peterborough so far has had three malls—one for the Christmas period of 1959 and one each for Easter and Christmas last year. The first was highly successful, with sales up as much as 100 per cent. This one lasted three hours.

The Easter one, also three hours, was not as successful, but merchants reported themselves satisfied. The Christmas one, an all-day affair Nov. 26, did not compare with the other two, possibly because it was Grey Cup day.

There are no definite plans for 1961, though it is expected the Easter mall will be repeated.

At Timmins, a three-hour mall on a Friday evening in June was pronounced a success. There are no firm plans for this year but one and perhaps two will likely be held.

In the more distant future, Sault Ste. Marie could possibly have a permanent mall. Town planning consultant E. G. Flaudi has recommended closing off four blocks on two downtown streets in a preliminary report, but the city council has not acted pending a final report.

Still in the nebulous stage is a plan being talked of in Edmonton. Nine architects have submitted a brief to the city planning adivosry committee suggesting a downtown redevelopment including transforming Jasper Avenue, the main traffic artery, into a mall. But there are no signs of action on it.

DEFENCE PROBLEM — The Canadian defence budget has been contracting slightly since the 1952-53 fiscal year. In effect, there has been a ceiling of about $1,700,000,000 a year on defence spending.

But, as graph shows, the cost of personnel, operations and maintenance has been rising steadily since the quick build-up following outbreak of the Korean War in June of 1950.

This has required a decrease in spending on new weapons and equipment if planners were to remain inside the defence ceiling budget. (CP Newsmap.)

CAMPBELLFORD

Council Holds Long Session, Heavy Agenda

CAMPBELLFORD — All members were present at the regular meeting of the Town Council on Monday evening.

Rev. L. M. Hornby expressed his thanks to council for their study of traffic conditions as a result of his request at the January meeting. The study concerns the problem of traffic in the area of the Pentecostal and United Churches, and is being studied by Council.

The Red Cross was given permission for a Tag Day on March 18th and Daylight Saving time adopted from Sunday April 30th until Saturday, October 28th, 1961, both dates inclusive.

Couns. Hopping and Dennis were appointed to the Recreation Committee by Council and the appointments of Bill Machesney from the Lions Club and Jack Free from the Canadian Legion, were ratified.

A letter from Mr. Warrander of the Department of Municipal Affairs concerning safety in public buildings was referred to the general protection committee.

A by-law was submitted by Counties' Council relative to the appointment of a single plumbing inspector for several county municipalities. It was thought this to be a good idea to have an inspector for several municipalities to make the position worthwhile for a competent man. The sample by-law was left with the general government committee and the solicitor for further consideration.

The taxi licence for Mr. Douglas Calver was renewed, the application being satisfactory.

LENGTHY DEBATE

The matter of financing the School for Retarded Children in Campbellford, brought considerable discussion. It was pointed out in a letter from the chairman of the committee, Rev. Gordon Whitehorne that the budget for 1961 is $8,000, of which $2,500 will be received in government grants. The new act provides for municipal assistance. Consequently a letter seeking assistance is being forwarded to each municipality (six townships and three incorporated municipalities) having children in the school asking for grants. Council approved the move and stated by motion that they would support the school if other municipal councils would do likewise. A meeting of the municipal councils involved was suggested.

Tenders for the roofing of the tower at the fire hall were left with General Government Committee, to report.

Councillor Dennis reported for the Senior Citizens, indicating that the club had raised $671 by their own efforts.

The report of the police committee, given by Councillor Torrance, was accepted.

Councillor Hopping stated that 1961 concludes the rink debt payment. He congratulated the Arena Board on the improvement in facilities and the hard work done. He reported on a meeting held with Mr. Maddocks of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Recreation Branch.

LEASE IS READ

The clerk read the lease between the Corporation and the owners of the Senior Citizens' rooms.

Rev. A. E. Toombs was appointed for a three-year term to the library board.

The by-law for borrowing $4,000 for the Public, Utilities Commission sub-station at the pulp mill was passed, as was a by-law making the maximum parking time on Front Street, South, from River Street to Buchanan's Barber Shop, 15 minutes.

The sum of $100 was granted the Fire Department for its mutual aid program. The chairman and vice-chairman of the public works committee and the road foreman were delegated to the Good Roads convention.

The pay-sheet was passed and council adjourned.

Lions Club Sponsors Ice Carnival

CAMPBELLFORD — The Peterborough Skating Club — about 45 strong—was featured at the skating carnival, sponsored by the Lions Club at the community arena here on Saturday night.

The group performed a number of skating routines including ballet numbers and solo demonstrations. They were warmly received by a crowd of approximately 500.

Another highlight of the carnival was a broomball game on skates, between the Lions and farmers of the district. The farmers took the contest 2-1, and OHA referee Bill Mulholland of Dartford, had a lion size job in maintaining law and order.

He donned a protective helmet after the game began to show signs of getting rough.

Mr. Mulholland kept the game in hand until the closing minutes, when farmers and Lions began coming over the boards to take part in the play in support of their mates. At one time, there were more than 40 players on the ice.

Lions goalkeeper Ray McKinnon, who, when not playing broomball, is an accountant at the local bank, performed a number of spectacular saves, but was beaten twice by the farmers. The farmers' goalie, Harold Ingram, likewise stopped several near goals, but had less work to do than the Lions goalie, who complained his defence "acted like a bunch of old ladies."

Contests for the best costumes were staged during the evening, and a number of prizes were awarded in various skating races.

Funds realized from the event will be used to expand the Lions Park and play grounds on the West River Road, and also for community welfare work. The event was arranged through the efforts of Lion Bill Oliver.

Gave Mended Hearts Back To Doctor

NEW YORK (AP)—Thirty-eight little boys and girls, who once gave their hearts to their doctor to be mended for life, gave them back again Monday—at a Valentine party for him.

It was a hugging, kissing and truly heart-warming occasion for Dr. Alvin A. Bakst, a New York pioneer in open-heart surgery.

Dr. Bakst was almost speechless as the youngsters surged around him, laughing, chattering and jumping as normal children do.

Up to four years ago—when the surgeon began his career of open - heart operations—there wasn't a normal one in the group.

In fact every one was doomed to death before maturity. They were a pitiful collection of little human beings.

Some were too weak to move. Some were bedridden. Others would faint every few minutes. A few were already at the edge of death.

Looking at them Monday, even Dr. Bakst had to shake his head in awe and pleasure at what medical science had enabled his strong hands to do.

"Isn't it marvelous" he murmured over and over.

There hopping about, the picture of liveliness, was seven-year-old Rochelle Hausman of Brooklyn. Only five weeks ago she was on the operating table.

There was 10-year-old Richard Zweig of New York, who has decided to become a doctor himself.

The party was staged at Brooklyn Jewish Hospital, where Dr. Bakst has performed most of his 200 open-heart operations on both children and adults.

Said a fellow doctor:

"See that little boy — 31 stitches in his heart. And that little girl—she has two pieces of plastic in hers. And that youngster — he was all but dead when he went on the operating table. I understand he is quite a football player now."

Latest Sensation in Jap Film World Is Western

By BOB THOMAS

TOKYO (AP)—Hi-yo, yamamato!

The latest sensation in the Japanese film world is the western. Yes, a real, live horse opera with shoot - outs and chases. Only the cowpokes are Japanese.

Home of the new wave of westerns is Nikkatsu Studio, a bustling lot amid rice paddies which released 25 westerns last year.

I visited the studio and caught a preview of a new film. The climax showed the three bad guys taking potshots at the two good guys and their blind girl friend on a sand dune. They were saved by an old gent who said, blowing gunsmoke from the barrel, that he had just arrived from Hong Kong.

Riding tall (five feet, nine) in the saddle during the western craze is good-looking Akira Kobayashi, 24, who is billed as Mito Guy, or Dynamite Guy. He started in films five years ago and became a star in 1958.

LIVES WITH PARENTS

He lives in a modest home in Tokyo's Tagamura district with his parents, sister, brother, white Thunderbird car and doberman pinscher. He talked about his career over tea in his den, decorated with his awards and trophies and dolls from fans.

How did he get started with westerns?

"When I went to the country areas," said the Tokyo - born actor, "I found the people didn't understand the imported westerns. I thought I would give them a Japanese version."

The idea clicked, and last year Akira made 10 westerns, along with five other movies. He has little time for anything else, grinding out a film every 25 days. His estimated annual earnings are $100,000 a quarter of that from records. He sings ballads in the films, and one disc sold 300,000 copies (a hit here is 100,000).

Rod Colbin Wants to Use Capabilities in Two Fields

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW YORK (AP) — Millions have seen his work and critics rave, but actor Rod Colbin finds that being an expert with swords isn't all it's cut out to be.

Colbin has staged swordplay on Broadway and in television. The most demanding recent assignment was 23 separate duels in the two-part CBS presentation of The Three Musketeers.

"'I want to use my capabilities as an actor and as a fencing master," he says, "'but when I appear before a producer for a reading, I can see that in the back of his mind he is saying to himself, "Colbin? "He's a fencer. Why should he want to read?'

"I keep running into this constantly—people who simply cannot accept you on two levels."

As an actor, Colbin's experience ranges from the crazy servant in The Taming of the Shrew, to Hubert, the death-dealing henchman of King John, to Carl Whipple, the young retired grain merchant in the CBS soap opera, As the World Turns.

Recommended tonight: Bob Hope Sports Awards Show (10-11 p.m., NBC); Spy Next Door, Circle Theatre (10-11 p.m., CBS).

MAROONS DROP OUT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons, the leagueless senior hockey team that made a triumphant tour of Czechoslovakia in December, will not compete in the Allan Cup playoffs this year, business manager Terry Hind announced Tuesday.

He blamed a combination of financial and player difficulties.

"Certain of our players will not be able to compete in the Allan Cup playoffs," Hind said, "and this would make us only a shadow of the club that made such a good show in Czechoslovakia. "Also, it would cost from $4,000 to $5,000 to carry on, and we just don't have that much money.

Pinch Hitting

JUNIOR PLAYOFFS

Interest on the local sports scene these days, comparatively quiet for the past week, should pick up greatly when the Junior Macs and Whitby Hillcrests open their Junior "B" playoff series tomorrow night.

The first game in the four-of-seven affair will be played in Whitby's arena, since Bus Gagnon's boys edged the Macs by two points in the battle for second place. It will begin at 8.30 p.m. Thursday. There is a possibility this and other games will be broadcast over CJBQ.

Second game in the set is slated for Memorial Arena here Saturday evening, also at 8.30, and it is hoped that district sports fans will get behind the locals in full force.

This has been, without a doubt, the best year for Junior hockey here since the days of Hec Lalonde, Donnie Hogan and company, and the great series between our Hawks and Weston Dukes.

While the 1960-61 Macs are not of that overall calibre (nor are any other "B" clubs in the province for that matter), the Eastern league has a balance among the top four clubs that makes for the best of competition.

Peterborough, Belleville and Whitby had the strength during most of the schedule and they came up with some great games to prove it. Whitby now appears to be the team to beat, but a vastly improved Kingston club will make it plenty tough for the opposition before it's over. The Petes and Kingston opened their semi-final series last night, by the way, with Peterborough taking a 5-3 win in overtime.

The final league standing offers further proof of the league's even distribution of power. Peterborough topped the group with 31 points on 13 wins, two losses, both to Whitby, and five ties. Whitby took second with 15 wins, most in the league, and five defeats, good for 30 points. The Macs, who held second most of the season, collected 28 points on 12 wins, four losses and four ties. An eight-game winning streak by Whitby stole second spot in the stretch. Kingston was fourth with eight wins, nine losses and three ties for 19 points.

Getting back to the Belleville-Whitby series, we find the Macs with a three won-one lost record against the Hillcrests during schedule play. But it was closer than Mutt and Jeff most of the way.

The Macs opened scheduled play with a 6-5 win in Whitby, defeated the Hillcrests 6-2 here on December 14, edged them 2-1 in overtime back in Whitby on January 7 and dropped a 3-1 decision here in Belleville on January 18. That last defeat cost them second place and the all-important extra home game in this playoff series.

The keen competition between these two clubs will carry on all down the line in this playoff series. Belleville-Whitby rivalry of senior "A" days is brought to mind when you check the coaches' names. Gordie Bell handles the Macs and, as mentioned before, Bus Gagnon is the Whitby bossman. They still love to beat each other. Gagnon coaches like he played, all out and win at any cost. He has a big, rough squad that carries out his orders.

Both teams have solid goaltending with Bill Moxon in the local nets, having very little edge over Whitby's Cliff Godridge. Gagnon also has Jim Topping, a capable performer, who split the games with Godridge early in the season.

A rock-em, sock-em defence on both bluelines will give the fans, who like their hockey rough, plenty to cheer about. The Macs are led by Captain Pat Asselstine and Larry Mavety with Barry Titterson and Gary Reid backing them up. Whitby's rearguard consists of Ken Roberts, George Ashby, Len Bobbie, Bob Tripp and Gary McCullough. They all like it rough.

In the scoring department, once again the clubs would appear to be on fairly even ground. Both teams placed one complete line in the league's final "Top Ten" scoring list.

Lynn Middleton won the group scoring championship with 50 points, while linemate Elmer Tran had 44 and Gordie Luke, third man on the line, had 37. The trio totalled 52 goals and 79 assists for 131 points.

Gordie Bell's answer to this combination will be the high-scoring unit of Moe Hunter, Gary Goyer and Ronnie Hull, which compiled 59 goals and 62 assists for 121 points during schedule play. Hunter shared the goal-scoring lead with Kingston's Bud Aylesworth, with 24, and finished third overall in points with 45. Goyer had 43 points and Hull 33.

The teams have scoring power and hitting ability all down the line.

If they don't kill each other in the process, the series winner may well capture the group championship and go on into provincial playdowns. Don't bet against it.

Injures Wrist

HAMILTON (CP) —Hamilton Red Wings' hopes of overtaking third-place Niagara Falls Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association's junior A standings were lessened Tuesday with the announcement that Wayne Rivers will be sidelined for the next six weeks.

Rivers injured his wrist in St. Catharines last Saturday. X-rays revealed a fracture.

Rivers has 13 goals and 18 assists for 31 points.

HOPE FOR TEAM

CHICAGO (AP)—An attempt is being made to get a franchise [illegible] football League for Chicago. A group of businessmen said Tuesday they will try to land a team which would regin operations in 1962.

Gerry McNamara Toronto Goalie

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

How good are Toronto Maple Leafs? Can Montreal Canadiens recover from a disastrous slump and finish in their usual perch atop the National Hockey League.

These questions may be partially answered tonight when the two teams clash in Toronto.

For the Leafs, undefeated in eight starts with seven victories and one tie, a win could go a long way to guarantee their first league championship in 13 years.

For the once-mighty Canadiens, who have only two victories in 12 starts, a win could be all they need to start a push towards a fourth consecutive first-place finish.

The Leafs have 73 points in 56 games, the Canadiens 67 in 54.

In another game tonight, New York Rangers play the Black Hawks in Chicago.

DEBUT FOR MCNAMARA

Toronto will have Gerry McNamara, 26, in goal. Called up from Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern Professional League, he replaces veteran Johnny Bower, who suffered a "pulled, twisted or badly sprained hamstring muscle" in his left thigh against Detroit Sunday.

Severe swelling has prevented a complete diagnosis of Bower's injury but he is expected to miss weekend games and might be out as long as three weeks.

Bower's chances of winning the Vezina Trophy—which goes to the goaltender who plays the most games for the team that allows the fewest goals — and the $1,000 prize that goes with it ride with McNamara.

"'This is my big break and I'm going to give it the best I've got," McNamara said Tuesday. "I know I could cost Johnny the Vezina. But I won't."

Bower also expressed confidence in McNamara from his hospital bed. "'If the guys work as hard for McNamara as they've done for me this season, I can't see how he can miss."

HAS BEEN AROUND

McNamara has never performed in the NHL. He had a wandering career with Pittsburgh, Hershey, Buffalo and Cleveland of the American League and Winnipeg of the Western League before going to Sudbury.

Meanwhile, Canadiens may play without rookie left winger Gilles Tremblay, who is up from Hull-Ottawa of the EPHL. He suffered an injury to his right ankle in practice Tuesday and it will not be known until game time whether he can play.

The Habs are expected to go with veteran Jacques Plante in the nets. Plante, replaced earlier this season by Charlie Hodge, was with Canadiens the last three games—a win, loss and tie.

Coach Toe Blake termed Plante's performance fine and said he couldn't blame him for Montreal's 3-1 loss to Chicago Sunday.

In 10 games with Toronto so far this season, the Habs have won six, lost four and outscored Leafs 39 to 27. Leafs have won three of the five games played in Toronto.

Hundred Goals In 160 Games For R. Leopold

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Leopold reached a hockey milestone Tuesday night by scoring his 100th Western League goal—all for Calgary Stampeders in 160 games during the last three seasons.

The 24-year-old right winger picked up 31 goals in 1958-59, 31 last season. He has 38 so far this season and is likely to get a long hard look from the parent Chicago Black Hawks of the National League.

Leopold got his big goal as the Stamps blasted the visiting Victoria Cougars 8-1. Seattle Totems came from behind to gain a 2-2 overtime tie with Vancouver Canucks.

At Calgary, Leopold sent the Stampeders into a 1-0 lead in the first period. George Ford tied the score five seconds later on a breakaway but Calgary then went wild.

Jimmy Brown was Calgary's top marksman with two goals. Norm Johnson, Lou Jankowski, Don Wilson, John Kosiancic and Sig Finney scored singles.

Canucks dominated the first period at Vancouver and were rewarded with two late goals by Dave Duke and Larry Cahan.

Tom McVie made it 2-1 midway through the second period with his 25th goal of the season and with less than five minutes remaining in regulation time, Don Chlupka got the equalizer.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"MAKE THE POINT STICK"

One of the reasons why the Montreal Canadiens have such an effective power play which often keeps the opposition penned in their own end for long stretches of time and which is so deadly when the Canadiens have a man advantage is because their point men to do such an effective job of keeping the puck in.

Doug Harvey is especially adept at this important phase of the game — which is practised far too little by the average age limit club. If you watch Harvey or any good point player carefully you will notice one outstanding fact — when the puck comes out to the point, hard or easy, rarely is it played with the stick. Instead it is stopped with the hand or foot, or with the stick with the foot behind it. The reason? Simply that the puck often hops over or deflects off the stick. The point man should play the puck as if he were keeping goal — always alert, never careless.

Other tricks of good point play are: be careful about passing laterally along the blue line since such passes can be intercepted and unless accurate can skid outside the line; when shooting in, shoot low because high shots are easily intercepted and blocked; be alert to pass to a teammate beside the goal — don't always shoot; of the play starts coming out because your team has lost possession, don't stand there and try to check the man. Get back fast. For more hints get my bulletin, "Doug Harvey, Wizard Of The Blue Line" by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10c to Hockey Hints, 80 King W. Toronto.

Brown Wanted Return Clause In Contract

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Dave Charnley clinched his crack at Joe Brown's world lightweight boxing title Tuesday by agreeing to give the champ a return fight if he beats him here April 18.

"That's the way Brown wants it," the 25-year-old British and European champion said. "If a return clause is the way to get a crack at a world title, it's all right with me."

Promoter Jack Solomons announced a week ago that a Brown-Charnley title fight was all set for London's Earls Court Stadium but Solomons explained Tuesday that Brown withheld his signature until he got a return fight clause added.

The clause stipulates that if Charnley beats Brown he will meet him again in the American's home town, Baton Rouge, La., within 90 days. Brown and Charnley each would get 30 per cent of the gate money for a return fight, plus 30 per cent of radio and television fees.

FAMOUS HOCKEY TROPHY — Jim Herder, publisher of the St. John's Telegram, displays the Herder Memorial Trophy awarded to Newfoundland's senior hockey champions since 1935. The trophy is in memory of the island's most famous hockey-playing family, the seven Herder brothers. Jim, who was a player with the first team to win the trophy, is the only one surviving. Sport Snapshots

By JOE DUPUIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The most unusual sports trophy in Newfoundland, where old and unusual trophies abound, is one that grows.

The Boyle Trophy, second oldest in Canadian hockey next to the Allan Cup, has Newfoundland's national anthem etched on its bread bowl, which holds 7½ pints of champagne.

Irish - born Sir Cavendish Boyle, British governor of Newfoundland from 1901 to 1904, wrote the Ode to Newfoundland, still sung in schools and at public functions instead of O Canada.

The old cup was first fought for in 1901 on an outdoor St. John's rink covered with ankle-deep water.

Through the years the trophy has soared to a height of three feet as new mountings were added to hold plaques with names, not only of championship teams but of each player of every title - winning club.

On the block this year for the 58th time, the Boyle now holds the names of 700 players.

WON 26 TIMES

Emblematic of the city's senior championship, it was won 26 times by the Roman Catholic St. Bon's team. Manager of St. Bon's first Boyle - winning team was Robert S. Furlong, now chief justice of the Newfoundland Supreme Court.

"The next best thing to being alive in Newfoundland," jokes Arthur Johnson, "is to get your name on the Boyle Trophy." His isn't.

Johnson, retired city businessman who now is president of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council, was a sports promoter and founded the Newfoundland Senior Hockey Association. This led to establishment of the Herder Memorial Trophy, in memory of Newfoundland's most famous hockey - playing family.

Only one of the seven hockey Herders, all brothers, survives —Jim Herder, publisher of The Evening Telegram.

FIRST OFFERED IN '35

Put up by the newspaper for competition in 1935, it was in honor of Arthur Herder, the eldest, who died of wounds in the First World War; William, invariably an all - star choice to play against visiting teams; Douglas, who died of typhoid at 23; Augustus, one of the most frequent and prominent names on the Boyle Trophy; Hrebert, reputed to be the finest player ever produced in Newfoundland; and Ralph, known for his executive as well as athletic talents in the game.

Jim Herder, prbably the most versatile player of the seven, was manager of the 1934 senior champion Guards team from St. John's and member of the first team to win the Herder Trophy.

A 1954 hockey program for a championship playoff in Grand Falls boastd that 'from 1900 to 1940 there has always been every season a Herder in Newfoundland senior hockey."

A junior prize, the Veitch Memorial Trophy, was donated by the family of St. Bon's star John Veitch who was killed in the Second World War.

GAVE MEMORIAL TROPHY

Herb Jenkins, son of one of Newfoundland's greatest baseball players, donated a trophy in honor of his dad, the Jenkins Memorial Trophy, symbol of the provincial senior championship.

Another memorial trophy, in memory of popular baseball starr Jim Daley, who died of an illness at a young age, was donated by his father for the St. John's junior championship.

The all - Newfoundland football trophy is a gift of fast-talking J. V. Rabbitts, a civil servant who excelled in athletics in his younger days and now serves on a number of provincial and Canadian sports bodies.

Then there's the Tobin Tie Cup, a runner - up city senior hockey award donated by the late John M. (Jack) Tobin, an athlete, referee, coach, manager and broadcaster who became known as "Mr. Hockey."

The term "tie cup" probably is taken from the English soccer term and dates back to when Newfoundland was a British colony and practically all trophies were "tie cups."

Royals Beaten By Niagara Falls Flyers 7-4

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Niagara Falls Flyers trounced league - leading Guelph Royals 7-4 Tuesday night to fatten their Ontario Hockey Association junior A third place lead to six points.

Royals went in front 2-0 on two goals just 13 seconds apart in the first period but Flyers tied it 3-3 entering the final 20 minutes of play.

In the final period, Howie Dietrich put the Flyers in front to stay as he tipped home Ed Westfall's drive. Marcel Tessier made it 5-3 before Rod Gilbert narrowed the count 5-4. But Jeannot Gilbert of Flyers triggered home an insurance marker and Westfall put a 140-foot drive into the open Guelph cage with just six seconds left in play.

Borden Smith and Rod Gilbert got the first two Guelph goals to one for Jennot Gilbert of the Flyers. Second period snipers were Dietrich and Billy Kniggs for Flyers and Bill Taylor for Guelph.

Y. Basketball

A recent triple-header in the YMCA gym provided lots of excitement in the "Y" Youth House Basketball League. In the opening game the Stealers and the Satellites battled to an 18-18 tie. Dyson Sargeant of the Stealers and Doug Rowe of the Satellites split scoring honors with 14 points apiece.

In the second tilt of the day the Celtics swamped the Lakers by a score of 22-12. High scorer of the game was Don McCormick of the Lakers with 10 points, followed by Murdock McFarlane with eight points for the Celtics.

The game saw the Globetrotters make tracks around the Hawks to almost trample them into the court by an overwhelming 35-5 score. Dave Hurst was top scorer for the Globetrotters amassing 13 points with Steve Beare scoring three points to lead the Hawks.

The lineups were:

First game:

Stealers—Sargeant 14, Wright 4, Hamilton, Macdonald, Smith; Loder, Drysdale.

Second game:

Third game:

Move Junior 'A' Contest To North Bay

NORTH BAY (CP) — St. Michael's College Majors meet Toronto Marlboros at Memorial Gardens here tonight in a regular Ontario Hockey Association junior A game originally scheduled for Toronto.

Officials decided to move the game to North Bay to avoid gate competition with the National League's Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs' playing in Maple Leaf Gardens.

Last-place Marlies haven't a chance of squeezing into the six-team playoffs, in the seven-team league, but manager-coach Walter (Turk) Broda hopes for better things next year.

Second-place Majors have a playoff berth clinched. Manager-coach Rev. David Bauer's main concern is getting his players prepared for the finals.

Smoke Eaters Defeat Russia 4-1

MOSCOW (AP)—Trail Smoke Eaters opened up against a youthful Russian national team Tuesday for a 4-1 victory—their first in three games against Soviet teams here.

Trail took a 3-0 lead on goals by Bob Kromm, Don Fletcher and Harry Smith before Russia got into the game with a goal in the third period. Dave Rusnell scored Canada's other goal.

Playing before more than 12,000 partisan spectators in Moscow's Sports Palace, the Smoke Eaters seemed to show more drive than in their two previous games here.

They tied the first game Saturday 3-3 with the Wings of the Soviet team and were defeated 3-2 Sunday by Moscow Dynamos.

Their performance Tuesday prompted the Soviet news agency Tass to comment that the Canadians "'finally showed some of their bite." During the first two games, said Tass, "'in the opinion of many specialists they deliberately played below their ability."

The Russian fans broke into deafening howls during a minor second-period fight. The game was generally hard-played but was not as rough as Sunday's contest, marred by a full-scale brawl.

Russia had trouble penetrating the armor of Trail goaltender Seth Martin who was appearing in his first game here. Substitute Claude Cyr was in the nets during the other two.

Despite their strenuous objections to the Canadians' hard body-checking, the Russian fans no doubt have found the Canadian brand of hockey exciting.

The Sports Palace normally seats 12,000 but for Tuesday's game the spectators were standing in the aisles. The arena was only half-filled during a Swiss-Russian game the day before.

The Smoke Eaters now go on to Czechoslovakia, where they will play five games starting today. In nine exhibition games to date, they have won six, tied one and lost two..

Galt Terriers Back in Tie For 2nd Spot

GALT (CP)—Butch Martin's 20th goal of the season hoisted Galt Terriers back into a second-place tie in the Ontario Hockey Association senior hockey standings on Tuesday night.

Martin's backhander at 9:33 of the third period lifted Terriers past a stubborn Strathroy Rocket Club 3-2 and gave them the tie with Chatham Maroons.

The victory, before 650 fans, was Galt's 13th in their last 18 games.

Harry Neale and Bill Wylie sank the other goals as Terriers twice took the lead only to lose it before each period ended. Jack Lane gave Rockets a 1-1 first period standoff and Jack McCreight scored in the second to tie it at 2-2.

Kingston Dog Wins in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Ch. Cappoquin Little Sister, a coal black toy poodle owned by Florence Michelson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., won the Westminster Kennel Club dog show Tuesday night—the third toy to win in the last six years.

Little Sister was sent to the top by Dr. Joseph E. Redden, a dentist from East Longmeadow, Mass., who took only about 10 minutes to make his decision. A crowd of about 8,000 in Madison Square Garden appeared to be satisfied.

In the terrier group Ch. Cairndania Clansman's Grey Girl, owned by Mrs. Betty Hyslop of Brockville won the Cairn terrier breed.

Other Canadian breed winners included:

Sporting group

Setter (English): Ch. Skidby's Sturdy Tyke, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Steacy, Chesney, Ont.

Toy group

Japanese Spaniel: Nippon Airashii San, owned by Mrs. D. H. Rogers, Kingston.

Reject Motion To Ask Details Of Purchase

HAMILTON (CP)—City council Tuesday night rejected by a 9-to-8 vote Controller Victor Copps' proposal that the new owners of Hamilton Tiger-Cats be asked for financial details of the club's purchase.

The proposal included a suggestion that council ask the Big Four Football League club to consider turning over to the city two trust funds with a total value of some $400,000 which it has set up to encourage amateur sports.

The club was purchased last December from a non-profit community ownership by a group of 12 men for $120,000.

Controller Copps said he doubted whether the city would have spent $750,000 to renovate Civic Stadium, home of the Ti-cats, a few years ago had it been known the club was soon to be sold to private interests.

SIGN OF SPRING

TORONTO (CP) — Sign of spring: The Jockey Club announced Tuesday the one-mile training track at Woodbine will open Monday. About 650 horses stabled at Woodbine during the winter are itching to run, along with another 350 expected to be shipped from Ontario farms. The racing season opens April 8 at Fort Erie.

Fronts Move Up

Kingston Within Two Points of Third Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals lashed out from the basement of the Eastern Professional Hockey League Tuesday night and defeated the mighty Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 5-4 with a record - setting goal blitz and a penalty shot in the second period.

Down 2-0 the Royals tied it when forwards Reggie Grigg and Wayne Connelly scored within seven seconds and went ahead to stay on Don Hogan's tally on a penalty shot, called when Johnny Annable threw his stick at Montreal's Gary Mork on a breakaway.

Kingston Frontenacs moved to within two points of third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers with a 2-1 win over the second - place Thunderbirds at Sault Ste. Marie. Netminding—by Claude Pronovost of Montreal and Ed Babiuk of Kingston.

The Grigg-Connelly effort at Montreal eclipsed the previous record of two goals in 23 seconds set last year by Billy Sutherland of the Royals, who scored both.

CONNOLLY HAD TWO

Connelly had two goals and Roger Sawicki got the other for the Royals. Hull-Ottawa scorers were Billy Carter, Glen Skov, Keith McCreary and Andre Drolet.

Pronovost treated the crowd of 2,531 to some thrilling stops when the Habs pulled Eddie Johnston with 1½ minutes left in favor of an extra attacker.

A crowd of 1,917 watched Frontenacs support Babiuk with some sound checking. They went ahead 2-0 on goals by Pete Panagabko and Orval Tessier in the second period before Norm Guimond tallied for the T-Birds with Kingston a man short.

Only six penalties were called, four to Kingston. The Thunderbirds pulled goalie Roy Edwards with a minute left but a penalty to Pat Stapleton killed their chances.

Standings of Two Teams Told in Scoring Race

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs and Chatham Maroons are running one-two in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior series this year and a glance at the league scoring statistics shows why.

The latest unofficial tabulation Tuesday reveals Windsor or Chatham players to be holding down the top eight positions.

Windsor's Joe Zorica, the leader, holds a seven-point edge over his nearest rival, linemate Bob Brown. Zorica has 32 goals and 35 assists for 67 points while Brown has a league-leading 36 goals and 24 assists for 60 points.

Their pivot, Bill Mitchell, is fourth in the point race and also has the most assists, 36. Mitchell has 51 points to trail Windsor captain Lou Bendo by five.

Chatham coach coach Ted Power and Maroons' Joe Malo are next with 49 and 46, followed by Chatham's George Aitken and Windsor coach Joe Klukay with 44 apiece.

In the goaltending race, Ross Childs of Windsor with a 3.536 average holds a scant lead over Harold Hruley of Galt Terriers who has a 3.538 mark. Just a shade behind them is Chatham's Al Bennett with a 3.61 average.

Windsor, with five games remaining, holds an eight-point lead over Chatham, which has seven games to play. Chatham has 40 points, two ahead of Galt, which will not compete in this league's playoffs but will meet the league winner.

Scrapping for the last two playoff positions are Stratford Indians with 31 points, Strathroy Rockets with 27 and Woodstock Athletics with 22.

Dodgers Buy New Airliner For Travelling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers bought a four-engined airliner Tuesday, but they may not be the first team to use it.

The plan, a DC-6B, was purchased from Western Air Lines. It will be equipped with three lounges and 66 seats.

Before the Dodgers fly in it themselves, they may use it to carry the Tokyo Giants from Los Angeles to Vero Beach, Fla. The Japanese club will spend a month there at the Dodger spring training base.

The Dodgers have sold their Convair 440 to a Spanish air line. They previously owned a DC-3.

Bisons Climb Into Second Place in Loop

QUEBEC (CP) — Buffalo Bisons climbed into second place in the American Hockey League standings Tuesday night by defeating Quebec Aces 5-3.

Dick Gamble led the Bisons' attack with two goals, with others going to Bob Courcy, Harry Cullen and Billy Dea.

Quebec scorers were Michel Harvey, Jean - Marie Cossette and Claude Labrosse.

Only seven penalties were called, including a team penalty to Buffalo for having too many players on the ice.

Bisons' first goal was scored with Cossette in the penalty box.

Buffalo goalie Denis Dejordy made 27 saves compared to 19 by Gerry McNeil in Aces' nets.

Archie Moore Ready to Sign For Title Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore grabbing for what little is left of his title, said Tuesday night he will sign a contract to defend here against Guilio Rinaldi of Italy June 10.

Archie spoke after receiving an ultimatum by the New York State Athletic Commission that he sign for a title defence against a suitable contender "'forthwith."

The National Boxing Association already has stripped Moore of recognition, crowning Harold Johnson, 32, of Philadelphia as champion.

The NBA dethroned Archie, 44, for not defending the title within the required six-month period. Moore's last defence was Aug. 12, 1959, when he knocked out Canada's Yvon Durelle.

Although Archie said he is going to sign, Harry Markson, Madison Square Garden boxing director, and Bill Yale, Moore's lawyer in San Diego, Calif., didn't reach an agreement during a telephone discussion Tuesday night. They were to talk some more today, anticipating the possibility the commission might act to strip Moore of title recognition at its Friday meeting.

There is also the question of whether Moore has been released from his agreement to meet Germany's Eric Schoeppner under the promotion of Feature Sports Incorporated. Last week Jack Fugazy, FSI executive director, declared the fight off because of the German's "unreasonable demands" for money.

Winner Will Get a Shot At Title

TORONTO (CP) — The winner of next Monday's heavyweight bout between George Chuvalo of Toronto and Brian London of Blackpool will get a shot at the British Empire championship, said matchmaker Deacon Allen Tuesday

Allen said British promoter Jack Solomons had offered in a phone call to match the winner against empire champion Henry Cooper in London in the third week of March.

Chuvalo is the Canadian titleholder. London lost the British Empire championship to Cooper last year.

Not Eligible For Teepees

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Defenceman Larry Burns has been declared ineligible to play with St. Catharines Teepees for the rest of the current Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season, it was learned Tuesday.

Burns, released in December, played intermediate hockey in Massey and was recalled to the Teepees last week. His new certificate was not accepted by the OHA because it was filed after the Jan. 1 deadline.

ONE OUT OF TEN

February or March, declining as spring weather restores activity to seasonal industries.

Of the 693,000 unemployed workers at mid-January, 87 per cent were men, the same proportion as in December.

BUILDING SLUMPS

Almost one-third had been in the construction industry when they were let out. Another third were in the various service-producing industries and the remainder were mostly in manufacturing and forestry.

Temporary layoffs showed a major jump between December and January, increasing to 63,000 from 39,000.

Of the remaining 630,000 out of a job and seeking work, 71 per cent had been unemployed for three months or less, 18 per cent for four to six months and 11 per cent for seven months or more.

A key point in the labor department's analysis is that the labor force at mid-January was 3.1 per cent higher than a year earlier, while employment was up just 0.8 per cent.

The number of women with jobs increased by 101,000 over the year while the number of men employed showed a drop of 54,000.

The labor department analysis said seasonal factors were responsible for most of the December-to-January drop in employment.

"Construction and trade shared about equally in the decrease and together they accounted for about 60 per cent of the net change in employment over the month," the report said. "'Most of the remainder was in forestry, agriculture and services."

FARM JOBS DECLINE

The drop in jobs in forestry was "'heavily concentrated" in Quebec while most of the decline in agriculture took place in Ontario, the report said.

The monthly unemployment report—for the week ending Jan. 14—is based on people without work and seeking work plus those who are on temporary layoff. It has official support as the proper yardstick of unemployment in Canada.

Here is the unemployment picture for Ontario:

Unemployment increased by 49,000 to 202,000 at mid-January. For Ontario, this represented 8.5 per cent of the labor force of 2,372,000, a jump from 6.4 per cent at mid-December.

At January, 1960, the jobless figure represented 6.2 per cent of the labor force.

Employment dropped by 32,000 between December and January, a larger than usual decline with men being mostly affected.

Employment was reduced in the construction industry as wintry weather hit outdoor work. There were layoffs in a wide range of industries, including distilleries and breweries, rubber and textile plants and in the secondary iron and steel industry. In primary steel plants employment was fairly stable although somewhat lower than a year earlier.

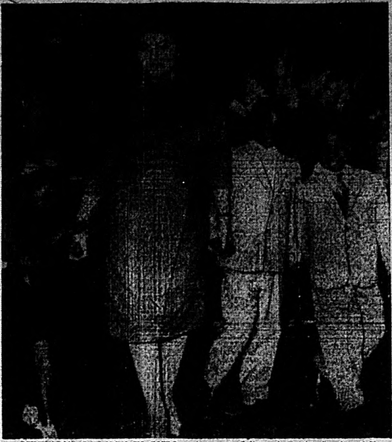
ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A factory sweeper, missing since Nov. 28 left $25,000 in a trust fund and two bank accounts, but no clues to his whereabouts. Police are looking for Ivanhoe Stuart, 60, but believe he may be dead. The stocky Scotsman has no known relatives and disappeared just after he was released from Hotel Dieu Hospital where he was treated for a mild heart attack.



LUMUMBA'S CHILDREN IN CAIRO — Three children of Patrice Lumumba, whose death was announced in The Congo, were photographed last week at the Tahira Palace in Cairo with Mrs. Kwame Nkrumah, Egyptian-born wife of the president of Ghana. Children are Juliana, 6, Patrice Jr., 9, and Francois, 10, right. News of their father's death was withheld from the children who were taken to Cairo in October. Lumumba's widow last was reported in the Leopoldville capital area of The Congo. (AP Wirephoto).

FEARFUL

the end against the imperialist bloc headed by the United States. . . ."

Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, always a Lumumba supporter, lashed the UN for the role it played in The Congo and added:

"'The danger in The Congo is not so much the possibility of a civil war between Africans, but rather a colonialist war in which the colonial and imperialist powers hide behind African puppet regimes."

U.S. officials were reported counting heavily on dozens of smaller nations, particularly in Africa, to rally to the defence of the UN.

NEED STRONG UN

India's ambassador in Washington, M. C. Chagla, said his government favors strengthening the UN because "it is only as the United Nations is effective that we will prevent civil war."

Tunisia's government radio attacked the Soviet action in the Congo crisis as "'risking creation of a new Korea."

Observers in Cairo predicted heavy pressure on Sudanese Premier Ibrahim Abboud to allow planes carrying arms and other supplies from the Communists and the U.A.R. to Stanleyville to make the necessary refuelling stop in The Sudan.

Many observers in Cairo believ the Soviet Union already is geared for a big arms supply program to Stanleyville. Soviet vessels recently have slipped unannounced through the Suez Canal heading south. They are reported to be carrying arms and explosives.

The London Daily Sketch headlined that Khrushchev has made inevitable a Congo showdown over the killing of Lumumba.

ATTACKS EMBASSIES

The heightened international concern followed a day of violent anti-Belgian demonstrations in Moscow, Belgrade, Warsaw, Damascus, Cairo and New Delhi. Demonstrators protesting the Lumumba slaying attacked Belgian embassies in those cities.

There were more peaceful anti-Belgian parades in a dozen other capitals.

In Brussels, Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny handed Soviet Ambassador Sergei Afanassiev a protest charging the Moscow mob with "'odious violence."

Similar protests went to the U.A.R. and Yugoslav ambassadors.

Belgian officials reiterated disclaimers that their government had anything to do with Lumumba's death and said that it had intervened with Katanga authorities asking that the captive leader be humanely treated.

Western governments sprang to the defence of UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, whose dismissal the Russians demanded.

"We particularly deplore the disgraceful attack on Mr Hammarskjold," said the British foreign office.

But Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express, which never has had much faith in the UN, said: "'A Soviet boycott will make his position near-impossible. It looks like the end of the line for another UNO secretary-general.

Service Will Be Continued

OTTAWA (CP) — Commuter service with Toronto will be continued on the Belleville and Peterborough trains running through Scarborough and Markham, Transport Minister Balcer said in the Commons Tuesday. Replying to Frank McGee (PC—York - Scarborough), he said the decision was made by the CNR because of Mr. McGee's repeated requests.

SHANNONVILLE

United Church Honors Retiring Organist

SHANNONVILLE — A pleasant gathering took place at Shannonville United Church after the evening service when all adjourned to the church hall to honor Mrs. Harry Sine who has served as pianist for 31 years and has now resigned.

Mrs. W. D. Robertson read an address of thanks and appreciation for faithful and efficient service for many years, and Mr. Claude Clarke presented Mrs. Sine with a brass coffee table with a glass top for which she graciously expressed her thanks.

Ladies of the W.A. served delectable refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Under the new amendment the action would be taken only after an application is made by an Indian band to have its band funds disbursed and its reserve lands distributed among the Indians.

Ontario Police Asked to Watch For Soldier

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario police have been asked to watch for Pte. Robert L. Bright of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Edmonton, the army said today.

An army spokesman at Central Command in Oakville said Bright has been missing since Feb. 2 and was believed in Ontario with his wife and their 1953 car. His next-of-kin are listed as living in Toronto.

The spokesman said the rifle and sub-machine gun issued to the soldier also are missing.

The Army Provost Corps in Ontario was advised from Edmonton that a friend there had received a telegram from Bright from Collingwood, asking for money.

The nightmare came on Sabena's flight 548 from New York, piloted by Cmdr. Louis Lambrechts.

ERRATIC COURSE

Villagers of Berg figured something might be wrong when the airliner sped in from the coast for its approach to the airport. The plane circled the field a time or two. It lowered the undercarriage, retracted it, turned again and fell.

"'Suddenly the plane fell in a series of spins," an airport official said. "It literally disintegrated."

There was a tremendous explosion.

An airport officer said clothes were burned off passengers in the forward cabin.

"'It all took place at a terrifying speed," he said. "'We saw the crash coming, it looked as though the plane's controls had been lost completely."

Another airport official said that five minutes before the disaster the control tower at Brussels was in touch with the pilot of the plane and that at that stage the pilot reported that everything was normal on board.

"SOMETHING WRONG'

"'But then obviously something went wrong."

The Boing, which can carry from 110 to 190 passengers, was one of Sabena's fleet of five.

One woman living nearby, Mrs. M. Croon, said the jet appeared to be trying to land but was approaching "much lower than usual."

"'The plane made a fine turn to land and then suddenly it appeared it could not do it. It fell in the wood of the hamlet of Lemmeke (the Baby Sheep) and exploded."

Another eyewitness said the Boing appeared to strike high tension cables, climb "'almost vertically" and then "drop like a stone."

Victora Maes, 34 only Canadian aboard the plane was a naturalized Canadian born in Belgium. A tobacco farmer at Vanessa near Brantford, he was on his way to his mother's funeral near Brussels. His wife Rachael was to have accompanied him, but changed her mind.

He booked his ticket in Brantford Monday.

SET VALUE ON HUMAN

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese national police agency puts the value of a human life at $1,686. A bill being drafted for parliament sets a compensation scale equivalent of 1,000 times a person's average daily wage—with a maximum of $1,686—for any one killed trying to rescue another from drowning, fire or other catastrophe.

SCREAMING

his speech with the statement that "I deeply deplore this outrageous and obviously organized demonstration. To the extent that Americans may have been involved, I apologize for my government to members of the security Council."

Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister have repeatedly said that New York is not a fit place for UN headquarters. However, it appeared that today's demonstrators were in favor of Lumumba factions in The Congo which the Russians also support.

Stevenson earlier had urged the Security Council to rally its strength to turn back what he called efforts to destroy the UN operations in The Congo.

He addressed the council in a crisis atmosphere brought to an unusual intensity by the slaying of Lumumba. Diplomats acknowledged that not only the fate of the UN Congo operation was at stake, but perhaps the fate of the United Nations itself.

The Russians seized on the assassination of former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba to step up their campaign, launched last September by Soviet Premier Khrushchev in his table-thumping appearance before the UN, to revamp that organization in a Moscow mold.

TERMED ACCOMPLICE

The strongly-worded Soviet resolution accused Hammarskjold of being "an accomplice and organizer" of Lumumba's slaying while in the hands of his political enemies. Earlier the Russians said they would have no more dealings with the secretary-general.

The United States and Canada promptly pledged support to Hammarskjold.

Britain and Italy charged the Russians with trying to exploit Lumumba's death to install a Soviet-subservient regime in The Congo.

Indian spokesmen also called for continuance of UN operations in The Congo as offering the only chance to prevent civil war that many feared would involve the major powers in another Korean-style conflagration.

The Soviet resolution also charged Belgium with prime responsibility for Lumumba's death and called for sanctions against the Congo's former ruler.

ARRESTS DEMANDED

The resolution demanded the arrest of President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, the province in which Lumumba was killed, and Maj.-Gen. Joseph Mobutu, the army chief of President Joseph Kasavubu's regime, and disarming of all troops and police under their control.

The Russians also demanded immediate disarmament and withdrawal from The Congo of all Belgian forces and all Belgian personnel.

Some Asian and African nations were reported favoring adoption of penalties against Belgium if that country failed to withdraw its civilian and military personnel from The Congo at once.

Stevenson told the UN Correspondents Association Tuesday the U.S. is still working for a constructive and workable solution of The Congo crisis, but he acknowledged the situation is grave.

Hammarskjold maintained silence Tuesday on the Soviet demands for the UN withdrawal from The Congo and his own dismissal.

Under the United Nations charter the secretary-general cannot be fired. Hammarskjold's present term extends to 1933.

PREDICTS ELECTION

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Senator David Croll said in a speech Tuesday immediate massive spending is needed to combat unemployment and a long-range program is needed to prevent its recurrence. Predicting a national election either this spring or fall so the government "could minimize its present losses," the senator pleaded for a "crusading new liberalism" to get back the reins of government by offering to recoup the Conservative losses.

Liberal Senator William Golding of Ontario, seconding Senator Pouliot's motion, termed the prime minister's position "the highest and most honored one that the people of Canada can confer upon a fellow citizen."

As for former prime ministers: "If there is any way in which we can show our appreciation for the services they have given then we should adopt this motion."

Boy Scout Week is Scouting's "Open House Week" when some 300,000 Canadian Boy Scouts and leaders in more than 11,000 Wolf Cub Packs, Boy Scout Troops and Rover Scout crews invite the people of their home communities to see what Scouting is and does.

Sunday, February 26th, is "B.P. Sunday," when special church services will be held across the county to honor the memory of the founder of the Scout and Guide movements, Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell.

Highlighting Boy Scout Week will be such events as father and son banquets, window displays, hobby shows, television and radio events and many other activities. All members of the Scouting family includings the boys themselves, Group Committees, Ladies' Auxiliaries, leaders' groups, and Scout Councils from sea to sea have been preparing for Boy Scout Week and it is expected that the 1961 observance will surpass all previous celebrations of this nature.

BELLEVILLE SCOUTS

The Boy Scouts cordially invite everyone to stop, look and listen and join them in the many projects during Boy Scout Week. There are over 1,200 members in Belleville and your support is essential to the continued success of this movement.

SCOUTING SPIRIT

This is the name of a publication compiled and printed by the 15th Troop. The editor is Doug Fraser, assisted by Ken Russell. Publisher Mr. Bill Fraser. The first edition is made up of three pages dealing with items dear to the hearts of Cubs and Scouts. Doug Mason and Stanley Gallinger, both Second Star Cubs, joined the pack on the same day and were made Scouts together.

There is an article on winter Scouting. A few hints for Boy Scout Week: Hobby Corner; facts about .22 rifles; a column for Cubs and, in lighter vein, a few jokes. In our opinion, a very well balanced little newspaper and very well written, too. An enterprise such as this deserves success. We wish you well in your endeavors and to the ten Scouts who are learning the Morse Code, "Good Scouting."

If you want to know more about "Scouting Spirit" Doug Fraser, 61 Southview Ave., will be happy to tell you.

Kennedy Warns Russia Against Action In Congo

U.S. Ready to Oppose Any Unilateral Move

WASHINGTON (CP) — President John Kennedy Wednesday night warned Soviet Premier Khrushchev that any Russian attempt to intervene unilaterally in the trouble-torn Congo would be immediately opposed by the United States and its allies.

Stepping into the most explosive East-West crisis since the Korean War, Kennedy called for restraint and respect for UN efforts in the African trouble spot but told a televised press conference:

"I would conceive it to be the duty of the United States and indeed all members of the United Nations to defend the charter of the United Nations by opposing any attempt by any government to intervene unilaterally in The Congo."

Khrushchev, angered by the assassination of ousted Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba, "recognized" Lumumba's lieutenant, fiery Antoine Gizenga, as Congo premier; withdrew Soviet recognition of UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold and demanded removal of all UN troops from The Congo in one month.

Red satellites and other countries sympathetic with Russia also supported Gizenga though only Congo President Kasavubu the UN. Khrushchev pledged Gizenga "all possible assistance and support."

Kennedy said he finds it difficult to believe that any government is planning "so dangerous and irresponsible a step" as unilateral intervention in The Congo.

"The United States has supported and will continue to support the United Nations' presence in The Congo," he said. "The United States consider that the only legal authority entitled to speak for The Congo as a whole is a government established under the chief of state, President Kasavubu, who has been seated in the General Assembly of the United Nations by a majority vote of its members."

There has been some talk Kasavubu might be persuaded to invite pro - Lumumba elements into his government.

CAN ONLY CONFUSE

"The broadening of the government under President Kasavubu," said Kennedy, "is a quite legitimate subject of discussion and such discussions have been going on in Leopoldville and in New York. . . ."

Just before Kennedy spoke to reporters, a Moscow dispatch quoted Khrushchev as telling Kennedy in a telegram he would like to see a solution of the disarmament problem "with the establishment of such strict international control that no one could arm in secret and commit aggression."

Manufacturers Propose Plan To Boost Profits

OTTAWA (CP) — A profit-boosting plan calling for tax cuts, tariff increases and tax incentives for greater exports was laid before the Senate manpower committee today by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"Profits make jobs," said the 6,400-member CMA. It contended that the best way to remedy unemployment is to stimulate manufacturing, which employs directly one out of every four persons in the work force. There would be no job security without healthy profits.

The association said corporation taxes now are so high they are hurting the economy. The present rates in Canada had a pyramiding effect on prices.

SAYS TOO HIGH

Personal income tax rates also were too high for the economic good. The 1959 increases had resulted in demands for higher wages and salaries and "should be removed at the first opportunity."

As an incentive for increased exports, the CMA proposed a system under which corporation taxes would be lowered on the amount of a manufacturer's extra income attributed to added sales abroad.

A key recommendation was for temporary measures such as tariff boosts or quotas to restrict imports whenever they reach 10 per cent of annual Canadian requirements — but only in cases where a Canadian manufacturer can turn out enough of the commodity in question to fill all Canadian needs.

Also sought by the CMA was government support for a cam-

Snow Expected In Most Areas

TORONTO (CP) — Snow is expected to fall over most of the province late today, the result of a low pressure area centred over western South Dakota which is expected to move into Ontario.

Snow fell in a narrow belt along the southern sections of Ontario Wednesday crippling traffic in Toronto and causing tie-ups in Hamilton and London. Showers will develop Friday as the cold air moves out.

Four inches of snow fell on Toronto Wednesday night, clogging streets and causing a rash of minor accidents.

The Niagara peninsula and Hamilton area were hard hit. Heavy drifts were reported on Highway 8 between Dundas and Kitchener and icy road conditions reported on the peninsula as six inches of snow fell.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Halen Marie Titchener, 29, of St. Thomas, pleaded not guilty Wednesday to a charge of criminal negligence arising out of a two-car crash on Highway 401 last Sept. 21 which killed Hugo Jeske, 52, of Toronto, and his wife, Erika, 46. The hearing continues.

Today's Chuckle

Wife: "How are we going to celebrate our 25th anniversary?

Husband: "How about five minutes of silence?

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A weather disturbance that moved across Lake Erie during the night gave two to five inches of snow to southwestern Ontario.

As another disturbance moves east snow and moderating temperatures will spread through northern Ontario today. Sunny and colder weather will return Friday. Southern Ontario will have milder temperatures with snow, freezing rain and rain tonight and Friday followed by colder weather.

Neutralist Yugoslavia, Ghana, Indonesia Join Russia in Backing Gizenga Regime

LONDON (AP) — More Communist and pro - Lumumbist countries today were lining up with the Soviet Union behind the rebel Congo government of Antoine Gizenga.

Yugoslavia, Ghana and Indonesia—outside the Soviet orbit—announced recognition of the rump regime in Stanleyville along with East Germany, Romania, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Red China, North Viet Nam and Outer Mongolia. The United Arab Republic was the first to give formal recognition.

Later Morocco joined the group of countries recognizing the Gizenga regime.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio said his government is recalling its 1,150 troops with the UN force "as soon as possible."

President Kennedy told a press conference Wednesday night that the United States considers President Joseph Kasavubu's government in Leopoldville the "only legal authority entitled to speak for The Congo as a whole."

Patrice Lumumba in death stirred more widespread demonstrations than he had in life. Fist-swinging outbursts spread even into the chamber of the UN Security Council in New York.

The Soviet Union kept up a drumfire campaign to make Lumumba the martyr, UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold the villain and to get UN forces out of The Congo.

While condemning the slaying of Lumumba, most Western opinion held solidly behind Hammarskjold.

The Soviet Communist party organ Pravda called the secretary-general "Judas Hammarskjold" and said: "Truly there is no limit to the baseness of this detestable servant of the colonizers, bought for 30 pieces of silver."

Three of Lumumba's children—still unaware of their father's death—were on the stage at a rally Wednesday night in Cairo to denounce the slaying of the former Congo premier. The youngsters — Francois, 10, Patrice, 9, and Juliana, 6 — are going to school in Cairo. They could not understand the speeches and slogans which were in Arabic.

In the Egyptian capital Wednesday rioters set fire to the Belgian Embassy and stoned nearby U.S., British and United Nations offices.

There were demonstrations elsewhere around the world.

In Canada, nearly 100 African students demonstrated before the Belgian and U.S. consulates in Montreal. About 100 Communist party members picketed the Belgian consulate in Vancouver.

One Belgian civilian was shot dead and another wounded in the city of Luluabourg in The Congo.

Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny called on Belgian nationals in The Congo to stay out of politics and warned the Brussels government repudiated actions of any who went beyond the official collaboration arranged between the Katanga and Belgian governments.

In New Delhi Prime Minister Nehru said Wednesday India would pull its UN contingent out of The Congo unless "foreign elements" — particularly Belgians — were withdrawn from the country. Addressing parliament, he called on the United Nations to take action to punish those guilty of the murder of Lumumba.

CONGO CRISIS HAS COMMONS REPERCUSSIONS

Dag Hammarskjold Given Support

OTTAWA (CP) — The Congo crisis produced repercussions on the floor of the Commons Wednesday for the second day in a row.

As External Affairs Minister Green had done a day earlier, Prime Minister Diefenbaker stated Canada's unequivocal support of UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in the face of Russia's latest campaign against him over the Congo crisis.

And, like Mr. Green on Tuesday, he coupled his affirmation of support for Mr. Hammarskjold with a swipe at the Soviet Union.

"All of us are agreed that the United Nations shall not be destroyed as a result of the truculent attitude of any one nation, nor shall it become . . . a puppet of the U.S.S.R."

Mr. Diefenbaker was replying to a suggestion from Opposition Leader Pearson that the prime minister and President Kennedy in their talks next week in Washington, stould reaffirm their backing of Mr. Hammarskjold—"now under such a vicious and unjustifiable attack."

WILL TAKE UP

Mr. Diefenbaker readily agreed expressed satisfaction at the prospect of meeting Mr. Kennedy, and said "critical international issues of the moment" will be among the matters they will discuss.

Mr. Pearson and the CCF's H. W. Herridge, member for Kootenay West, joined in wish-

Congo No Korea or Hungary, Imposing Red Rule Not Easy

Lynn Heinzerling spent nearly four years in Africa covering the rise of African nationalism.

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON (AP) — When the last window has been shattered in Belgian diplomatic missions, Moscow will still have to face sober reality in The Congo.

The former Belgian colony astride the Equator is not a Korea with a Communist power on its border. It is not a Hungary, where Soviet tanks could bull their way to control, or a Finland or a Poland.

The Soviet Union, in trying to set up Antoine Gizenga as its puppet ruler of The Congo, is dealing with one of the remaining primitive areas of the world—and a large one.

The smart cities built by the Belgians, the rich copper and diamond mines, the vast plantations now disintegrating, camouflage a tribal society about as receptive to communism as it would be to a revived slave trade.

Perhaps 80 per cent of the 14,000,000 Congolese recognize no more formal authority than their tribal chiefs and headmen despite eight months of independence from Belgian rule.

To believe that a handful of leftists like Gizenga and Anicet Kashamura, the other chief Lumumba lieutenant in the northern Congo, could swing the huge, chaotic area into the Communist camp without massive DAVOS, Switzerland (AP)—The international skating union today decided to cancel the 1961 world figure skating championships scheduled to open in Prague next Wednesday. The tournament was called off because of the deaths of 18 members of the American team in the Brussels plane crash yesterday.

Several members of the Canadian figure skating-team, including Maria and Otto Jelinek, top contenders for the Pairs crown, are already in Prague.

The secretariat of the ISU, which announced the decision, declined to say which committee members voted for the decision.

Last night organizers of the championships in Prague said the event would be held on schedule.

ISU secretary - general Georg Haesler announced he sent the following telegram to the organizers of the world meet in Prague: "In view of the tragic death of 44 American skaters and officials the 1961 world championship will not be held."

Montrealers Push Bed to Ottawa While Queen's Boys Stay in City

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hospital beds are becoming almost as common as cars on Canada's highways as the latest college craze shows little sign of fatigue.

Everybody is shooting at a record bed-pushing mark, regardless of the fact that there's no real agreement on what is a record.

Sir George William University students arrived in Ottawa with their bed Wednesday night and turned about immediately and headed back to Montreal. They say they're trying to break a record claimed by Acadia University students at Wolfville, N.S.

Queen's University pushers had reached 800 miles by early today in Kingston and plan on reaching 1,000 miles. But nobody wants to recognize it as a record because they're pushing on city streets. Not the hazards of the open highway, say the other schools.

McMaster men claimed the arrived home in Hamilton Wednesday night after a 125-mile trip started Monday night at Washago. They said they had to fight off an ambush of Guelph Ontario Agriculture college students near Georgetown.

McMastermen claimed the bushwhackers tried to board the bed.

After a bloody fray Guelph students fled with the bed. But the pushers claimed a Guelph car as a trophy of war. Truce was declared. The OAC students swapped back the bed for their car, and the sleeping-iron trundled on its way.

The Sir George William bed pushers, who at one point were covering 15 miles an hour, were down to about nine miles an hour after pushing the bed in relays since 9 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Three small trucks followed with "cold sandwiches" and alternate pushers.

The Queen's bed-pushers had wheel trouble just before midnight Wednesday but a pit stop of less than two minutes had it repaired.

NO EFFECTIVE AIR DEFENCE SAYS PEARSON

Claims Govt. Trying To Deceive Nation

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson says the government is trying to deceive Canadians that this country could defend itself with jet interceptors against major missile and bomber attack.

It is wrong to pretend there is any active and effective air defence of Canada today, the Liberal leader said in an interview, adding:

"The day of shooting down stratospheric, supersonic attackers with interceptors is over.

"Any invasion of this continent would be by missiles and jet bombers. Against this kind of all-out attack, there would be nothing effective we could do. Our present equipment against it is futile.

"'Therefore, we would be better advised to devote our resources to other and more effective forms of air activity."

WANTS LATEST JETS

To Mr. Pearson, "'other forms of air activity" would be several squadrons of the latest jet planes, capable of dealing with any occasional intruder, to patrol and scan northern skies; and a greatly increased air transport capability.

Mr. Pearson was elaborating on the resolution of the national Liberal rally in January proposing Canadian withdrawal from the interceptor role in North American Air Defence Command, and also replying to last Friday's attack by Defence Minister Harkness on the rally's resolution.

Mr. Harkness asked: "'Do these people really believe that Canada would be entitled to a strong voice in the determination of the defence of the North American continent if we should withdraw our contribution to its air defence?"

Mr. Pearson said Canada has already withdrawn from active air defence.

Four of the nine CF-100 jet interceptor squadrons in Canada were being scrapped. The remaining CF-100s were too slow and had too little altitude to intercept even the latest type of jet passenger plane.

WOULD BE UNREALISTIC

Mr. Pearson said he agrees with Mr. Harkness — and has been saying for years — that neutralism or unilateral disarmament would be unrealistic for Canada.

Defence co-operation with the United States in future would be not only necessary but unavoidable.

But this co-operation would not necessarily have to be accomplished through North American Air Defence Command. This hadn't been necessary before 1957 when the Liberals were in power.

Mr. Pearson said he couldn't determine in advance, without all the information available, whether total Canadian withdrawal from NORAD would be desirable or technically possible. NORAD controls the entire warning, identification and interception system for North America, as well as warning for the civilian population.

PROPOSE BOMARC END

If Canada changed its present interceptor role to one "'more in keeping with reality" — Mr. Pearson has also proposed scrapping of Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases — there would be no need for the U.S. to station squadrons in this country...

If the U.S. had felt such a

Hammarskjold Defends Self Against Reds

Will Not Resign Unless Neutral Lands So Wish

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A political post-mortem on the death of Patrice Lumumba was scheduled to be resumed in the United Nations Security Council today as the Soviet Union sought to link Dag Hammarskjold with the slaying.

Hammarskjold, the UN secretary-general, hit back hard at the Russians in a speech Wednesday and received support from several countries including the United States, Britain, France and Nationalist China—the other permanent members of the 11-country council.

So intense are feelings that 18 non - member countries were granted permission to take part in debate—so many that special arrangements for seating had to be made for delegates because they couldn't crowd around the horse-shoe shaped council table.

SWING FISTS

The supercharged council atmosphere exploded Wednesday when some 50 New York Negroes staged a fist - swinging, yelling demonstration in the chamber to protest the slaying of Lumumba, first Congolese premier.

UN guards took precautions to prevent a repetition of the demonstration in which 41 persons were injured. A speaker at a rally Wednesday night in Harlem exhorted the crowd to be at the UN again today and declared:

"'Tomorrow the cops won't get us to run. We'll show these Gestapo police who we are."

The disturbance took place during the first major UN speech by Adlai Stevenson, the new United States ambassador, in which he firmly rejected a Moscow demand that Hammarskjold be fired.

Hammarskjold himself joined in the rejection in a 4,400-word statement tracing the history of the Congo crisis and the part played by the UN force in the young African republic.

In ordinary circumstances, loss of confidence of one of the permanent members would cause him to resign, the secretary-general said. But it was clear in this case that if be quit no successor would be allowed by the Soviet Union.

COULD NOT FUNCTION

The Soviet demand that his office be supplanted by an executive triumvirate representing equally East, West and neutralist states would not provide the instrument needed by uncommitted countries, he said. In fact, the triumvirate "'could not function. . . ."

Hammarskjold said the Soviet Union thus had by its own demands created a situation in which he could not resign "'unless it were to be the wish of the uncommitted nations that I do so. . . ." He said he does not believe Russia speaks for the uncommited nations as it claimed.

Sir Patrick Dean of Britain, council president for this month but speaking as delegation chief said that in charging Hammarskjold with implication in Lumumba's death Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin had made a speech filled with such hypocrisy as never before had been heard in the chamber.

The Zorin statement was a the UN . . . and provide a plan

Resolution for Conservative Meet Asks Mounties Dress in Tory Blue

OTTAWA (CP)—With a Conservative government in power, the RCMP should throw away their dress-occasion scarlet tunics and wear Tory blue.

This is one of the ideas suggested in resolutions received at Conservative headquarters from local party organizations in preparation for next month's annual Progressive Conservative Association meeting.

A 20-man committee of leading Conservatives will meet here this weekend to decide how to handle policy resolutions at the meeting opening March 16.

It is considered likely that the committee, headed by R. A. (Dick) Bell, MP for Carleton and parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Fleming, will decide that most if not all the policy discussions should be open to press and public.

However, some editing procedure will also have to be adopted to weed out policy proposals that are so radical as to be laughable or are clearly related to provincial jurisdiction.

The resolution on RCMP uniforms isn't likely to get beyond Saturday's meeting.

Another resolution, submitted by a Conservative group in Prince Edward Island where a school bus loaded with children was lost overnight in a snowbank this winter, says all school buses should be required to have two-way radio telephones. The resolutions committee will have to decide whether such a proposal would be feasible if accepted as Conservative party federal policy.

The majority of the 80 to 100 resolutions received so far deal with national development policies and fiscal affairs.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wednesday, Feb. 15

The Liberal and CCF opposition sought to adjourn regular commons business for an emergency debate on unemployment—on the grounds that 165,000 persons had been added to the jobless ranks in the last month.

Speaker Roland Michener ruled that interruption of business would not be warranted since there had been — and would be—ample opportunities to discuss unemployment.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Canadian and U.S. support for UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold will be one of the first things discussed by President Kennedy and himself in Washington Monday.

Opposition, Leader Pearson and H. W. Herridge, CCF foreign affairs spokesman, both wished Mr. Diefenbaker well for his private and informal Washington visit.

Warm, non - partisan praise went out to the Canada Council during brief debate on a government motion to refer the council's yearly report to a standing committee for detailed consideration.

Thursday, Feb. 16

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST on second reading of a resolution dealing with the proposed Mattagami Lake Railway; the Senate meets at 8 p.m.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Supreme Court Wednesday ruled against the centuries-old practice of segregated seating in Orthodox Jewish synagogues. Separation of the sexes while in the synagogue is one of Orthodox Judaism's traditions. But in 1957, the board of directors of Chevra Thilim Synagogue authorized family seating and the issue has been before the courts since then.

Only Handful of Persons Attends Meeting to Discuss Proposed New Land Use Plan

Bitter disappointment on lack of interest by area residents in the proposed new city land use plan, was expressed last night by Alderman Dr. John Barlow as only a handful of persons attended a meeting at Queen Alexandra School.

Only about 30 persons showed up at the meeting, sponsored by the East Belleville Ratepayers' Association, and the Belleville Suburban Planning Board.

The meeting was called to discuss the proposed land use plan and to get the views of area residents on the suggested zoning.

"Little more than a year ago we could have filled this auditorium for an election meeting to elect council for two years", noted Alderman Barlow as he expressed his disappointment at the turnout. "Tonight we have only 25 or 30 here to discuss a matter which could affect the city for the next 20 years".

Dr. Barlow, head of last year's city council planning committee, went over policy and land use proposals contained in the report of consulting engineers retained to prepare a new land use plan for the city.

He said a series of meetings would be held throughout the city to get residents' views. These sugestions would then be considered by the Planning Board and may or may not be incorporated into the official plan before it was submitted to council for approval.

PUBLIC HEARING

Before the plan would become effective it would have to be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board which would hold a public hearing in Belleville.

There was almost a complete absence of area residents at last night's meeting, but delegations from Hillcrest, Cannifton Road and Station St. areas were present to register objections to land use regulations proposed for their areas.

Station St. residents wanted the commercial area extended further along their street, the Cannifton Road delegation was opposed to their properties along the east bank of the Moira being designated as green belts, while Hillcrest residents objected to "freezing" regulations which prevented them from constructing new dwellings.

All factions claimed that the proposed regulations were discriminatory.

The 20-year plan proposed by planning consultants designated Bay front area and certin areas along the Moira River to be developed as park area.

This, however, would freeze properties in the area and owners of residential property would be unable to sell for any other use.

CANNOT SELL PROPERTY

As result they claim they cannot sell their properties as they would wish.

They asked when the city would be in the financial position to purchase their properties for green belt purposes.

"The city cannot keep up the parks which it now owns, so how can it purchase other park property?" was the question asked by Mrs. Pat Matthews.

Mrs. Thomas Orr said that 13 families in the Cannifton Road area wanted to sell but were unable to do so. "It is not fair to tie us up. We can't give our land away now," she said.

Still another resident questioned the ability of the city to maintain more parks when present parks were now in a "sorry" mess for lack of attention.

Victoria Park at one time had a free swimming pool, band stand and other attractions. Now it has been allowed to deteriorate, the pool was filled in and the buildings torn down with no facilities for the average person.

"It's now just a tie-up for boats," was the claim.

Dr. Barlow and Stu Martin, members of local Parks Board, admitted the condition of present parks, claiming the reason was lack of funds because of the board being saddled with debenture payments for the Fair Ground grandstand and the lights at Fair Grounds.

"We can't even afford to turn the lights on," noted Mr. Martin.

It was generally agreed that the city was in dire need of additional parks and Ald. Barlow suggested that the re-assessment of the city could result in the parks board receiving considerably more money for parks maintenance.

One bit of constructive criticism regarding the suggestion for additional greenbelt was that now vacant land on the west side of the river north of the Hydro property be purchased for park area.

Dr. Barlow noted that good parks and good recreational facilities made for a better place in which to live and could be a factor in attracting industry to the city.

W. Ashline, Station Street businessman, favored extension of the downtown commercial area further east along Station Street.

He claimed that with the Federal building, Brewers warehouse, CNR station and a hotel along with other busienesses already on the street, this was only reasonable.

LIMIT AREA

The advantages of preventing what is known as "commercial sprawl" were stressed by Dr. Barlow, who said the proposal was to limit the downtown area of the city to 41 acres.

This would tend to improve the quality of the downtown area and business would be forced to improve present premises rather than move to new quarters further along the street.

The present haphazard growth of the city was claimed by Dr. Barlow to reflect the lack of proper planning and the hiring of a professional planner was strongly urged.

He said the Ontario Department of Planning and Development claim that all centres of over 20,000 population should have a professional planner.

"The need is desperate in Belleville and it is never too late to try for a remedy," he said.

OFFICE MACHINERY

Britain's exports of office machinery reached a record value of £20,390,128 in the first nine months of 1960.

70 Exhibits On Display At Science Fair

Spectroscope, capacitance relay, radiation map, photomicrography, agglutination, seismograph; not only do these things seem somewhat unrelated but a few of the terms will undoubtedly have a few people scratching their heads, just wondering what the heck the words are supposed to mean.

They are a number of projects which several local high school students will be displaying at the Quinte District Science Fair which is being held this Friday afternoon and evening at the Moira Secondary School on Farley Avenue. Close on to 70 exhibits are expected to be displayed by students from the various high schools in the area.

There are 13 classes within which there will be displays; general physics, electronics, nuclear science, chemistry, botany, zoology, health, engineering, instrument design, metealurgy, geography and physiography being included.

Each entry is judged according to the creative ability and scientific thought shown by the exhibitor coupled with the thoroughness, technical skill, clarity and dramatic value shown in the display. The top entry will be shown at the Ontario Science Fair in Toronto under the sponsorship of the local fair. Other exhibits may be shown at the Ontario Science Fair but only the overall first prize local entry will be sponsored. Awards are also expected to be made for the first and second placed entries in each class.

Plans Are Made For Horse Show

The horse show committee of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club held a meeting in the Moira Street fire hall, on Monday evening. A good number of exhibitors were present. Mr. Allen Revill, chairman, presided and A. Jamroz, secretary, gave the business report.

Exhibitors present agreed upon a substantial increase in the number of children's saddle and harness classes, and increases in other classes that will bring the "1961 Charity Horse Show" classes to a total of 30 for the day's program, and to two novelty classes of musical chairs for children.

The chairman announced that the Lions Club of Belleville will sponsor the 1961 Horse Show, and the proceeds will go to further the work of the Retarded Children's Building fund. Mr. Alf Bryant and Mr. Roger Ness were present on behalf of the Lions Club, and outlined their tentative plans for the promotion of this event.

A report on the publicity activities to date was given by Mrs. Dave McDonald. As publicity chairman Mrs. McDonald will work in co-operation with the Lions Club program committee.

The following members were appointed to select the judges: George Atkinson, John R. Bush, Mrs. A. Revill and John Sheridan.

A prize list of classes will be circulated to the exhibitors' executive for final ratification, and then will be available to exhibitors at large at an early date.

The horse show committee is endeavoring to plan a family type program and considering that this is for the benefit of the retarded children, it is hoped that the community will give its full support.

Health Officer Recommends Town-Operated Ambulance Service Involving Firemen

TRENTON — Health Officer Dr. E. W. Dow says the town's present ambulance arrangements are "dangerous".

At a meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, he proposed a solution.

"I will make the motion that the Town of Trenton operate an ambulance", he said. "This ambulance could be equipped with a two-way radio in direct contact with the Trenton police station at all times. I propose that it could be driven by a member of the Trenton fire department.

"Charges could be made at the same rate as in the past, (Weaver's charge) and the individual could be billed by the town and all accounts handled by the town office".

The motion was seconded by board member E. Topping.

Miss Marjorie Gothard, board member, also voted for the motion.

H. S. Pane, chairman of the board, sparked the discussion which led to the motion being proposed by informing the board that under the health act, a municipality the size of Trenton is obliged to provide a locally-based ambulance. He said that should persons using the Belleville ambulance, provided for Trenton residents through arrangements made by Councillors N. J. McNair and Ross Burtt, fail to pay the operator, the Board of Health could be responsible for the debt and that the board's budget would have to be increased if this situation were allowed to occur.

Miss Gothard said that she wondered if the hospital might not take on the job of running an ambulance.

Dr. Dow said that the hospital did not have specially trained staff to run the ambulance. He said that the firemen were trained and so were the logical people to operate the ambulance.

Miss Gothard said that if the fire department took over the operation, at least four additional firemen would be needed and that this would cost the town at least $20,000.

2-WAY RADIO

Mr. Pane said that a two-way radio would eliminate the need for so many additional firemen. Firefighting duties could be overlapped with ambulance calls.

"We need an ambulance service and we need it right away", said Dr. Dow, "This seems to be the logical way to do it".

Mr. Pane said that he had contacted most of the town's doctors at a suggestion made by a "high local official" and that every one had said that a locally-based ambulance was a "must". The "high local official" had said that the doctors were not interested in having an ambulance in Trenton.

Mr. Pane said he had also made enquiries and that he had found out that the charge made by the John R. Bush Funeral Home, Belleville, for an ambulance call to Trenton would be a $5 basic rate, plus 50 cents a mile. This would work out to $11 plus a call.

Mr. Pane presented the board with copies of the 1960 financial statement. The report showed a surplus in every facet of board operations and an over-all surplus of $2,050.31. Mr. Pane said that this might not be the final figure as there were a few outstanding accounts to be paid. He objected to the way the report had been compiled by the municipal office staff. He asked that the various items be broken down to show just how the final figures were reached.

Miss Gothard noted that Dr. Dow had not been allowed travelling expenses in connection with matters pertaining to board business. A motion was passed to allow Dr. Dow $200 for travelling expenses for 1960 and for each year hereafter.

The chairman said that the air pollution by-law had been advertised and would become effective May 1.

A motion that council be asked to send copies of any resolutions pertaining to board business made at council meetings, was passed. Mr. Pane said that the town had been lax about this matter in the past.

Seeks Hwy. 401 But Winds Up In a Ditch

TRENTON — A large tractor-trailer truck ended up with the wheels of the trailer in the air when it overturned Wednesday as the driver attempted to make an exit from a dead-end street by backing into a driveway. The heavy vehicle slid off into a culvert on North Byron St. The driver said he was looking for Highway 401 when he drove into the dead-end street.

Jack Smith of Brighton, was slightly injured when a car struck his parked car on King St. yesterday. Smith was standing in front of his vehicle when another car slid on the icy pavement and struck the back of his car.

Recommends Fluoridating Water Supply

TRENTON — In his annual report to the Board of Health, Health Officer Dr. E. W. Dow has again recommended the introuction of fluoride into the town's water supply.

He said that the town's dentists were 100 per cent behind the recommendation. No action has been taken since Dr. Dow recommended fluoridation of town water last year.

Dr. Dow noted that there had been a population increase in the town of 219 since last year. During the year there were 492 births and 75 deaths locally.

Causes of death were listed as heart diseases, cancer, respiratory diseases, accidents, kidney conditions and others.

There were three cases of scarlet fever in Trenton last year.

No cases of polio were recorded.

Pre-school and school children numbering 1,860, were immunized against various communicable diseases.

Three new cases of T.B. were treated in 1960 and chest clinics were held at the hospital.

The town made some progress towards the elimination of unsuitable dwellings and outside toilets. Sixteen persons had plumbing installed in their homes at the suggestion of the board.

Drinking water samples had all been satisfactory and a constant check is kept on all milk supplies for the residents.

The town's 30 eating places are inspected regularly by the sanitation inspector, H. S. Pane. Dr. Dow praised Mr. Pane for his supervision.

Dr. Dow said that the town sewage plant is working efficiently with a few minor problems in disposal being encountered.

"Trenton has made much progress in 1960," said the report. "But there is still a lot to be done."

Miss M. Gothard moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Dow for his report.

Mrs. Millar's Kingston Rink Winner of Ont.-Intell Trophy At Women's Open Bonspiel

There is no doubt the memories of the Women's open bonspiel held at the Quinte Curling Club will live long for those who had the privilege to play in it and also for those who were in attendance to watch the various games as they unfolded on the perfect ice provided. The curlers started three days ago in competition for the beautiful Ontario Intelligencer trophy and the accompanying plaques and late Wednesday night the hopes of some were realized.

The four final games in the same number of events saw cusling at its best and all the games had their joys and sorrows, joys for making a difficult shot at a critical time and sorrows because the raise or draw was not made.

A rink of Mrs. Kathleen McFie, Mrs. Dorothy Vince, Mrs. Carrie Cole with Mrs. Francis Millar of Kingston was successful in winning the trophy, plaques and prizes, when it defeated a local rink of Mrs. Lenore Bateman, Mrs. Dolly Partridge, Mrs. Marion Graham wtih Mrs. Anne Acton as skip and who, incidentally, was the general chairman of the spiel. The local rink got away to a fast start with a three-ender but this was soon erased and from then till the end of the game the local rink was fighting an uphill battle and failed by a 12-9 count. The Kingston rink deserved the popular win because the rink as a whole curled wel land was ably skipped by Mrs. Millar. Her antics when a stone was coming down brought gales of laughter to the large gallery watching the contests.

In the second event, Mrs. Mildred Bowdery of the Trenton RCAF with a rink of Mrs. Margo Kyle, Mrs. Peg Songhurst and Mrs. Ruth Lloyd fought an uphill battle against a former Belleville girl, Mrs. Gwen McDougall of Cornwall and her rink of Mrs. Pauline Lawson, Mrs. Phyllis Evans and Mrs. Bernice Hussey. Gwen was coasting along with a nice lead and turned for home with a three-point margin but Mrs. Bowdery had last rock and after getting three shots on the rings. calmly drew one home to win the game. It was an exciting finish to a very well played match. Both of the rinks received pirzes and each expressed her thanks for the wonderful time.

TERRIFIC FINISH

They will be talking for weeks about the finish in the third event of the spiel. Mrs. Jean Smith of the Quinte Club with Mrs. Agnes Walker, Mrs. Helen McCorquodale and Mrs. Kae Pinder, won the event after Mrs. Smith made a hair-raising raise to knock out the shot rock in an extra end game. She was curling against Mrs. Joan Ethier of the Trenton RCAF Club who had Mrs. Marg Condan, Mrs. 'Sandy" Marquet, Mrs. Eve Palidwar on her rink. Mrs. Smith forged to the front early but the Ethier rink got the feel of the ice and Mrs. Smith had to make a terrific shot to tie the game. When she went to throw last rock, Mrs. Ethier was laying five and well scattered, but two were close to the "button." Jean took careful aim, delivered her rock and, with a perfect "draw," went for shot and a mighty roar went up from the "behind-the-glass skips.' 'But he was not out of the woods. On the extra end she was facing a five-ender at least when she delivered her last rock, with one more to come from Mrs. Ethier. Jean studied the situation and took the hard way to get shot. She elected to raise a guard some six feet from the centre and this she did to perfection, knocking out the shot rock. Mrs. Ethier was a trifle wide in her attempt to get at the stone and the local rink was home free with a 9-8 win.

On number four ice another battle was raging. Mrs. Helen McClintock, Mrs. Jean Steenburg and Mrs. Connie Chambers with Mrs. Doreen Jones as skip appeared to have the fourth event sewed up but Mrs. Flossie Seymour of Kingston with Mrs. Kay Wilmot, Mrs. Mary Kane and Mrs. Janet Whitney, kept plugging away and tied the game on the ninth end with last rock coming home. Mrs. Seymour got a rock buried and well guarded but Mrs. Jones, with her last rock, raised one of her own stones through a narrow opening and knocked the shot out and laid. It was a terrific shot and won for her the game 7-6. There was plenty of healthy hugging by proud husbands as their wives trooped off the ice. The games in the finals were as good as you will see anywhere in the province.

EXPRESSES THANKS

At the conclusion of the games, Mrs. Jessie White, president of the women's section of the club thanked the curlers for their attendance, the various committees for the splendid job done and the hope they would come back again when spiel time rolls around next year. Mrs. Anne Acton, chairman of the spiel also thanked the curlers for their attendance and hoped that all had a fine time. At this point Claude D. Tice, City Editor, presented to the winning rink from Kingston, the trophy along with the plaques and expressed the wish that all had had a good time and that the paper was pleased to be associated with the Curling Club in its endeavor for healthy recreation and promotion of good fellowship. All of the winning rinks expressed their thanks to the Curling Club for the marvellous time and the wonderful hospitality that permeates the club and all stated they would be back next year.

On this happy note the bonspiel was close and all wended their several ways homeward with happy memories of a splendid event. The winners and draws:

Bowling Alley, Apartment Suite To Be Built

Completion of two real estate deals in the east end of the city paving the way for two costly construction projects was announced today by Gerald W. Joyce Realty in Belleville.

On one of the properties a modern 32-lane bowling alley is scheduled to be constructed by the Brunswick-Balke interests.

At the corner of Dundas and Farley Ave an 11-suite apartment building is planned for construction.

Both the bowling alley and the apartment suite projects are scheduled to get underway in the near future, it was stated.

Reports also are to the fact that the Brunswick-Balke interests are planning the construction of an ice curling rink adjacent to the bowling alley property.

Corby Library Circulation Has Doubled in 5 Years

Despite the popularity of TV watching and other formers of recreation, the art of reading has not been lost in Belleville.

This is shown by the tremendous increase in book borrowing, as seen in the annual report of the Corby Public Library Board made public today.

The report shows that book circulation last year soared to 266,811 an increase of 63,000 over the year previous. In fact the circulation was double that of five years ago and the increase for the year almost equalled the total book borrowing in 1950.

NEW BUILDING FACTOR

The report, by Librarian Miss Olive Delaney, notes there has been a very definite return to reading in the past few years, but the exceptionally rapid upsurge in library use in Belleville was mainly the result of new facilities made available with the opening of the new library addition last year. All departments were taxed to the utmost.

In the adult section reading of non-fiction increased more than the reading of novels, with all sections of the non-fiction classification being more widely used.

Boys and girls read almost as many books as adults last year with circulation of this book classification at the main library increasing from 28,000 to 43,000. Saturday is the most popular day, when over 400 books are regularly loaned and on occasion more than 500.

In addition to the main library there are branch libraries in the Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary and Prince of Wales Schools.

FILM LIBRARY ACTIVE

The film library also continues to thrive with 982 films being circulated and projectors booked for 232 organizations. The film council is a member of the Eastern Ontario Federation of Film Councils.

Also during the year the library auditorium has served as an art gallery, with two exhibitions from the Toronto Art Gallery being received. The East Central Ontario art exhibition was held in Belleville and art and sculpture by students at Belleville Collegiate was displayed.

A breakdown of circulation shows that books on biography were the most widely read in the adult section with 8,514 such books being circulated. Other classes in order were useful arts, history, fine arts and literature. Fiction books borrowed totalled 87,776 and non-fiction 45,786, for a total of 133,562.

By coincidence the total circulation of juvenile books was almost identically the same as adult, the figure being 133,249.

Total borrowings for the year were 266,811 as compared with 203,447 in 1959, and 180,074 in 1958.

Unionville and Quinte Rinks To Compete for Playoff Spot

The acme of curling is generally seen in the district playoffs for the right to compete for the championship of the Province in this sport and a game of this calibre will be played at the Quinte Curling Club on Friday when a local rink of Al McCullam, T. A. Carruthers and Bill Riley skipped by Mac White will be opposed by a rink of Ernie Lawrie, Ken Jewitt, Ray Grant and his father, Andy Grant of Unionville for the right to proceed to Ottawa next week to enter the round-robin series with seven other rinks for the curling title of Ontario.

The round robin series is likened to the finals of the Grey Cup or the Allen Cup and will be witnessed by all the building in which it is played will hold. It is a tremendous honor to be a member of the rink competing in this playdown and even a greater thrill to win it and then move on to the Dominion finals which this year will be held in Calgary. It is a signal honor for the Quinte Curling Club, now in its fourth year of existence to be able to produce a rink that can vie with well established stars in the curling field even in a district playoff. The rink which is skipped by Mac White is a well matched, well balanced rink, that can play any type of game and will not wilt under pressure.

The playoffs on Friday will be a two-out-of-three series, the first game to be played at nine o'clock, the second at two and the third if necessary at seven. All games will be twelve ends and must be played the full length. There is no doubt a large gallery will be on hand to watch this interesting match. The opposition for the local rink is one that has been 'through the mill' on many occasions and will provide stiff opposition but the local team is not afraid of names and will no doubt give a good account of themselves. Here's hoping it is on to Ottawa for this gallant crew.

Harnessing The Sun

Necessity may not always be the mother of invention in these days, when so many scientists are probing nature for the sheer love of truth, rather than being prodded into such investigations by the struggle to exist. Nevertheless, necessity still has its values, as was illustrated in a recent meeting at Rehovot, in Israel, attended by forty of the world's leading scientists.

Ritchie Calder, writing about the conference for UNESCO Features, remarks that "shopping in the Supermarket of Science is an expensive business" but that "the New Men of the New States were more interested in the Bargain Basement of Science than in the Supermarket."

They made a find.

What the new countries need more desperately than anything else, of course, is a cheap but reliable source of power. Here in Canada we tend to think of cheap electricity in terms of waterpower. There have been suggestions that an efficient method of harnessing the tides of the oceans would create miracles. But the largest, least exploited, source of power is the sun.

Efforts to harness its power date back to the dawn of history. Only recently, though, has much progress been made. India, particularly poor in sources of energy, has tried solar cookers. French scientists in the Pyrenees and in Algiers have used huge concave mirrors to concentrate the sun's rays, producing heat intense enough for metal smelting. The Soviet Union has extensive solar energy schemes in areas remote from other sources of power. In Israel, Dr. Henry Tabor of the National Physical Laboratory produced an ingenious "black surface" system, placing above curved mirrors a blackened surface, which absorbs the rays concentrated upon it and converts water in pipes behind the blackened surface into steam.

Now, though, Dr. Tabor has devised a method which would use the sun's energy to run a power-plant of a size which could require several square kilometres of expensive mirrors. In a cistern, as we all know, the hot water rises to the top and the cold water stays at the bottom. Unless they are stirred, they do not mix, because the cold water is denser. Dr. Tabor has devised a method to reverse the position of the hot and cold layers, by using very salt water for the bottom layer and fresh water for the top. If the bottom of the pool is black, it will attract the heat of the sun's rays and the denser salt water will become scalding hot, with the tepid surface water providing an insulating layer which prevents the evaporation of heat. It is estimated a shallow pond a square kilometer in extent would provide enough heat to produce twelve times as much electricity as the most efficient atomic power station yet devised and at a cost which would compare with the most optimistic estimate of the British for the giant atomic power plants they are now building.

Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Nuclear Research Laboratory in the U.S., had earlier predicted that in twenty or forty years there would be atomic reactors which would make more fuel than they consume, certainly a neat trick. But after hearing of Dr. Tabor's "sun-pool" proposals he said: "This is the most important news I have heard at this conference."

It is particularly important for those lands where other sources of energy are most scarce, for a great many of them lie in the tropics and have an abundant supply of sunshine.

Consistency?

The Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities has passed a resolution requesting that the Ontario Municipal Board be barred from ordering the merger of municipalities until affirmative votes had been taken in the municipalities concerned.

Rev. D. J. Bucknall of Clinton Township said he thought the people of Ontario should have the right to run their own affairs.

The Association also passed resolutions asking the payment of provincial subsidies of 75 per cent of the cost of snow removal and road sanding, and favoring compulsory automobile insurance.

Municipalities, apparently, should have the right to run their own affairs—but provinces and individuals are in a different category.

In these days of nuclear energy, can the earthenware lamp of the poet still suffice? Yes, if its clay reminds us of our own, and it is a sufficient mission for the poet to be the guilt conscious of his time.—Alexis Leger, Nobel prize-winner in literature.

Tragic Symbol of Failure

Ottawa Journal

Patrice Lumumba was in Ottawa in summery weather last year and chatted with Canadians on the Country Club lawn before a black-tie government dinner. He made an impassioned speech later, speaking of his hope that the new nation of the Congo and Canada would walk in peace together.

He may have been a rabble-rouser, an enemy of the Belgians, irresponsible, unskilled and changeable in negotiation. But he was, in Canada and when he was the guest of President Eisenhower, regarded as the leader of his newly-independent country. A political rival once said of him: "A Congolese Government without Lumumba is impossible. A government with him is unthinkable." Nevertheless he was the central figure in the Congo crisis. He put together a coalition government. He appealed to the United Nations to give his country order.

His death is the tragic symbol of failure. Not all the power of nearly 100 nations claiming to be united in the cause of world order could save him.

He died like a dog, beaten again and again, manacled as he was dragged from place to place, finally reportedly "massacred" beside a road. A Katanga province minister said the jungle villagers who killed Lumumba will be given a reward of $8,000 and in the polished halls of the United Nations representatives of the great powers argue in futility attempting to place the blame.

Let it be said that UN seems to have done what it could, that the statesmen and diplomats and soldiers of peace-loving nations did what they could within the limits of their instructions in the Congo. But what must be the thought of others who will win high place in new nations? Are they to seek international counsel or believe that might is right?

We speak of freedom and progress and the rule of law. What has happened in the Congo in this year of grace is as brutal as if bloodstained savages still sat on their thrones of skulls in darkest Africa.

And what now? A Russian in UN, with the pride of a nation whose rocket is on the way to Venus, remains earthbound in criticism, scorns Mr. Hammarskjold's call for a UN investigation of the killing. That cannot be the way. The quest for human understanding must continue. Once more the nations of goodwill must go on, believing that the planets of peace and order are not beyond their future reach.

Need Changes For Growth Says Sydney

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

When I hear it said of an acquaintance, "He hasn't changed a bit in 10 years," I feel sorry for him, because change is the indispensable requisite of growth.

The rising nationalism all over the world is, in my view, a symptom of frustrated internationalism; because the underdeveloped areas were not given a free and equal voice in the world community, they have decided to achieve by violence what they could not get by law.

Why do so many business firms enclose a self-addressed envelope that is smaller than the payment stub you are supposed to send back in it?

Hostesses should realize that their social insecurity reveals itself nakedly when they send out invitations for a dinner or party so far in advance that one cannot gracefully decline by pleading a "previous engagement."

Not one person in a thousand can tell you the meaning of the words in the popular Scottish ballad, "Comin' Through the Rye," although it is probably one of the best known in the English-speaking world.

When people with emotional problems are told to "turn to your clergyman or doctor for advice," what is forgotten is that thousands of clergymen and doctors don't know themselves who to turn to for advice today.

The phrase "peace treaty" is a contradiction in terms, for peace has never been kept, nor war avoided, by any sort of treaty; peace has been kept only between those nations in which no treaty was needed.

If I were hiring an executive, the first person I would want to interview would be his former secretary, in preference to his colleagues or superiors; yet this is the one person who is almost never questioned about the true character and habits of the applicant.

For empirical description of our traffic light system nothing beats Barbara's explanation to a little firend: "Green means go, red mean stop, and yellow means blow your horn!"

I am always suspicious of the quality of a book when the author calls himself "Bill" Jones or "Ed" Smith, rather than William or Edward; the chummy, informal approach usually bespeaks a shabby or shallow mind.

"She'd make a wonderful mother; it's a shame she never had any children" is a remark easy to make, if one forgets that seeming like a "wonderful mother" is quite different from having the permanent responsibility all to yourself.

3 Jap Babes Each Minute

Brantford Expositor

It is common, nowadays, to talk of the world's exploding population.

In Japan, according to statistics just issued by the Japanese Embassy in Ottawa, it is exploding at the rate of one baby born every 20 seconds.

Amazing? Alarming? Both perhaps. Yet this is not a high figure, for Japan; it constitutes a new low in that country's postwar birth rate!

Does someone say this is easily offset by a high death rate? Wrong. Japan's death rate in 1960 averaged only one every 45 seconds, a total of 703,800 for the year as compared to 1,593,600 births.

True, traffic fatalities numbered 13,480, an increase of 23 per cent over the 1959 figure of 10,930, a previous record, but an impressive population growth is still maintained. Where will all the surviving newcomers go? How long can their island empire sustain them or even find room for them.

Reflect on comparable but still more staggering population "explosion" figures for China, India, Russia and many other non-Western countries, and there is cause for concern, not only as to where we stand now, but even more as to where we shall stand in the not distant future.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE ARE ALL IN THE SAME BOAT

The handicapped

We usually think of such persons as occupants of wheel chairs or persons sufficiently impeded in locomotion that they can get about only with the aid of crutches or canes. The truth is that we are all handicapped. The world may not see our particular handicap, but we see it. We know of certain weaknesses which are constantly getting in our way, holding us back making us unsteady in the journey along the pathway of life. For some of us the handicap is a bad temper which flares up at the most inopportune times and breaks up friendships, disturbs family relationships, and makes us thoroughly disliked by certain persons. For still others, it is an envious spirit, a disposition to be jealous. For others it is selfishness, despondency, self-pity, a decimating love of comfort.

Don't think that the handicapped are just a group who have physical defects. We pity the blind, and so we should, but we may be more blind than they are. The prematurely deaf are to be pitied, but so are you and I if we shut our ears — as we often do — to the advice of friends, to the promptings of common sense, to the wisdom of the ages. There are more ways of being handicapped than being slowed down physically. Furthermore, most of your handicaps and mine are self-induced — and curable if we will just go about curing them, correcting them.

The handicapped. We are of that group.

Offers Prize For Flying

Cleveland Plain Dealer

One of these days some enterprising individual (or individuals) may win 5,000 pounds ($14,000) in prize money by flying a figure eight course one mile long, crossing the starting and finishing line at least 10 feet from the ground, and not touching the ground between start and finish. The only catch is that the device which they fly — presumably some sort of plane — will have no mechanical motor.

The prize is being offered by a British industrialist, Henry Kramer, and will go to the man or team which first flies the mile according to directions.

Prizes have stimulated aviation accomplishments for years. On July 25, 1909, Louis Bleriot won a fat purse by flying across the English Channel from Calais to Dover — a distance of 31 miles — in 37 minutes. On May 29, 1910, Glen Curtiss won $10,000 offered by the New York World for the first continuous flight from Albany to New York — 137 miles in 152 minutes.

And surely everyone remembers Charles A. Linbergh's flight across the Atlantic on May 20, 1927 — a flight which won him $25,000, pretty fair pay for 33 hours, 29 minutes and 30 seconds in the air.

The London Sunday Times has reported that teams are already being formed in some British universities and among aircraft apprentices, and that because girls have to have more power per pound than men, the winner (or winners) may well be female. The winning aircraft will probably have both foot and hand pedals, operating a large propeller, although a type of flapping wings has not been ruled out.

It sounds difficult, and past attempts have proved none too successful. But man is an ingenious animal, particularly where a nice fat chunk of money is involved, and modern gearing may succeed where previous attempts failed.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

It was interesting to learn that the new head of a very thriving industry had been a private soldier in the war twenty years ago. He had never even risen to the rank of lance-corporal-without-pay

"Well, actually," he told me, "The army was the only true education I got. And it was the chance to observe the characteristics and habits of men that I had as a young private soldier that has been more use to me in my own career in business than anything else I can think of.

"For example, I figured out the colonel complex. I don't employ any colonels now. A colonel is a man who can't possibly know all he ought to know.

"Then there is the sergeant-major complex. I don't have any ex-sergeant-majors in my business. A sergeant-major can't take criticism. He can only hand it out.

"I don't have any majors, because they all want to be colonels. As for captains and lieutenants, they are not too bad; but they are a little impressed with their rank. I don't have any captains or majors in the organization, at the moment.

"But I do have a lot of ex-sergeants, God bless them. A sergeant, it seems to me, is the perfect man. He got to be sergeant because he knew the drill, had a sense of duty, and plenty of guts. Most of our managers and superintendents are ex-sergeants. And as an ex-private, I have great respect for them. That makes me a good boss."

To Your Good Health

Foods, Alcohol, Medicines, Vitamins Can Cause BO

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of two articles on perspiration.)

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband, who is in his late 40's, has a very strong body odor. He bathes regularly. Deodorants are not the answer. He's tried them. He is an extremely nervous person. Could that have any bearing on the case? — Mrs. J. M."

"Dear Doctor: Can you tell me if any kind of prescription can be given to stop or check perspiration of the armpits? I ruin all my clothes. I have used all kinds of deodorants and none seems to help very much. — A. W."

I refer readers to yesterday's column which was also on perspiration. Now let's consider the subject further.

Yes, nervousness can contribute to increased perspiration —and this type of nervousness is difficult to control, since we have little or no control over the autonomic (or involuntary) nervous system which governs perspiration.

Take the usual measures with plenty of lather. If deodorants don't work, try baking soda, either alone, or with talcum or starch, or both.

In addition it may be wise for some people to have their doctors consider the use of medications to suppress sweat activity. The doctors will, of course, have to judge the advisability of using medications on the basis of each individual case.

Remember this: Generally speaking, deodorants are not intended to stop perspiration. Rather they tend to keep the skin drier, and to depress the bacterial activity, which is so great a factor in body odor.

Foods, drugs and alcohol can play a very real part in body odor. Medicines containing sulphur or iodides can cause it, too. As for foods, such obvious ones as onions and garlic can result in excretion of a skin odor quite apart from the well-known odor imparted to the breath. I gather that this is news to a good many people. It is, all the same, a fact.

There are still other possibilities. Some skin disorders cause a musty odor. Clothing can be contaminated from such things as vaginal or rectal discharges. Sores of one kind or another can most definitely contribute to "body odor". Yet these things have nothing at all to do with persiration.

This list of probable causes is not overly long. If you are having trouble with body odor, and the usual familiar deodorants are not the answer for you, examine each possibility objectively.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Do you have a list of different foods that are high in protein? I am supposed to eat them — M.F."

Lean meat, fish, poultry, cheese, milk and eggs are the principal ones. Cereals, including bread, navy and other kinds of beans, and nuts also have fair amounts; but in general protein comes from animal sources. Fruits and vegetables as a rule don't have a great deal of protein. Gelatin, being an animal product, contains quantities of some kinds of protein. Sugar and fat are not protein. With this list as a guide, I am sure you will do all right.

Note to Mrs. E. G.: I can't tell you "which doctor is right". They'd like to know, too. My basic thought is this: When a young man of 26 is having recurrent pus and blood in the urine, he should have a cystoscopic examination to determine more accurately the source of the trouble. It may not be the prostate. It could be the bladder or the kidneys themselves.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading my booklet "The Way to Stop Constipation". For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158 Dundee Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEW WAYS TO LIVE

As the years accumulate, we learn new things about ourselves and new things about life. And, although this is a perfectly natural process, still are we often taken back by the simplest of revelations.

It takes time to bury many of our fondest illusions.

But as we do put them to their last rest, we walk out into a freer world than ever. We enter upon new ways to live, for we see new things to work for — and, in most cases, better things.

It is possible for anyone to choose his method of growth, whether by a series of happy or unhappy events.

I know that it is customary to believe otherwise. But custom doesn't pick men out of the ordinary and raise them to high stations of originality and power.

He grows most who faces the largest number of new ways to live. Each day should find us all facing a new world and a new chance.

Who is there who has not known sorrow to its flood gate? And how often have we withdrawn alone to some quiet place there to contemplate upon the strangeness of human frailty and our own numberless lacks.

But if we only come back to the crowd of moving men and women again with rebuilt resolves and washed out hearts, we need have not fear of our fate.

No matter how hard or far you may have fallen — get up! There is always a new way to live. And the chances are that the new way will be better than the old.

Only he who has truly suffered has really learned.

5,600 Years, 14,531 Wars

Canadian Army Journal

Composition made on an electronic computer by a former president of the Norwegian Academy of Sciences, aided by historians from England, Egypt, Germany and India, has produced some astounding figures on the frequency and severity of wars.

Included in these findings is the fact that since 3600 B.C. the world has known only 292 years of peace. During this period there have been 14,531 wars, large and small, in which three billion six hundred and 40 million people have been killed. The value of the destruction would pay for a golden belt around the world 156 kilometres in width and 10 metres thick.

Since 650 B.C. there have been 1,656 arms races, only 16 of which have not ended in war. The remainder have ended in economic collapse of the countries concerned.

Water-Short Hillcrest Asks Main as Local Improvement

Residents of the Hillcrest area will circulate a new petition asking for construction of a water main in their area to be paid for under local improvements rather than request that the district be approved as a water area.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said a delegation of Hillcrest residents met at the city hall yesterday, at which time it was decided to ask for installation of the water main under local improvements.

Mondy at city council it was decided to ascertain whether a water area in the Hillcrest district would be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board but since then a doubt had risen whether this request would be granted.

Also it was agreed that assessment of charges over the entire area would be unfair in view of the fact that only a portion of Hillcrest would be served.

The proposal is to construct a water main along Byron Street from Cannifton Road to the Hillcrest public school at an estimated cost of $16,000.

It is hoped that the new petition will be ready in time for presentatnon to council at the next general meeting.

Valentine Party Much Enjoyed By Men's Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Bridge St. Church Men's Club was held in the church parlors and dining hall with the president, Gerald B. Hyde presiding. The meeting opened with the National Anthem, followed with grace by Rev. R. F. Sherwin and a moment of silence out of respect for the memory of our late member the Rev. H. H. Hillis.

A delicious pot luck dinner was served by members of the Ladies' Coronation Club. Douglas Courtney was appointed sergeant at arms and his diligent efforts produced a fairly good contribution to the treasury. The five minute devotional period consisted of the singing of four old familiar hymns from the Church Hymnary. A sing-song under the leadership of Mr. Alec Gordon was enjoyed by all, concluding with a singing commercial, which was composed and rendered by Mr. Gordon, in his usual good humor, "it being a parody on the tune of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," for the benefit of Messrs. Chas. L. Hyde and son who were taxed the usual fee.

Mr. Glen Shaver introduced Harold Regensburg, who gratefully expressed his thanks to the Club for their financial assistance, allowing him to attend the Boys' Parliament during the Christmas holiday period.

Mr. George Greatrix introduced the new members who will be inducted at the next regular meeting and he also introduced the visitors who were heartily welcomed. At this period Mr. Bryson Leslie informed the president that there were in waiting a large number of other guests whom he wished to introduce and to the complete surprise of all members present, (except the president and Mr. Leslie) about fifty ladies, wives and sweetheart valentines of the members joined the happy group.

ALDERMAN IS HEARD

The president then requested Mr. Glenn Shaver to introduce the guest speaker who was Alderman Leslie M. Reid, principal of Quinte Secondary School. Mrs. Reid's theme was "Education in our Time." His topic was divided in three lines of thought: First, the continual and constantly increasing demand for class room accommodation and procurement of qualified teachers and staff to preside over the enrollment in each room, which apparently has become almost an annual affair. Secondly the cost or so called high cost of education from the viewpoint, particularly of the property owner, taxpayer. There was no doubt in the speaker's mind that this had become an important issue and he was certain that both the Federal and Provincial Governments were fully cognizant of the general public feelings, and also believed the senior governments were giving serious consideration to providing all municipalities with additional financial assistance.

Mr. Reid made the following observations. The cost of education is much less than the amount of money spent by the people of Ontario for liquor and tobacco, automobiles, recreation and amusements and much more than on the punishment of crime. Is it fair to make these comparisons? He also observed that a large number of radio and TV artists receive salary and remuneration many times more than the highest paid teachers. Although he believed teachers salaries were now quite comparable to that of other professions.

Thirdly, the problem was academic, providing suitable material for the student of lower IQ, the medium and the ones of higher quality intellect. It was often quite distressing to members of the profession to notice the large number of those, who fail to complete their grade thirteen education and the small percentage who continue to higher schools of learning, thus throwing many young folk on the already overcrowded labor market.

His address was filled with large amounts of food for thought for the present generation and the thanks of the club was graciously expressed by Mr. Newt McFie, and relayed to Mr. Reid by the President Gerald B. Hyde.

At this time the President requested Byson Leslie to preside over the entertainment period which was to follow.

The first was an individual Bingo game, followed by group games which were most enthusiastically indulged in by all present. The final contest was between two large groups, on the quetsion of "how well do you know your church". Mr. Leslie asked statistical questions and apparently the contest ended in a tie.

Contest winners were as follows: Mrs. Harry Twiddy, Mrs. Evelyn McKillican, C. B. Morgan, Don Leslie and Mrs. C. L. Hyde.

The president announced that the surprise visit and entertainment had betn secretly arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Bryson Leslie and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hyde.

The president also announced that at the March regular meeting the Club would be hosts to members of Holloway St. Tabernacle and East Minister United Church, AOTS, men's clubs.

Refreshments were served by lady members of the Coronation Club and the Rev. H. M. Davis pronounced the benediction.

HIGH UP

Lake Titicaca on the Peruvian-Bolivian border, with an elevation of 12,500 feet, is the highest lake on which steamboats ply.

A Bloomfield medical doctor, Kenneth McQueen, is credited with saving the life of a Picton hockey player, 19-year-old Larry Moore. Dr. McQueen was a spectator at a Prince Edward County hockey league game at Picton arena when Moore fell on an opponent's skate and severed the main arteries in his neck. The doctor was assisted by police officers and firemen in halting the flow of blood at the scene. Moore was carried by stretcher 300 yards across fields to Picton hospital, where his condition is reported as favorable. More than 75 hockey fans turned up at the hospital as blood donors. Tests Need Not Make You THAT Jittery

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D., with HARRY KARNS

Article 14

Do tests and exams make you nervous?

If not, you are an exception.

Recently, one of our friends a college graduate, told us about a dream he has recurrently. He is sitting in a classroom whose blackboards fill the wall space from floor to ceiling. The blackboards are covered with exam questions.

Suddenly the teacher appears at the front of the classroom and announces:

"You have two more minutes in which to finish."

Our friend looks down at his paper and discovers that, except for his name in the upper right hand corner, it is blank. He hasn't answered a single question!

Budget Your Exam Time

The best way to overcome the jitters at exam time is to go into the classroom with a plan of action. Fears creep into idle minds. But if you fill your mind with positive plans for taking the test, there will be no room left for anxiety.

"I really get buck fever when I go in to take an exam," Jack told us. "The first 10 minutes are just wasted. It takes me so long to get calmed down. I can't finish exams of ordinary length in the given time."

Here is what we told him:

Enter the classroom with a definite plan of action.

As soon as you get a look at the list of questions, make out a tentative time budget. This is action, and action is an enemy of fear. After making out the time budget, start using it. Read the first question. Answer it. Dismiss it from mind. Read the second, answer it, and go on to the third. Forget the problems you have worked — concentrate on the one you are working. This is a guaranteed way of preventing mental tensions that tie you up and make you forget things you know as well as your own name.

Students tell us that often in the midst of an exam, without warning, something happens to cause a partial or complete blackout of knowledge. As a result, the last part of the exam is left out entirely or is very poorly done. We know of no remedy except to stop working, take a deep breath, relax your muscles for a moment, and then make an entirely fresh start.

TACKLING THE ESSAY TYPE

Fill your mind with a new plan. Remind yourself:

"I am going to read the next problem carefully. I am going to give it full attention. I am not going to stand for any interference by silly thoughts."

Let yourself know who is boss.

The details of the plan you use depend on the type of exam.

Let's say you enter the classroom and discover that you are required to take an essay-type exam.

1. Check the number of questions. Decide about how much time you should allow for each.

2. Now go back to the first question. Forget everything else. Give that first question your undivided attention. What does it ask you to do? Compare? Define? Explain? Discuss? Outline? List? Each of these words means something different. Make sure you understand the differences.

3. When you are sure you know what is wanted, write down the answer as clearly and completely as you can. It may help you to use a piece of scratch paper to organize your ideas before making your final draft.

4. Leave the first question as soon as you decently can. Leave a space between this answer and the next answer in case you should want to add something later on.

5. Forget the first question and concentrate on the second. Follow the same procedure as before. In the same way, complete all the answers. You are now ready, if time allows, to go back over your paper and correct it. Look for incomplete sentences, incorrect punctuation, misspelled words, grammatical errors.

If you have some time left, go through the exam for the third time. This time ask yourself: "Is there any more precise information I can add?" Think of your textbook, your notebook, and of the lectures. If something comes to mind, use the space you left for additional sentences.

THE OBJECTIVE TYPE

But let's suppose the test is not an essay-type test but an objective test — one requiring you to recognize a correct answer when you see one.

The typical objective test has quite a big number of questions arranged in no logical order. The important thing to do is pay attention to each question in its turn. Answer question No. 1 and forget it. Go on. Any carry-over of anxiety will harm your chances of answering No. 2 correctly.

No one question in this type of exam should be thought of as critically important. Do not think of any given question as the hinge of fate.

Joe brought us an answer sheet for a test in graduation education. We spotted a sequence of wrong answers in which he had missed 11 out of 12. We sensed that the first question of this series must have troubled Joe mightily.

"What happened on No. 62?" we asked him.

He looked up No. 62 on a question sheet and grew red in the face.

"I wouldn't answer that question the way the professor demands, even though I failed the course."

This emotion had cost him 10 grade points.

You have to approach exams with an objective point of view. An exam in a subject containing controversial ideas isn't necessarily a test of your own opinion. It is not an argument between you and the professor. It is a test of how well you understand what the professor and the text have been saying.

Rob Clarksburg Bank of $4,282

CLARKSBURG, Ont. (CP)—This village's single bank was robbed at gunpoint by a lone bandit Wednesday who took all the cash in the till, $4,282, and locked the four members of the bank staff in the vault.

Waving his gun at the four members of the Toronto - Dominion Bank staff — Manager John Coburn, accountant Earl Ritchie and clerks Mrs. Lillian Ferris and Miss Lillian Holroyd — locked all four in the vault.

A few minutes later Mr. Coburn, using a screwdriver kept in the vault for that purpose, removed a plate from the back of the lock and opened the door.

"deliberate attempt to sabotage the UN . . . and provide a plan for merciless civil war" in The Congo. Dean accused Russia of using Lumumba's death for its own purposes.

MAKE CONTRIBUTION

Zorin had attempted to picture Russia as the only friend of underdeveloped countries but the fact was that so-called colonialist powers were making a positive contribution in bringing new nations to freedom they might never have known under Russian domination.

Zorin, in an hour-long speech, charged earlier that Hammarskjold and his Congo staff must bear responsibility for Lumumba's killing which had been brought about by Belgium and other imperialist countries. He demanded discontinuance of the UN force within a month and the immediate expulsion of Belgians from The Congo.

"Good Prose" Topic at Alpha Lambda

"Lincoln's Gettysburg Address illustrates that effectiveness in prose is best conveyed by preciseness." Mrs. Norman Desmond introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Mutter described the basic components of prose. These were further exemplified with a reading of an amusing article by Lotta Dempsey. The speaker also noted that the Bible is considered to be the most beautiful prose of all.

Mrs. Robert Hinchey thanked Mrs. Mutter for her informative address.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. H. L. House. It was noted that a new Exemplar Chapter could be formed for those qualified members interested in advancing to a further degree.

'What Art Can Mean to a Child' Discussed at Avondale H-S

"What art can mean to a child" was the topic at the Avondale Home and School Association on Tuesday evening when James Ritchie, of BCIVS gave an interesting address on the subject of "art." "Art," said Mr. Ritchie, "means absolutely nothing to a child; but it can mean a great deal of muddle and mess; or it can mean a tremendously enriching experience."

"If the experience is to be meaningful to the child, paretns must be active participants with him, and encourage him to succesfully channel his urge to convey. Parents should therefore question the child about his drawing, since a young child's pictures are not merely meant to represent an object, but are also a means of conveying how he 'feels' about the object he depicts. Moreover, by asking a child to talk about his picture, parents will help him to increase his vocabulary and his ability to express himself and, they in turn, will be able to share in the child's own particular 'kingdom.'

"Parents can also help children by exposing them to good reproductions so that they gradually become aware of the difference between good and bad art. They can help by having available a variety of material with which the child can experiment.

ART IS A LANGUAGE

"Parents too often think art is just a 'frill'; but in fact art is a certain language which must be studied. Art can develop constructive thinking and a sense of visual memory without which nothing can be achieved. As a child constructs, he begins to select and reject, the lack of which often leads to failure, since without this ability, the human mind becomes bogged down with too much detail. Through art we can begin to develop this ability to selection in young children."

In conclusion, Mr. Ritchie said that the talents for arts must be developed early, since by the time adolescence is reached the desire to express oneself through art is usually greatly diminished. Teachers and parents should encourage and inspire children up to the age of ten to express themselves through art, the actual teaching to take place later.

Mr. Ritchie was introduced by Mrs. J. M. McLean and thanked by Mr. B. A. Wright, principal of Avondale School.

Brief reports were read by the executive members, Mrs. H. Healip; Mrs. J. A. McCullough; Mrs. J. M. McLean and Mrs. Irvine.

SPEED LIMIT LETTER

Mrs. Dave McDonald read a letter which she had written —as a mother and resident of Dundas Street West, for the past 12 years — and sent to the DeLew Cather and Company of Canada, Limited, consulting professional engineers, regarding the proposed increase of the speed limit on Dundas Street West. She stated that children from Avondale School; from the Ontario School for the Deaf; the High School students commuting to Belleville and Albert College are at the mercy of motor traffic coming into Belleville. She indicated that even with the present speed limit, the Dundas Street area is a 'death trap' and an enjoyable 'drag-strip for young drivers.

Mrs. McDonald had received a favorable reply to this letter, and it was suggested that other residents in the area might also write to the consulting engineers stating their views.

Arrangements were made regarding the home and school 'Fun Fair' to be held in April.

DISCUSSION GROUP

During the refreshment period, Mr. Harold Mott, vocational guidance instructor, conducted a discussion group with parents interested in vocational guidance.

The refreshments were served by the social convener, Mrs. L. Tweedy assisted by Mrs. W. Coates, Mrs. G. Shaver and Mrs. A. Dunning.

For Candy Makers

By Mary Moore

In 1932 I was asked to compile a small cookbook of original chocolate and cocoa recipes.

I have one battered copy of this little cookbook left and occasionally turn to it for recipes of ideas for this column.

Gary and Davey asked Marianne for some fudge and she asked me for a recipe. I looked in the little cookbook and found my recipe called Perfection Chocolate Fudge.

There is a story behind this. When I made it I thought it was a failure for it was too soft. I shoved it in the refrigerator resolving to do another experiment next day.

By evening I looked at it again and it had hardened and when I tasted it I found it was just exactly what I wanted — smooth and creamy and a mellow chocolate flavor. I consulted with the gentlemen of the cocoa company who had given me the assignment telling them of this delayed reaction. They decided that as long as the end result was satisfactory they were happy to include it in the little book so in it went. For three decades I have heard from candy makers saying it was the "best yet".

So as long as you do not have to be eating the fudge 5 minutes after it is poured this is a highly recommended fudge recipe.

PERFECTION CHOCOLATE FUDGE (delayed hardening reaction).

2 tablespoons good quality cocoa, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup whole milk, 1 tablespoon corn syrup.

Mix together sugar, cocoa and salt. When well blended, add milk, butter and corn syrup. Bring to boiling point and let boil gently, while stirring occasionally, until it will form a soft ball when tried in cold water (or until it reaches 234 deg. Fahr. — very soft ball stage). Remove from heat, add vanilla, then cool for 3 minutes. Beat until mixture begins to show ridges when spoon is drawn through it, which hold their shape somewhat. Pour into buttered pan.

NOTE:

If adding chopped nuts, cocoanut or puffed cereals or raisins or dates, they should be stirred in just before candy begins to show ridges during final beating period.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Walter O. — My business runs itself. I want my wife to travel with me.

Eugenia O. — We're too young to sit on the sidelines of life already.

Walter O. — I'm only 50, but I've been working for 35 years and I'm tired. I have enough money now. I own my business and it's running smoothly under capable managers.

I've never had a real vacation, never been anywhere. Our daughter is married. Now that there are just the two of us, my wife and I, I'd like to turn over the business to my employees, and go places and do things.

But I can't go ahead with my plans because my wife thinks they're ridiculous. She's a career woman and wants to get ahead in her field, which is interior decorating. I can see her side of it. She's 47 and is just beginning to be recognized in the trade.

Is there a fair compromise? Certainly I can't go off by myself for a year or so. And my present boredom and restlessness keep pushing me to quit what I'm doing. Shouldn't Genie slow up for my sake and help me get my bearings? Maybe after I get the travel bug out of my system, I'll be able to stand the old rut again.

Eugenia O. — Just when I can really go full steam ahead on my professional career, Wally wants me to go full steam ahead to the North Pole with him!

We married young and for the first 20 years my main interest was our home and our daughter. But over the past 10 years I've gradually found my place in the highly competitive field I live, the decorating of apartment-house lobbies. Also, I enjoy community work.

Now Wally proposes my joining the ranks of the idle rich, people who are always either arriving or leaving. What a horrible prospect at this early age! I want to be a participant in what's going on, not a spectator. I want to produce, not merely consume.

Cruises bore me, and they'll bore Wally, too. We'll meet people there who take no interest in the everyday world. They just keep going. They don't even bother to vote!

I want Wally to stay put and expand his business or something.

The Council — Our considered, though sympathetic, word to Eugenia is, "Whoa!" Here's one of those crossroads where a feller needs his wife.

Fortunately there's no emergency at hand, so Eugenia can take steps to consolidate her position in her industry and try to "freeze" it at a point from which she can take a leave of absence. Although her status may drop a few notches, her prestige in Walter's eyes will soar. And it's Walter she'll want around at the end of a hard day. No career, as Margaret Fishback observed, can put its arms around you.

How about offering to take a year out for Walter? Then he can proceed to plan. Instead of a cruise (which, by the way, carries convalescent whiz-bangs as well as wastrels!), he can try a freighter like that slowboat to China. The chances are, however, that it won't take him a year to discover that his basic problems will be solved neither by travel (for escape) nor by Eugenia (for companionship).

Walter must substitute a "route" for that rut he speaks of. Travel can be part of it, for education and excitement. But Purpose is its steering-lead to study, skills, community service, and maybe even what Eugenia suggests, a second business enterprise. He might be intrigued by the idea of offering employment to the handicapped, for example.

A strange thing may happen to Eugenia's "year out." Surfeited with loafing, infused with some of Eugenia's zest for public service and for challenging work, Walter may holler, "'Nuff!" after six moths!

But as a helpmate she must stop in her tracks long enough for him to get back on his.

75th Birthday Marked by Surprise Party

RYLSTONE — On the evening of February 7th, Mrs. Estella Gibson of Campbellford was honored at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reid and George, on the occasion of her 75th birthday.

Among her gifts was a platform rocker from her immediate family, a lovely sweater, scarf and other useful and beautiful gifts.

Mrs. Gibson was unaware that it was to be a special occasion except a visit with her daughter and family. She was taken completely by surprise when other members of the family began to arrive.

Guests at the happy birthday party were: the family of the guest of honor, Mrs. Gerald Fitchett, her husband and son, Ross, Campbellford; Mrs. Ralph Health, her husband, Don and Carol; Miss Blanche Gibson of Campbellford; Mrs. Gibson's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott, Stirling; her brother, Ritchie Meiklejohn and Jack; her grandson, Jimmie Mumby, his wife and family; Mr. and Mrs. Melville Gibson, Burnbrae; Mr. and Mrs. Clare Irwin and Denise, also Mrs. Victoria Younger, of Campbellford.

Dainty refreshments were served later in the evening by the hostess and her sisters.

The community wishes Mrs. Gibson many more happy birthdays.

Parish Guild Sponsors Bridge, Euchre

A most enjoyable card party took place on Tuesday afternoon in Christ Church Parish Hall when the Parish Guild entertained a large number of ladies at bridge and euchre.

A gracious welcome for the bridge players was extended by Guild president, Mrs. R. H. Dawson, Mrs. I. Slavin and Mrs. M. Vanner. Greeting those who played euchre were Mrs. Everett Smith and Mrs. Lewis Watson.

Tulips, red candles and hearts put everyone in a happy valentine mood and there were many lucky winners of prizes. Those who took the honors at bridge were: Mrs. L. Lennox, Mrs. A. Watkin and Mrs. Ruth Anderson while the winners at euchre were Mrs. M. Eaton, Mrs. M. Smith, Mrs. M. Boyd and Mr. W. Adams.

Mrs. E. Hickey was the lucky recipient of the door prize and several other ladies held lucky numbers.

Mrs. A. W. Jordan and Mrs. H. Thompson were conveners for this occasion assisted by Mrs. F. Lazier and Mrs. W. Adams. Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. F. Burtt and Mrs. R. Vagg, assisted by Mrs. R Beeby and Mrs. F.A. Beeby.

The Guild wishes to thank all those who contributed to the afternoon's success by attending, donating prizes and assisting in any way.

Frenchwomen Generally Want to Stay in Home Says College Head's Wife

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—"We Frenchwomen are more what you call la poule couveuse—the sitting hen," says Mrs. John E. Robbins, wife of the new president of Brandon College. "We stay in the home to watch the little ones until they are independent on their own."

Her life has centred around her three men—her husband, editor-in-chief of the 10-volume Encyclopedia Canadiana, and their sons, Bernard, 22, and Emmet, 21.

But Catho Robbins' home has been no isolated nest dedicated wholly to domestic patterns. While living in Ottawa some of Canada's keenest minds met people from all corners of the world under the Robbins roof. Many discussions of national and international projects bloomed as Catho brewed midnight coffee.

Called Cat'o by her family to distinguish her from an Aunt Catherine, Mrs. Robbins is a descendant of the Saint Denis tree which was uprooted from Normandy in 1690 and replanted on the banks of the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City.

OFFICE ROMANCE

"I'm an early Canadian," she says with pride. "A real pea soup—but I don't like pea soup. It was peasant food."

As a young lady she wrote civil service exams and joined the bureau of statistics at Ottawa. The assistant (later chief) of the bureau was a young man named John Robbins.

"We started walking together," she says, explaining the beginning of their courtship.

She was the first of her family in nearly 250 years to marry other than a Frenchman. Her husband teased her about being a traitor to her race.

During boarding school Catho Saint Denis concentrated on piano and violin along with academic subjects.

"No wonder your son Emmet does so well in music," commented an Ottawa music teacher. "Every day he gets another lesson at home." Both teachers basked in the boy's rapid progress which led to him becoming an Associate of the Royal Conservatory of Toronto at the early age of 13.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE — Mrs. John E. Robbins, wife of the new president of Brandon College in Manitoba, relaxes in her home with a copy of Encyclopedia Canadiana, of which her husband is editor-in-chief. A descendant of early French settlers, she was the first member of her family in 250 years to marry other than a Frenchman. The Robbins have two sons, Bernard, 22, and Emmet, 21. (CP Photo).

WORKS TO MUSIC

Bernard is a sports enthusiast who is majoring in psychology at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

Mrs. Robbins flicks through housework routines to records by Chopin, Saint - Saens and Beethoven.

The major piece of furniture in their home is a baby grand piano. Original paintings include a Stanley Cosgrove group of bare trees on Mount Royal, gay boats by Henri Masson and a study from Beirut to bring back memories of a year the family lived in Lebanon.

Limoges vases painted by her own hand during convent days share space with objects collected from around the world. Fresh upholstery in warm ashes and roses and peacock blue has been ordered for their traditional furnishings brought from their Ottawa home.

In a place of honor rests a deluxe edition of the Encyclopedia Canadiana.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — I am five feet, two inches tall and weigh about 200 pounds. I usually wear black or navy blue clothes. Here is my problem. My son is getting married soon and, the other day, the mother of his fiancee remarked that she hoped I wouldn't wear black to the wedding. She is small and can wear any color. I feel that I should be able to wear the color that will look best on me. I never miss your column and it will mean a lot to me if you will tell what I should do. — Mrs. I. H., Harvey, Ill.

Answer — Actually it is not considered good taste for the mothers of a bridal couple to wear dark clolors at the ceremony. However, in your case, common sense definitely enters the picture. There is no point in your making yourself miserable by wearing a pastel-color-gown, which you know will call attention to your figure. I would strongly suggest a navy blue gown, of a soft texture, and compliment it by a collar, or scarf, or soft pink, light blue, or any pastel shade that is becoming to you. A hat, purse, shoes and gloves of the same shade (or one that will blend with it) should succeed in making you feel comfortable and better able to enjoy the great event. Show this to the girl's mother and perhaps it will help her understand your problem a little better.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

This man was several steps behind me, as I stood on the escalator. Suddenly he seemed to dart ahead impatiently, taking two steps at a time as the moving stairs continued their mechanical pace. He could not wait, or would not, until the escalator carried him to his destination.

One asked himself the obvious question: If the purpose of the machine is to spare people unnecessary effort and strain, then it was useless as far as this man was concerned. And yet he used it. Why? He paid tribute to its value while setting his own pace.

This man is a symbol of our current civilization ,typical of the kind of people all around us.

The world moves constantly, and life with it. But there are always those who are impatient with the speed and who want to reach their goals more quickly. To them, a steady but sure rate of travel is inadequate ;they seek out the short cuts that appear alluring, but which are indeed, often wasteful. Shortening the time it takes to reach a goal is no guarantee that we shall ever reach it.

Often the truth is seen at work in the lives of young people — and of older ones who never grew up. They forget that nature has foreordained that only the process of time can bring healing, understanding, or maturity. But they want desperately to hasten the process.

They pull open a rosebud and willfully demand to extract a full-grown rose. They do not understand that the processes of nature cannot be hurried. Only unscrupulous charlatans produce "genuine Seventeenth Century antiques" in a few hours. But nature is no charlatan; she yields neither to power nor to persuasion.

The escalator of life moves at its own speed. True, we can travel faster by climbing the moving steps. But we do so at our own peril and may soon exhaust ourselves. In the long run, the well-tempered, slowly ripened fruit of life is hardier and sturdier than the hot-house product.

Neutralism Firmly Rejected Officially by Canadians But Close U.S. Link Not Liked

OTTAWA (AP) — One of the big questions raised by recent developments is whether Canada is swinging toward neutralism or is simply trying to steer a more independent course in foreign policy and defence.

There seems to be a little of both, although officially neutralism is being firmly rejected in Ottawa.

Many Canadians are unhappy over being so closely linked to U.S. policies. This is reflected in official statements and even in some actions which have inspired critical newspaper editorials in the United States.

One Canadian television commentator described Canada's position this way:

"We're sitting on a powder keg. We're nervous that the Americans might drop a lighted match by mistake. This, more than anything else, explains the rise of neutralism in Canada, the urge not to be there when the powder keg blows up."

Maclean's, a widely-circulated fortnightly magazine, sees a definite decline in confidence between the United States and Canada. It thinks the cause could be summed up "in one word—brinkmanship." That is the word the late John Foster Dulles used to describe moves that could lead a nation to the brink of war before it stepped adroitly aside.

Both Canada's prime minister and the leader of the main opposition party say they want Canada to follow a more independent line in foreign policy. Both, however, want to continue working within the Western alliance which counts Canada as an important partner.

Says prime minister Diefenbaker:

"Neutrality may be expedient for some countries. It is not for us."

Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson used to be Canadian external affairs minister. He once headed the United Nations and won a Nobel Peace Prize for his part in resolving the Suez crisis of 1956.

He has said repeatedly that a strong and independent Canada does not mean isolation or neutralism.

Pearson was accused of moving in that direction when he proposed recently that Canada should revise its contribution to the North American defence system (NORAD). Pearson says Canada should refuse to accept nuclear weapons, either under Canadian or joint control, and should limit its role to that of air detection, identification and warning.

This policy was rejected by Diefenbaker, but not before it touched off a hot editorial exchange between U.S. and Canadian newspapers.

The New York Daily News, for example, suggested Pearson ought to have his head read. The Montreal Star defended Pearson. The Star said U.S. chauvinists "may believe that it is high treason to criticize any aspect of United States policy" but that many Americans would agree there is no need for Canada to become a minor partner in all U.S. defence activities.

Pearson explained later he felt that Canada, by rejecting nuclear weapons, would place itself in a position to lead the middle-power drive to abolish such weapons.

A recent flare-up in U.S.-Canadian relations involved Canadian trade with the Cuban government of Fidel Castro. This was caused partly by misunderstanding. Trade Minister Hees touched off sparks when he told a visiting Cuban trade mission: "Canada couldn't do business with better businessmen anywhere."

His remark produced criticism both at home and in the United States. A few days later he acknowledged he had pulled a blooper.

"I have no sympathy with Mr. Castro or his regime," he said.

Flame was added to the controversy by Cuban statements that Canada was helping Cuba get around the U.S. trade embargo.

Finance Minister Fleming denied this. He said Canada was simply carrying on normal trade with Cuba, just as other NATO countries were doing. Canada was not shipping either strategic goods or any goods of U.S. origin.

Figures from the Canadian Bureau of Statistics show exports to Cuba during 1960's fourth quarter increased 39.6 per cent over the same period the previous year. For the entire year, however, exports to Cuba were 14 per cent below those of 1959.

Fleming said:

"We have no intention of allowing Canada to be used as a back door to frustrate the effect of the trade controls now being exercised by the United States."

The significant point is that Canada is following an independent policy toward Cuba. Both Canadian officials and Canadian newspapers have made it plain they do not agree with the U.S. embargo and the U.S. contention that the Castro regime is controlled by Moscow.

Fleming stated Canada's position bluntly:

"Our experience in our relations with Cuba has been different from that of the United States. Just as we respect the right of the United States government to determine its own policies toward Cuba, we know that the United States will respect our right to reach our own decisions on such matters."

Premier Douglas Issues Ultimatum on Byelection

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Douglas said a Liberal victory in the Feb. 22 Turtleford byelection will be a vote for postponement of the Saskatchewan government's proposed medical care plan.

The CCF premier lashed out at Opposition Leader Ross Thatcher in the legislatures throne speech debate.

He accused the Liberal leader of urging postponement of the plan as a favor to his "doctor friends" who contributed to Liberal election funds.

Mr. Douglas said the target date for inauguration of the plan is still 1962.

ACCUSES GOVERNMENT

Developments in other legislatures:

Victoria—David Barrett (CCF—Dewdney) accused the B.C. Social Credit government of wasting hundreds of thousands of dollars suppressing social problems instead of taking preventive and curative action.

Edmonton—The Alberta legislation opens today.

Winnipeg—Government member J. Douglas Watt (PC—Arthur) proposed a deductible clause for the Manitoba Hospital Services plan which would pay bills only after they surpassed a prescribed level—perhaps $20. The clause, he said would put "a brake on the rising costs of hospital insurance."

Quebec — Quebec's Liberal government introduced a bill that would completely overhaul legislation governing manufacture and sale of liquor. Attorney - General George LaPalme proposes less restrictive liquor-selling hours and sets down 23 specific types of permits to put some order in liquor selling establishments. A major provision is for establishment of a Quebec Liquor Board to replace the existing Quebec commission. It would consist of a judge and two controllers.

Halifax—The Liberal opposition remained silent as the Progressive Conservative government continued the throne speech debate. The Liberals said Tuesday they were withdrawing from the debate, less than a week old, to give the government a chance to come to grips with unemployment and coal industry problems.

Premier Stanfield tabled 1959-60 fiscal year current accounts showing a surplus of $325,000.

St. John's — A Progressive Conservative bill to extend election campaigns in Newfoundland to 41 from 21 days was rejected by the overwhelming Liberal majority of the government.

A TRICKY JOB

MACTIER, Ont. (CP)—Police stood guard on Highway 103 Wednesday to keep onlookers back as workmen righted a ditched tanker-truck carrying a load of deadly anhydrated ammonia. The truck, on its way to Nobel from Trenton, skidded down a 20 - foot embankment when driver Alex Kozak of Cooksville lost control on a slippery hill Tuesday. Police said they had been informed that if the gas escaped it would kill anyone within a block of the truck.

Woman's Action For Damages Is Dismissed

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A Supreme Court judge Wednesday dismissed a Denfield area woman's action for damages against two London youths and awarded the youths damages totalling more than $36,000 on their counter claims.

The action was brought by Mrs. Joyce A. Schiefele against Leo A. Belair and Victor Balsano as a result of a two-car collision in the city in May, 1959.

Mr. Justice J. F. Donelly assessed damages to Mrs. Schiefele at $13,500 plus $9,067 expenses resulting from the accident, but dismissed her action. He said he accepted Balsano's explanation that the collision was caused by Mrs. Schiefele's car swerving into the path of the car he was driving.

The judge noted that Mrs. Schiefele had spent more than a year in hospital, would be permanently disfigured and would require further surgery.

He awarded Belair a total of $30,133 and Balsano $6,292. Belair suffered a brain injury which left him with an uncontrollable tremor and a speech defect, the judge observed.

Ready to Build Smelting Plant At Millhaven

ODESSA, Ont. (CP) — The New Mylamaque Mining and Smelting Company is prepared to begin construction of its new multi - million - dollar iron ore smelting plant at Millhaven within the next few months if approval is given, company President J. R. Booth told a meeting here Wednesday night.

Millhaven is 10 miles west of Kingston, and 10 miles east of here.

The company is planning to build the $10,000,000 smelter just to the east of the industrial area at Millhaven. It will be located about 1,000 feet from Highway 33.

Ore for the plant is to be provided by a mining project at Newboro, 40 miles north of Odessa, where the New Mylamaque Company plans to spend another $3,500,000 in development.

Mr. Booth indicated the company is ready to begin construction and now is awaiting only the approval of the Ernestown Township planning board, the township council, and other provincial and federal departments.

He said that when the smelter goes into operation the company expects to have a direct payroll of $1,000,000 annually, with employment for some 200 persons. The company will make 150,000 tons of high-grade specialty melting stock or pig-iron each year, he said, for shipment to consumers in Canada, the United States and Europe.

Non-ops Want Single Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) proposed Wednesday that all forms of transport in Canada—rail, truck, ship, plane and pipeline—be placed under the authority of the board of transport commissioners.

In a written brief to the MacPherson royal commission on transportation, the union urges that all other regulatory authorities in the transport field be abolished.

The proposal is part of an over-all blueprint for transport in Canada advocated by the 40,000-member union.

The union suggested that a permanent federal technical transportation commission should be established to look into transport matters.

BUILDINGS BURNED

BRACEBRIDGE (CP)—Three families of an apartment building were evacuated early Wednesday when fire destroyed the adjoining Town Grill. The restaurant was destroyed and adjoining buildings, including several stores were damaged by smoke. Total damage has not yet been estimated.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD

SPRINGFIELD, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Alberta Charlton, 80, was found dead in a field Wednesday, 300 feet from the home of her son Ross, with whom she lived in this village near St. Thomas.

News Service CBC Employees Get Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Salary increases totalling nine per cent were announced Wednesday night by the CBC for its 150 news service employees.

The corporation said it has accepted a conciliation board report on a wage dispute with the Canadian Wire Service Guild and will implement the salary increases if and when the guild accepts the report.

The report calls for:

An across-the-board increase of three per cent retroactive to June 1, 1960; another three-percent increase to become effectiv next April 1 and a third increase of three per cent Nov. 1.

The CBC also said that it has agreed to re-classification of certain news service employees.

The CBC declined to make public amounts of the salaries involved. This, a spokesman said, was against CBC policy.

Two Controllers Have Flareup

TORONTO (CP) — Controller William Dennison called Controller Philip Givens a liar during board of control meeting Wednesday and stood over his desk with flushed face and clenched fists.

The flareup came during discussion of the case of Mitchell Pallington, a rooming house owner who recently chose a 30-day jail sentence rather than pay a $100 fine for failing to maintain his property in a safe condition.

Controller Givens said Controller Dennison should apologize to the buildings department for suggesting it had conspired with the assessment department to persecute violators of building regulations.

Controller Dennison declared he had said no such things.

"You charged there was a hookup," said Controller Givens.

"Oh, you're a liar," shouted Controller Dennison, pushing his way around the controllers' table to Controller Givens' seat.

No scuffle developed. When peace was restored, Mayor Phillips suggested "you two boys should shake hands and make up now."

They did—after the meeting in Controller Givens' office.

Must Find Other Uses for Land Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Agriculture Minister Hamilton said Wednesday the federal government will propose an agriculture rehabilitation and development program to break farmers from traditional land uses.

"We must get our heads out of the barrel, look around and see other uses for a lot of land that is considered marginal or sub-marginal," he told the Holstein - Friesian Association of Canada.

He said 30 per cent of Canada's farmers were held back by the "prison of tradition." Alternative land uses and scientific methods could improve the lot of 120,000 farmers.

The program would start at the federal level with agreements negotiated with provinces after the bill had first reading. Federal - provincial committees and rural groups would follow to investigate alternative land uses.

Mr. Hamilton said it might be found land used for grass or cereal production would be best suited for trees. In such cases it might be necessary to find off-site employment for a tree farmer until the crop was ready for first harvest.

"We have breeding programs for just about everything except trees and human beings" he said. "And I see no reason why trees should be exempt any longer."

Photo in Paper Causes Mistrial In Accident Case

WINNIPEG (CP) — A man charged with criminal negligence had his case declared a mistrial Wednesday because of a picture published ealier in the day by the Winnipeg Free Press.

The trial judge ruled that publication of the picture "which was not an exhibit at the trial" and its accompanying descriptive wording would "prejudice the fair trial of the accused in the minds of the jury."

The picture, taken at the time of the accident last year, appeared in the newspaper's morning edition on the third day of the trial.

Clement LaChance was charged as a result of a three-car crash last May 29 near Headingley, 11 miles west of downtown Winnipeg. Four persons died as a result of the accident.

The picture showed the smashed Volkswagen in which three of the victims—Bent Rosman, 33, his wife, Joyce, 31, and their three - year - old son, John—had been riding.

Henry T. Snaith, 54, of neighboring St. Boniface, driver of the third car involved in the accident, died July 16.

LaChance was accused of being the driver of a car that struck the rear of the Snaith car, pushing it head-on into the path of the Rosman car travelling in the opposite direction.

The caption of the picture described LaChance as the driver of one of the vehicles.

Defence counsel Harry Walsh said that in referring to LaChance as a driver involved, the caption "in that respect constitutes contempt."

Pope John Opens Lenten Period

ROME (AP) — His forehead marked with ashes, Pope John led a religious procession on Aventine Hill Wednesday, opening the 40-day lenten period of penance in preparation for Easter.

The Pope's personal secretary marked the forehead of the 79-year-old leader of the Roman Catholic church with the sign of humility and penance of Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent.

Pope John went to the Basilica of Santa Sabina, near the Vatican, and led the procession through adjacent streets and squares. Afterward, he participated in lenten services in the Basilica.

In a brief speech, the Pope told a crowd of several thousand Catholics they must be more than ordinarily friendly and tolerant with others.

TO FORM SUBSIDIARY

TORONTO (CP)—A subsidiary of the Canadian Guernsey Breeders' Association will be formed to assume responsibility and financing the promotion of Guernsey milk in all provinces, it was decided Wednesday night.

Wintermeyer's Suggestion On Portable Pensions Not Accepted by Frost Govt.

TORONTO (CP)—A proposal that Ontario's technical committee on portable pensions draw up draft legislation of possible minimum standards for private pension plans was rejected in the legislature Wednesday.

The suggestion was made by Liberal Leader Wintermeyer.

John White (PC — London South) said he did not think it proper for the government-appointed committee to operate beyond its terms of reference.

Prof. Donald C. MacGregor, professor of economics at the University of Toronto said the committee had been unable to make any recommendations improving benefits for older workers.

The 23-page summary report of the committee recommended compulsory membership in pension plans for new employees at the age of 30.

Premier Frost told the committee an over-all pension plan would require assistance of the federal and provincial governments. He said Ontario could not establish portable pension scheme on its own because many companies had country-wide interest and a mobility of staff.

Prof. R. M. Clark, professor of economics at the University of British Columbia, said the Ontario government could act unilaterally and impose minimum standards for pension plans. But any legislation should include existing plans and all plans to be started in the future, he said.

The committee is hearing a report by the technical committee on portable pensions, established by Mr. Frost last April. The technical committee has studied numerous existing pension plans to determine if they can be expanded to provide a uniform level of portability.

George Gathercole, deputy minister of economics and co-chairman of the technical committee, said it would be a number of years before a uniform portable pension plan could become operative, whether it was a state or private plan.

It would take years to build up contributions, but that was no reason not to try and make improvements now in existing plans, he added.

He said one essential of any portable pension plan is that employer's contributions must become the property of the employee, which is not the case in most plans today.

It would be impossible to force employers to confirm with this requirement on a retroactive basis, he said.

Mr. Wintermeyer said nothing in the report encouraged employers to begin pension plans for their employees.

In the legislative committee on education the Ontario superannuated teachers association asked the government to increase pensions for school teachers who retired prior to 1936.

Edna Lancaster, of London, Ont., association president, said the teachers Superannuation Act was discriminatory in that it provided suitable pensions for all teachers except those who retired when salaries were low.

Education Minister Robarts said his department would study the proposal.

Canada Views With Disgust Attack on Hammarskjold

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United Nations represents a cornerstone of Canadian foreign policy. It is regarded in Ottawa as a viable instrument capable of surviving Russia's latest onslaught against it just as it survived grave crisis in the past.

The Soviet attack on Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold and, through him, on the UN structure is viewed with utter disgust in official Canadian circles, where he is considered the soul of impartiality.

Canadian leaders give him credit for what he and the UN have been able to achieve in the tempetuous Congo despite almost insuperable obstacles.

It is considered crossly unfair—and External Affairs Minister Green so termed Russia's blast—to accuse the secretary - general of being in any way the tool of the Belgians, let alone of conspiring with them to bring about the death of deposed Congo premier Patrice Lumumba.

NEUTRALS HOLD BALANCE

In the final analysis, according to informed Canadian opinion, it is the Afro-Asian countries—those which the Soviet Union apparently is trying to impress with its angry protests over Lumumba's death—which are the UN's best hope of survival in the present crisis.

The Canadian government is painfully aware of the threat to the international organization posed by Congo events. But there is a feeling that when the chips are down the neutrals of Africa and Asia will shy away from taking or supporting any action that would undermine the present structure of the UN.

The UN as now constituted—with its strong central administration—is seen in Ottawa as the best guarantor of the integrity and independence of the emerging nations, as well as their best insurance against being dragged into the cold war.

Thus it is considered unlikely that they would react favorably to Russia's withdrawal of recognition from Mr. Hammarskjold or the Soviet proposal that he be replaced by a triumvirate.

SOLID CANADIAN SUPPORT

In the Canadian view, there could be no better way to paralyze the UN administration, and no better way to introduce the cold war into the secretariat, than to turn it over to a veto-clad triumvirate.

Canada from the start has warmly supported Mr. Hammarskjold's efforts to pacify The Congo—the extent of sending signals and headquarters personnel to serve with the UN force there. Any shortcomings in the operation, according to Canadian leaders, are the result of the Security Council's refusal to give the secretary - general a workable mandate.

Leaders of all three parties in the Commons have rallied to Mr. Hammarskjold's defence in the latest crisis. Prime Minister Diefenbaker served notice Wednesday that support for the secretary-general will be one of the main themes of his meeting with President Kennedy next week.

"'All of us are agreed that the UN shall not be destroyed as a result of the truculent attitude of any one nation . . ."

He declared. Liberal Opposition Leader Pearson termed the Soviet attack on Mr. Hammarskjold "'vicious and unjustifiable."

The previous day, CCF Leader Hazen Argue also lent his party's support to the Canadian government's position.

Levy New Tax On Brake Lining

OTTAWA (CP)—Chances are that relining the brakes on your car will cost more after March 1.

The increase stems from a new method of relining discovered in the United States several years ago and since moved to Canada. Instead of riveting the new lining to the brake castings, mechanics now do the work by bonding — cementing the lining to the casting.

The revenue department looks on the new method as a form of manufacturing and will impose a sales tax of 11 per cent on the labor required for the job. The tax starts March 1.

The new tax is imposed on the labor only. The firms have always paid it on the material.

Police Chief Higgins Asks Arbitrator Rule on His Pay

TWEED — The regular meeting of Tweed Municipal Council was held in the Council Chambers on Tuesday evening with Reeve Douglas Spencer presiding. Clerk-treasurer Garret D. C. Morton read the minutes of the last meeting and the correspondence. A communication was received from J. D. Lee and Co, Kingston, stating that a representative would be in Tweed shortly to discuss sewage treatment and trunk sewers with the Reeve and Council.

Discussion followed on the payment by Elzevir and Hungerford townships for fire protection. There is no definite existing agreement with Hungerford. Equipment to cost approximately $650, will be purchased for Tweed fire department to improve the service. Chairman Dr. A. G. Allen emphasized that such an expenditure was necessary.

Water meters came in for another round of discussion, and it was the general opinion of Council that all places of business at least should be metered.

Felix Rashotte, building inspector, said the by-laws under which he operates, should be revised, as they are considered antiquated. No changes have been made for some time.

Tweed Municipal Council will be represented at the Lake Ontario Development Association dinner to be held in Trenton on Wednesday, Feb. 22nd.

Percy Marita, Tweed garbage collector requested an increase in wages from $50 to $60 a week. He claimed he had never had a raise since taking the job. The collector supplies a truck and one extra man, and under the circumstances, he felt he was entitled to more money. After a discussion it was moved by Dr. A. G. Allen and supported by Council, that the job be advertised for tender.

ARBITRATION PLANNED

All matters concerning a requested salary increase by Chief Walter Higgins, will be heard by a Board of Arbitration. The chief applied through The Trent Valley Police Association for the increase and other increments, including additional holidays. At that time he asked for a meeting of the police committee, but it was subsequently verbally reported to him by the chairman of the Police Committee that the Reeve and Council were not in favor of a salary increase at this time.

The chief and Councillor Hodgins had a verbal "tiff" at the meeting, regarding his salary and other requests, but it quickly subsided as the Reeve moved the council on to other business. It is understood that all council members opposed a salary increase in view of the $400 boost last year.

The following letter from Chief Higgins was read to the council by clerk Garrett D. C. Morton:

"In the matter of my request for increased wages, other remuneration, sick leave and other working conditions, outlined in a 4-point official request by the Trent Valley Police Association and submitted earlier to council, I am satisfied that after the aforementioned council's decision given to me verbally by the chairman of the police commission, that an agreement cannot be reached between us; therefore I submit this notice in writing to members of council, to require all matters in dispute, to be referred to a single arbitrator, who shall be appointed by the two parties, under the authority of Section 21-10J of the Police Act of Ontario."

It is understood that under the Police Act, in the case of arbitration, each party will be responsible for its own costs of the action. Both parties must agree on the name of the arbitrator who is in most cases a county judge. It is expected that the Board of Arbitration will sit some time in the early spring after a judge has been appointed.

Will Withdraw From EODA

CORNWALL (CP) — City Council Monday night decided to withdraw from the Eastern Ontario Development Association.

Ald. M. M. Kastner said EODA meetings were not always open. "'Everything that has been done for Cornwall by EODA has been paid for and I think we pay higher than our own pro rata amounts," he said.

Ald. Ralph Carrara accused the association of printing misleading information about Cornwall. He referred to a booklet printed by EODA which said Cornwall's population in 1956 was 18,000 and estimated population to rise to 20,000 in 1966 and to 22,000 in 1976.

"'Cornwall's present population is 43,000," declared the alderman.

Car Equipped To Handle Any Kind of Safe

CHICAGO (AP) — Police seized what they consider the last word in specialized crime equipment—an automobile rebuilt for making off with stolen safes.

Three occupants of the car abandoned it early Monday when a policeman forced it to the curb.

The back and front doors were welded together so that when the latch was turned the whole side swung open, exposing the passenger area of the car. Inside was a stolen safe containing $500.

The rear seats had been removed and the floor covered with heavy steel. The car also contained rollers and steel rails on which a safe could be moved inside.

Flashlight Used by Curler To Set Sights for Rocks

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—When Frank Longe prepares to deliver his rock at the Tam O'Shanter Curling Club in nearby Garson he's guided by a flashlight instead of a broom.

Frank is almost blind, just able to distinguish between light and dark.

Where other curlers would take aim at the broom held by their skip, he sets his sights on the beacon from the flashlight placed at the other end of the ice by Austin (Aussie) Murray.

Five years ago an explosion at Garson nickel mine left Frank almost sightless. He became deaf in one ear and lost his left arm and one finger on his right hand.

Fitted with an artificial limb, he joined a group of blind bowlers and later tried curling, a sport he had played outdoors before the accident.

The artificial limb permits him to hold a broom while delivering a rock in order to maintain his balance. But he doesn't join in sweeping.

HAS GOOD WEIGHT

"It's really amazing how people help me. An opponent always makes sure I have my rock okay.

"My teammates and opponents are terrific. They tell me how my shot went and if I took out any rocks.

"I make out all right too. I seem to have good weight to put rocks in front of the house but I guess it just comes from practising for so long.

"My delivery is the same as everybody else's. You just get the feel of the right movements and it comes natural to you."

Longe either plays lead or second. He helped Murray's rink win the third event in the annual turkey bonspiel at the Sudbury Curling Club.

"I'm certainly not the only blind curler around though," says Frank. "Winnipeg has a blind curling league. But they have a sighted skip and a special instructor to line up the curlers before throwing their rocks. They don't use lights as most of them are totally blind.

"And there's a chap in Kapuskasing who has just enough sight to see his skip. He curls without any aid but he has to ask for help in lining up his shots."

Firemen Fight Hockey Battle At Deseronto

DESERONTO — The visiting Belleville "Smoke Eaters" were held to a 4-4 tie by the Deseronto "Flame Chasers" in a hockey battle of the firemen played here last Friday night.

While it could hardly be classed as hockey at its best, the game provided fun and laughs, as well as plenty of aches and pains, for the firefighters from both centres.

Good sportsmanship prevailed throughout with only one minor penalty being called. The only "injury" came when a player was hit by a flying puck but tired, bruised players felt as if they had tackled the Toronto Maple Leafs in a Stanley Cup game when the aches began to show up the next day.

The Deseronto department played host to the Belleville boys at their clubrooms following the game. Cards, refreshments an da social hour completed the evening of good companionship.

Deseronto took the lead in the hockey game when Fraser scored twice in the first period, aided by Charlie Knight. Jackson and Whitton scored for the homesters in the second while Smith and Christopher replied for Belleville, making it 4-2.

The only goals in the third heat came from the visiting sticks of Hamilton and Park. Hamilton's goal was the equalizer in the game's dying seconds.

Shirley Maclaine Defends Marriage to Steve Parker

By BOB THOMAS

TOKYO (AP)—Shirley Maclaine, wrapped in white mink, sat in the lobby bar of the Hotel Imperial and defended her crazy, mixed-up marriage.

She is weary of doing so. To her, there is nothing unusual about having a career in Hollywood and a husband in Tokyo.

But others find it strange. A news-magazine recently termed her union with Steve Parker as "the oddest marriage in Hollywood." Her reaction to the story was to fling a pie in the face of the magazine's Tokyo correspondent.

"'That story made me mad," she said. "'When they run a line like 'I love my wife but oh you Kyoto,' it's just being nasty. I didn't like it at all."

WORKED IN JAPAN

Shirley sees nothing odd in her marriage to Parker. She explained that he was involved in enterprises in Japan during the last few years while she was working out a Hollywood contract. But she said that their relationship has not suffered, nor has their daughter, Stephanie, 4½.

"'I can name you 15 stars in Hollywood who see less of their children than I do," said Shirley. "When I am not working, she is with me all the time. Or when she is here with Steve, she goes with him everywhere, even on business appointments. What other child spends so much time with her father?"

The Parkers' time and fortunes are now intermingled. Shirley is here to star in My Geisha, which is being produced and promoted by Steve Parker. It is the most time they have spent together since their careers went in divergent directions.

The film may prove to be a greater strain on their marriage than their absences. The movie has been troubled with the issue of Shirley's makeup. She is supposed to fool both her husband (Yves Montand) and her leading man (Robert Cummings), and so far the makeup has not been deemed that convincing.

OTTAWA (CP)— There is no connection in the deaths of John Izatt, 18, and Stefan Kaczor, 35, both of Ottawa, who died last week within 48 hours of each other, police said Tuesday. Their deaths were believed caused by poisoning. Contents from the stomachs of the men have been taken to Toronto to the provincial crime lab.

Injunction Is Continued Until March 1

TORONTO (CP)—An injunction prohibiting Dimensional Investments Limited from obtaining title to certain lands in the Sarnia Indian reserve was continued Wednesday to March 1 by an order of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Chief Telford Adams in seeking the injunction claimed he has an agreement with Dimensional under which the firm will buy the entire lot at an agreed price if it buys part of any one of five named lots on the reserve.

Chief Adams said title to part of the Ontario Hydro's right-of-way across the reserve has been acquired by Dimensional but that the right of way has certain gaps in it. He claimed Dimensional is trying to obtain title from the department of Indian affairs to two strips of land to fill in the gaps.

He contended that Dimensional must buy the total plot and pay him $55,038 and the Indian band $36,234 if it wants the strips.

'The Spy Next Door' Usual Type of Program

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If CBS' The Spy Next Door, televised Wednesday night, resulted in any hard feelings, they are more likely to flare up in the offices of color TV manufacturers than in the Kremlin.

The Circle Theatre program was suddenly cancelled without explanation by the network two weeks ago, and later restored to the program's schedule. The persistent reports were that CBS did not want to do anything to upset U.S.-Soviet relations.

It turned out to be the usual type of Circle Theatre program: A fictitious story built on documented facts. And in this case, it was a composite of a large number of espionage cases, all of which have served as the unacknowledged source of TV plots by the score.

DIALOGUE TELLS

It had a bit of illuminating dialogue about the price of color television sets.

Counterintelligence agents were hot on the trail of Red spies trying to steal a new electronic machine and ship it to Moscow concealed in the innards of a color TV set.

The television set dealer protested his innocence in selling the sets to the spy-master, proclaiming: "'It sounded like a good deal to me, cash, and I get a 40-per-cent markup on the sets."

Lucky CBS just happened to be televising the United Nations at the moment Wednesday when a demonstration broke up the session.

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

A NEAR MISS!

Twelve and two may add up to 14 in most people's books but to Bernie Mascaro of the Major "B" Bowling League, it totals 448, one pin shy of a perfect five-pin game.

Mascaro came as close to the 450 dream game as a person can come without getting it at the local Recreation Alleys Tuesday night of this week.

Bowling for the Blue Bells of the Major "B" league, young Mr. Mascaro appeared well on his way when he rolled 11 consecutive strikes in his third game of the night.

Then came the big one. With every eye in the bowling alley focused on those five elusive pins, Mascaro let go with his 13th ball of the game.

According to one witness, Cec Hardwick, it looked like a perfect strike. He caught the head pin and for one brief moment, Bernie and everybody else pictured the 450 game.

But, as happens so often in the world of sport, Lady Luck chose this moment to glance the other way.

Mascaro's ball cleared four pins but left one corner pin standing, giving him a terrific, but at this point, heart-breaking 448.

In his two earlier games, Mascaro had totalled 374, giving him a 882 triple for the night. His team took five points on the night's play.

But one thing sure when Bernie's grandchildren climb on his lap in years to come and ask to hear a story, they will hear of that lonely two-pin and the 12th ball that didn't quite make it.

The story should provide quite a conversation piece for father Tommy too, but, in a more serious vein, congratulations are in order to Bernie Mascaro for a tremendous game.

WITH THE MINORS

Belleville and Kingston bantam, midget and juvenile "A" hockey teams will meet in the opening round of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdowns next week.

Officials announced yesterday that the first games in all three series will be played here the night of Wednesday, February 22. The return games will be played in Kingston on Saturday, the 25th, in the morning and afternoon.

All series are two-game, total goals-to-count affairs, with the winners advancing into the next round.

Times of the games and other particulars will be announced shortly but fans are advised to keep next Wednesday open for the games here.

Keen competition always prevails between the two cities' minors teams. Usually there is very little to choose between the clubs and vocal support from the stands often goes a long way in spurring the home team on to victory.

Meanwhile the Belleville Peewees, entered in OMHA play this year for the first time, drew a bye in the opening round. Their second-round opponents should be available in the near future.

The peewees are not idle in the meantime since they are taking part in the Eastern Ontario championship tournament for the Peterborough Outboard Marine and Briethaupt Leather trophies at Marmora this Saturday. The consolation round of that tourney will be played in the RCAF rink at Trenton the same day.

And over at Jack Dickens' Memorial Arena ice lanes there is plenty of minor action these days as the Belleville teams battle it out for their own group championships.

Playoffs are under way in squirt, peewee, bantam and midget divisions on Saturday mornings and Monday evenings. The kids really battle hard for those trophies and crests.

Plante And Beliveau Big Guns In Win

Habs Defeat Leafs 3-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centre Jean Beliveau and goalie Jacques Plante supplied the big punch Wednesday night when Montreal Canadiens won what was possibly their most important National Hockey League game this season.

Beliveau came through with a big goal late in the second period and Plante made some brilliant saves as the Habs scored a 3-1 triumph over the Maple Leafs at Toronto.

The victory was only the Canadiens' third in 11 games and it cut Toronto's margin atop the standings to four points. In the other game of the night Chicago Black Hawks strengthened their grip on third place by beating New York Rangers 5-2 on home ice.

Montreal, seeking a fourth-consecutive league championship and an unprecedented sixth straight Stanley Cup, went into the game against a hot Toronto team that had won seven times and tied once in eight games.

STAGED COMEBACK

The Habs fell behind 1-0 early in the first period but came back with goals in each period in a dull, close-checking contest—before a capacity crowd of 14,415 at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Toronto has 73 points in 57 games and Montreal, 69 in 55 games. The Habs get a chance to close in even further tonight when they are host to lowly Boston Bruins in the league's only action.

Beliveau, always a strong late-season performer, broke a 1-1 tie with a goal in the last minute of the second period and it was all Canadiens needed.

Donnie Marshall added a third goal in an open net late in the game. Marshall's goal came after Leafs had removed rookie goaltender Gerry McNamara in favor of an extra forward with 74 seconds remaining.

Rookie Dave Keon got Toronto's goal and Marcel Bonin tied the score 1-1 for Canadiens.

PLANTE STANDS OUT

Plante, playing in his fourth game since coming back from Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, was particularly brilliant midway through the second period when the Leafs poured blazing shots at him.

McNamara, playing in his first NHL game as a replacement for injured veteran Johnny Bower, couldn't be blamed for the defeat. He made fine stops and wound up with a total of 28. Plante had 25.

The league's two top scorers—Frank Mahovlich of the Leafs and Bernie Geoffrion of the Canadiens — failed to get any points.

Ab Mcdonald paced the Hawks to their win over New York with his 14th and 15th goals of the season. Both goals came in the third period.

Other Chicago scorers were Tod Sloan, Dollard St. Laurent and Bobby Hull.

Scoring for New York were Johnny Wilson and Dean Prentice.

Sudbury Gets Slim 4-3 Win Over Kingston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two goals by captain Sam Bettio gave Sudbury Wolves a slim 4 - 3 win over Kingston Frontenacs Wednesday night and kept them within sight of an Eastern Professional Hockey League playoff spot.

The win gave Sudbury 45 points, six less than the Frontenacs whom they must overtake if they are to capture a playoff berth.

Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers fattened their third-place total to 55 points by trouncing last-place Montreal Royals 5-1.

Only 617 fans turned out for the Kitchener contest during one of the worst snowstorms of the winter.

Much of the credit for Sudbury's win went to goalie Al Millar on loan from Hershey Bears of the American League while regular Wolves goalie Gerry McNamara was with National League Toronto Maple Leafs.

Jack Hendrickson and Keke Mortson added Wolves' other two goals while Orv Tessier, Bob Attersley and Lorne Ferguson scored for Kingston.

Frontenacs pulled goalie Long John Henderson in the final minute but were unable to get the tie.

Centre Ed Hoekstra and left-winger Len Bronson each scored a pair for the Dutchmen and Dave Balon added the fifth.

Terry Harper scored Montreal's goal.

In tonight's game league-leading Hull-Ottawa will visit second-place Sault Ste. Marie.

May Cancel Meet

Decision Will Be Known Today

DAVOS (AP)—A decision of the International Skating Union's executive committee whether the 1961 world figure-skating championships should be cancelled was expected to be known today.

After the deaths of 18 United States skaters in the plane crash at Brussels Wednesday, Jacob Koch, president of the ISU and Secretary - General George Haesler urged cancellation out of respect to the Americans.

In Prague, organizers of the tournament, scheduled to start next Wednesday, planned to go ahead with the competition, saying they had consulted representatives of six countries already in Prague.

Loch and Haesler sent their proposals to the other nine executive committee members in Europe.

In Rochester, N.Y., F. Ritter Shumway, acting president of the U.S. Figure-Skating Association, urged that the tournament be held.

"I think our skaters would have wanted it to go on," he said. "They were all good troupers, wonderful young people. We feel that in fairness to all the others the championships should be held."

St. Michael's Regain Lead, Down Marlies

NORTH BAY (CP) — Second-place Toronto St. Michael's regained their five-point lead in the OHA junior A series here Wednesday night by dumping tail-end Toronto Marlboros 3-1.

North Bay's hockey - starved populace, with only a junior B team as its top attraction, gave the game an appreciative reception. A crowd of 2,711 turned out. The teams used chartered flights to make the trip

Returning to his hometown, Larry Keenan gave the fans something to cheer about as he spearheaded St. Mike's attack with a two-goal effort—his 25th and 26th goals of the year. Bruce Draper notched his 38th goal to open the scoring for the Majors.

Bob Ferguson spoiled goalie Dave Druden's shutout bid at the 18:31 mark of the final period for Marlboros, slapping the puck in directly from a faceoff in the St. Mike's end.

Mother Transferred Her Energies To Flashing Blades of Daughters

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Maribel Vinson Owen skated in the shadow of the great Sonja Henie and never realized her ambition to win an Olympic figure skating championship.

After winning nine U.S. women's title and placing in three Olympic Games, she transferred her energies and dreams to the flashing blades of her two daughters — Laurence, 16, and Maribel, 20.

It appeared that this pair of whirling ice ballerinas might succeed where the mother had failed.

Last month Laurence captured the U.S. women's figure skating crown at Colorado Springs and last weekend she added the North American championship at Philadelphia, narrowly defeating Wendy Griner of Toronto. The elder sister, Maribel, teamed with Dudley Richards for the national pairs title.

The two Owen girls, tutored by their mother, were pointing to the world championships, scheduled next week in Prague, and the 1964 Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria.

ALL DIE IN CRASH

But all of them died early Wednesday in the wreckage of a Sabena Airlines jet, which plowed into the woods near Brussels airport.

The accident, in which 73 persons were killed, wiped out the cream of America's ice-skating team — 18 competitors headed for the big Prague event, coaches and officials.

The tragedy crushed U.S. hopes of retaining the world and Olympic figure skating supremacy it has held since the Second World War.

The leading prospect was Laurence, a slender, ever-smiling schoolgirl who whirled through the most intricate and daring routines with breath-taking grace.

"I could do as well as Laurence in the school figures (prescribed designs on ice)," Mrs. Owen once said, "but in free-skating she is better than I ever dreamed of being. She can do jumps and spins I wouldn't attempt."

The sister, Maribel, a svelte, pretty senior at Boston University, was a good individual skater but preferred to perform with a partner.

Both girls were the products of their mother's relentless drive to make them champions, but neither ever showed resentment over their spartan training.

LOVED IT

Commenting on her hours of practice, which often began as early as 4 a.m., Laurence once said, "Certainly it's tough, but I love every moment of it."

The Owen girls were born in the ice skating tradition. Their father, Guy Owen, who died in 1952, was a professional skater and coach. Both of Mrs. Owen's parents were expert skaters.

The two girls, like their mother, were put on the ice when they were big enough to stand. Then they were tossed into the toughest competition. Both were national competitors before reaching their teens.

The word for Maribel Vinson Owen was vivacious, meaning full of life.

She never showed her moods to her friends, kept her trim figure even with advancing years, and her warm, wide smile was as well known at ice rinks around the world as her throaty, rich voice.

Mrs. Owen, formerly a Boston newspaper woman was figure skating expert for the Associated Press at the last four Winter Olympic Game.

Some Sports Teams Set up Disaster Plans

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Several professional sports teams already have set up disaster plans to take care of any emergency, resulting from a tragic travel accident such as Wednesday's plane crash that wiped out the U.S. figure skating team.

BASEBALL

In the American League, an emergency would exist in the event of the death or disability to seven or more active players of a baseball club in an accident.

The league president would call a special meeting at which each club, other than the one that suffered the disaster, would list as available 12 of its 25 players.

The selecting team would take at least one from each club and no more than three. The payment for each player would be $75,000.

The National League has not spelled out any exact plan. The idea for a plan has come up for consideration at several meetings, but league policy has been to wait and see, with the idea that it would be better to avoid any rigid formula.

FOOTBALL

The National Football League has an insurance policy, covering each club in the league, at over $1,000,000 a club. However, it does not have a disaster plan to provide playing talent.

Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, said "our feeling has been that it might be advisable to avoid any general format. However, I expect it will come up again at our spring meeting."

BASKETBALL

The National Basketball Association was one of the first to set up a disaster plan, shortly after a crash involving an Italian soccer team in 1949.

In the event of total disaster to an NBA team, each of the surviving teams would be able to protect five of its 10 players. The other five would go into a talent pool. The team that needed the help could then pick a maximum of 10 players, no more than two from any one club. The price to be paid would be determined by a committee.

HOCKEY

The National Hockey League also has a definite plan for re-stocking a club that had lost five or more players. The other teams would attempt to solve the problem voluntarily, negotiating sales. If the stricken club still did not have its regulation 18 players and a goalie, the other clubs would make up a pool. Each club could exempt 10 players and a goalie. The selecting team could take no more than three from any one club, at $50,000 each.

A LADY WINS

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Louise Suggs defeated an elite field of golfers, including 12 men professionals, Wednesday with a six-under-par 54-hole score of 156 in the $10,000 Royal Poinciana invitational. Miss Suggs earned top women's division money of $1,200 for 54 holes. Closest to Miss Suggs was W. A. Pagan. His two-day total was 157, and it earned him the $1,200 top prize in the men's division. Sam Snead fired 158.

Any American college that hopes to land Bruce Kidd on an athletic scholarship hasn't a chance. He graduates from high school this year and it is likely he'll continue his studies in his home town, at the University of Toronto, which doesn't offer scholarships, although he has bids from nearly a dozen U.S. colleges.

"He has a big chip on his shoulder about this," his mother said this week. "Wherever he goes, he's going to do it academically and right now, the University of Toronto seems to be his choice although this won't be decided until the end of March at the earliest."

American colleges took notice of the 17 - year - old distance runner and honor student when he won the Knights of Columbus indoor two - mile event at Boston in his first big race last month. He followed with a big win at Winnipeg and last week was a bang - up second behind U.S. Olympic runner Jim Beatty at Los Angeles.

OTHERS HELD BACK

The West Coast race was a cat - and - mouse affair with three of the leading American milers. The youngster had hoped for a 4:18-4:20 mile but the Americans, all veterans of international competition, held back and waited for the brush-cut Canadian to dictate the strategy.

"He lost simply by inexperience," said coach Fred Foot. "He didn't know what to do. After 1½ laps I waved to him to go all the way and if he had made the big jump there I'm certain he could have taken it all.

"It's inconceivable that the field would sit back and see what an inexperienced kid would do. They must have been afraid of him."

Foot said that Kidd has been invited to every big indoor meet in the U.S. in the next couple of months, but so far he has accepted only one — the Amateur Athletic Union national championships at New York Feb. 25. Kidd will run the three miles at New York.

POINTS FOR OLYMPICS

He may go to Milwaukee March 11 and he is a definite starter in the two miles at the Canadian indoor championships at Winnipeg on March 18.

He has his timetable set up for the next three years. In 1962, he expects to compete in the three miles at the British Empire Games in Perth, Australia, and then enter the 10,000 metres at the 1963 Pan-American Games in Brazil and the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

"Bruce definitely is not a miler, although I wouldn't be surprised to see him break the four minutes in the next couple of years," Foot said.

"He's a distance runner and he'll go in either the 5,000 or 10,000 metres at Tokyo. We'll wait and see how he builds up."

Full of Grief

'A Cruel Blow to Skating' Sums Views of Associates

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

American Olympic champions Carol Heiss and David Jenkins joined others Wednesday in expressing shock and grief over the death of leading U.S. figure skaters in a Brussels plane crash.

"It's a great tragedy—both to their families and to ice skating," said Miss Heiss, who abandoned competition for the role of housewife and a possible film career.

"All our top figure skaters were aboard. I had competed against all of them. This would about do our figure skating for some time."

Jenkins, who talked to many of the skaters by telephone from Boston shortly before their departure from New York, said: "This really hit me hard. I've known these people for years." Jenkins now is a pro.

Don Jackson, 20-year-old Oshawa skater who captured the North American men's title, said in New York:

"They were real great, wonderful people."

SHOW SHOULD GO ON

Asked if he thought the world championships should be postponed, Jackson said:

"I guess it would be very nice if they did postpone or cancel it. But a lot of other people from other countries have worked hard getting ready for this thing and I guess, as they say, the show must go on."

Jackson was in New York for a visit before flying to Prague next Friday.

Dennis Silverthorne, a former British skating star who has lived in Canada for 10 years, said in London: "It is terrible news. I must have known every one of those skaters personally."

Silverthorne, who coaches Don McPherson, a Stratford, Ont., member of the Canadian team, said he would have been on the crash flight but changed his plans to visit England while on his way to Prague.

Eric Coggins, secretary of the British National Skating Association, said the tragedy dealt "a cruel blow to skating."

THINKS IT MISTAKE

Gustav Lussi, trainer of Dick Button and other former Olympic skating champions, said he thought it a mistake to have sports teams travel in one group on air flights.

Canadian skaters wept when they learned of the crash shortly after they had arrived in Prague by plane for the world championships.

The championships are scheduled for Feb. 22 to Feb. 26.

All 10,000 seats at the Prague Winter Stadium, where the championships will be held, were sold out weeks ago.

Two of the city's largest hotels have been completely taken over to accommodate competitors, their friends and reporters. About half the competitors already have arrived in Prague for training and acclimatisation.

JOINED BY TEAM

While listening to the disaster report, the Canadians were joined by members of the Canadian hockey team, Trail Smoke Eaters who are in Czechoslovakia for a playing tour.

"The airport hall then became very quiet and the Canadian hockey players removed their hats and silently paid tribute to their dead sports associates," said the official Czech news agency Cetaka.

The figure skaters included Czech-born Otto and Maria Jelinek, Canadian pair champions, who have a Czech government promise they may leave the Communist country whenever they wish although they fled with their parents several years ago.

Toronto Rink Wins Title In Curling

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Emily Woolley's Toronto rink was assured the Ontario women's curling championship here Wednesday night with a 14-3 victory over the winless eastern Ontario representatives skipped by Gladys Armsden of Arnprior.

It was the fifth straight win for the Southern Ontario representatives in the double round-robin event. Although one more event remains to be played today, Wednesday night's result removed all doubt about the final outcome.

The Doris McInnes rink of Sudbury is in second place. The Northern Ontario representatives have three wins and two losses.

The Canadian women's finals will be held in Ottawa Feb. 27 to March 3.

With skip Woolley are Bibi Smith, third; Barbara Gibson, second; and Jane Clark, lead.

DUCK COUNT UP

ALYMER WEST, Ont. (CP)—The annual count of waterfowl wintering in the Lake Erie district shows the duck population up almost five per cent over last year, the Ontario department of lands and forests district office reported Wednesday. The count, made by aircraft, revealed 15,931 ducks of all species. The count was taken Jan. 9 and 10 and included all waterfowl observed in open Canadian waters from Hamilton Bay, the Niagara River, the north shore of Lake Erie, the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River.

Bulldogs Win Over Maroons By 6-2 Score

CHATHAM (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs strengthened their hold on first place in the OHA senior league here Wednesday night as they scored a 6-2 win over Chatham Maroons.

The win nearly assures Windsor of a first-place finish in the league. Maroons, tied with Galt for second place, have six games remaining on the schedule and are 10 points behind.

Veteran Joe Klukay scored two goals to pace the Bulldog attack. Single goals were scored by Bill Mitchell, Gord Haidy, Jerry Serviss and Lou Dietrich.

Playing coach Ted Power and George Montague tallied Maroons goals.

Windsor grabbed a 1-0 first period lead on Haidy's goal and led 3-2 after two periods before scoring three unanswered goals in the third stanza.

Ross Childs, the loop's leading goalie, was a major factor in holding the Allan Cup champion Maroons down. He made a total of 32 saves in the game, while his counterpart Al Bennett made 28.

Maroons received six of the 11 minor penalties called in the hard checking contest.

The game was played before 1,301 fans, the largest crowd at Chatham home game this season.

Andy's Club Meets Heaters In Next Round

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto YMHA Blues defeated Andy's Athletic Club 73-63 Wednesday night in the deciding game of their best-of-three Ontario Amateur Basketball Association senior A playoff.

The Blues advanced to the next round against Kingston Saturday at the Queen's University gym.

Andy's led 34-31 at the halfway mark but fell before the driving force of YMHA in the late stages.

Mal Cheslar, playing with a sprained finger, led the Blues with 18 points. Joe Stulac had 16 and Ruby Richmond 14. Ed Doguski was tops for the losers with 14 points.

Andy's did not compete in any league this year but issued a challenge for this series last month. They took the opener 63-57 but the Blues, members of the Ontario Big Seven, bounced back last Saturday 67-57.

Indians Win 6-3 Over The Barons

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) Bruce Cline and Bob McCord each scored two goals Wednesday night as Springfield Indians turned in a 6-3 American Hockey League triumph over Cleveland. It was Springfield's 22nd victory in 25 home starts.

The Indians' Bill Sweeney was credited with four assists, extending his scoring lead to five points over Phil Maloney of Buffalo.

The Indians broke open a 2-1 game with a four-goal surge in the last period. McCord got the first two and Springfield had a 6-1 lead eight minutes into the period, too much for the Barons to overcome.

Cline and Bill McCreary fired first - period Springfield goals, but Ron Attwell got one back for the Barons at 11:39 of the middle session.

Bill Dineen and Moe Mantha scored last-period goals for the Barons, but by that time the Indians had a comfortable lead. Jack Caffery got the other Springfield goal.

HESITATE TOO OFTEN

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canadian manufacturers too often are hesitant in introducing new designs and styles on the export market, Trade and Commerce Minister Hees said Wednesday night. "All too often our normal pattern is to wait until the style is set, or until we think that a design is a sure thing before we get into production," Mr. Hees told a meeting of the Purchasing Agents Association of western Ontario.

FIT FOR THE BATTLE — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo (left) and British boxer Brian London compare sizes as they take their prefight medical in Toronto Wednesday. Both are pronounced fit to fight. They meet at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto February 20. Not Much Hope Retained Skating Stars Will Return

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' faint hopes of retaining a dominant position in world and Olympic figure-skating rest on the speedy development of promising young skaters and the unlikely possibility that retired stars will return to competition.

Still stunned by Wednesday's plane crash at Brussels which killed 18 members of the American team, prominent coaches and officials surveyed prospects for the 1964 Olympics and found little encouragement.

The U.S. has won every individual men's Olympic title since the Second World War and the 1956 and 1960 women's championships. The winners all have retired or turned professional.

"These were the finest skaters in the country—the best three in every division," said Carl W. Gram Jr., secretary of the U.S. Figure - Skating Association. "Now we will have to start from the beginning with our juniors and kids. It's a long road back."

SEES LAPSE

Pierre Brunet, coach of Carol Heiss, Olympic women's champion, and other leading skaters, said: "It will be two Olympics before we can hope to have a strong representative team again."

Tim Brown, who escaped the crash because he withdrew after placing third in the U.S. men's championship, said he has given up competition because of a heart condition. He is the best surviving male skater.

"There wasn't any point in taking a risk," he said. Brown is 22 and, although he said he has quit for good, he might return by 1964.

Tenley Albright, 1956 Olympic women's champion, and Barbara Ann Roles, third in the 1960 Olympics, have retired and aren't likely to return. Miss Albright is a medical student at Harvard University and could not easily give up the time needed for practice to regain her winning form. Miss Roles' skating career ended with her marriage last summer.

WILL PLAY BILLS

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four are considering a pre-season exhibition game here with Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, general manager Jake Gaudaur said Wednesday night. It was also announced the Ti-cats will not be returning to North Bay for training camp this year. Workouts will be at Civic Stadium here.

Moore-Renald Title Fight May Develop

NEW YORK (AP)—An official of the Madison Square Garden Boxing Club will fly to Europe today to try to set up an Archie Moore - Giulio Rinaldi world light heavyweight title bout for the Garden, June 10.

Lew Burston, the Garden's specialist in foreign boxing, will go to Rome to talk with Rinaldi, the Italian who upset Moore in a non-title bout last October.

Moore, who lives in San Diego, has been sent contracts for the bout. They call for 40 per cent of the live gate for Moore, who has been ordered to sign forthwith for a defence or face loss of his title in New York and Europe.

He already has been stripped of the title by the National Boxing Association, which now recognizes Harold Johnson.

In Rome, Rinaldi jumped with joy when he heard that Moore was willing to fight him. His manager, Luigi Proietti, said he expects to get the contract to sign this weekend.

Cancel Game Due to Storm

STRATFORD (CP)—The Senior Ontario Hockey Association game between Woodstock and Stratford was cancelled here Wednesday night. An hour after the game was scheduled to begin only a few Woodstock players had arrived. The remainder found roads too treacherous because of heavy snowfall.

Don Hughes, senior OHA convenor, said Indians would be awarded a victory by forfeit over Athletics. He made the announcement after consulting with Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, OHA executive members.

Bay of Quinte Basketball

Crawford Metals, with only five players making the trip, handed the Picton Prospects a 97-41 defeat in Picton last night in a Bay of Quinte basketball league game.

The front-running Crawfords took a 51-20 lead at half time and came up with an overall strong team performance on their way to their 22nd victory in 24 scheduled starts. They have lost once and tied once, both games with second-place Trenton.

High-scoring Ted Batchelor upped his individual point total with a 37-point performance. Centre Phill Bennett turned in his second straight high-scoring game, hooping 31 points, while Bert Faulkner hit for 19.

Hopkins was the lone Picton player to reach double figures, collecting 14 points. The next high man was Taylor with eight.

CRAWFORD METALS — (97): Roger. (7), Bennett (31), Faulkner (19), Batchelor (37), Ablarde (3).

Astrological Forecast

By CARROL RIGHTER

(Author of the book "Astrology and you")

Friday, February 17, 1961.

The Stars impel . . . They do not compel!

What you make of your "life is largely up to you."

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when you can think out the ways and means by which to gain a far greater headway because of the new plans that you can originate and the new ideas that are possible for you to pioneer in. Contact those who understand how to gain more important ambitions and listen to what they have to suggest now.

ARIES (March 21 to April) Think almost exclusively your own aims and desires today and work out the best methods of achieving them, alongside your true friends. You have given too much of yourself for some time. Get out socially tonight and have fun.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Every opportunity is yours now to get together with influential persons and garner the favors they can bestow. You have sacrificed too long without there being any real necessity for it. P.M. step out to a fine club, enjoy music, etc.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take the time to seek out good comrades you have neglected for a long time. This can lead to some fine alliances for the future that will be both enjoyable and remunerative P.M. go out socially with them. Show your true devotion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) The ideal day to get in touch with higher-ups, Big-wigs and let them release to you whatever favors you need at this time. Evening is then fine for going out in style, having dinner at some fine restaurant, entertainment, etc.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Step out of dull routine today and meet interesting people so that you can garner the information that will lead to more lucrative and satisfying outlets for the future. Get the inspiration that will lead to far more gracious living.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you get into the so-called Silence for awhile, a powerful intuition will assail you that will lead to more happy circumstances and better pleasing the one you love. Gain financially. P.M. fine for romantic interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Since you find it easy to cooperate, today you will even be able to get an associate who is usually obdurate to carry through on your ideas. P.M. celebrate at some charming place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A day for real accomplishment if you get an early start and tackle your work with enthusiasm. Plan your duties wisely, then full speed ahead. P.M. take the health treatments you need for a fuller and happier life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The day you have awaited for so long is here in which you can do exactly as you please. Morning is best spent in creative endeavor, then dress very nicely and off to the kind of fun you most enjoy and appreciate. Be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Although this is a day when you want to make innovations where your job is concerned, it is well you keep financial security uppermost in your mind. P.M. be expansive with close ties and let them know how much you love them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A day for accomplishment and you can truly get a big kick out of being very efficient in daily duties. Evening is then fine for contracting close friends, or filling out reports, corresponding, etc. Retire early.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Without neglecting any of your regular duties, be sure you look into new outlets or systems that will spell greater success and remuneration in the early future. P.M. have fun socially. Take exercise to improve health before retiring.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she, is of that genre of people who have tremendous capabilities and also is desirous of sharing good fortune with good friends, a most rare combination. The humanitarian trait is so great in this chart that the fine industrialist will emerge who will later evolve into the great philanthropist, whether male or female. Give a fine education - - start saving now for this purpose.

Rundown, Always Tired Food Caused Indigestion

Also Suffered From Dull Backache. Tells of Grand Relief by Taking Syntona

If you feel tired, worn-out and stomach is giving trouble with indigestion, sour acidity and heartburn or you have backache, headaches and rheumatic pains, take the advice of others who have found relief by taking Syntona Herbal Compound.

Tells of Experience

Mr. Harold Roberts, 142 Maitland Street, London, Ont., highly recommends Syntona and recently told of his own experience as follows:

"I was rundown and suffered from indigestion for a long time. I was always tired, had this dull aching pain across my back. Because of constipation my nerves were all on edge. Often I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I was really feeling miserable.

"About a month ago, I read about Syntona and decided to try it. Since then I've been using this medicine every day and can't begin to tell you what a difference it has made. Now I enjoy my meals without all that gas, sourness and heartburn afterwards and my nerves are calmed down so that I get sound refreshing sleep at night and I feel like a different person.

Why not let this great herbal medicine help you as it has so many others? Syntona is pleasant to take and the results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended by Dolan The Druggist.

CONGO

military assistance is sheer fantasy.

There are more than 60 major ethnic groups in The Congo and hundreds of tribes and clans. Although Kiswahili is widely spoken in the eastern Congo and Lingala in the west, there are hundreds of other dialects in use. French, taught by the Belgians, is mainly used by Congolese in the cities.

Any outside power seeking to make an impression on this mass of uncomprehending, primitive people will face almost the same difficult task that confronted the Belgians when they moved into The Congo more than 75 years ago. And the events of the last eight months show that the Belgians—outside the great economic development they brought about—made a faint impression indeed on the ways of the people.

When the Belgians lifted their restrictions on political parties in 1959, parties sprouted all over the country, based on tribal groups and clans.

The combinations of parties that finally emerged from the parliamentary elections made it obvious that no Congolese leader had anything like a clear and unimpeachable mandate. Patrice Lumumba emerged as the top man because he was the most persuasive orator, the most politically minded and the fastest man with a trade.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

Basketballers from Moira Secondary School travelled to the Trenton High School yesterday and came away with two victories and one loss. The Moira bantams started the ball rolling as they swept to a 61-21 victory and they were followed by the junior Ramblers who won 61-24. The loss was a heartbreaker suffered by the Moira seniors 38-37.

BANTAM GAME

The Moira bantams started with a bang and never looked back. They piled up a 14-point lead before Trenton hit for its first basket. Combining good shooting with strong rebounding and fine passing, the Moira team hustled to a 29-13 lead at half time. After the rest, the bantam Ramblers came out roaring to increase their lead to 46-20 and then put on a fine defensive display to hold Trenton to one point in the fourth quarter while adding fifteen of their own. Leading scorers for Moira were Dan Fraser with 17 points, Ron Faulkner with 14 points, Bob Skinner who hit for 11 and Forrest Smith who potted nine. Best for Trenton was Clarke Webb who scored eight points. The win puts Moira in a tie with BCI for first place.

JUNIOR GAME

Next to take the floor were the juniors and the Ramblers, still smarting from their loss to Quinte, opened up a 33-10 half-time lead. The second half opened with the Moira team scoring a basket right off the centre jump and then settling down to show their concern for defensive prowess. They pressed well and out-rebounded their opponents to hold the junior Tigers to a single basket for the quarter. Rob Blaker had himself a fine night as he led the Ramblers with 29 point, as well as snaring rebounds at both ends of the floor. Blaker was ably assisted by Dave Glen and Colin Allenby as they each added 11 points.

Top man for the Trenton losers was Karl Bowman who hit for 12 points. As a result of the win Moira remains tied for the lead in the junior division.

SENIOR GAME

The senior game started off as an all Trenton affair as the senior Tigers took a 15-6 first-quarter lead. The senior Ramblers tightened defensively and went off at the end of the half down 19-17. Trenton controlled the backboards and increased their lead by three points during the third quarter, but the determined Ramblers fought back to tie the game with two minutes to go. This set the stage for the battle to the wire.

Trenton picked up two fast baskets with no reply. John Peoples was awarded two free throws as he was fouled in the act of shooting. Peoples scored both baskets to close the gap. Some loose shooting by both teams kept the outcome of the game very much in doubt. With three seconds to go Trenton was given a teachnical foul. Peoples scored the point and Moira had the ball out of bounds. A fine defensive play by Ron Kerr foiled a Moira play and the game was over. Final score, Trenton 38; Moira 37.

Serge Scuccatto scored 16 points and Ron Kerr hit for 12 to lead the Trenton Tigers. Tops for Moira, who played without the services of Don Skinner, was Gary Goyer, with 18 points, followed by playmaker John Peoples, who scored 13.

need, it would have made an approach to Canada before now when the only squadrons in Canada for defence against the bomber threat comprised "obsolete" CF-100s.

Mr. Pearson again voiced his opposition to basing nuclear weapons in Canada. They were not capable of protecting Canadians and their possession by Canada would weaken its diplomatic position at the United Nations in the effort to abolish all nuclear weapons and to disarm generally.

The Liberal leader also expressed opposition to the new strike-attack or low-level bombing role of the RCAF Air Division in Europe.

The air division should be used for tactical support and to give cover to the Canadian Infantry Brigade Group and adjoining formations in Europe.

ing Mr. Diefenbaker success in the Washington talks.

(In a telecast address Wednesday night, National CCF Leader Hazen Argue said "the tragic experience of The Congo" shows that Canada could best work for world peace by dedicating its military capabilities to United Nations service.

(He accused the Progressive Conservative government of hestitancy and timidity in its present Congo policy.

(Speaking on the CBC's TV program, the Nation's Business, Mr. Argue said:

("The tragic events in the Congo show the impelling necessity of a strong United Nations police force to prevent conflict and murder, and to protect the peace.")

paign to "buy Canadian" in all cases where domestic goods are comparable in price and quality to imported ones.

SUGGESTS STUDY

The CMA also suggested that a new study of Canada's financial structure and machinery should be made by independent experts.

"Canadian costs are high because Canadian wages and taxes are high and the Canadian volume is low. Although our domestic market is based on a population of only 18,000,000, our wage and tad levels are close to the highest in the world."

First step to more egg income

The right choice of flock replacement stock is the first step toward higher egg income. This year, start right with the Shaver Starcross 288 from your Swift's Hatchery.

The Starcross 288 ranked first in hen-housed production and net income in both the California and Canadian Central Random Sample Tests last year. It placed in the top quarter in the Missouri test with 261 eggs per hen housed and $2.79 net income.

Many farmers in this area have flocks of Starcross 288's in production now. Find out firsthand how this white egg layer performs, or call us for more details before you order your flock replacements.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thursday, Feb. 16

A government bill to enable the CNR to build a 60-mile branch line to Mattagami Lake in Quebec's mineral-rich northland was given second reading—approval in principle.

The Commons approved a government motion to re-establish last session's special committee on research, which will study the operations of a number of federal agencies such as the National Research Council.

The Senate gave second reading to a bill removing the government's power to enfranchise individual Indians or entire Indian bands against their will.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker reaffirmed Canada's support for UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold in the face of Soviet charges involving the death of deposed Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba.

Arrest Sudbury Man With $1000 Phoney Money

BROCKVILLE (CP)—RCMP officers said Thursday they have arrested a man from Sudbury with $1,000 in counterfeit money in his possession. They would not identify him, police said, because it might hurt the chance of additional arrests.

Police said their investigation has swung to Ottawa, Toronto and Sudbury.

CONGRESS TOLD UN MAY SOON ADMIT CHINA

2 Senators Think Admittance Likely

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congress has been advised by two experienced legislators it soon may be impossible to prevent Communist China from gaining a seat in the United Nations. They suggest admittance may even come next fall—whether the United States likes it or not.

"It seems reasonable to conclude," said Senators George Aiken and Wayne Morse in a report to the Senate foreign relations committee, "that future U.S. policy must be based upon the assumption that Red China could be seated in the UN as early as the 16th General Assembly session, whether we agree or not."

The 16th session is scheduled to open next September. At the opening of the last session a motion to debate the question of admitting the mainland was defeated 42 to 34 with 22 abstentions; in the year previous the vote was 44 to 29 with nine abstentions. Support for the U.S. moratorium proposal on the Red China issue has steadily declined, the two senators said after an on-the-spot study.

HEADS DELGATION

Aiken, Vermont Republican, is chairman of the American delegation of the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group which opens its next meeting at Ottawa Feb. 22. Both he and Morse, Oregon Democrat, are members of the Senate foreign relations committee.

The two senators, in their report made public Thursday night, suggested there should be urgent policy studies on such questions of how high a price the United States is willing to pay to continue its battle against seating of the Red China delegation and whether the U.S. has sufficient bargaining power to prevent the ousting of Formosa from the UN.

Toronto Woman Shot to Death On Street

TORONTO (CP)—An attractive 22 - year - old switchboard operator was shot to death on the street today as she was walking to work with a girl friend.

Police said the girl, Audrey Jane Acheson, was walking in midtown Toronto when a man approached her, carrying a cardboard box containing a .22-calibre rifle.

Eight shots were fired, police said. The girl died of head and body wounds.

Her estranged husband, Charles Edward Acheson, 25, has been charged with murder.

Gizenga, Former Mission Teacher, Catapulted Into Congo Spotlight

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Mounting support from the Communist and Afro-Asian blocs has catapulted Deputy Premier Antoine Gizenga into the spotlight as a major contender for political control in The Congo.

The Polish and Bulgarian governments early today announced recognition for the leftist leader, increasing to 12 the number of governments now supporting his Stanleyville regime. Cuba, Morocco and Mali Thursday joined the rush to acknowledge Gizenga.

Official backing has also come from the United Arab Republic and Ghana, as well as most of the Communist bloc. Indonesia and Ceylon have announced they are considering the move.

As these nations rallied behind him, Gizenga emerged as a formidable force in opposition to the Leopoldville - based regime of President Joseph Kasavubu.

However, Gizenga has remained a mystery man on both the local and international scene.

A former mission teacher about whom little is known, the 42-year-old leader is considered a vastly different personality from the murdered Premier Patrice Lumumba whom he hopes to succeed.

Gizenga, who is a leftist though not Marxist-trained, always was overshadowed by the free-wheeling Lumumba.

He maintained a behind-the-scene role in the Congo's first government after independence June 30, 1960, until Lumumba was forced out of office and imprisoned by the Leopoldville government.

Then to the surprise of many observers here, the reticent leader seized power in northeastern Oriental province and in December set up a rival government in the provincial capital of Stanleyville.

Gizenga soon became the chief protagonist of the Leopoldville regime and his influence spread until he now holds sway over more than a third of the Congo. But many observers doubt his ability to hold the reins of authority.

An acquaintance has described him as a man who "seems to have no past . . . no future . . . only the present."

Premier, CNR President Confer on Metro Transport

TORONTO (CP)—CNR President Donald Gordon Thursday met Premier Frost and Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer to discuss a study by the railroad of possible co - ordination of transportation service in and around Metropolitan Toronto.

Mr. Gordon said following the meeting the proposed complex would relate rail services with bus, subway and even taxi operations.

Focal point would be the CNR's new Metro Toronto bypass which will re-route freight traffic now passing along Toronto's waterfront via a route just north of the Metro boundary.

Completion of the bypass will relieve traffic passing through Union Station, leaving room for possible future commuter rail service into downtown Toronto.

Mr. Gordon said full significance of the current studies probably won't be known until the end of the year. He said the studies include an investigation of the anticipated volume of rail traffic and passenger transit needs in the area.

Premier Frost said the provincial government has been trying "to decide where the railways may fit in with commuter services in the province."

He said he intends to tour the Metro area to get a personal view of transportation problems and prospects. But he gave no hint of a government subsidy for extended rail commuter services.

Mr. Wintermeyer, who recently broached the subject of co - ordinating rail commuter service with Toronto's subway system, said he was enthusiastic about Mr. Gordon's proposals.

He said there was a possibility the proposed complex might reach as far west as his home town, Kitchener.

"If they had trains running at proper hours," he said, "I'd rather take a train from Kitchener than drive in to Toronto."

It is believed the CNR proposal would include lease of trains to the transit authority and use of single tickets good on area buses, trains or rapid transit lines.

Mr. Gordon said the talks were related to tremendous changes in the railway industry and the CNR's determination to become more competitive.

Later, in a speech to the annual dinner of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League, he gave details of a major organizational overhaul within the CNR designed to meet the increased competition faced by the railroad.

He said the overhaul is designed to integrate the responsibility and authority of the railway's production and sales functions.

"We are trying to eliminate any thought," he said, "that the interests of the sales and production functions can ever be at variance."

He said the CNR has set up a freight sales department to sell the company's services from the point of view of what the customer wants to buy.

Excessive Wage Rates May Reduce Jobs Say Railways

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's major railways served a warning Thursday that excessive wage rates or costly work rules will speed up the decline in rail jobs.

Pointing to a 19-per-cent drop in railway employment between 1952 and 1959, the CPR and CNR forecast that "some further decline" is likely in the future.

But, the two railways told the Senate manpower committee, the decline will become more rapid "if excessive wage rates and costly work rules make labor an increasingly expensive factor of production."

The warning has some bearing on the multi-million-dollar wage dispute between the two railways and 111,000 railwaymen on the non-operating staffs—a labor scrap moving closer to a May 16 strike deadline and a new threat of a nation-wide rail tieup.

A similar warning about job levels was branded by union leaders as "intimidation" of rail workers in their bid to get a 14-cent-hourly pay increase worth about $34,000,000 in a full year.

In Montreal Thursday, Frank H. Hall, chief negotiator for the non - operating railway unions, indicated the unions see no point in further meetings with the railways until the government clarifies its position on the setting up of arbitration machinery to deal with the dispute.

In a letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Mr. Hall says no progress was made towards settling the dispute at a Feb. 13 meeting with the railways and no further meetings have been scheduled.

Teen-Age Bank Robber Kills Woman Teller Held Hostage

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—A teen-ager shot and knifed to death a woman teller and wounded two other bank employees he took as hostage in a $14,000 robbery Thursday night.

Police seized Wilbert Rideau, 19, as he was driving the small foreign car belonging to the slain woman, Mrs. Julia Ferguson, 50-year-old widow.

Sheriff Henry Reid said Rideau admitted holding up the suburban bank. Reid added he will be charged with murder, kidnapping and armed robbery.

Rideau bought a .22 - calibre pistol Wednesday. He was employed in the same shopping centre where the South Gate branch of the Gulf National Bank is located. The bank stays open until 7 p.m. Thursdays.

The bandit forced Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Dora McCain and Manager J. H. Hickman into Mrs. Ferguson's car and drove off.

"We drove all over," Rideau said.

The youth told police he fired at the three when they jumped out of the car.

A coroner's report said there were powder burns on the back of Mrs. Ferguson's neck. She had been shot twice and stabbed twice.

New Iron Mine Project Likely For Timagami

TORONTO (CP)—A $30,000,000 iron mining project may be developed in the Timagami district of Northern Ontario.

A spokesman for Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company said Thursday the firm's wholly-owned Canadian subsidiary, Cliffs of Canada Ltd., is managing the project. The spokesman said the property will likely be brought into production if a satisfactory rail freight rate can be negotiated.

He said the company has acquired a 10-mile strike length of iron formation in two parallel ranges, extending almost into the town of Timagami, 50 miles north of North Bay. Exploration work last summer indicated substantial amounts of magnetic iron ore grading 30 to 35 per cent.

A possible plant site has been selected seven miles from the Ontario Northland Railway, which would haul ore to North Bay.

Rather than establish a new townsite, officials are considering using labor from Cobalt, 30 miles north. In that event, a commuter rail service would be set up.

LEGISLATURE IN TURMOIL OVER JOBLESS DEBATE

Frost Finally Says Discussion Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition attempts to switch discussion of labor department estimates into renewed debate on unemployment turned the Ontario legislature into a turmoil Thursday.

The Liberals and then the CCF were successfully ruled out of order, but as the tumult died Premier Frost told the House he had planned to announce that the unemployment question would be debated today anyway—"But the racous members shouted me down."

The turmoil began when Mr. Frost moved that Speaker William Murdoch leave his chair and the legislature resolve into committee of supply so that the labor department estimates of $14,563,000 might be debated.

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex North) moved an amendment to permit a debate on unemployment during discussion of the estimates. The question was last hashed out in December at the legislature's fall sitting.

PROTEST RULING

The opposition loudly protested the Speaker's ruling that the amendment was out of order.

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said it was parliamentary tradition that the calling of estimates "was a most privileged time for the opposition."

"I realize I'm out of order," said the opposition leader, "but we're out of order in this House half the time . . ."

Amid jeers and catcalls, the opposition lost a division challenging the Speaker's ruling, by 87-26.

CCF Leader MacDonald moved the second amendment—that the legislature debate a motion on unemployment already on the order paper. He said it was the opposition's right to move a grievance when the House was in committee of supply.

CITIES PRECDNT

The CCF leader said Farquhar Oliver (L — Grey-South) as Liberal leader in 1919 had been permitted to raise a matter of grievance in similar circumstances.

But the Speaker ruled only one amendment could be allowed on a motion to go into committee of supply.

Mr. MacDonald protested that the only other proposed amendment had beed ruled out of order.

As the Speaker rose again to make a ruling on the amendment, however, Premier Frost asked for the floor, received it, and announced his original intention to debate the joblessness problem today.

"Why didn't the premier tell us this before?" asked Mr. MacDonall. "He said we were going to do the agricultural estimates."

RULING SUPPORTED

The opposition challenged the Speaker again when he ruled the CCF amendment out of order. But again the ruling was supported, 87-28.

Another flurry of excitement arose when Mr. Reaume said in speaking on the estimates that the Speaker lived "under the thumb" of the premier. Government members shouted in protest and committee chairman Erskine Johnson (PC—Carleton) demanded the remark be withdrawn.

Urge UN Troops Use Force To Stop Congo Civil War

Would Oust Foreign Soldiers and Advisers

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Liberia proposed today that the leaders of all political groups in The Congo meet with the UN Security Council and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in an effort to avert a threatened civil war.

Liberian Ambassador George Padmore, one of the two African members of the 11-power council, laid before the council a suggestion made earlier in the week by Liberian President William Tubman. He proposed that the peace parley be held either at UN headquarters, in The Congo or in a neighboring country.

Padmore spoke as his delegation continued working behind the scenes with representatives of the United Arab Republic and Ceylon, the other African and Asian members of the council, on a peace plan which they hope might win the support of the Soviet Union and the United States.

A flurry of diplomatic activity raised cautious hopes of averting a direct East-West clash in the African republic resulting from the slaying of ex-premier Patrice Lumumba.

The three Afro-Asian members of the 11-member council—Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic—were expected to put forward today a compromise resolution backed by 18 other countries including Canada.

FORCE IF NECESSARY

Basically, the emergency section of the proposed resolution:

1. Urged UN troops in The Congo to use force if necesary to prevent civil war;
2. Demandsed Belgian and other non-UN foreign military peronnel, mercenaries and political advisers leave The Congo immediately;
3. Called on all countries to prevent such personnel from going there, and
4. Called for an immediate and impartial investigation into Lumumba's death.

Some supporters of the Afro-Asian plan were counting on a united front of the nations from their two continents to bring the big powers into line. Other diplomats feared the Soviet Union would remain adamant in its opposition to UN action and veto the resolution.

BEGINS NEGOTIATIONS

From The Congo came a report that President Kasauvubu's new premier, Joseph Ileo, has begun negotiating with rival political leaders to broaden his new Leopoldville government into a coalition.

The 11-nation UN conciliation commission sent to The Congo by Hammarskjold before Lumumba's death also submitted recommendations echoing the Afro-Asian draft resolution.

A long-range section urged that the Congolese Parliament—suspended last September after Congo President Joseph Kasavubu fired Lumumba as premier—be convened immediately and that all Congolese armed units be reorganized and brought under discipline and control to keep them from interfering in politics.

Canada was not a member of the commission but was reported pleased with the proposals.

Prairie-Dwellers Shivering, Ontario Weather Deteriorating

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Priairie-dwellers shivered under temperatures 20 degrees below normal, Newfoundlanders today dug out from a seven-inch snowfall.

Ontario's fair-weather picture is deteriorating but mild weather with the possibility of showers and snowflurries is predicted for the south. Intermittent snow and periods of freezing drizzle are forecast for the north.

The sun shone Thursday over southern Quebec and the temperature stayed between 10 and 20 degrees. Today will be cloudy with the risk of snow and freezing rain in the evening.

Seven inches of snow blocked highways in Newfoundland and left plows stranded in some parts. The storm abated at midnight.

In British Columbia, mixed rain and snow fell on the southern coast. A storm bringing more snow and rain from the Pacific is predicted.

Alberta's unseasonal cold is forecast to stay until Sunday but may not break then. It will be "sunny but very cold" in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Lows from 10 to 30 below zero were forecast.

The eastern Prairies will have clear skies.

Nasser's Press Denies Arms Sent to Congo

CAIRO (AP)—One of President Nasser's chief newspaper voices today denied a report that U.A.R. trucks loaded with arms had crossed the Sudan to the pro-Communist rebel regime in the northern Congo.

The diplomatic editor of the semi-official Middle East news agency said the report proves U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk's "ignorance of the map of the world."

The New York Times reports that Rusk told key members of Congress at a private meeting: "The greatest danger (in The Congo) lies in the efforts made by . . . Nasser's Cairo government to send arms and other support to the regime established by Antoine Gizenga."

The report was placed before Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's 18-nation advisory committee on The Congo, of which Canada is a member, in secret Thursday, but it was the worst-held secret of the current emergency session of the Security Council.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker outlined the terms of the commission's report to the Commons Thursday afternoon. They also became widely known from diplomatic informants here.

Mr. Kimball graduated from McMaster University and left for Africa in 1956. During his term in Africa, he has done outstanding work in village evangelism, the training of Christian lay workers and the supervision of a boys' boarding school.

Legion to Hold Band Tattoo About July 7

The Canadian Legion Branch 99, Belleville, this week voted by the largest general meeting in recent times to hold a band tatoo with fireworks and a giant draw at the fair grounds "on or about July 7."

Part of the proceeds will be donated to the Belleville Minor Sports Association and the remainder will go toward providing bursaries at the city's secondary schools and assisting the 1961 Santa Claus Parade Committee.

A donation of the Mac McGrimmon Memorial Dart Trophy by Kip McGrimmon, brother of the late Comrade Mac and Bruce McGrimmon, son of the late comrade, was another highlight of the meeting. Comrade Mac McGrimmon had been an enthusiastic dart player for the Legion. The trophy was accepted on behalf of the branch by President Leslie Digby, who thanked the McGrimmon family and said competition for the trophy will remind the branch of their late comrade.

A special committee was formed to investigate ways and means to beautify Memorial Park, particularly near the cenotaph.

A Vimy memorial banquet is planned for April 7 and a committee was established to make arrangements for it .

A resolution was passed and will be sent to the next zone meeting at Madoc on March 5 requesting that the Queen's colors be retained in the Legion crest and that the words "British Empire Service League" be dropped in favor of the words, "They Served to Death, Why Not Us?". During a discussion of the resolution the word "Royal" was brought up, but as this must first be approved by the dominion convention this summer, the "Royal" prefix to the Legion's name is not yet a proper dsignation.

Six new members were initiated by President Digby, first vice-president Ed Smith and second vice-president Harold Beaumont .

Committee reports were read. It was reported that during January the women's social evenings on Saturdays recorded their largest attendance since the events started.

Quinte Secondary Students Give Excellent Performance In Musical 'The Boy Friend'

By Harold Bankier

A hard-working, efficient and artistic team of Quinte Secondary School faculty members have been very successful in their production of the three-act musical comedy "The Boy Friend." Mr. A. Connerty and G. Allen, producers and directors, Ben Turcotte, musical director, Miss T. Hunter, choreographer, and Bill Cochrane, stage crew have pooled their efforts, and a fast-moving, tuneful and hilarious evening's entertainment is their end result. Thursday evening's performance will be repeated on Friday and Saturday nights, and by all reports, capacity crowds are expected.

The Boy Friend is something of a "period piece," the action taking place in and about a young ladies finishing school on the outskirts of Nice. The numerous musical numbers were new to this reviewer, but skilful song-plugging on the part of a rather amazing young cast left a feeling of nostalgia as the reprises of the last act were performed. The ladies of the chorus, Lynne Taylor, Nancy Carter, Anna Judd, Diane Savage and Claudia Durant and their assorted escorts, Wayne Wood, Eugene Flunder, Steven Halsey, Bruce Johnson and Lawrence Doxsee, belted out such numbers as The Boy Friend, Perfect Young Ladies and Safety In Numbers with a gay abandon which belied the quite professional volume and range that the excellent effect required. Dancing throughout was spirited and quite excellent.

Stellar performances were given by Noreen Brooks as the sweet-voiced Polly Browne, Lynne Taylor and Lawrence Doxsee as a very pert pair of young lovers, Robin Holt as a triple threat French maid, Hortense, and very notably by Lynne Brown as Madame Dubonnet.

Stan McMullin as Sir Percival Brown, Al Camelford as the mysterious Tony and William Buddle and Sherril Beeby as Lord and Lady Brockhurst made the most of quite difficult character roles, building and sustaining the naturally quite tenuous story line. A quite hilarious knock-about dance number was effectively performed by Grace Sinclair and Lorne Hall as Lolita and Pepe. Stephen Thompson doubled in brass as the Gendarme in the keystone-cop sequence and the out-fielding waiter of the Cafe Pataplon.

The mood and spirit of this burlesque of the mad twenties were so carefully built in act one, where every step and gesture of every performer seemed quaint and charming that the audience was well prepared to follow eagerly along through the gay antics of the second and third acts.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the production was the very considerable number of really good performances, by Maisie and Bobby, Polly and Tony, M. Dubonnet and Sir Percival, Lord Brockhurst and Dulcie and Lolita and Pepe. If you can still obtain seats to this very popular entertainment we certainly recommend that you do so.

Following are some of the credits. The orchestra, under the direction of Ben Turcotte, Mrs. P. E. Turcotte, Miss Isabel Rose, Maurice Bell, Mel Calder and Ron Lessels. Stage crew, lighting and sound effects, Bruce Jarvah, Carl Luttrell, Brian Williams, Gary Wilson, Roy Sills, Bob Long, John Rivest and Christopher Gray. Costumes, Trix Bylsma and Grace Pleizier.

Make-up Roberta McDonald, Marilyn Brown, Marilyn Vandervoort, Jocelyn Vandervoort, Sherril Beeby and Jane Gray. Special dances, Grace Sinclair.

Madoc Farmer, Hit by Tree, Seriously Hurt

A 47-year-old Madoc township farmer is in critical condition in Belleville General Hospital after being struck by a falling tree on his farm woodlot late Thursday afternoon.

Injured is Cecil Robinson, well-known Eldorado district farmer, who aided by his 19-year-old son Rayburn, was cutting wood on the farm woodlot when the accident occurred.

Using a power saw, the father and son had cut one tree and as it fell it rebounded off a large rock, then toppled an ironwood tree which fell on Mr. Robinson. He suffered a fractured skull when struck by the falling tree.

The son called for assistance to Frank Walker, working on an adjoining woodlot. They unloaded a load of logs and rigging a platform on the horsedrawn sleighs, took the injured man a half mile to the home of Earl Blakely, from where medical aid was called.

Dr. George Mullen treated Mr. Robinson at the Blakely home and then ordered him taken to Belleville Hospital.

Toronto Rink Wins First Playoff Game

Mac White and his gallant rink from the Quinte Curling Club are only one game away from a spot in the Provincial playdowns to be held in Ottawa next week, the winner of that contest to proceed to Calgary early in March for the Canadian championship in curling.

This morning he met the winners of zone 3 competition, a rink from Unionville and skipped by Andy Grant. Playing for Mr. Grant are his son, Ray Grant, as vice skip but playing last rocks, Keith Jewitt as second and Ernie Lawrie as lear. Mac White had Al McCullam as lead, T. A. Carruthers as second and Bill Riley as vice skip.

Displaying beautiful weight, perfect takeouts and close guards the White rink won over the Unionville four 9-4 with one end blanked. The rinks played twelve ends and will play another game this afternoon and if a third game is necessary the rinks will meet again this evening.

The White rink piled up its biggest margin in the middle ends scoring six shots in the ends from the fourth to the seventh inclusive. The Unionville shotmakers were playing a little heavy and going by the shot rocks. So close was the contest that in only two ends were more than one shot made. In the eleventh end, the Unionville rink looked as if they were going to even the count. They had four shots in the house, but Bill Riley took two and Mac White with his last rock took off the shot and blanked the end. As Unionville had won the 10th end White had last rock coming home and another shot by Riley put the game away for the Quinte crew. It was a well played game on lightning fast ice and it is a toss-up which team will win all the marbles.

The White rink appeared in new white sweaters trimmed in red with the names of the players on the sleeves and presented a smart appearence.

The score by ends:

Unionville, Grant —
0 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 — 4
Belleville, White —
1 0 1 0 2 1 2 1 0 0 0 1 — 9

Mr. Daley said he did not know when the committee would report its findings.

BASKETBALL

The boys' basketball schedule is now drawing to a close. Throughout the season, our teams have played well, bringing home the victor's crown nearly every time. The Bantams, in fact, have lost only one game in their whole schedule, a closely fought battle at Quinte on February 13. In a triple-header game at BCI February 11, all three teams, junior, senior and bantam, emerged the victors over Trenton. On February 15, tht juniors defeated Quinte while the Seniors lost to Quinte, with the result that all three BCI teams now share first place. The bantams are tied with Moira; the juniors with Quinte, and the seniors with Quinte.

The girls' teams have also been winning laurels on the basketball courts. The seniors have a clean slate of victories while the juniors' record has been marred by only a few defeats. In a keenly contested game against Moira on February 14, BCI girls took both junior and senior games.

Congratulations, teams!

ORATORY

The Collegiate excels in other ways also. In the finals for the district oratorical contest, Wayne Soble, a Grade II student, took first place over contestants from nine other schools. His topic was "The Brotherhood of Man." Wayne also was the winner of the junior contest last year.

Congratulations, Wayne!

ASSEMBLIES

Remember when? This was the theme of the recent Keyette assembly. Some of the highlights from 1960 programs were reenacted and were enthusiastically received by the audience. Memories of Charlie's Aunt, the Key Club Choraliers' Songfest, and the Junior Football Team's COSSA championship, as revived by the girls, provided some merry entertainment. The final number, an excerpt from the Peter Gunn Dance of last year's Kampus Kapers, was a favorite with the audience. Skilfully directed by Dianne Burley, the dance proved the highlight of the program.

KAMPUS KAPERS

Don't forget Kampus Kapers! In less than two weeks, on Mar. 2, 3, and 4, this gala affair, Belleville's greatest annual variety show," will be presented in the Collegiate Auditorium. Tickets are on sale now. Buy your's early! Don't be disappointed!

Two Major City Projects Near Completion

Two of the city's public works department's major projects are in the final stages of completion. One, the construction of the storm sewer on Willow Drive, is actually completed, while the other, the Herchimer Ave. storm sewer project, is very close to completion. Work in the latter area has been hindered somewhat by the presence of frost in the ground to a depth of 52 inches.

The regular river check on ice conditions reveals that this week there is but one small area where the ice is still frozen solid to the rivdr bottom. This is at the Upper Bridge section of the river. In the other sections the recent warm weather has resulted in water finding its way under the ice.

The department's steam jenny has been brought into use to thaw out frozen culverts and regular maintenance as regards sewers, roads and repairs has been occupying the various crews during the week.

Prime Minister Laces Russians On Congo Crisis

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker laced into the Soviet Union again Thursday, accusing it of pursuing a selfish ambition and trying to paralyze the United Nations at a time of crisis in The Congo.

He also reaffirmed Canada's unqualified support for UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in the face of the charges hurled at him by Russia and some neutral nations over the death of Patrice Lumumba.

It was the third straight day on which the government, apparently believing that vocal support of Mr. Hammarskjold must not be allowed to flag so long as the present emergency lasts, has delivered sharp statements to the Commons concerning events in The Congo.

Opposition Leader Pearson also reiterated support for Mr. Hammarskjold.

Mr. Pearson agreed with the prime minister—and he noted that India's Prime Minister Nehru had also made the point—that instead of weakening the UN intervention in The Congo the thing to do now was to strengthen it.

H. W. Herridge, member for Kootenay West, said the CCF also agreed.

New Lord's Day Bill Brought In by Roberts

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts Thursday, introduced a new Lord's Day bill in the Ontario legislature to permit Sunday movies on a local option basis.

The bill would repeal the Lord's Day (Ontario) Act 1950 and permit municipalities to hold referendums on permitting movies and theatrical performances on Sundays after 1:30 p.m.

The act, which permitted Sunday sports and concerts produced by non-profit organizations, restricted the time of performance from 1:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The new bill, Mr. Roberts said, would permit municipalities to set their own time for ending the performances.

He said those municipalities which held referendums approving Sunday movies and sports last year would not have to hold them again.

He listed the folliwing municipalities as having held a referendum favorable to Sunday movies and sports:

Brantford, Cornwall, Niagara Falls, Oshawa, St. Catharines, Toronto, Windsor, Timmins, Richmond Hill, Oakville, Cochrane, Kapuskasing, Stamford Township and Plantagenet North Township.

Congo Soldiers Kill Catholic Priest at Bukavu

USUMBURA (AP) — Congolese soldiers on the rampage killed a Belgian Roman Catholic priest Thursday in Bukavu, capital of the Congo's Kivu province, and arrested and beat up Anicet Kashamura, the No. 2 man of the pro-Communist Lumumbist regime in the northern Congo.

Word of the outbreak was brought by Europeans from Bukavu who fled across the Kivu border into this neighboring Belgian African trusteeship territory of Ruanda-Urundi. They said terror was spreading through Bukavu.

The refugees' reports were confirmed in a telephone call to UN headquarters in Bukavu.

Apparently the arrest of Kashamura resulted from an upheaval within Antoine Gizenga's Lumumbist rebel regime in Stanleyville.

CARRY HIM AWAY

The refugees said Christophe Benya, the interior minister in Gizenga's government, arrived in Bukavu Thursday morning from Stanleyville to replace Kashamura as head man in Kivu province and that Kashamura, after he was beaten, was carried away 'n the direction of Stanleyville.

The refugees said soldiers and riotous members of the nationalist youth movement attacked Father Renato Devos, broke his skull, cut off his hears and later beheaded him.

'Hurry up and Annex Us' Is Plea of Trailer Court Operator in Sidney Twp.

TRENTON — "For Heaven's sake, hurry up and annex us."

This was the plea of John Bonn, proprietor of the Skyview Trailer Court (just over the town's eastern boundary in Sidney Township) when he met with members of the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

The commission recently notified Mr. Bonn that charges for water consumption at his 52-unit trailer court would be increased. Mr. Bonn asked for a meeting with the commission.

At yesterday's meeting he said that if the commission went through with its plan to charge the proposed rate, it would "put him out of business."

"There isn't a trailer court in existence that pays the rate you propose," said Mr. Bonn. "The charge is prohibitive!"

Mr. Bonn said that much harm had already been done by published reports of the increased rates. He said that many of the people who rented parking space, including facilities, in his court, were RCAF personnel. When they heard of the proposed increase they immediately jumped to the conclusion that this was "just another case of discrimination" against the RCAF, according to Mr. Bonn. He said that they had threatened to take all their business to Belleville and to move away from the Trenton area.

The charge per unit to Mr. Bonn, as laid down by a recent bylaw passed by the commission, would be 3.84. Each unit cannot be metered to determine the individual use of water, thus Mr. Bonn felt that many of his tenants would be charged for water they didn't use. He said he would have to increase the rentals if the increase was put into effect.

Clifford A. Baker, chairman of the commission, said he could see that the increased rate would cause Mr. Bonn a great deal of distress. However, he said, the commission could not charge Mr. Bonn less than what is charged to Trenton users.

Commissioner Charles Hilton said that town rates must prevail when considering out-of-town water users.

FEELS OBLIGATED

"I feel an obligation to the people of the town," said Mr. Hilton. "Anyone outside the town using town facilities must expect to pay more."

Mr. Bonn said that before town water had been made available, he had spent more than $6,000 on pumping systems which enabled his customers to use water from wells and the bay. He said that if the commission insisted on the increase he would spend another $6,000, reverting to the well system.

"My court should be classed rural-commercial," he said. "If you put it down as domestic you will be establishing a precedent for all Canada. You will force me to go out of business."

Mr. Baker said that while he felt as "obligated" to the people of Trenton as Mr. Hilton, he failed to see what would be gained by forcing a man out of business. He proposed that a $1 per unit service rate be charged and a further charge of $1.25 per unit be made under a rural-commercial arrangement, thus bringing the charge per unit to $2.25.

Mr. Bonn agreed to this proposition.

"You voted for the by-law," said Mr. Hilton, addressing the chairman. "What has changed your line of reasoning?"

Mayor James MacDonald said that if the court was to be considered non-commercial, each unit would have to be metered, and, as this was impossible, he could see no alternative to giving Mr. Bonn a commercial rating.

RESCIND BY-LAW

Mayor MacDonald and Mr. Baker vote to give the court commercial rating and charge Mr. Bonn on the $2.25 per unit rate, over-riding Mr. Hilton's objections. The by-law, by which Mr. Bonn would pay $3.84 per unit, will be rescinded.

James Page, commission secretary, read a letter from the Chamber of Commerce, asking that the PUC take out a membership for 1961. The letter was filed for consideration at the next commission meeting

Ex-councillor Howard Aziz wrote, protesting his hydro and water rates. He said that since moving from King Street to the Champlain Heights area, his rates had increased by 300 per cent. He said that he had checked and that people living within a few streets of his home were paying much lower rates.

The chairman said he thought Mr. Aziz was not considering the fact that Champlain Henghts residents must pay a $2 a month extra charge, which was made in lieu of the local improvement charge levied in other new sections of town.

The secretary was asked to write Mr. Aziz, inviting him to come into the ofice to discuss the matter further.

Salvation Army Capt. Addresses Kiwanis Club

TRENTON — Senior Capt. Arthur Robinson, director of Salvation Army activities in Trenton, was the guest speaker at last night's meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Capt. Robinson used "Brotherhood" as the theme of his address.

He said there is a great need for understanding in the world today. He said that all nations working together would make for peace and harmony and that world leaders were striving to this end.

"We must learn to see eye to eye with the other fellow," he said. "In that way, we will come to a mutual understanding. Our present way of life is based on the Bible and we should remember that "out of a common Fatherhood comes a common brotherhood.' There will be no racial discrimination in Heaven."

Capt. Robinson said that the Kiwanis motto of service was carried out by members of Trenton club. He urged his listeners to "go the extra mile" to help their "brother."

The speaker was introduced by Steve Herman and thanked by John Saylor. Mr. Saylor agreed with the remarks of the speaker and said he had found "that the happiest people are those who enjoy other people."

Past Lieut. Governor Ted Parker presented attendance pins to Paul Tripp, nine years' perfect attendance; Gerry Ireland, eight years; Bernie Blamire, one year; Carl Weese, five years; Doug Morphy, three years; Len Coward, four years.

Jim Walsh announced that next week would be a Key Club meeting with several boys from Belleville visiting the Trenton club.

Paul Tripp said that advertising for the Kiwanis Follies' '61 programs had been coming in at an encouraging rate.

Ted Parker asked the members to attend an inter-club meeting in Belleville on Mar. 7, at which Lieut.-Governor Al Weaver will be the speaker.

Women's Club Observes Its 6th Birthday

TRENTON — The Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club marked its sixth birthday Wednesday by combining a special birthday dinner with an International Night service.

The dining room of the Gilbert Hotel was decorated by Miss Marion Baker in an "international" motif, utilizing miniature flags of all nations which are members of the United Nations, aJapealnsnenrset fans, cherry blossoms and greenery.

The highlight of the dinner was a huge birthday cake also made and decorated by Miss Baker.

New members Margaret Kleinwort and Nancy Maidens were welcomed into the club by President Jenny Wills, who reminded them of the responsibilities and privileges of membership.

Mrs. Wills and second vice-president Doris Webb participated in a candle-lighting ceremony. Each candle signified a country whose women had joined the ranks of B. and P. International.

Miss Lucy Baker showed colored slides, outlining the activities of the Trenton group since its inception. Serious and amusing incidents were relived by the members as they viewed the pictorial "history in a nutshell" of the local club.

Kennedy Avoids Invoking Farm Volume Controls

WASHINGTON (CP) — President John Kennedy appears to be attempting to steer clear of a hot political controversy in coming to grips with the high-cost United States farm-surplus problem.

Instead of invoking volume controls on production as he proposed in his campaign, the president seems to be hewing to traditional methods in attempting to reduce a feed grain surplus — by offering higher price supports and diverting some grain land to other products.

Man Arrested After Robbery At Windsor

WINDSOR (CP)—A man was arrested Thursday and held for questioning in the $600 armed robbery of a Beneficial Finance Company office.

It was the second time in four days the company's offices here have been robbed.

Police arrested the man in a boiler room after Cecil E. SCott, manager of the company, chased a bandit down an alley and into nearby buildings.

The man will appear in court today.

Police recovered a loaded .22-calibre revolver from the boiler room and a "considerable amount" of money.

Last Monday a masked gunman held up a clerk in another Beneficial office and escaped with about $200.

New Move Against Discrimination

Ontario is taking another step to outlaw racial discrimination — planning legislation which will make it an offence to deny any person occupancy, by reason of race, creed, color, nationality or ethnic origin, of a dwelling unit in a building containing more than six self-contained units.

Eliminating racial discrimination by legislation is difficult. The first essential is that people of all races and religionus should be equal before the law. That condition has long existed. The next step, on which Ontario is now well embarked, is to ensure that people of all races receive equal treatment in services which, while provided by private concerns, are essential to well-being. With licensed premises, control is simple. All that is necessary is to revoke the licences of establishments which practise discrimination. Licensing, in general, is limited to establishments of a type to which the general public is customarily admitted. Such regulations, embodied in the Fair Accommodation Practices Act of 1954, deliberately omitted regulations regarding rental accommodations, (although restrictive covenants in land sales were outlawed as long ago as 1950). The reason for this decision not to enter the field of rental accommodation was simple—such properties can hardly be termed places where the public is generally admitted. Now, however, Premier Frost proposes to take the next, logical, step.

One might be happier about this decision if there were any record of vigorous enforcement of the regulations as they previously existed. It is easy to sympathise with the philosophy evidently behind enforcement procedures—that prejudices are better eliminated by calm and reasoned appeals than by flourishing a big stick which, while it might bring compliance with the letter of the law, could easily result in deepening the very prejudices it is desired to eliminate. Nevertheless, any realistic appraisal will reveal racial discrimination still so prevalent in the realms where it has supposedly been banned for seven years, that one cannot help wondering whether the Province might not have been better off to redouble its efforts to bring about compliance with the 1954 law than to extend the scope of this law.

Still, this is a matter of judgment and in such matters those closest to the problems of enforcement ought to know best. A sound principle is being followed in excepting from the provisions of the new law apartments in private homes, though it may be open to question whether, to achieve this aim, it was necessary to set the size of exempted buildings as high as those containing more than six separate dwelling units. Surely four would have been a safe limit.

When all is said and done, though, no legislation will eliminate racial prejudice. The best it can do is to limit its effects. The elimination of the prejudice itself depends upon a change in the hearts of man, rather than a change in his laws.

Too Much for Frost

Premier Frost and CCF leader MacDonald agreed the other day.

If you believe that it must have been something climactic to produce this state of affairs you are right—it was a hunk of one of the glossiest and most useless pieces of publicity we have ever seen.

It caused a few raised eyebrows around this newspaper office when it arrived—and when it comes to publicity and the money wasted thereon, this office, in common with all other newspaper offices, generally acts as blase as an eighteen-year-old at a party of Grade 8 kids.

This particular bit of foolishness, though, may have been the wisest money a government ever spent on the taxpayer's behalf—for it caused the thrifty Mr. Frost to put his foot down.

"We live in an age when that is the style of thing to do . . . . .," he said with candor and complete accuracy. "Nevertheless, I think you have to start somewhere in calling these things off."

Called off were "The Road," published by the Department of Highways and killed after one issue, "Our Valley" by the Department of Planning and Development, a conservationist propaganda sheet which certainly did nothing to conserve funds, and "Sylva," a bimonthly magazine issued by the Department of Lands and Forests.

We shall miss "Sylva." It was an excellent little publication which might have lived to a ripe old age if envious bureaucrats in other departments had not decided to surpass it in glossiness—but not, we might add, in true quality.

Legend has it that the ostrich buries his head in the sand when he's scared, believing he can't be seen if he can't see. But the truth is, the ostrich doesn't dig at all. He just bends down to eat.

And he'll eat anything from a bullet to a tennis ball. Visitors to South Africa's ostrich farms have to hide shiny objects—watches, rings, buttons, etc.—because Mr. Ostrich will go for them. The ostrich is a vegetarian, or perhaps a "mineralovore". For he chases his meals with stones, to aid digestion.

An ostrich can roar like a lion, outrun a horse, and store water for months like a camel. A grown male stands 8 feet tall and weighs 300 pounds On the sandy plains, he runs with herds of zebra and antelopes. Ostriches have been clocked at 50 mph—in 28-foot strides. Properly subdued and saddled, they can carry a man.

Each wing of the adult male produces 24 top-grade white plumes, much in demand by milliners and costume designers in fashion centres of the the Australian bush like a convent. The least we can do is to provide the gun-toters with an effective weapon of moderated assault.

world But the ostrich's wings aren't very functional. If his ancestors ever had the power of flight, it was so long ago that practically all the flight-apparatus has disappeared, leaving only the mere rudiments of wings. These he uses to maintain balance when he's running and to help him execute lightning-fast turns.

The birds breed three times a year. Tourists at Highgate Ostrich Farm in Oudtshoorn never tire of watching the "courting waltz" of ostriches. The male puffs out his long neck and trips daintily about on his toes. He runs off at a great speed and spins until he flops dizzily on the ground. During the dance, the wings are spread like two magnificent fans and waved back and forth, while the head and neck slither in serpentine grace The lady ostrich responds with a dainty two-step of her own to the accompaniment of a faint castanet - like clatter in her throat

Nests aren't built; they're kicked into shape from loose dirt or sand by the proud parents. The hens lay from 15 to 20 eggs at the rate of one every other day. During the day the speckled brown mother sits on the nest, camouflaging it At night, the black Papa Ostrich takes over. He stretches his neck out—head resting on the ground — so that the huge mound of feathers looks no more interesting than an ant-hill to a passing hungry beast.

After six weeks of incubation the chicks break out of their own shells. Their delicate brown fuzz is soon replaced by wiry feathers. When hungry, the baby ostrich will merrily gobble pebbles for dessert.

An ostrich egg weighs about three pounds. If it isn't destined for incubation, it makes good eating. Allow an hour's boiling time, add a dash of salt and you—plus 11 other gourmets—can polish it off in no time. Its contents measure about the same as two dozen chicken eggs.

Plume harvesting on an ostrich farm is done every nine months. The yield ranges from stiff grey feathers to foaming white plumes with middle grades of shiny black and soft brown. The feathers are actually clipped, not pulled, so that the process is painless In fact, it's much like having a haircut. When the ostrich struts from the plucking pen, it is easy to see why ancient writers call the bird a "camel sparrow". Underneath his wealth of plumage, the ostrich is a scrawny fellow, with much of his weight concentrated in those massive thighs

Visitors to the ostrich farms are invited to sample ostrich "biltong"—a type of jerked meat. A delicious soup can be made from the thigh meat or the gargantuan drumsticks may be roasted slowly (the flavor is like that of wild turkey).

But rising above mere utility, the ostrich will always be a glamor bird. His plumes are his trademark; they justify his existence. And as long as ladies from London to Las Vegas demand the luxury of ostrich plumes, South Africa will go on breeding the spectacular birds.

New Cap-Chur Syringe Gun Immobilizes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A group of Southern inventors (including a game warden, a veterinarian, and a chemist) has recently patented the Cap-Chur gun, which will enable vets, hunters, game officials and zoo-keepers to immobilize animals without killing or even permanently damaging them.

The invention is a syringe gun — made either in rifle or a pistol form — that is, powered by containers of compressed gas. The syringe is charged with drugs that immobilize and quickly induce sleep in the animal.

With this device, we are informed, a farmer can now treat a sick cow with a shot of penicillin, or a hunter can capture a bull rhinoceros on the African veldt.

What immediately occurred to me upon reading this news was the possibility of making the Cap-Chur gun available to the public. It would be just as effective as a gun with bullets and would doubtless save thousands of lives each year.

Men who keep guns in their homes are always living with the danger that a child will find the weapon, discharge it, and kill himself or somebody else. This happens all the time especially with "unloaded" guns.

I would not even try very hard to keep such a weapon out of the hands of known criminals. No law on earth can prevent them from arming themselves, and who would not rather be shot with a sleep-inducing drug than with a .45 calibre bullet?

Most criminals who shoot do so because they feel trapped and frightened, not because they want to kill. It is panic not viciousness, that causes the majority of murders during hold-ups or burglaries.

Actually, what they want to do is "immobilize" the victim, not kill him; but a gun filled with powder is notoriously unreliable. It is this unpredictable lethal quality that turns so many thieves into reluctant murderers.

As for householders, many a citizen, who would not dare to keep a loaded pistol near at hand, might keep the Cap-Chur gun tucked away near the bedstead. The same applies to night-workers who must travel homeward in the bleak and ominous hours of the early morning.

We are the most violent nation on earth. Our annual homicide rate makes the Congo seem like a dancing-school and

QUANTITY AND QUALITY

Ben Johnson, the playwright-poet who was a friend of Shakespeare, once wrote:

It is not growing like a tree
In bulk, doth make man better be.

Size alone is not important — size of reputation, size of bank account, or size of anything else, Quality is not quality. We are too ready to be impressed by the big name, the big income, the big car, or the big house. If someone famous honors us with his attention, we are likely to glow with pride in the reflected light. What nonsense!

It is necessary and inevitable that there be outstanding men and women in all fields of endeavor, whose names are household words. But let us never forget that they are but leaders: the bulk of the good work in the world is done by the thousands and thousands of relatively unknown but productive people without whose effort and power the wheels would soon cease to turn.

Many men become embittered at seeing the fame and fortune of others while they themselves go comparatively unrewarded. In their bitterness at missing bigness, they sometimes forget that they can still achieve goodness. In the long run, it is quality, not quantity, that counts Happiness and peace of mind make better companions than fame and fortune.

Should Read To Enjoy It

Washington Post

The teaching of English literature as a special discipline is a fairy novel element in education if one takes the long view of history.

It used to be that the so-called "great books" were read for diversion—as a release from the drudgery of mathematics and history and the sciences, of grammar, spelling and rhetoric. They were rather more widely read then—at least among those who called themselves educated—perhaps because reading them was looked upon as a reward rather than a requirement.

T. S. Eliot, the Nobel Prize-winning poet, may have had something of this sort in mind when he wrote an essay recently for The Teachers College Record, titling it "On Teaching the Appreciation of Poetry."

Only poetry of the past lends itself to the classroom, he observed, while contemporary verse ought to be kept for enjoyment.

This seems a little bit rough on the classics. But respecting the selection of poems from the past he added what strikes us a valuable insight:

"Unless the teacher is a person who reads poetry for enjoyment, he or she cannot stimulate pupils to enjoy it."

Some poetry and some novels, it is true, demand effort: and this is particularly true of the best of them.

No youngster unfamiliar with the reading of verse is likely to pick up Paradise Lost and read it once with delight: no youngster, for that matter, is likely to get the full flavor of T. S. Eliot without a good deal of preparation for his work.

Once interest and enthusiasm have been kindled in the student, the best fuel for them, we should suppose, would be great books offered in judicious graduation—and offered as prizes, as the rich reward for learning to read.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

"What I could wish for most of my patients," said a doctor of my acquaintance, "is enthusiasm. Some small enthusiasm for some little, trivial thing. To say a hobby is not quite what I mean. A hobby involves projects, outlay, physical activity. One of the characteristics of a good many of my patients is a want of enthusiasm for anything in life, even glint or shine that is essential to health."

"The most surprising results," said the doctor, "I have got from recommending book collecting to my patients. Old book collecting. At first, it sounds a little absurd. But if you could see some of them who a year ago hadn't the slightest enthusiasm for anything and now have got forty volumes on honey, or thirty books on the War of 1812, or two hundred dollars' worth of pamphlets they have bought all over creation on hooked rugs. A man with plenty of money to spend but not a clue as to how to spend it, and ill with nothing but disinterest in life, has gone overboard buying books on the history of the boot and shoe industry in America. He goes on trips all over the continent, St. Louis, New York, San Francisco: and in his car stopping at towns along the highways all over the map, buying anything that refers to boots and shoes, especially in pioneer and early times. The beauty of old book collecting is this: you can think of a subject, any old subject, and start collecting. And before you know it, you have gone mad. Mad with enthusiasm.

And new health.

Many Skilled Researchers Work on Hearing Problems

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I started losing my hearing when a teenager. I had head colds one right after another, with no medical attention.

"At first it was just head noises. I still have them bad, yet the doctors say hearing nerves are dead. An operation would do no good they say. If it weren't for the constant hissing and roaring, deafness wouldn't be so bad. I wonder why there is no effort made to help us by research. Why not try transplanting nerves? — S. W."

Oh, no! You've jumped to a wrong conclusion. A great deal of work is in progress on hearing. Only last fall a new series of projects was started in medical centres around the country, and one of the main goals is study of the basic physiology of the ear.

Where the auditory nerve itself is intact, there are now operations, impossible until the last few years, which restore hearing even though hearing aids were of little or no benefit. In such cases, it is a matter of letting sound waves reach the delicate inner portion of the ear.

Unhappily, where the nerve itself is dead or too severely damaged, we will have no recourse. People are trying to find a solution to this very problem, but not much is being said or printed about it. A very good reason for this relative silence is that it is unfair to people to raise false hopes. That has happened before. Announcements have been made of research in one distressed people a surge of hope, only to have it dashed when they learned that nothing of immediate use was available.

Within an hour's drive from my office, I know of at least three or four big hospitals, an institute and two large universities which have vigorous studies on hearing problems in progress.

One authority has even performed such experiments with animals as turning sound into an electric current, feeding this to the auditory system, picking up the impulses a bit farther along, and translating it back into sound again.

To me, this is a marvelous accomplishment. Admittedly I do not know all the intricacies of how it is done, but it provides a little more knowledge of how ears work. It cannot, now, do anything for those who have lost their hearing. It may take many years before practical benefits are obtained.

No, medical science is not standing still. Many, many skilled men and women are at work on the problem. The day will come, I feel certain, when we will be astounded at the fruits of their work. But right now a dead auditory nerve remains a problem for which we do not yet have an answer.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a lot of moles on the left side of my neck and now they are starting on the other side. What can I do to get rid of them? — Mrs. H. R."

Some skins, especially brunet, tend to do this as an individual grows older. It seems to be the result of an inherent aspect of the skin.

Getting rid of them, if they are annoying as a blemish, is an office procedure for your doctor or dermatologist. It's not a do-it-yourself project, and there's nothing I know of that will prevent them from appearing.

Note to B.N.: Yes, there's such a thing as "cat scratch fever," which is just exactly what it sounds like: a fever sometimes caused by a cat's scratch. It is not, however a serious ailment.

Letters To The Editor

Tax Figure Quoted Was for One Year

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In your issue of February 14th, you reported an application to the city council for Nicholson High School for a grant of $25,000.

You also pointed out some of the facts and figures related to the council.

The column indicated that the Catholic taxpayers in the city had paid about $52,000 toward public high schools. In fact separate school supporters paid more than $52,000 toward public high schools in 1960 alone.

Over the last ten years they have contributed $250,000 to the public high schools and over the next five years they will contribute another $250,000 to the public high schools.

Blood Donations Should Be Free

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Having read both sides of the story on blood donation, may I suggest these should be free. God gave us our blood free. He gave us also free hands to complete this act of mercy. Therefore blood transfusions should also be free that no one may profit by it.

Steady Reader.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HIGH AND HAPPY SPOTS

Belief is the forerunner of realization. It is said of Robert Louis Stevenson that "when all was dark, he pointed his telescope right into the blackness, and found a star."

The trouble with most of us is that we seek the lower lands of travel rather then the heights.

The sun always hits the high spots first!

And happiness comes to those who make it a habit to be happy.

Learn to isolate your most satisfying thoughts that they may grow and accumulate through the very fact of happiness and draw out the best qualities of your nature.

But walk right through the thick of the world. Take its knocks and feel its facts so that you are side-tracked by no foolish boast or neglect.

There can be no comfort for us in anyone who does not appreciate and know.

When we begin to divde the result of our faith by genuine service to others, we are making happiness a tangible affair And our optimism becomes something of worth and is practical.

The high and happy spots are the ones that we choose of our own accord. They are not picked out for us.

Those who have come to make happiness a practice, are those who have earned its every reward.

I quote from a prayer of Stevenson's: "Give us to awake with smiles, give us to labor smiling; as the sun lightens the world, so let our loving-kindness make bright this house of our habitation."

Annual 'Y' Meet Speakers Deal Extensively With New Building in City's East End

The annual meeting of the Belleville YMCA was alive last night with discussion of a proposed new family YM-YWCA in the city's east end. The upcoming building campaign was on the lips of most of the speakers and during a sing-song the capacity house sang a ditty which claimed that a new "Y" would be built within three weeks. But this was merely indicative of the enthusiasm and ambition behind the "Y's" plans to build a fully modern edifice on six acres east of Herchimer Ave., adjacent to Victoria Ave.

H. H. Murray, who was chairman of the 50th anniversary dinner meeting in the YMCA building on Campbell St., paid tribute to "our forefathers who had the courage and the foresight to establish a "Y" for the use of their children and their children's children.

Past years have taken their toll on the YMCA's physical properties, he said, so now, "in the interests of our children and our children's children, we are embarking on a new building project."

YMCA President John C. McDonald said that statistically speaking, 1960 had been a "very successful" year for the Belleville "Y". He noted that YMCA membership increased by 333 to 2,387 and that total attendance at YMCA activities increased by 19,498 to 89,675.

"If you were to deduct the two months of the year during the summer when the YMCA was all but closed, you would see that about 300 people used our facilities each day," he said, adding that present facilities just weren't geared to accommodate so many people.

TRIBUTE PAID

Although it was comparatively simple to calculate the tangible success of the YMCA, it was extremely difficult to learn whether the "Y" was successful as a buffer zone between the home and the outside world.

"But I think the children who have been using our facilities are much better off for doing so", he said.

Mr. McDonald paid tribute to YMCA Secretary Di Diamantides whose work load was doubled in 1960 and whose lengthy hours of work were "appalling". He also commended the professional and voluntary staff of the YMCA for their "fine efforts" and added that the "Y" could not operate except for the "fine financial support of the United Appeal".

About the proposed new building, he said "things are well in hand at this stage".

Mr. McDonald announced that County Judge J.C. Anderson and OSD Bursar William Wills will head the building campaign.

Alderman Lorne McDougall, who brought greetings from the mayor and city council, pledged the "wholehearted co-operation of every member of city council" in the building campaign.

COMMENDS LOCAL "Y"

H. F. Waddell, vice-president of the eastern region of the National Council of YMCAs said the most important job of the YMCA was to turn out more and better leaders, both lay and professional. He commended the Belleville "Y" on the brand of leaders it has already produced.

Mr. Waddell and YMCA Director Gerald B. Hyde presented leader fellowship certificates to nine "Y" workers who had displayed outstanding qualifications and efforts in furthering the work of the YMCA in Belleville.

One of the awards was presented to Alderman Jack Ireland, who has spent a total of four of his six years on the YMCA board as either its president or public relations committee chairman. It was during his term as president in 1958-59 that plans for expanding the "Y" started to become something of a reality.

Awards also went to Mrs. Frances Finkle, who has been vice-president of the board for two of her five years in YMCA executive work and to Mrs. Irena Weir who has spent four of her five years in "Y" work as chairman of the house committee.

Mrs. Phyllis Dyble, who has been a YMCA ski instructor for two years, received an award, along with Stanley Barber, who has worked with the HI-Y Club for two years.

Other recipients were SCUBA and skin-diving club founder and instructor Ron Chapman, Judo instructors Gordon Olliver and Ron Poste, and weight lifting instructor Jack Rushnell.

WORLD NEEDS LEADERS

Guest speaker Leslie Vipond, youngest general secretary in the history of the National Council of YMCAs in Canada, congratulated the local YMCA on the quality of the work it has done and expressed amazed pleasure at the "phenomenal" attendance and membership record in 1960.

He particularly cited the volunteer workers without whose assistance no "Y" could function.

"The 'Y' isn't a 'Y' unless it has a core of volunteer workers who are prepared to sacrifice their time and energy in the interests of the association," he said.

He said the world today needs leaders — and good ones — as it has never before needed them. It is up to the YMCA to assist other organizations in turning out capable leaders.

"If we have any job at all," he said, "it is to produce leaders."

The local YMCA's flexibility and independence of national control are unique advantages which should be capitalized. But there is an increasing need for more professional workers in the YMCA. Without workers, the YMCA cannot function.

"The most important aspect of the 'Y' is that it concentrates its services on young people, the hope of the future, and the potential for change," he said.

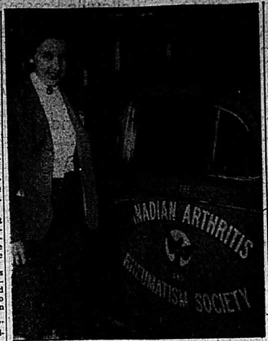
He noted that the YMCA in Canada today has 17,000 leaders and that its full-time professional staff had increased to 400 from 200 since the end of the Second World War. Investments in the YMCA have increased by $11 million to $20 million since the war. This, he said, indicates that people have confidence in what the YMCA is attempting to do.

Mr. Waddell and Mr. Hyde presented a past president's award to Mr. Ireland for his "outstanding" service to the local YMCA while being its president in 1958-59.

George McElhern was elected a director to fill the unexpired term of J. C. R. Punchard, who resigned because his company had transferred him to Ottawa. Mr. McElhern will serve until June, 1962.

Ten directors elected for a three-year term were J. D. Templeman, J. J. Trudeau, H. M. Watson, F. R. Clarke, R. A. Pringle, A. S. Robb, L. D. Read, J. C. McDonald, B G. MacKenzie and E. L. Burnham.

George A. Welch and Company, chartered accountants, were re-appointed YMCA auditors for 1961.



South African Woman CARS Physiotherapist

A young South African woman of Scottish ancestry, who had never seen snow until this winter has been appointed physiotherapist in charge of the mobile unit of the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

She is Miss Margaret Millar, graduate of the Pretoria General Hospital's School of Physiotherapy who prior to coming to Canada about three weeks ago has served in several of the larger hospitals in the Union with specialized rheumatic disease departments.

"I never saw snow in South Africa", Miss Millar told the Ontario Intelligencer. "The first snow I saw was in Switzerland a few weeks ago on my way to England from South Africa".

The big jet on which Miss Millar travelled from South Africa touched down in the Alpine country on one of its several stops.

"I have never skated and I find it difficult to walk on icy streets, but I know I am going to love Canada and winter sports", she said.

Miss Millar's favorite sports so far in life have been tennis and badminton. Before coming to Canada three weeks ago she stopped over in England for five weeks. She came to Belleville February 9th.

She finds the clear Canadian skies a great relief from the dull and foggy weather in England — something she had never experienced in sunny South Africa.

MOST FORTUNATE

Mr. Enos David, president of the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, in announcing the new appointment, said Belleville and district had been most fortunate in Miss Millar's allocation to this branch.

He noted that the demand for qualified physiotherapists throughout Canada far exceeded the supply with requests from many communities in Ontario for the establishment of C.A.R.S. branches having to await the availability of trained personnel.

Mr. David said there was a great need for a full time physiotherapist in the Belleville area where it is estimated there are over 1,000 persons suffering in some degree from some form of arthritis.

Of this number about 235 are totally or partially disabled.

The Quinte Branch of the C.A.R.S. is a member of the Belleville United Appeal and its services are available to all sufferers from arthritis and rheumatic diseases on recommendation of the patient's physician.

The physiotherapist works under the direction of the doctor and administers the treatment he prescribes. A nominal charge is made for the service, as is the case in all health agencies, but no one is denied services if unable to pay.

Two sheep-killing wolves were shot in an organized wolf hunt in South Marysburgh township, near Picton, this week. The largest animal, a 45-pound male, was killed in the Black Creek area, by Rodney Pounder (left) of Milford, while a female, 10 pounds lighter, was shot by Morris Tuttie (right) of Cherry Valley, near Point Petre. The two men will collect $80 each in bounties. It is a mystery how the wolves reached the island county of Prince Edward, but authorities believe they recently crossed the ice-frozen Bay of Quinte. Why Not A How-to-Study Course?

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D., with HARRY KARNS

Article 15

This is the last lap of the course.

First, a few words about how to get better grades on problem-solving exams.

And then a proposal for the future.

In problem-solving tests such as those given in math, physics, and similar courses, you should keep three things in mind.

1. Your first concern is that of picking the right process for working the problem.

Read carefully. Be sure you understand the conditions of the problem and what kind of answer is wanted. Think the problem out in words. And keep in mind some of the things we said in a previous chapter about how to solve problems.

2. Your second concern is that of method.

While you work on the main process of the problem, the arithmetic work takes place on the fringe of your thinking space The harder you concentrate on method, the more errors you are likely to make in arithmetic.

3. Concern number three then, is that of eliminating these careless errors.

Obviously, doing a problem-solving test involves more than merely knowing howand when to use your various processes of solution.

Work swiftly. Occupy your thinking space at all times. Go through the test twice.

First, concentrate on method and careful organization of your work on paper.

The second time, put your full attention to checking the arithmetic and your use of algebraic signs.

Here, again, we must repeat: You can eliminate mistakes with greater ease if all the steps of the problem are arranged neatly on the paper.

IT'S ALL "OBVIOUS"

Alex got low grades on math tests because he was smart. He was able to work out two or three steps of a solution in his mind. Only about one-third of the actual steps appeared on the paper. His answers were often wrong because of errors in his numbers. We suggested he try writing out every single step on the paper.

He did these simple things and raised his math grade from "D" to "A."

Why was this possible? When all the steps were before him on the paper, he was able in his checking to concentrate entirely on arithmetic and signs instead of worrying about recreating the missing portions.

As we look back over what we have said in this and other chapters, it occurs to us that we may be charged with repeated statements of the obvious.

Why, of course it is helpful to budget your time on tests!

Of course it is wise to concentrate on one question at a time!

Of course it makes sense to make a neat paper, to write out all the steps so they can be double-checked!

Of course. And it is precisely the simple, obvious principle which students neglect under the misguided impression that it isn't important.

FOR THE FUTURE

So now our proposal for the future:

We suggest adding to the curricula of grade schools, high schools and colleges, a different sort of course.

Today, the student studies reading, writing, arithmetic, biology, chemistry, French, and a variety of other subjects. He studies subject matter. If he intends to be a teacher, he studies courses that pretend to tell him how to teach.

But nowhere along the line does he take a course devoted entirely to How To Study, How To Learn!

Such a course, it seems to us, is basic. It is to the student what a compass is to the explorer.

Our experience in the private tutoring of failing students convinces us that "How to Study" classes would eliminate much of the heartache, frustration, and defeat in school and in life itself.

After all, what we are talking about is a way of making human beings happier. Success in education can make a person happier. It can improve him emotionally and spiritually. It can improve his opinion of himself, his economic status in society, his value to his family and his country.

The journey into learning is a great adventure. It can be a successful one for most boys and girls and men and women if they are first given a sense of direction.

To help give that has been the aim of what we have written here.

Bon voyage!

Tom took his brother's coat and cleared a chair for him by the fire. "How were the roads?" he asked. "They're bad around here."

"Even worse my way." John laughed. "It took me just two hours dismal driving to reach you. The last half of my route was on the highway, and there I averaged ten miles per hour better than the steady crawl I'd kept to for the first half. And I drove eight miles further the second hour than in the first."

It's no fun driving in such conditions. But how far had John driven?

BIRD — KENNY

A double-ring winter wedding took place in Kildonan, Man., United Church recently, in a setting of pink and white gladioli and ferns, when Laura Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Kenny, Ste. 8, Bel-Main Apts., Winnipeg, exchanged marriage vows with Signalman William Garth Bird, Rivers, Man., son of Mr. Calcolm Bird of Toronto, and the late Mrs. Bird, and grandson of Mrs. Sidmer Bird of Cannifton, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Burke of Belleville and nephew of Mrs. Jack Baxter of Frankford.

The Rev. D. S. Henderson officiated.

Mr. Andrew Cordnor, soloist, was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. D. S. Henderson, The Church Choir was in attendance and sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in her floor-length gown of white nylon illusion over white bridal satin, with fitted bodice and three-quarter length sleeves. Applique rosebuds of Chantilly lace adorned the scooped neckline, the sleeve hemlines and were tastefully scattered over the bouffant skirt. A large back bow drifted into a chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of English illusion misted from a crown of mother-of-pearl. She carried a white Bible with cascades of pink Sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Miss Marilyn Kenny, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Edward Blampy was bridesmaid. They wore strapless cocktail-length gowns of raspberry pink silk organza over pink taffeta with matching stoles. Their headdresses were bands of white flowers with attached chapel-length veils at back.

Flower girl, little Susan Mutchmor, cousin of the bride, wore a dress of the same material featuring a fitted bodice with short sleeves and bouffant skirt with large back bow. Her headdress was a band of white flowers interspersed with white illusion veiling. They carried colonial bouquets of white Marguerite daisies.

Mr. Paul Kenny, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. Edward Blampy, Rev. Douglas M. Sly and Mr. James Kenny, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

During the reception held at the West Kildonan Masonic Hall Mr. Robert Binkley proposed a toast to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird left on a wedding trip to Minneapolis. Upon their return they will reside temporarily in Winnipeg.

The bridegroom, who was educated at Belleville Collegiate and attended Holloway Street United Church, will later leave for duty with the UNEF in the Congo.

In the centre of the heart, a small table was placed and a beautifully decorate anniversary cake held the spotlight.

Following the dinner, Mrs. J. Mattis, charming in her 1900 bathing suit of blue and white strips, acted as cigaret girl and mistress of ceremonies distributing cigarets, small gifts and cupid messages to the gentlemen.

C.W.L.

STIRLING — On the evening of February 9th, 13 members of the C.W.L. gathered in the recreation rooms of St. James Rectory, for their monthly meeting.

The meeting was opened by the director, the Rev. F. J. O'Neil with the reciting of the League Prayer. A financial report from Mrs. R. La Chappelle regarding the sale of Christmas items during the Christmas season was given. Study clubs will be held in the recreation rooms once a week during the Lenten season and it is hoped there will be a good attendance by the members of the Parish.

Further plans were made for the regional meeting of the C.W.L. to be held in March, in Stirling.

On behalf of the members of the league, Father O'Neil thanked Mrs. J. L. Donohue for furniture she most generously donated to help furnish the new recreation rooms in the rectory.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, a short discussion was held on the motion picture "Ben Hur", which had been showing for some time in Belleville. This was followed by the showing of two films, the sacrament of Holy Order and the African situation. The hostess for the meeting, Mrs. S. A. Meeks and her co-workers, Mrs. J. Kerby and Miss Alice O'Donnell served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

CALVARY TEMPLE

At the annual business meeting of Calvary Temple the pastors and people had cause to rejoice when the financial report for 1960 was read by Mr. Raymond Jack, secretary and accountant of the church. The total amount raised for all purposes was $64,173, an increase of $22,554 over the previous year.

It was pointed out by the treasurer, Dr. Alan Haw, that total receipts for the year 1949 were less than $5,000. The membership had leaped from approximately 80 to over 500. This was an active fellowship. There was no long list of inactive members or adherents. Dr. Haw attributed this amazing growth to the inspired leadership of the pastors, the Rev. Dr. Laurie Price and the Rev. Dr. Hope Smith, whose lives were given unremittingly in the service of God.

"I appreciate the co-operation of everyone in the church," commented Dr. Price. "No two people could run an establishment of this size without competent and consecrated helpers. Every faithful prayer warrior is just as important as the pastors and directors. It is up to all of us to put our shoulders to the wheel in the service of our Lord and Master."

Dr. Hope Smith said that he was thankful for greater attendance and a greater measure of the Holy Spirit. "I am thrilled with the way the Lord has been blessing, but I am longing for an even greater freedom of spirit of Pentecost. I don't suppose we could go anywhere and find a better spirit of unity than we have in this church. There has never been the least note of dissension in any of our board meetings. The devil hates unity amongst the children of God. He has a hard time upsetting a church where people love and trust one another. It is a privilege to be your pastors."

The Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Harry Harris, reported good growth in that department. On several occasions Belleville was among the top ten in attendance within the denomination in, Canada. He stated that the pastors were good Sunday School boosters and he appreciated their support. Miss Freda Daley read the financial report, The total amount raised by the school was $2,078.

Mr. Harold Elmy, commander of the Pentecostal Crusaders, reported that approximately 60 boys and girls were attending the weekly meetings. This group is similar to the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides but a greater emphasis is placed on the spiritual life.

The Christ Ambassadors activities were reported by Miss Margaret Lott. This young people's group had raised $495.48. An amount of $129.25 was donated to home missions and $200 for platform chairs for the new church.

Mrs. William Chamberlain outlined the work of the Women's Missionary Council. A large supply of literature had been sent to the West Indies; missionary outfits to Northern Canada; donations to the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College, the French Bible School, church furnishings and Christmas gifts.

In the voting for the official board, the following were elected: deacons — Alan Haw, George Purves, John Holcroft, Mansel Donaldson; trustees — Earl Parks, William Chamberlain, Raymond Jack.

Harmony S.C. Announces Coming Recital

Mrs. Veley spoke, quoting, "Music is the language of the soul, and through a sign language it is international!"

Through listening and through his imagination each student should endeavor to interpret what the music implies!

At the end of her talk, Mrs. Veley gave her interpretation of "Cathedral Chimes," arranged by Arnold and Brown.

Refreshments were served.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I read your column every night and find it most interesting. You will probably find this a funny question but how do you cook a "peamealed cottage roll?" The kind that has what looks like yellow sawdust on top. I have looked all through my cookbooks and can only find cooking ham with the rind on. I have always boiled or cooked them in water but this one has got me stuck. I have never bought this kind before. It weighed 3 lb. 4 1-2 oz. I want to roast it as I find the flavor is lost simmering. A friend of your column.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

FRIDAY

Tomato Juice; Fish Fillets Spencer or Thermidor (see Wednesday); Baked Buttered Jacket Potatoes with Sour Cream; Spinach Garnished with Hard-Cooked Egg Slices; Lemon Souffle or Lemon Snow; Tea.

ANSWER:

This is an old standby of Marianne's and since she is visiting me at present I asked her exactly what she did. It was very popular with the American and British Army personnel that they entertained while in Camberley. She bought Wiltshire bacon in England but what she does applies to Canadian peameal cottage roll and back bacon too.

BAKED COTTAGE ROLL (or peameal back bacon):

Scrape off all of the cornmeal from a 3 1-2-lb. cottage roll or piece of peamealed back bacon. (This is what your "yellow sawdust" is.) Place in shallow baking dish. Score fat, spread evenly with 1-4 cup brown sugar and dot with whole cloves. Bake at 325 eg. Fahr. for 2 hours. (If you are baking a piece of back bacon it will not take as long because it is not as thick.) Marianne serves this with an all-time favorite Raisin Sauce that is good with baked ham too. This amount makes 1 cup. Blend together 1 tablespoon each flour and butter or margarine. Stir in 1 cup apple juice or apple cider and 1-2 cup seedless raisins until thick. Serve hot with baked cottage roll or back bacon or baked ham. Okay?

QUESTION:

While on a visit to Fort Dodge, Iowa about eight years ago my husband was served a delicious salad which he has never tasted in Canada. This salad was served wherever they went it seems. Am wondering if you could help me find a recipe for this salad. Some of the ingredients it contained were: apple, nuts, grapes, marshmallows, celery and perhaps cabbage or lettuce. This was mixed with a salad dressing. If at all possible to secure this recipe would very much appreciate it . . . Mrs. E. J. R.

ANSWER:

All it is is a glorified Waldorf Salad.

WALDORF SALAD DE LUXE:

One cup each diced red apple (with skin on), diced inner celery stalks and 1-2 cup broken choice walnuts or pecan meats (or blanched almonds). (Those are the regular Waldorf Salad ingredients.) For your husband's version add 1-2 to 1 cup seeded Tokay or Thomson seedless grapes, 1-4 cup miniature marshmallows and 1 or 2 cups finely shredded cabbage or lettuce. Toss lightly with mayonnaise to moisten. Serve in lettuce cups. If the salad does not taste just right with mayonnaise to him, try boiled salad dressing the second time.

EGGLETON W.M.S. - W.A.

MADOC JUNCTION — The regular meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Warren Harlow on February 9th, with 17 adults and two children present.

The new W.M.S. president, Mrs. Keith Johnson, presided over a program which had been prepared by Mrs. W. Harlow and Mrs. Robert Danford and opened the meeting with the call to worship.

A group of favorite hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross," "In the Garden," "What A Friend We Have In Jesus," and "Sweet Hour of Prayer," were sung during the meeting, with Mrs. Maurice Clancy playing the accompaniment on her guitar.

Those taking part in the devotional period were Mrs. Murray Martin, who read the 23rd Psalm; Mrs. Warren Harlow, who gave the meditation on the Scripture reading, and Mrs. C. Lansing, who offered prayer. Three members paid their WMS fees. A thank-you letter was received from Mr. K. Stewart, a former pastor. A reading on The World Day of Prayer was given by Mrs. Milton Reid, followed by a poem, "Little Kindnesses," read by Mrs. R. Danford.

Mrs. Johnson announced that the Belleville Presbyterial of the WMS is to be held on Feb. 20th and 21st in St. Paul's United Church in Stirling.

BUSINESS PERIOD

The W.A. president, Mrs. W. McMullen, took charge of the business period.

Mrs. Robert Danford offered her home for the March meeting, and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett was appointed to prepare the program.

The W.M.S. president reported that the Auxiliary had been invited to join with St. Paul's W.M.S., Stirling, on February 17th, to observe the World Day of Prayer.

Mrs. McMullen expressed thanks to Mrs. Harlow for her hospitality, to the program conveners, and to all those assisting in any way; also a special thanks to the Stirling ladies, who helped at the quilting.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Carl Bridges.

The members had met at Mrs. Harlow's at 10 o'clock and during the day the quilt for supply work was quilted.

All present enjoyed the bountiful dinner served at the noon hour, also the dainty lunch and refreshing cup of tea served in the afternoon.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Kenneth Juby, on the afternoon of February 9th, with an attendance of 19. The president welcomed the members and visitors.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey, pianist, accompanied all the hymns. Mrs. George Osborne, group leader, took charge and read from the devotional leaflet, "Brotherly Love," which was the theme for the month.

Mrs. Everett Stratton gave a reading, "Your Hand In Mine"; Mrs. Raymond Clarke, "Parade of the Years"; Mrs. Albert Hayter, "Play Up To Yourself," by George Matthew Adams, and Mrs. Asa Cook, "Wayside Windows."

Mrs. Sam Elliott gave a humorous reading, "I'm Fine For the Shape I'm In."

Mrs. Osborne closed the devotional with prayer. Mrs. Juby thanked the group for the program and lunch and took charge of the business.

A thank-you note was read from Mr. and Mrs. Donald Vance for a card of sympathy they received at the time of his father's death. Mrs. Robertson expressed thanks for cards of sympathy in the loss of her brother-in-law. A thank-you note was also read from Helen Breadman for the card received congratulating them on the birth of a baby girl.

It was decided to accept the offer of a company to save coupons from its products in exchange for premiums to be used in the church kitchen. The date for the spring tea was set for May 11th. All sang "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. S. Elliott who contributed to the birthday fund.

Mrs. Juby, assisted by Mrs. Osborne and her group, served refreshments. The table covers and matching serviettes in red and white Valentine motif added a festive note to the social hour which was much enjoyed.

Thanks of all present are due the hostess for her kind hospitality.

The next meeting will be at the church hall on the regular meeting day, March 9.

DISCUSS OWN PROBLEMS — A year ago two divorced Toronto mothers decided that lone parents needed help with their child-raising problems. Mrs. Elsa Myers, shown here reading to her childrden, Gayle, 3, David, 9, and Pamela, 10, joined with Mrs. Honey Lipson to organize Parents Associated. It brings together widows, widowers and divorced people with children to discuss their difficulties and share solutions. About 120 members attend monthly meetings. (CP Photo).

Single Parenthood Problems Made Easier by Association

TORONTO (CP) — A group of 120 widows, widowers and divorcees here is facing the problems of single parenthood with the help of an organization called Parents Associated.

"It's strictly an educational group, not a lonely hearts club or a mass confessional," say founders Elsa Myers and Honey Lipson, two attractive young divorced mothers.

They used a New York group, Parents Without Partners, as a model for the local non - denominational organization formed a year ago. It is under the direction of the Jewish Family and Child Service which acts in an advisory capacity.

Monthly meetings examine general situations the 120 members are likely to encounter—medical, budgeting, social and legal problems of the single parent. Anyone who joins Parents Associated to solve personal difficulties is referred to the proper agency, such as the Toronto Mental Health clinic.

At a current 10 - week study workshop, members are examining the problems of children in the different age groups Each Wednesday, study groups of 15 meet under the guidance of social workers specially trained in family living.

"And they don't get ivory-towered psychology," says Jerome Diamond, family service director. "They get practical advice on how to handle everyday problems of the lone parent."

This covers a wide range:

How does a mother make sure her sons have the proper male influence? How does a father prevent his adolescent daguhter from slipping into her mother's role? How does the parent handle continuing relations with the ex-spouse? How does the single parent prevent the grandparents from taking over the child's upbringing?

"People don't work out problems like these when they're emotionally mixed up," says Mr. Diamond. "Parents Associated helps them to take a look at the kinds of arrangements they must make for the care of their children."

A divorcee in her late 20s at first knew no one else in her position. "Now I don't feel so different," she said. "And at our children's parties, my daughter has [illegible] other [illegible] who don't have a father either. [illegible] like a freak."

Parents Associated is benefiting the entire community, according to Mr. Diamond.

"It's filling a need for a neglected segment of the population and, as such, should have the support of the entire community," he said.

Pretzels and Simnel Cake Popular Lenten Foods

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Hot Cross buns, of course. But pretzels?

Back in the days before Lenten fare was a matter of tuna casserole, cheese souffle, tuna casserole, creamed eggs on toast and tuna casserole, the pretzel was a big item.

It supposedly began with the early Christians in the Roman Empire. Because fat, eggs and milk were forbidden during Lent, they made a dough of flour, salt and water, and shaped it into small breads folded to resemble two arms crossed in prayer. They called them bracellae, little arms.

When the Germans later took over, the word came out brezel, or prezel. With a slight twist, it became today's pretzel.

Pretzels were especially popular in central Europe, where annually they made their first appearance on Ash Wednesday. They were sold on the street by special vendors, and often were distributed to the poor. Burghers lunched on them, along with a stein of beer (if drinking hadn't been given up for Lent).

RESERVED FOR LENT

After Easter the pretzel wasn't baked again until the next Lent. Not until the last century did it lose its Lenten tie and become something to nibble on the year round.

A popular English Lenten food is the simnel cake, a rich plum cake shaped like a pork-pie. It's always associated with Mothering Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent, when youngsters away from home (particularly apprentices and servant girls of years ago) revisited the church of their baptism and then their mother.

With them they carried gifts to put on the church altar, and flowers and simnel cakes for their mother. Usually they did all the housework for her, a gift probably as appreciated as the cake.

In parts of England the custom survives, and you can get simnel cakes in London as well as in rural areas.

The simnel cake, however, was not typical of most Lenten food in Europe. The fare was meagre, in keeping with the spirit of penitence. Polish staples, for example, were herring and a mush of fermented rye meal and water.

In Russia, where rigid fasting was observed well into the 20th century and perhaps still is by old people, the faithful ate only vegetables, raw fruit, honey and bread made with flour, water and salt.

SUNBEAM M.B.

RAWDON — The February meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band was held at the church hall with three adults and 24 children in attendance.

Betty McAdam presided and the group sang, "Little Sunbeams" and repeated in unison, "The Mission Band Purpose."

Donna Knight gave her report and Sally McAdam was pianist. Readings were given by Carolyn Johnson and Larry Jeffs and Betty McAdam contributed a piano solo. A quiz was conducted by Joyce Cooney and Jean Sharpe.

The next meeting will be held on March 5th with Kenneth Smith and Nancy David preparing the program.

The worship service was in charge of Joyce Cooney. The assistants were Kenneth Smith and Mrs. W. G. Fletcher. The leader, Mrs. Harry McAdam, outlined the primary study chapter entitled "A Piece of Good Luck." The setting was in an Indian village and here, a little boy learned that God is a God of love.

Mrs. Herbert Smith outlined the junior study chapter entitled, "The City Dump Gang," which told how six boys learned to read from the seventh chapter of Matthew. "Everyone then who hears these words of Mine and does them will be like a wise man who built his house upon the rock, and the rain fell and the floods came and the winds blew and beat upon that house, but it did not fall, because it had been founded on the rock."

The worship portion closed with "Holy Spirit Hear Us," and the benediction.

QUESTION BOX

Question — Will you please tell me the correct procedure when getting in and out of a crowded elevator? I have never been able to figure out just what is expected of me! If I am escorting a lady, does she go in first, and also get off first? Should other ladies, whom I am not escorting, be treated the same way? Another question. Am I correct in understanding that it is now all right to keep your hat on when in an elevator? — Mr. C. B. M., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — This is one instance in which common sense, more than the rigid folllowing of correct form, has to be considered. If escorting a lady, she would of course, precede you into the elevator. Also, it is nice to let the ladies whom you do not know get in first. But, and a big "but", if you are going to the top floor of the building, it makes sense to get in first and step to the back of the car. (I have never understood why folks who are going to the top floors always take a stance in the front of the elevator, thereby making everyone climb over them to get out on the lower floors!)

As for the "ladies first" ruling, this is one time when it doesn't always work. Upon alighting from an elevator, if you are close to the door and the lady is behind you, don't try to let her squeeze by you, thereby pushing other people around! Step out quickly, and turn to assist her. You follow the same tactics towards the ladies whom you do not know, except for the assistance. As for hats on or off, it is perfectly proper to keep it on when riding in a business elevator. It should be removed however, in a hotel or apartment elevator, if ladies are present.

W.I. Sponsors Successful Card Party

RIVER VALLEY — On the evening of February 10th, River Valley Women's Institute sponsored a euchre and "Five Hundred" card party, under the convenership of Mrs. J. L. Donohue and Mrs. Ed Heasman.

Four tables of 'Five Hundred" were played in the school kitchen. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Ed Heasman. The awards were: ladies high — — Mrs. J. R. Donohue; second —Mrs. Claude Tucker; men's high — Vincent McCauley, Frankford, second — John Kane.

Two boxes of Valentine chocolates were donated by Mrs. Morley Richardson. The lucky winners were Mrs. Sally Ward and Bert Bedford.

There were 44 visitors in attendance from Stirling, Marsh Hill, Frankford, Wooler, Stockdale, Wellmans and Springbrook.

At the close, the conveners and their assistants served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Bonnie M. — I'm embarrassed by my mother's baby- talk.

Mrs. F. M. — I like to use special terms for my nearest and dearest.

Bonnie M. — I'm 15 and I wish I could make my mother talk like a grown-up. I didn't realize how childish we were until the kids at camp last summer began to snicker at the way I talked, which was the natural way we'd always talked at hom. I found out it's pure unadulterated mush.

When referring to Dad, my mother calls him Da-da. And herself? It's "Tell Muzzie all about it." Or Muvver or Mud. Can you imagine the call over the camp public-address loudspeaker? "Bonnie, pick up the 'phone. It your Muzzie on the wire!" Only I'm not Bonnie to her. I'm Giggie.

Maybe it was cute when I was one or two. But it dawns on me that it's arrester development to ask me now if I'm going bye-bye and tell when it's time to go husha-bye and nighty-night. And those letters to camp! How I longed for one to begin with plain "Dear Bonnie", or even "Dearest B.", like other kids got. But most of mine started with "Dear Baby."

Mrs. F. M. — She is my baby, and I reserve special terms for her and the members of my family, expressions that I don't use for anyone else. They're sacred to me, copyrighted for my very own realations. I certainly don't talk that way to anyone else. Bonnie knows that.

I thought it made Bonnie feel cozy and close to have our very own pet names. In my family, we've always had them. I know I've been Doodoo, for Prudence, always to my parents and aunts and uncles and cousins. I still am.

And what's wrong with calling us Muzz and Da-da? Mother and Father sound so formal and cold.

I believe in the value of special family words. No matter where you are in the world, when you hear those words on the telephone or read them in a letter or telegram, you get a warm friendly thrill.

Let's face it. Giggie's my bestest sweetie-pie and there's no other way to say it?

The Council — What's in a name? A barrel of blushes, according to Bonnie. A bounty of balm, counters Mrs. M.

Perhpas the terms preferred by Mrs. M. wouldn't annoy Bonnie so much if she indicated in many other ways that she respected her teenager as a near-adult. We all hear people call each other names like "Zombie", yet it's just passing fun, good for a laugh and for intimate camaraderie. There's no followup to make the labels stick!

But when infant-terms are repeatedly employed, combined with an evident nostalgia and preference for the baby-stage in a child's life, a 15-year-old "Giggie" has the right to call a halt, or at least an inspection.

It's easy to understand an older child or an adult objecting to being called "Snookie" or "Tweetums" or "Ya-ya." There's a diminutive tone to that sort of thing, as though by assigning a babyish epithet one can cut the person down, or keep him closer to infancy.

There may be no real connection, but you'll note the frequency of baby-names in those two-line public notices asking people to get in touch, or call. Many's the time the Agony Column says "Gooby, (or Kewpie or Tuffy) please come home. We love you." Now why did Gooby leave home? Maybe to show he was grown-up enough to do so!

Recent Bride Feted by Many Gifts

FRANKFORD — A miscellaneous shower was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant in honor of their daughter, Myrtle, who was married on Saturday.

The evening's activities opened in prayer by Mrs. Len Reilly. Mrs. Gerald Curry led in the singing of choruses. Miss Beverley Wannamaker read a poem, "It's Later Than You Think."

A hidden unscrambled wedding contest was won by Mrs. Eldon Sine. Miss Joyce Tyrer read a poem, "Twelve Rules for Happiness". The game "Dropping the Penny in a Milk Bottle" was won by Mrs. Doug Flood of Belleville. Miss Lorene Hinds of Campbellford gave a reading, "Clothes Line Ditty." "Drawing a Coin on Top of Your Head" was the next game, winner being Mrs. George Chapman.

Mrs. Knowlton Wright gave a reading "Patches for Pete." Miss Mary Ella Grant gave a reading, "Angel Wings," and Mrs. Gordon Smith one entitled "A Secret".

Myrtle opened her many lovely gifts and thanked her kind friends for them.

Refreshments were served and a time of fellowship was enjoyed by all.

Woman Given Fifteen Years As Embezzler

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—Mrs. Burnice Iverson Geiger today received a 15-year prison sentence for embezzling $2,000,000 from her father's bank.

Judge Henry N. Graven sentenced Mrs. Geiger, 38, to five years on each of the first three counts of a U.S. attorney's information to which she had pleaded guilty Jan. 30. The sentences are to run consecutively.

The judge also sentenced her to five years on each of the other 33 counts of the information, but those sentences are to run concurrently with the first count.

Mrs. Geiger had a slight smile on her face as she entered court for the final chapter in her embezzlement story which started last Jan. 16 when federal bank examiners uncovered the shortages in her accounts of Sheldon National Bank.

Scoharie

"Try a little kindness when you want to get things done;
Try a little sympathy for that's how hearts are won.
Try a little laughter when the skies are turning grey;
Try a little courage when you're tempted to turn back;
Try a little confidence when things are looking black.
A little ray of sunshine can light the sky above,
And life itself can be transformed by just a little love."

U.S. Believes 12-Foot Balloon Placed in Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scientists searched the skies today for an American balloon satellite.

The civilian space agency said late Thursday night that the 12-foot sphere probably has achieved orbit. Confirmation was awaited from trackers.

The agency said the fourth stage of the Scout rocket, from which the inflatable sphere was ejected, went into orbit. This led to the estimation that the satellite probably has achieved orbit.

Nothing has been heard from the balloon since radio signals were picked up at 9:20 a.m. EST Thursday over Woomera, Australia.

Ontario, Quebec and N.B. To Co-operate Against Fires

QUEBEC (CP)—Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick have agreed to help one another fight forest fires.

Bona Arsenault, Quebec minister of lands and forests, announced the agreement Thursday halfway in a two-day meeting of ministers.

The provinces will set up a short-wave radio network to pool fire information, he announced. They will standardize their fire - fighting equipment and share their airstrips and their resources.

Airplanes will be used in[illegible]ingly to spot fires and air[illegible] tankers will be used to put them out quickly.

Mr. Arsenault spoke for all three ministers. At the meeting were Ontario's J. W. Spooner and New Brunswick's Graham Crocker.

"A fire has to be put out right away if it is to be put out at all," Mr. Arsenault said. The object of sharing was to get a fire out immediately.

WOULD USE NETWORK

The provinces will use the Fredericton - Quebec - Toronto radio network to keep each other informed of the fire dangers.

A fire alert from any one of the provinces would bring tanker-planes from the nearest station, no matter which province it is in.

The plane would be in action within an hour of the alert, Mr. Arsenault said. Up to 100 of [illegible] could be used to slosh a fire.

Requests for interprovincial aid would come from each province's chief of forest fire protection. Each province would know in detail the facilities available in other provinces, such as landing strips and lakes and equipment caches.

The ministers have agreed on standard charges to be paid by provinces for aid from their neighbors.

Ontario had 45 planes equipped with water tanks. Quebec had six, and would hire 20 private tankers. New Brunswick also intended to hire private planes equipped with water tanks.

Mr. Arsenault said technical experts are to meet shortly to get the radio and alarm system set up, and to standardize fire-fighting techniques and equipment. A bilingual code would be worked out for the radio network.

URGE UN

The resolution in preliminary form came much closer to ideas put forward by Hammarskjold than a Soviet resolution already before the council demanding the dismissal of the secretary-general and an end to the UN Congo operation within a month.

But the commission wen fur-

But the commission went further by calling for a summit meeting of Congolese leaders of all factions to agree on changes in government and suggested a federal system of loosely associated states—the aim of Kasavubu and President Moise Thombe of Katanga — rather than the strong central government demanded by Lumumba and his political heir, Premier Antoine Gizenga.

WOULD UNITE

The commission urged bringing outside groups into Ileo's cabinet to make a government of national unity, freeing of all political prisoners and UN action to bar outside foreign military aid from reaching the warring Congolese factions.

As debate on the Congo crisis continued in the council chamber, Sudanese delegate Ohar Abdel Hamid Adyl indicated to the council that his government for the time being would prevent Communist airlift of arms to Gizenga's rebel forces in Stanleyville by refusing permission to make a necessary refuelling stop in Khartoum.

Adyl said the Khartoum government considers any aid to The Congo should go only through the United Nations but he warned if progress war not made, Sudan would have to withdraw its 394 troops from the UN Congo force.

MAUL WHITES

In other capitals, demonstrations continued over Lumumba's death.

Anti-white rioting Thursday night in Lagos shocked Western observers as mobs of screaming Nigerians—hitherto friendly to the West—attacked the American and Belgian embassies and mauled, stoned and spat on whites on the streets.

More than 10,000 Nigerians took part in the embassy assaults in Africa's most populous country, whose government has shown a marked friendship for the United States and is considered one of Africa's most democratically oriented. The mobs blamed the U.S. as "imperialist" and for supporting the UN Congo policies.

A general warning went out to the white community in the Nigerian capital to stay away from the city's centre, where the embassies are located.

Retaliation against the anti-Belgium demonstrations came in Brussels, where 300 angry students charged the United Arab Republic Embassy Thursday and smashed all its windows. A mob in Cairo had set fire to the Belgian Embassy on Wednesday.

Communist China ordered mass rallies throughout the country beginning Saturday to protest "the murder of Lumumba by U.S. and Belgian imperialists."

Pinch Hitting

THE GUESSING GAME

Ken Soden, the man who keeps the wheels turning in the Belleville Kenmors baseball organization, along with Vic Morris, has set things in motion for the 1961 season.

The hard-working manager-coach-sponsor-and-what-have-you of the Kenmors already has the club entered in the Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League. The only remaining step in that direction is the official filing of entry. Soden and Morris will wrap that up when the league brass convenes in the Port Hope Legion hall next Thursday night at eight o'clock.

Meanwhile, back on the home front, Soden is out to raise some money to insure the Kenmors of a solid financial footing for their first full season against out-of-town competition. Up until this season the team has played in the South Hastings League until OBA playdown time.

Ken said yesterday that bright new green and grey uniforms would be obtained for the club this season. Not only are the old ones wearing pretty thin but many of the boys have grown out of them after four years of play. Soden intends to canvass a number of local merchants to help defray the cost of sponsorship. Merchants donating toward the cause will have their names on the backs of the new uniforms.

The Lakeshore League schedule will call for a great deal more travelling for the Kenmors than in the past, with trips to Peterborough, Port Hope and the other "western" centres. This means that more money will be necessary and Soden has come up with a rather unique means of raising some funds.

Soden says he got the idea from a newspaper article telling about a Junior Chamber of Commerce plan to raise money in Chatham. Here it is:

An old beat-up car has been secured and is now going through the process of getting a new paint job. The car will be placed on the ice in the Belleville harbor and tickets will be sold, giving the buyer a chance to guess exactly when the old car will disappear through the ice into the waters of the Bay of Quinte.

A handsome portable TV set will be the prize up for grabs and the tickets will go for half a buck each. The buyer will put down his guess as to the date and time of the "big breakthrough."

An official timekeeper will be in charge of the final decision and efforts are being made now to try and arrange for some type of automamtic timing device which will register on a stop watch when the car reaches the water.

The car will be situated just off the dock, square in the middle of Jack Goyer's skating rink. Permission has been obtained from the Harbor and Parks Boards as well as from Goyer, for this location.

The car will have to be removed from the bottom of the harbor after the stunt is over, of course, so chains are being attached with which the old auto can be pulled up from the depths.

The whole affair should be set up shortly and tickets will go on sale as soon as everything is arranged. Plans are to have members of the ball team, as well as some merchants, selling the tickets.

It's a novel idea that should prove a lot of fun, help keep the city's fine young baseball team in operation and win some lucky fan a beautiful portable TV set.

Soden has done, and is going to do, a great deal of work setting this stunt up, but it just goes to show what a dedicated worker will do for a worthy cause. We wish him luck.

CO-OPERATION PLEASE

"The Sports Calendar," which can be found on the sports pages of The Ontario Intelligencer daily, announcing the local games, meetings and other activities of that and several nights in advance, is a "free gratis" service.

In most cases city and district organizations are only too happy to have approaching events publicized. In minor ranks a number of the kids follow the calendar closely to see when they play their next games. It has, without a doubt, value at the gate for teams that charge admission. A great number of fans check the calendar to see what time and where.

All the sports staff here asks in return is co-operation.

Most times we get it. There are one or two exceptions. One group sent in a complete schedule some time ago and nearly every week has changed the games around without a word to us.

Better that we have no mention of a game at all than to print that it is being played here Saturday night at 7.00 p.m. if it is really being played there today at 4.30.

Please, gentlemen, we are not mind readers and our only solution is to drop such an organization's games from the calendar altogether.

MAY FIGHT RISBERG

MIAMI (AP)—Spokesmen for Swedish light - heavyweight champion Lennart Risberg and Archie Moore said Thursday a Stockholm bout for Moore world boxing title is a strong possibility late this summer. Jack Kearns said Moore expects to defend his title first, probably in New York, against Giulio Rinaldo of Italy. "It's safe to say Archie will defend his title in June in this country and in Stockholm late in August or early in September," Kearns said.

Montreal Habs Draw Nearer To Top

Clobber Bruins By 9-1 Score

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Every now and then Don Marshall, the quiet man of Montreal Canadiens, chooses to remind people that he is still one of the smartest players in the National Hockey League, and one of the most valuable.

The 28-year-old centre is one of the league's few players who can do everything well. Canadiens, because they have an abundance of scoring power from other players, usually use Marshall to kill penalties.

Thursday night Marshall broke the monotony, scoring three goals and setting up another as the pride-stung Canadiens, fighting to regain first place from Toronto Maple Leafs, demolished Boston Bruins 9-1.

It was his first hat trick in seven years with Montreal.

Bernie Geoffrion also had a tremendous night for Canadiens, notching two goals and picking up three assists to regain the league's scoring lead with 73 points — four more than Toronto's Frank Mahovlich. Defenceman Doug Harvey, Phil Goyette, Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore rounded out Montreal's total.

RUINS SHUTOUT

Boston's Jimmy Bartlett saved a little face for the Bruins by scoring on Montreal's Jacques Plante at 1:15 of the third period.

Plante was outstanding, especially in the first period when Boston matched Montreal in play and only Marshall managed to get a goal.

Plante got a standing ovation from Montreal's 14,374 fans after the game. He made 26 stops. Boston rookie Bruce Gamble stopped 28.

Marshall, assisted by Geoffrion, scored with a 20-foot rising shot at 11:27 of the first period.

At 2.54 of the second, Marshall whipped another one past Gamble's short side. Harvey scored with a 35-foot, power-play shot and Goyette tallied from a scramble before Marshall, taking a breakaway pass from Bob Turner, skated in all alone at 13:24 to complete his memorable evening.

Geoffrion got one of his two goals in the second period, and he, Beliveau and Moore scored in the third.

Dazzy Vance, Dodger Great, Dies in Florida

HOMOSASSA SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—Clarence Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame and former strikeout ace of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1920s, died Thursday of a heart attack at his home in this fishing community on Florida's West Coast.

Vance, who would have been 70 March 4, won 197 games in his 16 years in the major leagues. A late bloomer who didn't win his first game in the big leagues until he was 31, the right - handed pitcher became one of the most popular Dodgers in the long and colorful history of that team.

Usually pitching for a second-division club bumping around sixth place in the National League, the old dazzler pumped his fast ball past 2,045 hitters to become one of 10 pitchers with more than 2,000 strikeouts.

Although Vance won 28 games in 1924, 22 in 1925 and 22 in 1928 he never led the league in won-lost percentage. However, he did set the pace in earned-run average in 1924, 1928 and 1930.

Vance led the league in strikeouts for seven years from 1922 through 1928. His peak year was 1924 when he had a 28-6 won-lost record, struck out 262 and led with a 2.16 earned-run average.

Assoc. Wants Part of Take

BOTHWELL, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association might try to promote retention of one half of one per cent of the pari-mutuel betting take in the province for research, and to aid one-day racing meets, Dr. L. S. McKibbin, director of the association, told members of the Bothwell Community Driving Club Thursday night. The money would be set up in a fund to help the Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary College in horse research and to supplement purses to raise interest in one-day meets.

Championship Organizers

Request Skating Events Go On

PRAGUE (AP) — Organizers of the world figure skating championships Thursday night formally requested the International Skating Union to reconsider its decision to cancel the event.

The ISU's executive committee voted by a substantial majority to abandon the 1961 championships, scheduled to start in Prague next Wednesday, because of the death of 18 U.S. skaters in the crash of a jet airliner near Brussels Wednesday.

The memory of the American skaters "will best be honored by holding this top figure skating competition," organizers told the ISU.

It was pointed out that in 1947 most members of the Czech hockey team were killed in a plane crash en route to London "but in spite of this the world championship was held," the official Czech news agency Ceteka reported.

A spokesman for the Prague organizers said the tournament committee decided Wednesday to hold the championships although "everybody was shocked and deeply moved by the tragic death of the American skaters."

He said preparations for the meet had cost more than $140,080 so far and arrangements had been completed for 16-nation European television coverage of the competition.

Most skaters from the favored Canadian team and Soviet Russia were among the competitors from six countries already here. Nine other countries also were entered.

George Haesler, secretary-general of the ISU, said in Davos the cancellation decision was made by the ISU executive committee. He declined to name the members who voted against holding the meet.

"This is the only correct decision," said Dr. Jacob Koch, ISU president, in Basel, Switzerland. Both he and Haesler had urged the executive committee to call off the tournament.

Eastern Pro Thunderbirds Trounce Hull

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The visiting Hull-Ottawa Canadiens hit for two goals in the first period Thursday night, but that was all they got as the host Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds coasted back for a 6-2 Eastern Professional Hockey League victory.

Both teams gave referee Art Skov a tough time.

The second period took about 50 minutes to play because of delays caused when the Sault team argued about a bench penalty. Attendants cleared articles thrown onto the ice and linesmen concentrated on breaking up minor skirmishes.

Right winger Terry Gray scored both Hull-Ottawa goals and he came through in spectacular fashion.

Gray sniped both within 16 seconds during the first period, erasing the former record of 23 seconds, set by the same player.

Fred Hilts and Norm Guimond scored two each for Sault, singles coming from Jim Farelli and John Offidani.

N. H. L. Big Seven

Hockey Loop Will Expand

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Representatives of the four teams in the eastern division of the International Hockey League agreed Thursday night to propose to the league expansion of the division next year to include Chatham and Windsor, Ont., and Columbus, Ohio.

The proposal, made without a formal vote at a meeting at the Sports Arena here, will be offered to the league at its next general meeting sometime in April in Indianapolis.

The eastern division members also will seek to eliminate an interlocking schedule of games with the western division next season primarily because of heavy travel expenses incurred this season on long road trips.

Playoff Opener

Whitby Downs Macs 6-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Scoring four unanswered goals when the Belleville team let down in the second period, Whitby Hillcrests grabbed a 6-3 victory over the Macs in Whitby last night in the opening game of their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group semi-finals.

Second game in the four-of-seven series will be played here in Belleville Saturday night at 8.30 p.m. with the third in Whitby Tuesday and the fourth here next Friday.

Whitby outplayed the Macs in the first twenty minutes but came out of the period tied 1-1. They made no mistake in the second however as the Belleville attack sagged, the defence failed to defend and goalie Bill Moxon let in one soft one.

Spurred by coach Gordie Bell's between-period pep talk, the Macs displayed their best hockey in the third, scoring two quick goals to make it 5-3. They threatened throughout the period until a couple of penalties in the dying minutes paved the way to Whitby's sixth counter.

Harvey Burke scored two Whitby goals while Elmer Tran and Pete Shearer each had a goal and assist. Ken Roberts and Gord Luke also scored, Lynn Middleton drew two assists, Butch Kadwell and Len Bobbie one apiece.

Top effort in a losing cause came from the line of Pete Weston, Don Forsythe and Pug Kellar. Weston and Kellar each earned a goal and assist while Forsythe helped on one. Gary Goyer notched the other goal with Gary Reid claiming two assists and Barry Titterson one.

Referee Al Promaine handed out 14 penalties in the close-checking affair with each club drawing seven. Middleton of Whitby aggravated Moe Hunter into a major penalty for slashing at 17.56 of the third and Moxon into a minor for the same offence at 18.10. Hunter was cross checked across the back of the neck and got him major when he swung his stick at Middleton with both hands. Tran fired the Hillcrests' insurance marker while the Macs were two shy.

Goyer tipped in Reid's point shot to open the game scoring while Switzer was off at 15.19 but a minute later Titterson put the puck into his own net while trying to clear Roberts' shot from behind Moxon.

It was all Whitby in the middle beat with Burke getting the tie-breaker after a faceoff near the Mac cage at 3.40. Earlier in the period the Macs failed to come close while enjoying a two-man advantage. Burke potted Middleton's rebound on a two - on - one play to make it 3-1 at 6.14.

Shearer's shot went in off Moxon's pads at 10.49 and the Macs failed to improve as Luke and Switzer served back to back penalties without damage a couple of minutes later. Luke finished off a pretty passing play with Middleton and Tran near the period's end to make it 5-1.

Belleville rallied quickly in the third with Weston ramming one home after ten seconds of play. This line continued to press and Kellar connected with goalie Godridge on his back at 1.49. The Macs had the better of the play the rest of the period until penalties cost them the final goal.

Belleville: Moxon, Reid, Asselstine, Titterson, Mavety, Goyer, R. Hull, Hunter, Weston, Kellar, Forsythe, Ethier, McGuire, G. Hull, Smith.

Whitby: Godridge, Roberts, Ashby, Bobbie, Kadwell, Tran, Shearer, Luke, Burke, Middleton, Switzer, Mackey, Tripp, McCullough, Fletcher.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

By BILL BURLEY

After two exciting Quinte COSSA basketball games between BCI and Quinte juniors and seniors, there was a big change in the ratings of position. The juniors played a basket against basket game until the last quarter when BCI pulled out to take the event 47 to 37.

This upset for Quinte puts them back to second place and BCI remains in first position, tied with Mcira. Through previous games the odds against Quinte seniors were high compared to the first place BCI team. Anyone accepting these odds and wagering under the table would have lost their sure thing last night, as the Quinte Saints overthrew BCI by a 62-48 count.

JUNIOR GAME

BCI picked up a eight-point early lead but Quinte came back and shortened this lead to two points. In the second the Saints came back to pass BCI's lead and to take up a small one of their own. At the end of the first half Quinte was leading by two points.

In the third BCI started to build up a big lead over the Saints. BCI took the quarter by 13 points. Quinte came back fighting in the fourth but three of the Saints fouled out. BCI also took this quarter and the game by a score of 47 to 37.

LINEUPS:

BCIVS — Adams, Bakker, Blackley (14), Burr (17), Deacon (4), McKibbon, Muir (8), Rose, Soule, Williams (4), Follwell, Yorke.

QUINTE — Irvine (4), Burley (3), Onderdonk, McBride (1), Fair (2), Hall (7), Gilroy (2), Firkin, Phillips, Turner (6), Mathews.

SENIOR GAME

Loud cheering echoed throughout the halls of Quinte as the Quinte seniors knocked the BCI team off of their first place perch. In the first quarter the Saints built up a fair lead and outscored the losers in every quarter.

In the second BCI caught hold of of themselves and began to fight back, but Quinte had victory in their minds and were determined they were not going to be beaten. In the third the Saints eased their lead ahead again. In the fourth Quinte hooped a number of safety points.

High scorers of the game were Michaud of Quinte with 20 points and MacKenzie of BCI with 24.

LINEUPS:

BCIVS — Scott, MacDonald (5), Davis, MacKenzie (24), MacFarlane, Weston (4), Banting, Parker, Annis (1), Roberts (12), Campbell, Regensburg.

QUINTE — Baker, Rose (2), Follwell (11), Davis (6), Marriott, Campbell (3), Locke (18), Mills (2), Michaud (20).

Skiers Do Not Specialize Says Coach

TORONTO (CP)—Pete Petersen of Toronto, Canadian ski jumping coach, says Canadian skiers don't specialize enough.

"They devote a little time to this and a little time to that and consequently they don't excel in any of the events," Petersen said in an interview Thursday.

Petersen built the well-known ski jump at Midland and is one of the country's leading jumping coaches.

Too much emphasis on team racing is hurting Canada's chances in international jumping competition, he said.

Bed Clark, former president of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, said jumpers have been neglected in Canada. However, he referred to a national jumping competition to be held in Ottawa March 11 and 12. Winners are to be sent to Europe for two months of training.

"We feel this tournament will spark interest in jumping and develop jumpers who'll be equal to anything in Europe," he said.

Lou Fontinato Back in Action

NEW YORK (AP)—Defenceman Lou Fontinato of New York Rangers is due back in National Hockey League action this weekend.

Fontinato, a Guelph native, was forced to the sidelines for a month and missed 13 games because of a leg cut suffered in a Jan. 18 game against Toronto Maple Leafs. He was pronounced fit Thursday.

Await Curlers At Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Preparations are moving at high gear in this sport-conscious city for the March 6-10 visit of 11 rinks competing in the Canadian curling championships.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Quebec, Manitoba and the Maritime provinces all have chosen their rinks. Alberta, Ontario and Northern Ontario will have their winners in another week.

COOPER IN NO HURRY

LONDON (AP) — British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper was offered about $84,000 Thursday to meet Sonny Liston of Philadelphia in an outdoor fight here this summer. The sum would be a record purse for a boxer in Britain but Cooper said he is no no hurry to sign.

Prexy Sees Better Days For League

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Tommy Richardson, new president of the International League sees better days ahead for the triple-A baseball circuit.

The loop drew 1,454,786 fans last year, a drop of 532,133 from the previous season, but Richardson observed:

"Last season they were plagued by bad weather at the start. Then Toronto made a runaway of the pennant race, winning by 16 games or so, which took a lot of zest out of things.

"The league appears more evenly balanced this season, and there's a good chance for a hot pennant fight. If we get a little better break from the weatherman, we'll pick up a lot of that attendance loss."

One favorable factor, Richardson said, is that four of the clubs — Syracuse, Columbus, Buffalo and Rochester — are community-owned.

"And community ownership," he said, "is the salvation of minor league baseball. When fans learn a major league club owns and operates the team in their town, they lose interest."

The Montreal franchise shift to Syracuse, and the Miami move to San Juan, will help league attendance, the new president said. He also figures that Jersey City, where the Havana club went in mid-season of 1960, will do better this year now that it's fully organized.

Bisons Edge Quebec 5-4

QUEBEC (CP) — Buffalo Bisons held off a late Quebec Aces' rally Thursday night to score a 5-4 win and bolster their hold on second place in the American Hockey League standings.

It was Bisons' second win in three nights over Aces who put on a belated rally of two goals within 35 seconds in the third period.

Billy Dea paced the Bisons' attack with two goals. Dick Gamble, Wayne Hicks and Phil Maloney scored the others. Norm Corcoran and Danny Lewicki each scored two for Quebec.

Goalie Gerry McNeil was replaced in the Quebec nets after the second period by Claude Dufour who allied one goal.

Nine penalties were called. Each side scored once with a player advantage.

Texas Golfer Takes Lead

TUCSON, Ariz., (AP) — Lesser - known golfers are very much in evidence as the $20,000 Tucson Open heads into today's second round.

Ever hear of Frank Wharton? Probably not, because he's never finished better than seventh in a Professional Golf Association event. But because the slim Austin, Tex., youngster was raised on the wind-swept courses of west Texas he earned a one stroke lead with a six-under-par 31-33 — 64 in Thursday's opening round.

Other pros moaned that 25-mile-an-hour winds, with gusts even stronger, ruined their scores.

"This was like home," Wharton said. He birdied the 16th and 17th holes when the wind was the strongest to clinch his lead.

PGA champ Jay Hebert momentarily checked the youth movement by grabbing the runner-up spot with a 33-32 — 65. Four unknowns were tied with 66s, along with Dave Marr.

George Knudson of Toronto was well back among a clutch of players at 69. Toronto's Jerry Magee shared his 70 with 13 others. Al Balding of Toronto shot 35-36—71.

Scores Ace In Wrong Hole

MANILA (AP) — President Carlos P. Garcia of the Philippines, a recent convert to golf, scored a hole in one Thursday — on the wrong hole. He drove from the fourth tee and the ball landed in the cup on the eighth green.

Peterborough fans watched the Petes edge visiting St. Catharines Teepees 5-3 in a swift game. Teepees led 3-1 at the beginning of the third period.

An amazing rally brought the Petes two goals from Claude Larose. Also scoring for the winners were Barc Plager, Wayne Boddy and Tom Carty. St. Kitts' snipers were Doug Robinson, Duke Harris and Murray Hall. Teepees picked up six of the 10 penalties.

Hamilton outshot Niagara Falls 44-22 and took five of eight minor penalties. The winners tallied singles from Jim Dahmer, Lowell Macdonald, Larry Jeffrey, Howie Menard, Lyle Porter and Bob Dillabough.

Urges Govt. Boost Aid to Amateur Sport

TORONTO (CP) — A high school gym instructor told the legislature Thursday night that the government should contribute more towards amateur sport.

Bernard Newman (L—Windsor Walkerville), making his annual plea for more support for sport, charged the government with forcing aspiring young athletes to beg for financial help so they could continue their activities.

He referred to Toronto runner Bruce Kidd, who recently won a top two-mile indoor event in United States competition.

He was speaking during discussion of the department of labor estimates.

Stan Leonard To Take Rest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stan Leonard returned home Thursday night after two months on the United States tournament golf trail. Leonard, $4,800 richer, says he will take a short rest before leaving for the Masters tournament in Augusta, Ga., April 4 to 7.

FIFTY MILES OF 'BLITZ' FILM!

Producer Roy Simpson and his associates viewed more than 50 miles of film to select the material which makes up "Blitz on Britain." They found material in the official archives of Britain. They flew to Germany to inspect film taken by Nazi airmen. They saw shots taken from the bombing aircraft. They saw material filmed by cameramen at the blazing heart of London.

Much of the material finally incorporated in "Blitz on Britain" has never been seen before. Some of it had to be rescued from near destruction before it could be used; some cans of film which had been standing waterlogged had to be scientifically treated.

The film's special adviser was Wing Commander Asher Lee — the Air Ministry's leading wartime specialist on the Luftwaffe. His advice was used extensively during the war by the RAF, the USAF, the Soviet Government, the American War Department in Washington, and at the 1943 Cairo Conference, at which he was adviser on the Luftwaffe.

The film's authenticity has been assured by the co-operation, during the scripting, of Marshal of the RAF Sir John Slessor and Air Chief Marshal Sir Philip Bennet Joubert de la Ferte. The script was also checked by two Germans who were involved in the Blitz, General-Leutnant A. D. Theo Oskerkamp and Col. Von Ploetz.

The commentary has been written and recorded by famed journalist Alistair Cooke.

"Blitz on Britain" will shortly be seen in Canadian theatres from coast to coast, and will be coming to the Odeon McCarthy Theatre soon.

Empire Title Bout Possible

TORONTO (CP) — A British Empire heavyweight title bout may be slated for Toronto if Canadian champion George Chuvalo beats Brian London in Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night.

Matchmaker Deacon Allen said Thursday night he would try to get a BE title fight here in March if Chuvalo wins. In the event of a loss he would try to get a rematch here with London.

Earlier this week British fight promoter Jack Solomons told Allen by transatlantic telephone he would be willing to match the winner with British Empire champion Henry Cooper for a championship bout in London.

"Solomons made the offer all right, but it wasn't a concrete one," said Allen, "and if Chuvalo wins Monday, an Empire title fight in Toronto is a natural."

Allen said he expects a gross gate of between $40,000 and $50,000 at the London-Chuvalo fight and "that would be one of the top fight gates at the Gardens."

London lost his British Empire champion crown to Cooper when the latter outpointed him in a 15-round bout.

2 Managers Reinstated

NEW YORK (AP)—The appellate division Thursday set aside a ruling by the New York State Athletic Commission which barred the two co-managers of former middleweight champions Carmen Basilio for life from directly or indirectly engaging in pro boxing in the state.

The court held by a 3 to 2 vote that John DeJohn of Syracuse, N.Y., and Joseph Netro of Ithaca, N.Y. "were not licencees or applicants for a licence or the renewal thereof at the time the commission instituted this proceeding."

For that reason, the court said "the sanctions provided are under the circumstances a nullity."

DeJohn and Netro were barred after they testified at a commission hearing they paid about $55,000 to Gabe Genovese, an undercover manager. Genovese was sentenced to two years imprisonment on being convicted as an unlicensed manager.

Blues Invited To Go West

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues received an invitation Thursday to compete in an East - West intercolleagie hockey final in Edmonton, March 13 to 15.

Alberta will guarantee round-trip air tourist fares for 18 eastern players.

'The Lincoln Murder Case' Special Show on Saturday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Saturday night viewers who are accustomed to having their whodunits and westerns satisfactorily tied up at the end of 30 or 60 minutes, may be in for an unnerving experience Saturday night.

CBS' Show of the Month has pre - empted Have Gun, Will Travel and Gunsmoke, and for 90 minutes will explore the circumstances surrounding the assassination of Lincoln.

The drama, The Lincoln Murder Case was written by Dale Wasserman, and is an examination, based on documentary evidence, of many of the unexplained and strange events before and after the shot was fired in the threatre.

Wasserman originally was assigned to write a play based on Web of Conspiracy, by Theodore Roscoe, a historian whose research led him to believe Lincoln's death was part of a conspiracy that included important members of Lincoln's official family. He did not believe, as the accepted version has it, that John Wilkes Booth dreamed up the whole idea himself.

SEES CONSPIRACY

Wasserman, after studying the book, continued research, ultimately going to Washington to check original source material. Like Roscoe, Wasserman is convinced a high-up conspiracy was operating.

"Why did Vice - President Johnson act so strangely the night Lincoln was shot?" he asked. "Why did he lock himself in his room early in the evening and refuse to come out? Where was the guard who was supposed to be at the door of Lincoln's box? Why were two men—one of them Booth—permitted to escape over a well-guarded bridge and then one pursuer stopped? Why did Johnson deny he knew Booth when in fact he knew him intimately?

"There are hundreds of questions that can be asked and the events can't all be coincidences. . . ."

Coffee House Takes Over From Teahouse in Japan

By BOB THOMAS

TOKYO (AP)—The Teahouse of the August Moon is old stuff nowadays. The coffee house has taken over.

There are more than 7,000 coffee houses in Tokyo alone, and more open every week. They might be described as a combination drug store and saloon, with elements of the cabaret and Coney Island.

The coffee houses are—well, you just can't understand them without seeing them. Even then, you may not be sure.

There's the Fujiya Music Salon, a tastefully decorated place amid a row of eateries.

You take a seat on one of the tables, and the waitress brings the order. You sip and listen to a combo of six sleepy - eyed musicians playing progressive jazz.

PLACE ROCKS

Next comes the Tennessee Salon. You take a table in the balcony of the rococo place, sitting alongside bobbysoxers just out of schoool. All of a sudden the bandstand erupts with 10 musicians playing rock 'n' roll.

The din becomes too great, and you walk to the Yie-Lai-Shian, three floors of tables in a tastefully decorated Chinese palace. The atmosphere is hushed, and couples whisper over their coffee cups. The musicians start to disappear, flute, cello and all. They are descending on an elevator to play for the floor below. Two orchestras alternate having their ups and downs, entertaining the separate levels for 10 - minute stretches.

Want another change of pace? Then drop into the New Yorker. You walk in and are greeted by eardrum - breaking American records and a half-dozen chirping hostesses barely clad in striped, low-cut, tight wool bathing suits. It is wild, wild, wild.

J. David Lyon Is Manitoba's Curling Champ

Nineteen rinks started the provincial playoffs Monday.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Aries (March 21 to April 19) There could be real trouble today if you are forceful with higher-ups, especially where civic matters are concerned. Concentrate on studies instead and then enjoy favorite hobbies. P.M. be very affectionate with loved one.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Give most of your attention today to home affairs, the well-being of kin, real estate improvement, etc. Do not permit that out-of-towner or one who is opposed to your views to get you down. P.M. be cordial to a new friend.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Be sure you do not misunderstand some letter or telegram that reaches you today. Give the other party the benefit of the doubt. Steer clear of that expert who is on the pessimistic side and wants to put fear into you for days to come.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) An unexpected idea from an expert cannot mean a great increase in your present income. Later, remain neutral when an argument ensues between a good friend and a higher-up, one who has the law behind him, or her. Be alert.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) You will get a surprising idea today that will permit you to get into new outlets that will prove very remunerative. But you must get away from the usual associates and friends who are just becoming quite a bore. Expand.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An ideal day to listen attentively to what a well-read person of high ideals has to say. So, be sure you leave behind any Saturday puttering around and get out to the places where you can become inspired for the future. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A day for being with a generous person who can also help you to realize a certain ambition via a novel and interesting method. However, be sure you don't procrastinate and remain at home, lazily.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The wisest thing to do today is to contact a higher-up who is difficult to reach during the busy week and get the backing you desire. Don't scatter your forces or go dashing about willy-nilly. P.M. go out and have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Raise your level of consciousness, now to the worthwhile ideas expounded by good friends who operate on high principles. Steer clear of advisers who have a pessimistic point of view. Make constructive plans for the future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Since you are not thinking very clearly now, be sure you follow the suggestions given one close of kin by a wise expert. Then roll up your sleeves and do the work necessary to carry the matter through. Be altruistic.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get together with associates informally and hear what their ideas and plans are. Resolve to co-operate wholeheartedly and much success can be yours in the future. Put aside any worries you may have - - stewing will do no good.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) While you may be anxious to get out with new and interesting friends today, it is best you first handle any important duties that await you so that you can do so at a later time without any qualms or fears. Be wise - - work!

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . . he, or she, will waver between the old and the new to an alarming degree, so be sure you give the right advice and academic, spiritual and ethical training. Teach that the modern is fine when it is based upon old and tested fundamental ideas, then the chart becomes a most successful one. And also teach that one has to choose a definite course in life and follow from the straight course.

ASK NEW LAWS

TORONTO (CP) — Laws to prohibit employers from hiring replacements for striking employees were proposed to the Ontario government Wednesday by the international railway brotherhoods. A brief to Premier Frost requested amendments to the Labor Relations Act to give workers the right to respect picket lines during a legal strike. The brief also asked for government-operated lotteries for hospital and educational services.

CHILD FOR ADOPTION

WALLY — a serious, well-mannered 9 year old, needs parents and especially a dad, who will love him. Wally is of Polish parentage. He is brown-eyed, dark-haired and healthy. Wally is in Grade two. This youngster yearns for a home in the country. We feel he would develop best where he would be the only child in the family and where his parents were fairly active, patient people about thirty-five to forty years of age. Roman Catholic couples interested in inquiring further about Wally with a view to his adoption should write to:

63,391 Italians Now Waiting To Enter Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—There is a backlog of 63,391 Italians waiting to enter Canada, Immigration Minister Fairclough told the Commons Thursday night.

Almost all of them are sponsored by relatives or other interested parties in Canada, she said during House consideration of the immigration department's 1961-62 spending estimates.

She said the department is checking the sponsors to see whether they wish to continue their sponsorship of the applicants.

At the 1960 rate of entry, it would take about three years to eliminate the backlog. About 21,000 Italians entered Canada last year.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) asked whether some kind of "interim reply" could be sent to those on the waiting list, advising them of the progress of their applications.

Mrs. Fairclough said this would impose an administrative burden that in itself would slow the rate of entry.

TWEED

Kiwanis Club Views Pictures, Presents Gift

TWEED — At the regular meeting of Tweed Kiwanis Club on the evening of February 2nd the Kiwanis were taken on an enjoyable pictorial trip to Ireland, by W.N. Hurst, Hastings County registrar and a former resident of Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurst spent several weeks on the Emerald Isle last year and brought back some beautiful colored photography. In his remarks prior to the presentation, he noted that Ireland is 13 miles from Scotland and 47 miles from England. Its greatest length is 306 miles, and the greatest width is 182 miles. He said that it is divided politically into northern and southern regions.

LEISURE LIFE

The pictures of Dublin were particularly interesting and indicated the liesurely casual life enjoyed by the Irish people.

Immense profits from the Irish sweepstakes help to modernize old hospitals and build new ones. There is a fair amount of unemployment since the farms are too small to sustain two families and the sons must move to the cities to obtain work after they are grown up.

There is a change coming about in the south of Ireland, adding that "with German industry building new factories, along with communities to house employees". The speaker said that Irish people are grateful for the gradually improved living standards with new industry coming in, and the fact that they are able to keep their young people at home, is of more importance than partition or hating the British'.

FREE WORSHIP

Members of all faiths have held office in the government, and Protestants, Jews, and Catholics all worship openly and freely.

Pictures of Killarney Lake area and pastoral rural scenes shown by Mr. Hurst were particularly beautiful.

The speaker was introduced by Thomas Beatty and thanks expressed by Kinsman, Art McCarey.

A. B. Colling, barrister, and former president of Belleville Kiwanis Club and one time resident of Tweed, was a guest of the club for dinner.

PRESENTATION MADE

A presentation to Kiwanian, Edgar Jones, who will be leaving Tweed shortly to make his home in New Zealand, was made by Ed Way on behalf of club members. Mr. Way said, "Casey had been an active and valuable member of the Club and would be greatly missed.

President Keith Cotton was in charge of the meeting.

Sunday School Lesson

Miracle of Christianity

By ROY L. SMITH

There is a disposition in many quarters today, among religious people, to shy away from the question of miracles. We have become so dedicated to the idea of an orderly world that it is adjudged to be unscientific, superstitious, unrealistic or even fantastic if one declares his faith in miracles.

The ancient world, in which the New Testament came into existence, was accustomed to miracle tales. Because the laboratory methods had not yet appeared, and because the critical attitude had not yet developed, even the most intelligent and scholarly accepted the idea of the miraculous as being an ordinary experience. No one questioned miracles. As a matter of fact, unless a religious teacher could point to some "sign" in vindication of his claims there was little chance that he would be accepted. The author of the Fourth Gospel, keenly aware of this sets forth his argument in terms of a long series of "signs". The Sunday school lesson for this week proposes to study one of those— the raising of Lazarus.

THE STRICKEN HOUSEHOLD

Death is no uncommon messenger, and yet he is one to whom we are never able to become reconciled. Only in the rarest of instances, when a loved one has lived to an advanced age, or is stricken with an incurable disease and lies hopeless and helpless, is it possible for us to give even a grudging consent to the appearance of the dread angel.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 19: "The Lord Of Life And Death", John 10 through 11.

We know nothing of the circumstances of Lazarus' death. One gets the impression that he may have been ill no more than a short time. Jesus, apparently, had been unable to get to the bedside of His friend. And now he was dead, the suspense was over, and the friends of the family were crowding about helplessly trying, to express the sympathy which forever eludes expression.

In that dreadful moment there was only one person in all the world who could have spoken the word that would have truly comforted. And He was not there! There is no worse state or condition of life than the combination of loneliness and desolation.

IF YOU HAD BEEN HERE,

When Jesus did appear, finally, four days following the young man's death, Martha greeted Him with dignity and disappointment. "If You had been here", she said, "my brother would not have died". She probably had no idea what Jesus might have done, but she was sure He would have done something!

Let any man make room in his life for Jesus Christ and he has made provision for a change for the better!

ALWAYS A RESURRECTION

The entrance of Jesus into any situation means a lifting up of hope, conscinence, performance, faith and life.

The family that is involved in marital difficulty always experiences a stilling of the storm the moment Jesus is allowed to take charge of the situation. There is a popular saying to the effect that "the family that prays together stays together". And that is true. But it is also true that the family that begins praying together begins growing together.

This is the miracle of Christianity — a miracle to which any person is entitled. Once that Jesus has been invited in as a guest, immediately all the levels of life begin to rise. ..

Federal Income Tax Boost More Likely Than Cut

Revenue Minister Gives Bad News in Interview

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Revenue Minister Nowlan indicated Friday that income tax increases appear more likely than tax cuts.

The minister said in an interview that he can see no economic justification for reducing income tax, and went on to say that "one might even expect a possibility of tax increases."

He acknowledged there are suggestions that tax reductions should be made to stimulate the economy, but said the financial demands on the treasury do not justify tax reductions.

Mr. Nowlan, in London to attend the annual meeting of the London Progressive Conservative Association, said national defence and other demands on the treasury "run into more money than I collect from income taxes."

Asked whether income tax increases should be anticipated, the minister said that in a time when disastrous developments threatened "there is always the possibility of increaed taxes to deal with current emergencies.

ANOTHER DEFICIT AHEAD

"And when you realize the budget deficit which the minister of finance has estimated this year, and add to it the deficit that will undoubtedly be incurred this coming year, I think one might even expect a possibility of tax increases."

Addressing the London Conservatives Mr. Nowlan said that although the Canadian economy is moving ahead, the number of unemployed will "probably be higher before it is reduced."

Canada's population is increasing faster than the demand for our goods, he said.

The increase in the labor force was one of the reasons "why we have the paradox of a . . . disturbingly high level of unemployment and at the same time a record aggregate of economic activity. The labor force is getting larger more quickly than jobs are becoming available for these new workers."

Most of the successful industries were still primary industries which did not absorb the extra labor force coming onto the market.

"Only secondary industry, with the processing of raw materials, provides the employment opportunities to take care of the rapidly expanding number of job-seekers. . .

Claim Revolt Brewing Among Congo Leftists

By PATRICK MASSEY

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu's government claimed today a revolt is brewing in the armed forces of leftist rebels. Military sources here said the rebel regime is behind in payments to their troops.

Maj.-Gen. Joseph Mobutu, Congo army commander, was reported to have received offers of support from military camps in rebel-held Oriental Province if he can reach them.

The Leopoldville government tightened its blockade of the western borders of Oriental and neighboring Kivu provinces, cutting off supplies and preventing sale of that region's valuable cotton and palm oil exports for the Stanleyville regime to pay soldiers and civil servants.

One Western diplomat says the picture of rebel chaos and confusion could completely change overnight if the leftists get the support of The Sudan, leading into the northeast where Stanleyville is located.

WOULD OPEN ROUTE

Sudanese support for the Stanleyville government of Communist-trained Antoine Gizenga would clear a path for arms and supplies to flow to the rebels from the United Arab Republic, a staunch supporter of his regime.

So far The Sudan has refused to let planes fly overhead or trucks roll through its territory to the Congolese frontier.

(In Cairo, Egypt, an official of the Stanleyville regime denied getting any aid from the U.A.R.

("The U.A.R. has not yet helped us materially and we have not violated other territories," said Fall Salmone, in charge of Gizenga's diplomatic mission in Cairo.

(Salmone denied that Gizenga is a Communist, saying: "We are nationalists.").

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: An active disturbance moving northeastward has spread rain, snow and freezing rain to the western Great Lakes region. The precipitation will move into Southern Ontario this morning, occurring as rain in southern regions and snow in northern regions with an area of freezing rain and sleet in between. There is a probability of four to eight inches of fresh snow over Central Ontario before the snow ends tonight.

Suggests India Be Trustee Over the Congo

HAMILTON (CP) — Lester Pearson suggested Friday that India take the lead in establishing a form of trusteeship over The Congo.

The Liberal leader and Nobel Prize winner told a press conference it will be up to the world's non-whites to take the initiative in solving the Congo crisis.

"If a white power moved in, its motives would be under suspicion and there would be trouble," he said.

Most Labor Leaders Approve Plan For Unions, Firms to Reveal Facts

TORONTO (CP) — Labor union leaders Friday night provided a mixed but generally favorable reaction to the federal government's proposed legislation requiring international unions and foreign - controlled firms to disclose their financial positions and other vital statistics.

George Hutcheon, Canadian director of the International Union of Electrical Workers (CLC) said he approves of the legislation in that it requires Canadian subsidiaries of foreign firms to make public financial details they have been withholding.

"I'd just love to see some of these financial statements," he said, "especially the ones of such large companies as Canadian General Electric and Canadian Westinghouse."

Murray Cotterill, Canadian public relations director of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said his union is already making a much fuller disclosure of its financial status than any law could require.

"I believe both the members of our union and the general public are entitled to the fullest possible knowledge of the financial operations of our union," he said. "I only wish corporations with which we deal would report their financial affairs in as great a detail."

Jerry Hartford, public relations director for the United Auto Workers Union (CLC), said the union has no objection to the proposed requirements if they apply equally to international corporations.

Mr. Hartford said the UAW already publishes detailed financial statements on the international, Canadian and local levels.

But John Bruce, general organizer in Canada for the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the plumbing and pipe fitting industry of the United States and Canada (CLC), said the legis-

NATIONAL FLAG DEBATE IS INCONCLUSIVE

Discussion Did Not Come to Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons debated inconclusively Friday a bill whereby the Canadian government would be charged with the responsibility for choosing a distinctive national flag.

The bill, a private member's measure sponsored by Samuel Boulanger (L—Drummond - Arthabaska), did not come to a vote in the hour devoted to private members' bills. It now goes to the bottom of the list of such bills with little change of coming up again this session.

It was the second bill dealing with a national flag to have been debated this session. The first, introduced by John Smith (PC—Lincoln), also was talked out. It provided for a heraldic method of choosing a national flag.

WANTS INDIANS HELPED

Canada's Indian population should be given a chance to plead its own case in the House of Commons, a Conservative MP suggested.

Murray McFarlane, member for Kootenay East, proposed that Indians be allowed to elect five members to bring their problems directly to the floor of the House.

It seemed "ridiculous" for MPs to bring the difficulties of Indians to Parliament when the Indians themselves could speak from experience. The government should move to have established five special electoral districts for Indians only.

Mr. McFarlane spoke during Commons debate on spending estimates of the Indian Affairs branch, which comes under the wing of the citizenship department. Members ranged over a wide assortment of Indian problems.

James Speakman (PC — Wetaskiwin) suggested that a force of Indian constables be formed to prevent the illegal sale of liquor on reservations.

He said there is an "infestation" of white and half - breed people around reservations who make their living from liquor sales to Indians.

CRITICIZES RCMP

Jack Wratten (PC — Brantford) said policing of the Six Nations Indian reservation near Brantford is supposed to be the job of the RCMP, but the provincial police are getting stuck for more and more of the work.

There was an RCMP detachment of three or four men on the reservation but any police calls went to the OPP in Brantford.

It takes the OPP 12 to 15 miles of travel just to get to the centre of the reservation, Mr. Wratten said. This meant a delay in law enforcement.

The RCMP "certainly needs a jolt" as to its work at the Six Nations reserve, he said.

Mr. Wratten also said there is need of a fire department on the reservation.

USO FOUNDER DIS

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP)—Edward J. Parker, 91, former national commander of the Salvation Army and one of the founders of the United Service Organization (USO), died Thursday at the retired officers' residence. He served the Salvation Army a total of 58 years including supervision of all its activities during the war.

Labor Head Scoffs

Management Sitting Down With Labor Called Dream

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The federal government is "living in a dream world" if it expects industry to get together voluntarily with labor and discuss economic problems, David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said today.

Labor Minister Starr and Trade Minister Hees have said the federal government has done everything possible to solve the unemployment problems and now it is up to industry and labor, Mr. Archer said in an address to the federation's annual education conference.

"If Mr. Starr or Mr. Hees thinks management is going to sit down voluntarily with labor to discuss productivity, wages, methods of production and so on, they must be living in a dream world. . .

"I would commend to Mr. Starr some of the Northern Ontario properties where union organizers can't even get past the armed guards to enter public property in order to talk to employees. Does he imagine these companies are suddenly going to have a change of heart and invite the unions to discuss with them the economic problem of Canada?"

Mr. Archer said the federation, which last weekend held a study conference in Toronto on unemployment, plans to compile a brief "covering those things which we feel the provincial government can do to create new jobs and to assist those people who now are on public welfare."

The brief, when organized, would be presented to Premier Frost.

The federation hopes within the next year or so an "extensive, worth while" re - training program would be developed in most Ontario urban centres.

Mr. Archer said certain matters arising from new labor legislation enacted in Ontario about a year ago indicate unions are "headed for trouble."

Among them he cited:

The continued efforts of management to whittle down bargaining units to exclude as many categories as possible from trade union membership;

"The effect of the 'free speech captive audience' clause in a new legislation."

He did not elaborate.

Germany Agrees to Assist U.S. to Aid Needy Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Foreign Minister Henrich Von Brentano took off for home today after giving President Kennedy pretty much what he wanted in the way of German contributions to aid for underdeveloped countries.

Reversing the previous German position, Brentano agreed that Germany would help underdeveloped nations on a permanent basis. He indicated that this aid would total about $1,000,000,000 a year, although he made no commitments on the figure.

Previously the Germans had offered a one-shot one-year deal of less than $1,000,000,000.

Kennedy was reported by press secretary Pierre Salinger to feel the new offer was satisfactory and "had the effect of clearing the atmosphere."

The U.S. has asked West Germany to take over more of the load of aid to poorer nations as a means of helping stop the heavy drain on U.S. gold-and-dollar reserves. With West Germany doing its part, the U.S. would not have to spend so much abroad.

The beclouded relations between the two NATO allies over this matter began in the closing days of the Eisenhower administration.

Eisenhower's treasury secretary, Robert Anderson, made a hurried trip to Bonn last November and laid down substantial demands for German aid contributions. He was offered far less than he wanted and the mission was regarded by some as a failure. Critics said Anderson did not do enough diplomatic groundwork first.

After Kennedy took office the Germans again made similar offers. Much of the amount would have been in repayments of old debts to the United States and prepayments of German purchases of American arms—money which the United States would get eventually anyway.

But last week Kennedy told his press conference the German proposals "do not meet the problem or the opportunity."

This candid language surprised the Germans, and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer asked Brentano to try a fresh approach with Kennedy.

After meeting with Kennedy at the White House Friday, a joint communique was issued. It said the president "heard with satisfaction that the federal (West German) government will be prepared to provide the necessary means to carry on its program for the underdevelooed countries in future years."

International Corporations, Unions Must Open Books

OTTAWA (CP)— The government Friday unveiled new legislation to compel international corporations and trade unions to disclose details of their finances, control and business operations in this country.

The legislation, given first reading in the Commons, is aimed chiefly at foreign companies and international unions.

It requires them to file a wide range of financial and other information with the government.

And for $1 a company or union, anyone will be able to browse through the information.

The new act contains a stiff penalty clause for business or labor officials who violate its provisions, including personal fines and up to three months in jail.

Introducing the legislation Friday, Justice Minister Fulton said:

"This is legislation that was forecast in the speech from the throne to compel the disclosure of certain important essentials as to the details of their operations by corporations and trade unions carrying on activities in Canada which may be controlled from outside Canada."

The new statistics are expected to fill a void in what is known about financial controls and operations in Canada of unions and companies with headquarters outside the country.

This, an informed source suggested, could lead to further government action — although what this action may be has never been spelled out.

One result of the legislation may be to force some international companies with operations in Canada to establish a genuinely Canadian company — thus voiding the provisions of the bill.

Daily Mirror Boosts Offer for Odhams Press

LONDON (Reuters) — The Daily Mirror group Friday increased its offer to take over Odhams press by about £5,000,000 ($14,000,000), thus enormously increasing its chances of winning control of the £50,000,000 ($140,000,000) newspaper-magazine combine.

In a new offer, Mirror chairman Cecil King valued each of the 12,000,000 Odhams shares at 63s 4d ($8.87) against their market price about 52s ($7.28).

The Odhams board, led by Chairman Sir Christopher Chancellor, last week advised the 15,000 shareholders to reject an earlier Mirror offer equivalent to £32,000,000 ($89,600,000).

The board claimed advantages for its proposed merger with Canadian publisher Roy Thomson's £27,000,000 ($375,600,000) British group.

Business circles said victory for King now seems certain unless Chancellor comes up with a major new move.

King's first offer was nine Mirror ordinary shares for every two Odhams. The latest is a five-to-one offer.

At stake in the battle are Odhams' two national newspapers, 150 magazines and numerous books. The Daily Mirror group, another £50,000,000 ($140,000,000) empire, publishes 130 newspapers and magazines and 200 annuals.

U.S. AIR FORCE DOUBLY PLEASED WITH SATELLITE

Will Have Long Life in Orbit

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. Air Force was doubly pleased today about the orbit achieved by the latest Discoverer satellite, No. 20 in the durable series.

First, the 2,430-pound satellite is the heaviest in the series so far, outweighing previous Discoverers by 750 pounds. Second, despite its weight, the perigee or low point of its orbit is 201 miles — highest of any Discoverer. A more powerful engine accomplished this.

The higher perigee is indicative of a long life for the satellite.

The Discoverer XX projectile, 81 feet in length, soared into a cloudless sky at 12:28 p.m. Friday and two hours later the air force confirmed that its second stage was in polar orbit.

CARRIES CAPSULE

The satellite, now making a pass every 95 minutes, carried a 300-pound recoverable capsule of the type that next month is expected to house a space-travelling monkey. The monkey will sample hazards man will encounter during an extended period in orbit.

The current bell-shaped capsule has a distinction, too: If all goes well it will be ejected after four days in orbit.

The plan is for automatic ejection over Alaska. Cargo planes will attempt to snag its parachute as it drifts down over the target area near Hawaii.

Discoverer XVIII, launched Dec. 7, held its capsule three days—the longest so far. It was the third capsule to be caught in the air. A fourth was recovered from the ocean.

Discoverer XX, longer by six feet than its predecessors, was boosted by an improved Thor medium-range missile burning a more powerful fuel.

The satellite's highest point in orbit is 400 miles above the earth.

Board Accused Of Violating Press Freedom

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald Friday accused the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board of violating freedom of the press.

Mr. MacDonald told a farm meeting sponsored by the Halton New Party committee that the Ontario Hog Marketing Board has to seek permission from the Farm Products Board, a government agency, to spend money to publish its own newspaper.

"The Farm Products Marketing Board has clearly intimated that if the newspaper is critical of the government or its regulations, they may be denied the right to spend funds in this manner," Mr. MacDonald said.

Mr. MacDonald called it "an unbelievable abuse of arbitrary powers, violating freedom of the press."

ASK FOR RAISE

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London high school teachers have asked the board of education for a $300 across-the-board increase and uniform $200 increments that would raise most teachers' salaries by $600 next fall. The request will be discussed at a meeting next Wednesday of representatives of the board and the teachers.

Northern Rhodesia Parley Called Comic Opera by Negro Politicians

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan conferred with senior cabinet ministers today on the bitter windup of a three-week conference on the future status of Northern Rhodesia.

Negro political leaders termed the conference a "comic opera." Kenneth Kaunda of the United National Independence Party and Harry Nkumbula of the African National Congress issued a joint statement at the end of the talks Friday night saying the conference ended in "complete deadlock."

The Negro delegates asked for a meeting with Macmillan before Colonial Secretary Ian Macleod discloses outlines of a new constitution for the central African protectorate in Parliament Monday.

Macmillan called in Foreign Secretary Lord Home, Lord Chancellor Viscount Kilmuir, Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys and Macleod, who presided at the constitutional conference. The prime minster discussed whether or not to meet the Nationalists.

The representatives of the 2,500,000 Negroes in Northern Rhodesia were angered because the British government is reportd to have shifted ground during the conference.

The British government first indicated it would allow an African majority in the Northern Rhodesian legislature, they say.

Give Afro-Asian Congo Motion 50-50 Chance

Veto, Assembly Session Seen if U.S. Changes It

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Leaders from Asia and Africa pressed the Security Council today to bolster the United Nations' hand in The Congo. The move could leave the Soviet bloc alone in its efforts to force the UN out of the strife-torn country.

Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic pushed a resolution that would authorize the UN to use force if need be to head off civil war in the infant African state. They claimed widespread support in Asia and Africa.

But the resolution faced major hurdles that raised the possibility of an emergency General Assembly session. The aim of the proposal received support from the United States — with reservations. Chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson told reporters Friday night he was doubtful about some provisions but that "it offers a basis for negotiations."

The U.S. was reported urging that the resolution be broadened to give specific support to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and Congo President Joseph Kasavubu.

SEE RED VETO

Such a change would almost certainly provoke a veto from Russia which has denounced Kasavubu as a traitor and called for Hammarskjold's dismissal. The Russians are demanding an end of the whole UN operation in The Congo within a month.

One diplomat said the resolution has an even chance of council approval—if the U.S. votes for it and Russia abstains.

Should it run into a veto, an emergency session of the 99-nation assembly would almost certainly follow in 24 hours. Guinea and Yugoslavia have said they would seek one.

If the resolution should fall by abstention, no emergency session would be possible under the rules and further Congo action would have to await the assembly's resumed 1960 session beginning March 7.

A Soviet resolution before the council seeking to scuttle the UN Congo command has no chance of passing.

The Soviet government said Tuesday that it would no longer deal with Hammarskjold and and wanted him fired, charging he was "an organizer of an participant in" the killing of deposed Congo premier Patrice Lumumba.

The resolution further urged immediate withdrawal of all Belgians from The Congo, called on all countries to keep military personnel from going there, provided for an impartial investigation of Lumumba's death and reaffirmed previous council decisions on The Congo.

Meanwhile, protest demonstrations against Lumumba's death continued abroad.

Some 2,000 Indonesian students stormed the U.S. and Belgian embassies in Jakarta today, burning some furniture and breaking windows.

In Pakistan, about 5,000 students of Karachi University paraded.

They carried placards saying: "We stand by Africa." and "Down with the United Nations."

Snow or Rain Is Forecast For Weekend

TORONTO (CP) — Snow or half an inch of rain is forecast for Toronto and most of the province for this weekend, with a high possibility of rain, changing to snowflurries, by tonight.

Malton airport is expected to operate normally but two Trans-Canada Air Line flights to Windsor were cancelled Friday because of bad visibility there.

In the Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie regions fog patches reduced visibility to a bare minimum.

More than 60 Toronto residents were injured and taken to hospital Friday after falling on icy streets and similar conditions on Manitoulin Island and at Espanola caused traffic holdups, accidents and power blackouts.

Three Florida Residents Get $104,000 Estate

CHATHAM (CP)—Three Florida residents, formerly of Chatham, have been declared heirs to an estimated $104,000 residue of the estate of Dr. James Rutherford who died here in 1939.

Ontario Supreme Court Justice Dalton Wells ruled Friday the money should be divided equally between Mrs. Ruby Fay Rutherford Whitcomb and her children, James T. Rutherford and Mrs. Mary Ellen Zipprer.

He denied a claim brought by Mrs. Beatrice Rutherford of Chatham, second wife of the doctor's son, James Taylor Rutherford.

James Taylor Rutherford and Mrs. Whitcomb were divorced in 1958. Both remarried.

The wealthy doctor had specified in his will that, on the death of his wife, his estate was to be divided equally between his son and daughter, with the former's portion held in trust for the support, maintenance and education of the Rutherfords and their children.

Mr. Justice Wells ruled that the wife referred to was Mrs. Whitcomb, married to Rutherford when the will was made.

James Warren Rutherford died last October.

Old 'Receipt' Book

1829-1850 Edition Reveals Information "In all the useful and domestic arts"

By GEO. H. CARVER

It seems around the 1830's tea was not the popular drink it became some years later.

An excerpt from the Receipt Book says, "in consequence of the injurious effects on the stomach and nervous system produced by the leaves of oriental shrub imported into this country under the name of 'tea' mixtures of British herbs have been recommended as a substitute for tea and coffee for breakfast and an evening repast."

In fact the good housewives of those days didn't bother the neighbors when they ran short of tea. The horse-stable was a good provider. What they called native tea was "the infusion of good well-made meadow hey in boiling water in the manner of tea. About three quarters of an ounce for three persons is a beverage for the fasting and evening refection, as much superior to the dried leaves of China as gold is superior to lead".

Or she could "take the heels of unfolded petals of the red rose dried, with rosemary leaves and balm leaves, mix, infuse" and she was ready for the afternoon croquet club.

TRY THIS, NEW YEARS

As a pick-me-up the good hostess of those days could take" one pound of ants, four pounds boiling water, infuse for three hours, strain" and lo, she had an excellent stimulant.

If she ran out of coffee, especially the kind best suitable for the man of the house, she ground sassafras nuts. This, the receipt claims, made not only excellent coffee, but was an excellent article of diet for rheumatic, gouty and asthmatic invalids".

And if the good lady was really" stuck for coffee she used the "rasping of bread-crust, gained by rubbing the crust with a grater. Put the powder into water, boil it for a few minutes and it will be fit for use".

Or she could "roast any quantity of horse beans in a clean frying pan over a clear fire till they begin to darken in color, then add small pieces of honey, stirring all the while. Take them off the fire and to each quart of beans add an ounce of cassia nuts. Stir till cool, then grind."

She could dry yellow beet roots or acorns, grind them, add sugar and milk, and the coffee was ready.

If the family was on a diet she "boiled a dessert spoonful of coffee in a pint of milk, added a shaving or two of isinglass and cleared it, let it boil a few minutes and set it aside to fine. This is a fine breakfast if sweetened with real Lisbon sugar."

"A LITTLE DAB'LL DO YUH"

They had bald heads in those days, too — and they did something about it. The boys of the thinning pates, "took of honey, four pounds, very dry sand, two pounds, mix and put in a vessel that will hold five times as much. Distill with a gentle heat a yellowish acid water. This acid greatly encourages the growth of hair."

And there were no fancy gadgets for fly-killing. No sticky tapes or the modern swatter. If the flies became too numerous for comfort the lady of the house "took half a teaspoonful of black pepper in powder, one teaspoon of brown sugar, mixed well and placed the mixture on a plate in the fly-specked room." The flies generally disappeared.

Shortage of milk or cream did not bother the lady of the house. If caught short she followed this receipt: "Beat up the whole of a fresh egg and then pour boiling tea over it gradually to prevent it from curdling. It is difficult from the taste to distinguish the composition from rich cream."

If she had any warning of a barnyard strike on the part of the egg-laying sorority she followed this receipt for the preservation of eggs—"Apply with a brush a solution of gum arabic to the shells or immerse the eggs therein. Let them dry and afterwards pack them in dry charcoal dust. This prevents their being affected by any alteration of temperature."

Or if the strike threatened to be a lengthy one she resorted to this "receipt": "Mix together in a tub, or vessel, one bushel Winchester measure quick lime, 32 ounces of salt, eight ounces cream of tartar and as much water as will reduce the mixture to a composition that will float an egg. Then put, and keep the eggs therein, which will preserve them perfectly sound for two years."

Nobody died of an overdose of sleeping pills in those days. They had a simple remedy for insomnia. "Pour a pint of boiling water on an ounce of Epsom salts. Let it cool and drink it on going to bed. If still disturbed count from 1 to 1,000. Sleep will generally come on before the person has reached 500." That could be, but it seems to me this remedy, what with the outside plumbing, would be conducive to sleep-walking.

And don't let anyone tell you nudism is new. The folks of those days didn't go in for outdoor camps and places like that but they did practise a few birthday-suit rites in private.

For the Receipt Book says: "All persons should use the air bath for a short time every day and enjoy the salubrious influence of that universal agent. A doctor informs us that every morning at daybreak, he got out of bed and passed a half-hour in his chamber writing or reading without any clothes and this, he adds, seems rather pleasant than otherwise."

Michael J. Hunt, Read, Honored On 89th Birthday

Michael Joseph Hunt, octogenarian of Read, was feted on the occasion of his 89 birthday on Friday, February 10th by his relatives and host of friends. A lifelong resident of the Raed community, his happy and amiable disposition had won for him the respect and affection of all his neighbors. Four of his six children reside in this area, while two sons are in Western Canada. His wife died several years ago. Still quite active and alert, he thoroughly enjoyed the card games and square dancing, as did the eighty-five guests present. Mr. Larry Byrne delighted all with the wit and humor of his manner of "Calling Off" for the square dancing. A delicious party lunch was served, with this fine old patriarch happily cutting his birthday cake.

Irwin McCoy, Marmora, President of Hog Producers

Well known throughout the county for his interest in agricultural organization and in municipal affairs, Mr. Irwin McCoy of Marmora township was named president of the Hastings County Hog Producers at their annual meeting yesterday at Huntingdon township hall.

Close to 100 county hog producers attended the annual conclave which saw Roy Sills, head of the county organization in recent years, step down from the presidency. Arthur Bates of Hungerford township was named vice-president, while Ross Moorcroft of Madoc continues as secretary treasurer.

Mr. Phil Flagler, farm editor for radio station CJBQ was the main speaker of the afternoon.

Speaking generally on farm marketing, Mr. Flagler said that in his opinion farm marketing boards were a good thing in that for the first time in history they gave the primary producer the opportunity of controlling the sale of his product.

He cautioned, however, that these same marketing boards must do their job wisely and well and not be tempted to take unfair advantage of the situation and suggested if they do attempt to take advantage to establish a combine the consumer in the long run would be the judge and jury.

Turning to agricultural public relations, the speaker suggested that farm organizations take the positive approach and work from the angle that a good offence is the best defence.

MANY SPEAKERS

"Tell the good side of the story", he urged, 'and don't worry too much about your critics".

'Every worthwhile organization has those who oppose it, otherwise there would be no need for the existence of the organization".

Other speakers heard during the afternoon included Clare Curtin, of Lindsay, director at large for the Ontario Hog Producers, and Pat Dickey, Toronto, secretary of the Farmers' Allied Meat Enterprizes.

Mr. Curtin said that in the very near future Hastings county farmers would be given the opportunity to purchase shares in the Allied Meat Enterprizes. This co-operative organization the aim of which is to set up packing houses across the province, is offering shares on a quota basis in the various counties.

The meeting was chaired by last year's president Roy Sills who told his members that the hog producers were not fighting the government.

"We are just trying to avoid being pushed off the edge", he said.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Agricultural Representative Sidney McDonald of Stirling, conducted the election of officers and addressed the meeting on the importance of hog producers improving their stock by the use of purebred sires.

Township directors are as follows:

Sidney — Griffin Ketcheson and Don Vardy; Thurlow — Harvey Homan and Allan Lott; Tyendinaga — Charles Long and Orley Glass; Huntingdon—Ross Sills and Elmer Wood; Hungerford — Lincoln Elliott and Arthur Bates; Marmora—Irwin McCoy and Wilbur Jones; Madoc — Dennis Chapman and Wilfred Forestell; Elzevir — Arthur Robinson.

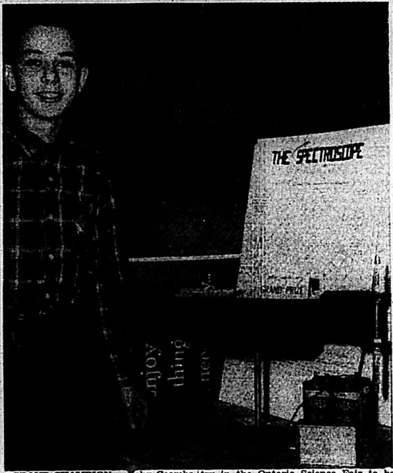
SCIENCE FAIR — Viewing an attractive exhibit in the Quinte District Science Fair at Moira Secondary School are Margaret Houston and Mary Beth Follwell (left to right). Miss Houston won a first award with her gold exhibit in the metallurgy section. The project they are viewing depicts the progress of aviation during the past sixty years.



GRAND CHAMPION — John Coombs, a grade ten student at BCIVS, is shown above operating his spectroscope, which will be the local science fair's official entry in the Ontario Science Fair to be held in Toronto in the near future. It placed as the top of over 60 exhibits entered.

Science Fair, Open House At Moira School Enjoyed

A spectroscope entered by John Coombs of BCIVS won the grand champion award at the Quinte District Science Fair held at the Moira Secondary School yesterday afternoon and evening. The piece of analytical apparatus was awarded top marks by the three judges, Dr. H. Welch, Phil Flagler and Mr. J. Gr t, and will be the officially sponsored entry at the Ontario Science Fair to be held in Toronto.

A large number of persons were in attendance both for the fair and for the "open house" being conducted by Moira Secondary School at the same time.

There were 63 entries to vie for the judges' favor. Indeed, these gentlemen were kept quite busy from Friday morning until well into the afternoon making their decisions. Such entries as a cloud chamber and a steam engine, both operative and both built by the students who entered them, made the judges' selection of first awards and the grand champion a difficult task.

The entries were judged by their creative ability, that is their originality in plan and execution, the fashion in which they expressed or communicated their idea or theme; scientific thought, that is the amount of analysis, reasoning, observation, syntheses and accuracy shown by the student in his exhibit; the thoroughness with which the student has presented his theme whilst, at the same time, being concise; clarity and dramatic value, that is the attractiveness and neatness of the exhibit and its ability to hold the viewer's attention; and the technical skill displayed in the handling, preparation and mounting of the material.

Aside from the grand champion winner, the awards made were (according to class and place): general physics — Beverly Davis, Ed Purdy; electronics—Ted Demorest, Cecil Hiuser and Vickey Courneyea (tie); nuclear science — Dwight Neddow, Robert Daley; chemistry — Donna Large, Stuart Godden; botany — Iris MacLean, Vincent Miller; zoology — John Miller, Gavin Semple; health —Ellen Vincent, Karen Bateman; geography and physiography — James Pickering, David Craig; engineering — Hans Stieda, Arthur Alyea and Robert Rollinson (tie); metallurgy — Margaret Houston; industrial design, John Coombs, Bill Buchan; machine design — John Person.

TRAIN KILLS BOY

TORONTO (CP) — Edward Glina, 23, was killed Friday when struck by a train in the suburban Mimico CNR yards. It is believed Glina, who escaped Thursday from the Ontario Hospital near the yards, was struck by a train while he was watching trains being shunted.

Many Starving For Words of Appreciation

District Governor Jim Clarke of Campbellford told the Belleville Lions Club Thursday night that the best contribution one can make toward bettering the world is oneself.

"Opportunities to give of ourselves are all about us, opportunities that are waiting for us to discover and transform into action," he said.

All of us, regardless of who we are, or where we are, or what we do, have golden opportunities to give literally of ourselves in ways that will enrich the lives of those we come in contact with"

People from all walks of life, from the humblest to the proudest, actually hunger for sincere expressions of approval.

Too often we are inclined to think that prominent people are besieged with compliments, yet the truth in most cases is that they are only eating the crumbs and that they are starving for words of sincere appreciation."

Mr. Clarke asked the club members if they were giving enough of themselves.

Guests of the club were Rabbi Deustch, Rev. McGee and Rev. Riesberry.

Sgt. E. Smith, Napanee, Dies In Arizona

NAPANEE (CP)—Sgt. Everett Smith, chief of the provincial police detachment here, died in Arizona during leave of absence, it was learned Friday.

Sgt. Smith, 56, had sought relief in the southern climate from an asthmatic condition.

A native of Napanee, he joined the force 34 years ago and was stationed at Bowmanville and Belleville before taking over his hometown detachment about 15 years ago. During his service here the police patrol grew from a two-man detachment to 10 men.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Edith Smith, and a sister in Napanee; a daughter, Mrs. C A. Hallpike of Peterborough and a son, William, with the RCMP in British Columbia.

World Day of Prayer Held At St. Thomas' Anglican Church

Thousand of Christians gathered yesterday in every continent over the whole world to observe the World Day of Prayer. In Belleville the service was observed in St. Thomas' Anglican Church with Mrs. B. Feather as leader, who gave the call to worship which was followed by the hymn, "Forward Through the Ages."

Other leaders from the five various churches taking part in the service were: Mrs. T. Colden representing the Bridge St. United Church; Mrs. Barlow—St. Andrew's Presbyterian; Mrs. T. A. Mitchell—Parkdale Baptist; Mrs. A. Skinner — Bethel Chapel and Major Hart of the Salvation Army.

In former years all churches of the city were represented at this one particular service, but it was decided it would be a much better arrangement to have five different denominations represented each year.

The World Day of Prayer originated in 1887 when a few consecrated women inaugurated a Day of Prayer for missions which grew in the minds and hearts of women's groups, not only in their own country, but in many lands. From the United States the observance moved to Canada in 1920, and on to Europe and the United Kingdom. The 'Day' seemed to move on the wings of prayer. Christian friends took the service to Latin America, Asia, Africa and to the islands of the sea until in 1927 the observance became world-wide.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the afternoon was the Rev. Miss Nancy White, assistant of Wesleyan Methodist Church, who based her searching talk in keeping with the theme, "Forward Through the Ages In Unbroken Line" and the purpose, of The World Day of Prayer. She stressed the fact that prayer is the greatest power on earth and that Jesus spent all night in prayer before choosing His 12 disciples, as He felt keenly the need of the hour. He instructed Peter, James and John to watch and pray, but three times He found them sleeping. James was killed by Herod, and Peter put in prison, but through prayer God sent an angel and delivered Peter. "We, too, can go forward in prayer, time spent in prayer is not lost time." The observance of The World Day of Prayer has spread to 140 countries, each of them using the same songs, the same theme, and declared that this only proved that this service for women, had gone forward. "The Master has given us the responsibilities to pray, but not for material things alone."

Following the address, the offering which was dedicated by Major Hart, of the Salvation Army, was received by the following, who were the ushers; Mrs. C. Coleman, Mrs. R. Coloumbe, Mrs. T. Simpson and Mrs. S. E. Morton. During the service Mr. D. Davenport presided at the organ.

The offering is sent to the Inter-Church Council of Canada for work in spreading the gospel throughout the many regions of the world.

The service concluded with the singing of the hymn "The day thou gavest Lord, is ended", and the Benediction, "God of the Years, we pray for all Thy family upon earth Hasten the day when all shall be together ,in helpfulness and love. From the rising of the Sun to its going down, inspire us with Thy love, guide us by Thy Spirit and receive us in Thy mercy, now and always, Amen".

A freezing rain was falling at the time.

Damage to his car was estimated at $300.

Don't Involve Your Children In Argument

TRENTON — Flying Officer Edwin Weddell, speaking to members of the Trenton and District Association for Retarded Children Thursday night, said that parents quite often worry unnecessarily about children reading comic books which depict violence or watching "blood and thunder" westerns on the television screen.

He said that children should be led away from such books or programs without becoming involved in an emotional argument with their parents. Some comic books and television programs which parents might consider a bad influence actually made little impression on the child, he said.

The attendance at the general meeting of the association was good. The next regular meeting will be held in Brighton at which time the fact-finding committee, now engaged in comparing costs, etc., of building a now school for retarded children of this area or trying to find accommodation for the class, will report to the members.

Now, an all-day class is held in a North Trenton school classroom, with John Waunters as teacher and a half-day class is supervised by Mrs. Robert Smithrim in her own home. Mrs. Smithrim has asked for vounteer workers to assist with the afternoon class

Again this year, the Knights of Columbus have permitted the association to run bingos in their hall Wednesday nights during Lent. Proceeds will go to the association's work with retarded children

TRENTON—Members of the Legion Branch, 110, have shovelled off a large square on the bay behind the Beaver Lumber Company and have invited children to use it as a free skating rink.

Rain put a damper on skating activities yesterday, but it is hoped that the weekend will see activity on the rink.

O'GRADY REMANDED

KINGSTON (CP) — Michael Joseph O'Grady was remanded Friday to Feb. 24 on a charge of murdering his wife, Verna Irene, found shot in the chest last Jan. 28.

Junior Farmers Hear Address

A talk on "Genetics" by associate agricultural representative Gibson Patterson of Stirling featured the February meeting of the Sidney township Junior Farmers held last week.

Criticism on the type of club programs offered last year was heard following roll call. Barbara Mallory reviewed past programs and compared them with events lined up for this year's program.

The group sing-song was led by Wayne Campbell, with Marilyn Phillips at the piano. A social period was enjoyed following by the serving of lunch by the hosts and hostesses.

Brotherhood Week Feb. 19—25

By REV. CANON A. S. McCONNELL
President, Belleville Ministerial Association

It seems natural that one must link up Brotherhood Week with one's religion whatever it may be. Surely if one cannot find a purity of brotherhood in the faith in which we worship God, there is little hope of finding it in a material world.

In war days when many of us were serving in a war area, our job was one of deliverance. As we brought freedom to each nation we saw the effects of a ruthless regime in which there had been not brotherhood but hatred and brutality. Yet most of us will agree that there came from those war days, for us, an upsurge of brotherhood and comradeship which ignored race, color or creed and has never been quite equalled in civilian life.

Men down through the centuries have called on their God for deliverance. The long search of the Hebrew peoples for God culminates in the noble words of the Shema "Hear, O Israel, The Lord our God is one Lord . . . ." And in their long sad history, more saddened in these modern times, they still call on God for help and deliverance. How many of us remember that out of Judaism have come the high ethical values by which we should live today?

So too the Negro also turned to his God for deliverance from the terror and brutality that wrenched him from his African home, and in a growing modern intolerance he still continues to fight for the rights that should be his today.

It is a sad reflection on those of us who are Christian that so much of world prejudice and lack of brotherhood is to be found among those who profess the Christian faith.

The truth is that we have not learned to love one another as Christ loved us. It is only as we learn to love each other in this sense that we earn the right to be called Christians.

We in Canada pride ourselves that we live in a country in which equal justice is meted out to all our people. We need no glib slogans or trite statements to hang up in our school rooms or halls of justice to remind us of this fact. We can only remain a great people in the sight of God if, today, and in the years to come, we continue to maintain equal rights and privileges for all our citizens, so that, be they Jew or Gentile, colored or white, Roman Catholic or Protestant, they should continue to live together in harmony and brotherhood. Surely that is the meaning of brotherhood week for us.

Market Good Business

Belleville citizens, as well as residents of the surrounding rural districts, will welcome the assurance given at this week's City Council meeting that no move is afoot to discontinue the farmers' market on the local market square.

Misgivings arose as the result of the decision to close the inside market, because of the need for additional space for the City Hall staff.

This, though, is certainly no reason to discontinue the outside market. Belleville is fortunate to be situated in one of the province's three best garden districts—the others are the Niagara Peninsula and the Windsor district. In season, the outside market provides local residents with an opportunity to purchase produce which is fresh from the field, direct from the growers. Not even the most efficient handling and the most rapid transportation can provide vegetables and fruits which match those offered at the market for freshness. It would be a sorry state of affairs if modern mass production methods were to force Belleville folk to buy the oduce of local farms only after it was canned.

There is, of course, the additional advantage he market serves to bring rural residents to do their shopping here, while from point of the farmers the market gives opportunity to sell at retail, rather sale, prices.

Two Sides on Coyne

Toronto Telegram

At a time when more than eight per cent. of Canada's labor force is out of work, the Governor of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne, is going about the country raising the specter of inflation.

To those less versed in economics than the Governor of the Bank of Canada, inflation results from too much money chasing too few goods. This is not the case today. It has not been the case for the last two years.

How can you tell a man standing in a bread line today that the danger threatening him is inflation?

Mr. Coyne argues that no price is too high to pay for achieving full employment. But he prescribes government controls in rigid form rather than monetary expansion. In this he fails to carry the community.

Mr. Coyne should be combating deflation, a continuing and increasingly high level of unemployment, with not enough money chasing too many goods. The way to beat this is by getting people back to work. Only then can they earn the wages and have the power to purchase things they need and cannot buy.

There is no question where the people of Canada stand on this issue. To them, unemployment is not a matter of statistics: it is a matter of human and social need. After sickness or death, no worse disaster can befall a man and his family than loss of gainful employment.

If inflation helped make possible the growth of the years 1946-56, then 98 per cent. of Canadians would choose inflation rather than stagnation.

Keeping people at work, keeping the economy rolling is the prime responsibility of government in time of peace. It can do this, without massive pump-priming, by assisting private industry in creating new jobs.

One major deterrent to sound expansion of this kind is the Bank of Canada's policy of high interest rates. As long as the Bank fails to conduct policy of monetary ease, it inevitably frustrates other aspects of National policy such as tax incentives ,to new industry, loans to small business and winter works programs.

Mr. Coyne's dead hand has rested too long on the Department of Finance. It is time Mr. Fleming shook it off. Only then will he be able to move forward to implementing the vision of national development with which, in the last election campaign the Prime Minister inspired the Canadian people.

Windsor Star

Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada firmly stands for a sound monetary policy as the best way for Canada to emerge from the recession. He simply does not believe that sound results can be obtained by unsound methods.

In this he is taking virtually the same position as President John F. Kennedy in his "State of the Union" Address Mr. Kennedy does not intend to increase the value of gold or otherwise disturb the value of the dollar. And he has at his command some of the best economists in the United States.

It would be an easy, but illusory, expedient to try to get better times by easy money, free spending and other such devices. It takes more courage to rely on a less spectacular but also less dangerous approach.

One fault with the current economy is lack of confidence. It isn't easy to see where actions which would lesson the confidence even more would be any remedy at all. It would be more of a curse than a cure.

Some there may be who think a bit of inflation would be helpful. It might seem so, in a short-range view, to some. It would be a disaster to most.

The basic problem with our economy today is inflation. High prices have resulted in market difficulties, decreased production and increased unemployment. The situation isn't going to be corrected by shoving prices still higher.

It would almost seem that there is a determined attempt to frustrate Mr. Coyne's policies. University economists, private economists, bankers and labor leaders have been attacking them.

Their efforts are ill-conceived. Their weakness is demonstrated by their lack of unanimity. They criticize Mr. Coyne but are not agreed on alternatives to his policies.

All these people, whether their motives be selfish or unselfish, would do well to desist in their attacks on Mr. Coyne. They are not doing the economy of the country any good. They are contributing to a further lack of confidence rather than to the restoration of it.

Any upsurge in the economy due to inflation would be a mirage. It would build up more trouble in the future.

Inflation never has cured anything in the past and it won't in the future...

New Horror In Making

Vancouver Sun

"Thim fellers on wee ponies that go 'round pokin' payple wid long poles?" an Irishman once said. "Why, thim's th' Cusacks—a well-known family down in County Clare, I hear."

Nowadays, 'tis not the Cossacks, but the Germans, who are invading the Emerald Isle.

They are buying up farm lands in alarming proportions That, we can let the Irish National Farmers Association worry about, which it is doing.

What bothers us is the looming amalgamation of the only two good lines of dialect comedians left on the variety stage.

"Vass you der, Mickey?" we could stand for, or even Herr von Kelly and Misther O"Schmidt soft-shoeing out from the wings to greet us with, "Th' top o' th' guten abend t' ye, ladies and chentlemans!"

But once they pause, hold their hats over their hearts and break into Der Watch am Shannon, Katrinka Mavourneen, or Who Put the Uber Alles in Mrs. Murphy's Ganselsuppe, we're going to switch right over to the nearest boy soprano.

Clubs Just Bootleggers

Fredericton Gleaner

These who are following the public hearing of the Bridges Liquor Commission are noting a discrepancy in attitudes toward bootleggers, on the one hand, and "privileged clubs," on the other.

The former are held up to unanimous condemnation, as they should be, and their elimination sought as a primary goal of new liquor legislation. The latter are appearing openly before the commission with impressive briefs, asking that their present status be legalized as the result of legislation recommended by the commission.

Yet there is fundamentally no difference between the bootlegger and the privileged club. Both function contrary to the letter of the law Both came into being and did a flourishing retail business in alcoholic beverages because the present law is unenforceable and out of line with public opinions and practices.

The difference is that the "privileged clubs" have a chance of becoming recognized as legal outlets for the sale of liquor; and the bootleggers have not. Otherwise, as the liquor laws are now constituted, these clubs have no more right to sell liquor than the men in the speakeasies.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE FAITH WE USE

Jesus declared that if one had faith as a grain of mustard seed he might say to a mountain: "Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove. . ." And nothing would be impossible to anyone possessing such faith. (Matt. 17:20; Luke 17:6.)

People often complain and say they have very little religious faith. God is not interested at all in the quantity of our faith but in its quality. A mustard seed is so small that one can scarcely see it as it rests in the palm of his hand. Yet that little seed has in it such vitality that it grows into a large shrub. What God is interested in regarding our faith is whether or ot that faith has vitality.

The faith of some people is like a huge rock. The faith of others is like a mustard seed. God cares not how much faith we have. His only interest is in whether or not our faith is growing. Does it have within it the potential of vitality? Can our faith get us somewhere? Can it do something to us and for us? Does it bring us closer to God and God closer to us? Does it make life round about us — with the members of our family and with our associates in general — better or worse, happy or deplorable?

Take the faith you have and start using it. God is interested only in the faith we can use because it is vital — and do use because we are vital.

By careful management and judicious expenditures, the Belleville City Council at their regular meeting on Monday night, through the Chairman of Finance, announced a reduction in the tax rate of Belleville of three mills from that prevailing last year. The rate for 1941 on the revised assessment in 1940 will be 38½ mills. His Worship stated, that in spite of advanced expenditures, the Council was able to make savings to reduce the rate; This reduction makes a total of seven mills in two years, which is a creditable showing.

Molten Lead Just 'Warm'

BBC London Letter

Devotion to science - and to broadcasting - could hardly go further than submitting oneself to what is often called the 'Royal Experiment', which consists of putting the hands through a stream of boiling lead. Arthur Garratt did this recently in order to record the ordeal for the BBC General 'Science and Industry', and emerged unscathed - a fact which in medieval times would have been taken as sure proof of his innocence of any crime of which he had been accused.

The experiment took place in the historic lecture theatre at the Royal Institution in London, in which Humphry Davy and Michael Faraday gave their most famous discourses some 150 years ago, and was performed by Mr. Green, who only recently retired after many years at the Institution. He used the same apparatus that he used when he did it in 1912 at Sir James Dewar's lecture on alchemy, and cheered Mr. Garratt up by telling him that he had not performed it since then. The secret, he explained, was to cleanse the hands thoroughly in soft water, possibly with a little ammonia in it and leave them damp. This got rid of any coating that might make the lead stick, and since at boiling point (something over 1,000 degrees centigrade) the lead was in what is called the spheroidal stage, the result when it was poured over wet hands was similar to what took place when boiling water was spilt on a very hot stove-top - globules of water ran about without coming into contact. because there was a little layer of steam and the heat was not transmitted completely to the water. Similarly, the layer of moisture on the hands (and even the perspiration of fear might be enough) prevented contact. Garratt confirmed that the molten lead bounced off his hands and felt just like warm water.

This experiment is called 'Royal' because King Edward VII when Prince of Wales allowed Lord Playfair, who was giving him instructions in science, to subject him to it. It is not an experiment to be tried by amateurs.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

In the club car on the train a party of school teachers returning from a convention sat around me and I was able to hear their discussion of the problem of inattention.

For years there has been a rating on a pupil's school report entitled "Concentration." This refers to the pupil's capacity to devote his attention to a subject. But these teachers were aware of the larger problem facing not only school children but perhaps the entire present generation with regard to the growing habit of inattention.

"Hundreds of millions of dollars are being spent annually," said one teacher, "maybe billions, for all I know, by advertisers and other employers of publicity on the most ingenious devices to distract the attention of the public. Distraction of the attention is now an art, wholly professional, highly paid, richly rewarded, and, using all the resources of psychology and other sciences. It is becoming impossible to pay attention, in the simple old meaning of the term, due to the immense and all-pervading struggle going on around us to distract our attention. In education, we have resorted to all these new systems and modern methods in an attempt to hold the attention of the pupils. But I think we are in a losing battle. Inattention is now a general problem of western society."

To Your Good Health

Look for Simple Answers To Child Behavior Problems

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I need your advice. I have three children, aged 6, 4 and 3. The girl, 5, is very well adjusted to life and takes everything in stride, but the boy, 4, is a nervous type. Try as I may, I cannot overcome the very serious problem of his getting up in the morning before anyone else and emptying the medicine cabinets, cupboards, etc. The younger girl, 3, is beginning to do the same thing.

"The boy is not neglected in any way to my knowledge, and is happy when he is praised. Anything you could tell me would be appreciated. — B.A. P."

Jeepers, why don't people ask me easy questions?

I know, I know! If the questions are easy, they don't have to ask.

Let's get down to bedrock on this question. Whether it's emptying the medicine cabinets and cuboards or something else we have to try our best to figure out why he does it.

Adults, I've found, are sometimes, perhaps usually, baffled by the utter simplicity of the things that activate children. While, naurally, I am wholly in accord with the things that the child psychologists and psychiatrists are gradually teaching us, I think we sometimes are too apt to hunt for complex answers when we ought to stick to simple ones.

In the above case, I don't think that the four-year-old was frightened by a medicine cabinet when he was two weeks old.

Before we go on, let's insert this: I'm thoroughly worried about kids getting into medicine cabinets. A handful of "candy" from an aspirin bottle can be dangerous, even deadly. A sip of 'cherry pop" from an antiseptic bottle can be serious. A hook at the very top of cabinet, or a turnbuckle, or such, can be good insurance. It's also wise, as I've said before, to keep only the simplest, most harmless things in a medicine cabinet. But even corn plasters, nail files and mouth wash can be perils. So keep the kids out and keep dangerous things out.

Now what about the four-year-old explorer who gets up and prowls while everyone else is asleep? He's obviously an energetic, enterprising young one. But is his problem cabinets and cupboards? No.

This, it seems to me, comes down to a simpler answer: if, day after day, he gets up before anyone else, then maybe he needs less sleep. Maybe keeping him up another 30 minutes or an hour at night might solve the whole thing.

But with or without that, I think he also needs discipline. By "discipline", I don't mean 'punishment". Those are two different things. But he does need to learn that, at his age, he is supposed to stay in bed until parents say "Get-up!"

The problem isn't cuboards. The problem is an energetic little boy who has to learn, and be hepled, to stay in bed until it's time to get up.

Simplify the problem.

'Dear Dr. Molner: Please answer this question for my friends and me: What foods contain copper? — N.T.P."

Copper is what we call a trace element — very small amounts are needed by the body, and the major purpose has to do with blood (hemoglobin) formation. Rich sources are oysters, peas, beans, liver, cereals, eggs. But in any balanced diet you get all the copper you need or can use, so who's worrying about it?

Hemmorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas ,itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KEEP TESTING YOUR LIFE

I like to be missed — and I like to miss those I love. Because then I know that I have given out something and in return I have received something.

And when I lie down at night and think during the last few minutes before I am lost in sleep, and can recall things I have done, or something I have said that has made someone else happier, then I know that my life has not been lived in vain.

It's a good thing to keep testing your life to see if it is measuring up.

I see that my car is kept in smooth running order. I have it inspected regularly. For it is used daily to drive me to and from my business office and to give pleasure to others. I see no reason why this life of ours should not receive as good attention.

What an inspiring thing an active, thoughtful, helpful, useful life is!

If we keep testing out our abilities and talents, we come to know just how strong we are, but that is not all. As we find out that we are strong, we learn that we can become stronger. That is the wonderful fact about life.

If a man does not put himself to a thorough test every day, how is he going to know how strong he is? And if he doesn't know how to walk past Failure, how is he to face Success?

Keep testing your life. Keep learning new things about it. Find out exactly just what you are able to make out of it.

What a thrilling thing to go mining into one's very self for the gold of ability that lies hidden within us all.

We never know how far we are able to go in the world with what we have until we have learned through repeated tests. Knowledge increases knowledge!

What They Mean

Brantford Expositor

Why do politicians and others keep talking about a national "health" service? That isn't what they mean at all. They mean a service that would pay for doctors, medicines, etc., when we become ill. It should be called an illness service.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

NIGHT HABITS

Even though, happily, the days are slowly lengthening, our nights are still long. Darkness, hard on all forms of life, is particularly bad for most birds. Their intake is necessarily large in comparison to their size because they expend a great deal of energy, and they have to eat much more frequently than we do. This explains why birds are so lively at dusk and again at dawn; they must consume sufficient to last them through the hours when they are unable to look for food such as seeds, insects, or fish, and must again be on the move before daybreak to find more nourishment.

We often wonder how birds spend that intervening time. The majority roost at night either as individuals or in flocks. Have you not noticed your own canary resting at night? The toes of one foot are wrapped around his perch, while very often the other foot is tucked up under him. Hoew does he balance?

SPECIAL GADGETS

Birds are provided with special gadgets to ensure their upright position on a branch even when they are asleep. No effort is expended; no thought given to it. Tendons that pass over the back of the leg joint reach into the toes, so that when the leg is bent for perching the tows automatically clamp over the branch. We know of one six day old chestnut-sided warbler that spent his first night away from home safely attached to a spray of bleeding heart by his tiny toes. The little thing was so fast asleep that even our flashlight failed to waken him.

Some of our summer birds that each year cross our southern border establish communal night roosts in winter. Robins and crows are especially given to this habit, gathering in enormous flocks. Occasionally crows come together for the night in groups of as many as 200,000.

Wild Life Slides Enjoyed At W.I. Meet

Members of Cannifton - Corbyville W.I. sponsored a pot-luck supper in the Cannifton Church last Monday evening.

Relatives and friends of the ladies also a good number of guests from Quinte Institute along with the two guests for the evening, Mrs. Wallis, naturalist and Mrs. Tucker, District president numbering 50 enjoyed the meal, served by the ladies.

In many parts of the world the pot-luck would be looked on as a banquet.

Mrs. Wallis showed many colored slides of wild life taken right in this area which were beautiful and equalled only by the sparkling humor of the commentator, who told of the many amusing situations in which she had found herself, in an endeavor to get these wonderful views.

Mrs. Wallis was introduced by Mrs. N. Welsh and thanked by the president, Mrs. Ellsworth who also called on the district president, Mrs. Tucker to address the W.I. at this time.

Mrs. Tucker took for her theme the "Institute Ode' explaining the real meaning of each line.

Following this, Mrs. Ellsworth thanked the speaker. This brought to a close a highly successful evening.

St. Mary's H-S Assoc. Plans Bingo, Euchre

BEAD — St. Mary's H-S Association held its regular meeting in St. Mary's School on February 13th. Prayer was led by the president, Mrs. Pat Mullin.

The president thanked the members for cards and fruit sent to her while a patient in the hospital. A card from the family of the late Donald Hunt was read, and a letter from the Jesuit Seminary.

A short discussion took place on a trip for the school children in June, but no definite plans were made.

A euchre and bingo were planned for early March.

The meeting was adjourned by Mrs. James Kehoe followed by a few games of bingo.

Lunch was served by Mrs. M. Durkin, Mrs. T. Cullen, Mrs. T. Cronin and Mrs. William Hanley.

The next meeting is to be held on Monday, March 13, at 8.30 p.m. Members are asked to be present at this meeting.

County Home Residents Enjoy Entertainment

On the evening of the 15th, of February the residents of the Hastings County Home were treated to a fine evening of entertainment provided by a talented group of 22 entertainers from Picton and Prince Edward County.

Mrs. J. M. McLean, president of the Auxiliary to the Hastings County Home, introduced Mr. and Mrs. W. McWilliam, Superintendents of the Prince Edward County Home who arranged the evening.

Introducing the performers in a group, a lively number "How-do-you-do Everybody, How-do-you-do," opened the program, the audience of senior citizens was invited to join in.

BRISK PROGRAM

As master of ceremonies, Mr. McWilliams kept the numbers on the program progressing briskly with fun and bright remarks interspersing the excellent musical numbers. Several pianists took part in duets and also accompanied accordions, electric guitars, violin, saxophone and mouth-organ selections. A unique musical number produced by tapping bottles was cleverly done. Fine singing in solos, quartets and recitations varied the program.

A skit by Mr. McWilliam and one of male artists was hilarious as they vocally reminisced through an old time duet bringing back memories of the days gone by. All selections were specially chosen to appeal to older folk.

Mr. K. Yorke superintendent of the Hastings County Home, thanked the visitors for their wonderful entertainment, expressing hopes of having all visit the Home again.

Chocolate milk, donated by a local dairy and cookies were served to the residents by the ladies of the Auxiliary to the Home. A social time was enjoyed with the visitors in the library of the Home where coffee and refreshments were served by the staff bringing to a close a happy evening.

Latter Day Saints W.D. Holds Meeting

The Worship service was conducted by Mrs. A. B. Mogg who read the Scripture and told a story on the theme, "Secret Testimonies". Prayers were offered by Mrs. W. L. Canniff and Mrs. S. C. Else.

The study from the book, "I witness for Christ", was taught by Mrs. A. B. Mogg.

The business meeting followed under the direction of the leader, Mrs. S. C. Else. The brochures for the World Institute for women were given out to the members present. Plans are being made by some of the women to attend the Institute in April.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. W. L. Canniff.

Queen Victoria H-S Hears Explanation of Unit System

Colorful red and white hearts and cupids decorated the auditorium and classrooms of Queen Victoria School for the February meeting of the Home and School Association.

After Mrs. J. Smith, the president, welcomed the parents, she called on the Rev. R. McLean to open the meeting.

Mrs. Smith appealed to the members to remember the various booths at the School Fair, which is to be held in March.

The room count was taken with Mrs. Lyon's class winning the junior award and Mr. Frink's class the senior award.

After welcoming the parents, Mr. Frink, the principal, gave a short informative talk on "Educational Research," including examples of many tests which were tried both in Canada and the U.S.A. The results were startling, both to the teachers and to the parents. Many found it difficult to accept these results as facts. Mr. Frink climaxed his talk by saying that as the world changes there is also a change in education.

Mrs. Wanda Sine was introduced by Mr. Frink. Mrs. Sine explained the Unit System in public school.

Mrs. Sine compared the present unit programs with the educational systems some 25 years ago. Research has proven that pupils who were held back or repeated were frustrated and did poor work. On the other hand, a gap was left in the education of those who were accelerated or skipped a grade.

There was a need for flexible organization through units of work which would achieve success without boredom and develop good work habits. Small groups of equal range in skill subjects provide better and more frequent appraisal of pupils' progress, a need for every pupil to advance at every speed and a continuous chain of progress. The teacher may also make a careful analysis of each child's development.

This movement is non-graded elementary program units. Belleville was one of the first cities in Ontario to adopt this system of education.

Mrs. Sine had charts to compare the units with equivalent grades so that the parents could understand the various levels more easily.

Mrs. Whiting expressed the thank of the Home and School Association to Mrs. Sine for her informative and interesting lecture.

Coffee was served by the social committee.

MILLER — WILLIAMSON

The chapel at Albert College, Belleville, was the setting for a small but lovely twilight wedding on February 7, when Alice Mae Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williamson, Belleville, became the bride of Robert Frederick Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Courtland Miller, Belleville. The Rev. H. M. Davis performed the double-ring ceremony.

The organ selections played by Mr. Alec Gordon included Purcell's "Wedding Music" for the processional, and Purcell's "Trumpet Tune" for the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a waltz-length gown of Miramist satin, with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Her six-tiered veil of French illusion net hung softly from a small flower head-piece, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and trailing ivy. Cultured pearl earrings, the bridegroom's gift to his bride, and a drop pearl necklace, completed the bridal attire.

Mrs. Robert Vaughan, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She chose a royal blue silk dress in sheath style and carried a nosegay of white baby 'mums and feathered pink carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Peter Miller.

The reception was held in the Prince Edward Room at Hotel Quinte. The table for the wedding dinner was attractively decorated with the bride's cake as centrepiece, flanked by tall pink candles in silver candelabra.

For a wedding trip to Lake Placid and other points in New York State, the bride chose a winter-white wool sheath with a corsage of pink roses.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a tea held at the home of Mrs. Miller. Mrs. S. Kostashuk was hostess at a miscellaneous shower.

In Memory of Ruth

By ALMA MASON

Today a dear little soul left her cottage on earth. For a time she will be separated from those she loved.

Ruth spent the younger years of her married life in a large Canadian city. She was one of the world's blessed people. She did not have to struggle to acquire the graces of patience and humility and courage and kindliness. She seemed to possess at birth all the splendid attributes of character necessary for productive and worthwhile living.

Life rolled along. Ruth's children grew to adulthood. Her husband reached retirement age. The question of adequate finances to carry them over the sunset years arose. They had invested their money in their children. Very little had been left to provide security for them.

They were given a small piece of land in the country. They moved from the city and erected a home on the acreage that now belonged to them. The house they built is a doll house a lovely miniature dwelling. It has been dropped down like a pink and white jewel among rolling green lawns and fields. It is reminiscent of a tiny but well-masted ship on an emerald sea.

Shortly after Ruth and her husband moved into their new cottage, she developed a progressive heart condition.

We are all fully aware that life cannot go on forever. However, when one wakes every morning more acutely aware than ever before that this precious day may be ones last day on earth, what then?

Ruth's patient serenity and sweetness became more finely drawn. Furrows crept around her lovely eyes. They were not etched by worry or fear or frustration by by the lagging fingers of fatigue. Her ready golden smile became a silvery, luminous one as if rooted more deeply in cool spiritual soil.

When she was not confined to bed, she visited friends and took part in church festivites and activities. The little home then had an open door — one that swung on the hinges of a hearty welcome and a friendly warmth of greeting. When illness approached, Ruth bore her pain silently. She withdrew from prying eyes. She was loathe to sadden others, she said.

During her busy years, Ruth had longed to paint. Her husband bought her brushes, canvases and oils. Her dormant talent soon came to life and expressed itself in untold beauty. Her friends began to receive samples of her art.

One grateful friend said, "You know the landscape Ruth gave me seems to gather loveliness daily. When I study it, her serene eyes seem to smile at me in warm benediction."

Today I am gratful for the wonderful Ruths of this world. I am grateful also for the precise and perfect rhythm of my heart. My heart is seemingly physically perfect. Ruth's was not. However, I am searching it thoughtfully and carefully today to find if it is propelled by patience in illness; by unselfishness sifted through trial and uncertainty; by love which will surmount the earthly road, love ascending to a road leading to the radiant Gates beyond.

Would that I had your dauntless heart;
Your sweet serenity;
My soul is but a counterpart
Of what it ought to be.

Going Places

Even Gold Authentic in This Reconstruction of Wild West

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Buena Park, Calif. — Fortunes have been made in strange ways, but it is probably safe to say that only one ever was founded on the boysenberry. And there wasn't even any such thing when Walter Knott brough his family down from the wilds of Pomona 40 years ago to start a berry farm and roadside stand.

There was, however, a man named Rudolph Boysen, park superintendent of nearby Anaheim, who had raised some nameless berries. Mr. Knott transplanted them to his farm.

Today he and his family own a sprawling forest grove of shops, restaurants, amusement park, and relics of the old west that take 1,500 employees to run. Though berries and berry products are little more than a sideline today, it is still known only as Knott's Berry Farm.

A slim, erect, and white-maned 70 today, Walter Knott no longer raises his own berries, though he still gives his occupation as "farmer." What he does raise is money from the 4,000,000 visitors a year who come to buy jams and jellies, eat chicken and steak and explore the realistic replica of a frontier mining town lovingly put together by Walter Knott over the past 20 years.

RAWLY AUTHENTIC

As rawly authentic as a squirt of tobacco juice, Ghost Town was devised not only to make money but to establish a heartfelt tribute to the pioneer forebears Walter Knott deeply reveres. The 150 acres of the farm are covered today with transplanted old building and installations from all over the country.

There is a complete passenger railway with a huffing steam engine from the Denver and Rio Grande, almost 75 year old. Masked robbers course through it on each 10-minute run, and the conductor sadly announces that the dining car is closed because the cook has just been shot.

Kids pan for gold in a "mine" stocked annually with $15,000 worth of gold dust. In a circle of covered wagons around a campfire you can hear western singing where it came from, in the same surroundings as the pioneers heard it.

Along the primitive trail streets you find an old-fashioned general store filled with what must be the largest clutter of antiques and happy old junk ever collected.

Arm-gartered clerks sell penny candy, swamp root and sarsaparilla. Dry goods include derbies, high-buttoned shoes, sun bonnets, red flannel underwear, and a pair of size 56 bloomers. A pot-bellied stove blazes away and weary trail hands are welcome to "set a spell."

Smithy Shoes Everything

In the blacksmith shop a smithy with a microphone around his neck gives a running commentary as in accordance with his sign he "shoes everything that passes; horses, mules, and jackasses."

There's a boot hill complete with tombstones, and a one-room 1870 schoolhouse transplanted lock, stock and dunce-cap from Beloit, Kans. Mr. Knott has met visitors who identified their seats in the school.

You'll find the lobby of the Gold Trails Hotel brought in from some forgotten mine town in Arizona; an appropriate number of (soft drink) saloons for a town this size, complete with honky-tonk entertainment; a print shop where you can get your name plastered on a "wanted" poster, and a house built with bottles instead of bricks (which were more plentiful in mining camps).

Everything that comprises outdoor museum reflects Walter Knott's pride in his pioneer background and awe of the rugged crucible of history in which the west was forged.

Visitors, he's happy to know, agree it's the berries.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

A wee note of anxiety should be rising from the midst of the great Gaelic university fifty miles to the east, Queen's of Kingston. While they hold dear that wild and weird Gaelic yell which startles the uninitiated at their sports events and while the main women's residence is Ban Righ, yet we have never heard that they have a tartan of their own. The bass drummer in parades wears the kilt and leopard skin and the student lists are filled with MacDougall, MacLennan, MacGregor, McIntosh (many spellings) and names as such, but is there a Queen's tartan?

The stout Queen's hearts must beware. Last year, Mr. William Bentley, assistant principal of McGill University, Montreal, was in Scotland during January for consultations with tartan experts in Edinburgh. McGill is considering forming a pipe band and introducing a new uniform incorporating the tartan of the founder, James McGill, who was born in Glasgow in 1744, emigrated to Canada in 1758, and who on his death in 1813 left his fortune to found a university in Montreal.

While in Scotland Mr. Bentley had talks with 60-year-old Mr. John M. McGill of Edinburgh, an expert on the history of Clan McGill and on the background of the university founder.

Lord Lyon King of Arms, Sir Thomas Innes of Learney, who recently approved a coat of arms for McGill University, says the plan to introduce a tartan uniform is a "suitable suggestion".

The McGill tartan is described by a Highland outfitters shop in Edinburgh as very rare but very attactive. It is rather like the red Macfarlane; red predominates, with green, white, blue and black interwoven.

What can the inventive Queen's mind do in combining their glowing colors of red, yellow and blue, or more correctly, maroon orange and blue? This prblem might well occupy the minds (part time, of course) of the regional alumni of Queen's as they hold their curling bonspiel at the Belleville Curling Club on Saturday, March 4th.

Speaking of curling, the winter game Scotland gave to the world as she gave golf for the summer, the acknowledged first rules for curling were drawn up in 1808 by players of the Duddingston Curling Club, who played on the local loch, now an Edinburgh bird sanctuary. As a Sassenach, we thought it might have started by the Scots throwing rocks out across the ice at the Loch Ness monster.

However, the rules, drafted by pioneers of the roaring game, became the rules of the Grand Caledonian Curling Club thirty years later, and four years after that, when Queen Victoria and Prince Albert had watched a demonstration of the sport, this club received Royal patronage and became the Royal Caledonian Curling Club.

So Duddingston can justly claim to be the birthplace of curling as it is known today. It was, therefore, appropriate that at the start of the visit of the Canadian Curling Team which toured Scotland last year, they should attend a special service in Duddingston Parish Church.

Words from a speech by Sir James Barrie at the Critics' Circle in London 1922 might hark back to the first of the column and be a suitable conclusion. He said, "Mighty are the universities of Scotland, and they will prevail. But even in your highest exultations never forget that they are not four, but five. The greatest of them is the poor, proud homes you come out of, which said so long ago: "There shall be education in this land".

ALBERT — ROSE

White feathered chrysanthemums, red carnations and gladioli decorated the Sons of Jacob Synagogue, Belleville for the first marriage in the new Synagogue, when Miss Maxine Rose, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sydney C. Rose, became the bride of Mr. Stanley Leonard Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob N. Albert, Belleville. Rabbi Morton M. Deutsch officiated, assisted by Mr. I. Lindenberg.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Clifford E. Templer. Mrs. Gerald Marr, guest soloist, sang "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore the traditional gown of parchment white peau de soie, with long sleeves ending in lily points. The molded bodice was etched in Florentine lace with seed pearls and the full skirt, appliqued with matching lace, flowed gracefully into a chapel train. A crown of crystal and seed pearl held her shoulder-length veil.

Mrs. Norman Albert was matron of honor, wearing white taffeta featuring a tulip skirt and clutch jacket. Miss Sylvia Schwab, maid of honor, and the Misses Linda Golden, Marsha Schwab who acted as bridesmaids, were gowned alike in cotillion-length white silk organza fashioned on shepherdess lines with shawl collars and full bouffant skirts.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Penny Rose, sister of the bride, wore a matching white organza dress with petite collar and full skirt. They carried heart-shaped bouquets of red roses and white 'mums.

Mr. Norman Albert was best man for his brother and the ushers were Messrs. Steven Schwab, Ronald Gitelman, Shelly Binsky and Paul Wise. Master Sheldon Rose, brother of the bride was the ring-bearer.

The bride's mother wore a Ceil Chapman gown of shell pink rose point lace, with matching accessories and the bridegroom's mother, lilac-tone peau de soie, appliqued with Guipure lace and seed pearls, with matching accessories.

Following a reception at the Synagogue, the couple left on a motor trip to the United States. For going away, the bride chose a stroller suit in dark brown cashmere, with complimentary accessories and a corsage of tea roses.

Guests were present from New York; Montreal; Toronto; Picton; Trenton and Belleville.

Christ Church EBWA Holds Business Meet

On Monday evening members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met in the parish hall for the monthly business meeting. The president, Mrs. L. Domosly, was in charge of the worship service. She was assisted by Mrs. W. Edwards, Mrs. R. Terry and Mrs. L. Stephens with Mrs. L. Adams presiding at the piano.

An interesting letter was read from the Bell family thanking the members for their Christmas parcel. Notes of appreciation were read from Mrs. E. Lu'trell, Mrs. E. Portt and Mrs. M. Beggs.

The Ontario Diocesan Board letter was read by Mrs. H. Eaton. Mrs. L. Mason reported on the "Sunshine Fund," and Mrs. W. Edwards gave an account of the articles that have been purchased and made for the bale.

The World Day of Prayer was held this year at St. Thomas' Church.

Embroidery work was distributed among the members and after a work period the meeting was closed. Tea and delicious fruit bread were served by Mrs. J. Reid and Mrs. B. Henderson.

PORTRAIT IN GEMS, SILVER, AND GOLD

"There is a wealth of human interest in the growth of a great business, one which has become the acknowledged leader of its kind from Halifax to Vancouver"—A. Robert George.

• • •

"Have you seen the new glass doors at Henry Birks' in Toronto?" exclaimed one from our city who had returned from a weekend. "The surprise is, when the doors open there is no rush of cold air felt by anyone, due to a wall of warm air inside the entrance way."

"Yes, we are one of the first Canadian stores to adopt this idea of heated entrances, a new development in the electrical field, now used in New York and Chicago," explained B. S. Ellis, whom we met recently in Torongo.

"The store maintains a constant temperature, regardless of the opening and closing doors. Many of our customers still wait to close the doors which do so automatically, accustomed as they are to doing so with the old ones."

He smiled warmly in appreciation of this thoutfulnes, that must give way to progress and such new concepts of heating.

"All this, however, necessitates many other changes, here in the store. You may note the ceiling is being covered over, which dimays many, for it is most ornate and unique, as you can see. But it must be done."

It is a pleasure to listen to Mr. Ellis, for he is enthusiastic about the store and its business in jewellery. This is understandable for interest in jewellery is his by inheritance.

A century ago, a J. E. Ellis had a store on the southeast corner of King and Yonge streets. His twin nephews, P. W. and M. O., founded P. W. Ellis and Company, in 1877. His twin grandnephews, C. Q. and M. T., founded Ellis Brothers in 1904, the very year that the Birks in Montreal and the Ryries in Toronto combined. On the deaths of Mr. James and Mr. Harry Ryries, Birks and Ellis Brothers united in 1932.

Mr. B. S. Ellis is the son of Mr. C. Q. Ellis.

"We're making other alterations, as well," continued Mr. Ellis. "For one thing, we are having a customer's room; an innovation for us. Come, would you like to see it?"

Off to one side, near the store, is a small, intimate room exquisitely finished in soft grays whites and antique gold; French style table and chairs await customers who wish to examine, with care and leisure, the store's finest jewellery, offered for purchase, such as the $27,000 diamond necklace, just bonded from England.

"Though we do have a few such pieces, our own factories provide us with our own pieces of jewellery," commented Mr. Ellis.

"And speaking of changes, many are the changes in the character of goods sold. Gold jewellery used to be sold in sets in shaped leather cases 12 or 15 inches long. These held a large brooch or pendant, pair of bracelets one to two and one-half inche wide, and a chain with a heavy cork-lined gold lid to match. The usual length of ladies' watch chains was 60 inches. Bohemian garnets, Scotch cairngorms, amethysts, carenelians and moss agate took the place of costume jewellery, at that time.

"Even diamonds have changed. It used to be that only royalty or those of great wealth possessed them; certainly not the ordinary citizen. For 2,000 years diamonds came from India, for 200 years, from Brazil. The genuineness of stone was tested by the tip of the tongue and the file; the one to prove the coldness, the other its hardness. These 'rules of thumb' have given place to high-powered instruments and scientific tests, now that diamonds practically all come from South Africa. They are cheaper, better cut and grace the finger of the housewife, and Birks' gemological laboratories' high, scientific standards place diamond grading often beyond the ability of the individual jewellers, today."

Henry Birks' expert gemologist is Mr. J. Lovell, who has travelled the world over and made more judgments on precious stones than any Canadian. Though he has travelled extensively by boat, he has already flown the Atlantic, covered Mexico and South America, London to South Africa, which means Argentine to Johannesburg, all by air, and is the first Canadian to be certified as a gemologist by The American Gemological Society.

Club Activities

SR. CITIZENS S.C.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens Social Club was held in the club rooms on Pinnacle St. on Wednesday evening with a goodly number of members present.

The meeting opened in the usual manner by the president, Mr. Harry Scales. Two minutes silence in respect to the memory of a late member, Mr. John Hinds, was observed.

All present enjoyed a period of euchre, other games and entertainment.

Mr. N. Ross was the winner of the door prize draw. Winners at euchre were: ladies, Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. S. Thompson; men, Miss M. Ray and T. Simpson.

Former Librarian Eulogizes English Library System

Mr. Angus Mowat, a former librarian of the Belleville Corby Library, was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district, held on February 16, in the Education Hall at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Mowat gave a humorous and witty acocunt of his recent visit to rural England. "I love the country and I loathe big cities", said Mr. Mowat, and in this trend he recaptured his and his family's enjoyable stay of three months in a game keeper's cottage on a farm near a small village called "Hayfield".

Mr. Mowat said that they did do a little touring, visiting a few cathedrals and other places ces of interest, but they mostly stayed at their cottage and for those few months became part of interest, but they mostly and learned to appreciate their way of life. Incessant rain and fog; trained dogs rounding up sheep; a man keeping bees in the rain; suddenly having to drive on the left side of the road. Such were the memories which helped him to recall the atmosphere and spirit of his stay in England.

Mr. Mowat said that the outstanding feature of even the smallest library he visited in England was the promptness with which a book, not on their shelves would be procured within four or five days. This was made possible through their efficient regional and county library system. Mr. Mowat, who was director of library services for Ontario from 1948 until his retirement last year, expressed the hope that a system similar to the English one would eventually be functioning in Canada.

The speaker was introduced by Miss N. Merry and thanked by Mrs. R. K. Jeffery.

Before Mr. Mowat's talk, the business section of the meeting was conducted with Mrs. A. S. Lewis in the chair. Mrs. Lewis expressed her regrets about the fact that the corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. G. Allan, was leaving Belleville. During her stay in Belleville, Mrs. Allan served in various convening capacities in the organization of the annual "Spring Fair" and rendered valuable service as a member of the executive.

A motion was carried that a special letter of thanks be sent to Mrs. Allan.

I do not have a recipe for breaded sweet and sour spareribs. My recipe is for battered sweet and sour spareribs and I have a feeling that is what you mean. Anyway this is the authentic way of making

SWEET AND SOUR SPARERIBS:

Cut 2 pounds spareribs into 2" squares, having meat on both sides of rib. Roughly this means each rib is cut in half crosswise with meat on both sides and every other rib stripped bare and discarded. Dip each piece in Batter: One cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 2-3 cup water. Mix all ingredients until smooth. Brown batter-covered ribs on all sides in hot peanut or other cooking oil — about 4 or 7 minutes. Transfer to baking dish and pour over Sweet-Sour Sauce: One cup sweet pickle vinegar (or 1-4 cup vinegar and 1-4 cup brown sugar), 1-4 cup brown sugar, 1 cup tomato catsup, 1-2 cup cold water, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-2 to 3-4 cup chopped sweet pickles, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon pepper. Pour this over fried ribs and bake at 300 deg. Fahr., covered for 1 hour.

QUESTION:

. . . I would like a recipe for Polish Cabbage Rolls with meat inside and garlic . . . Mrs. Betty P.

ANSWER:

I think this is exactly what you want

POLISH CABBAGE ROLLS:

One large head cabbage, Meat and Rice Filling (see below), 1 to 1 1-2 cups tomato juice, 1-2 cup sour cream (optional), 2 tablespoons or more butter or bacon fat, salt and pepper. Remove the core from the cabbage by cutting around it with a sharp pointed knife. In deep utensil pour boiling water into hollow to cover completely. Let stand until leaves are pliable. Drain and take leaves apart without tearing. Trim off hard centre ribs. Cut large leaves in 2 pieces. Line the bottom of pot (roasting pan) with a few leaves. Place a generous dessertspoonful of the filling on each leaf, roll lightly (folding in sides) and arrang in layers. Sprinkle each layer with salt. Combine tomato juice (or stock or water or canned tomato soup) with sour cream, melted fat and seasoning. Pour over. It should barely show between rolls. Cover with a few large leaves, then the lid. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 to 2 hours (or at a lower temperature longer). Serve with chopped crisp bacon or sour cream or tomato sauce.

MEAT AND RICE FILLING:

One cup each raw rice and boiling water, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 medium onion chopped, 1 garlic clove chopped, 4 tablespoons fat, 1-2 lb. each ground beef or pork, 1 egg, salt and pepper. Wash rice, add boiling water and salt, boil hard for 1 minute. Cover and turn off heat, allow to stand until water is absorbed. Gently saute onion and garlic in fat until tender. Add the meats and stir and cook until lightly browned. Combine with the rice and cool slightly. Mix in the egg and season with salt and pepper. Fill cabbage leaves and cook as above.

STORIES OF FAMOUS HYMNS

by HORACE B. POWELL

"TELL IT TO JESUS"

Are you weary, are you heavy-hearted?
Tell it to Jesus, Tell it to Jesus;
Are you grieving over joys departed?
Tell it to Jesus alone.

Do you fear the gathering clouds of sorrow?
Tell it to Jesus, Tell it to Jesus;
Are you anxious what shall be tomorrow?
Tell it to Jesus alone.

Are you troubled at the thought of dying?
Tell it to Jesus, Tell it to Jesus,
For Christ's coming Kingdom are you sighing?
Tell it to Jesus alone.

CHORUS:

Tell it to Jesus,
Tell it to Jesus,
He is a Friend that's well-known;
You have no other such a Friend or brother,
Tell it to Jesus alone.

This devotional hyman was a nineteenth century favorite and when it was first published by the author, Dr. Jeremiah E. Rankin, a Congregational minister of Washington, D. C., it found a place in most of the hymnals of the day. Today after about 75 years, it has been all but forgotten. But its lively music and chorus which did much to make it popular from the beginning sometimes are heard even in our era in prayer services or mission devotional services.

Mr. Rankin in 1880 wrote another hymn, "'God Be With You Till We Meet Again'', which continues to enjoy twentieth century popularity and use. It was inspired by the pastor's study of the etymology of the word "'goodbye'', which is an abbreviation of "God be with you."

He decided to write a hymn to emphasize the true significance of "goodbye," the expression of farewell used so universally. When he finished his verses, William G. Tomer, a school teacher friend, set them to music.

"'God Be With You Till We Meet Again'' is sung today in many worship and devotional services. It is used by all churches and denominations and is a favorite farewell hymn at youth conventions and conferences.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. T. F. — We need more money, but I hesitate to take a job and neglect Howard.

Howard F. — She needn't worry. I can take care of myself better than she thinks.

Mrs. T. F. — I was widowed a few months ago, and we are in desperate financial straits. My husband left no insurance, no savings, and many debts. Although we owned our home outright, I'll have to sell it to meet obligations.

To provide living expenses for myself and Howard, our 14-year-old son, I must either seek employment or go on relief. Embarrassing as it would be, I'm inclined to do the latter. Then I can devote myself to providing poor Howard with the best possible home.

He's a gifted, promising boy, and the loss of our home on top of the loss of his father could be a shattering experience for him. I feel he should at least have his mother around to comfort and reassure him as much as possible.

Howard F. — I think my mother's plan is terrible. I can understand selling our home, what with all the bills and taxes and fuel costs. But we don't really have to go on relief.

Mom says she wants to take care of me, know where I am and how I feel. Well, she knows exactly where I am from 9 to 4 every day. Right in school! And I feel fine there. She can easily get a part-time job. She's a crackerjack bookkeeper, and used to work in a tax office.

And what's wrong with my getting working-papers? Then I can make some money on Saturdays and after school. I know Mom's thinking of my studies and hobbies and all. But I'm a good student. And things will get better.

Meanwhile, I wish sh'd try it my way.

The Council — "Into each life," said Longfellow, "some rain must fall." Yet, in her solicitude for her fatherless son, Mrs. F. wants to be the tarpaulin that "shields" him from something essential. The problems ahead may provide just the right challenge for the full flowering of Howard's talents.

We concur with Howard. While we hold no brief for avoidable suffering, we find value in a few surmountable bumps in the road ahead. If his mother rushes to smooth them, how will he ever flex his own problem-solving muscles?

A reasonable amount of stress say the experts, is not only desirable but necessary for optimum health. For full development, a heart needs a hill to climb. The best pearls, say the breeders, come from the most 'irritated' oysters. Mrs. F. need not fear any long-range detriment to Howard if she takes a job.

Temporarily, of course, Howard may have to forego a part in the class play or a private research project for the science class. But with the reinforced self-confidence that will come with licking the present threat, he'll catch up fast.

In a recent study of gifted children, Dr. Victor H. Goertzel came up with findings to prove that "all" is not lost when adversity hits a home. On the contrary, it may be the spur that propels a child into real accomplishment. Mrs. F. must not lose sight of the many compensations in Howard's life, not the least of which is the example of a proud, go-getting mother.

To sum up, Mrs. F.'s troubles may turn out — if handled in brave teamwork — to have helped Howard more than the lack of any trouble could do. Besides, no mother can assure a lack of trouble, no matter her resources. Together, this mother and son can pack a real punch.

CONCERNING FORMAL CARDS

I have been quite surprised, and pleased, at the number of letters I have been receiving recently from the young people who are graduating from high school this month. One of the main questions asked is: "How do we have formal cards made up?" This is why I am pleased! It shows an interest in the more formal approach to life and also a desire to know how to do it the right way.

Some may scoff at these little squares of paper, but, whether or not one expects to pay social calls, visiting cards have several uses. They can be invaluable upon occasion. For example: when sending flowers, or a gift, including such a card definitely will enhance you in the eyes of the recipient. Tradition has decreed the correct forms to be followed. During the past few years, several changes have occurred, necessitated by circumstances and our modern way of life, with regard to just what should be placed upon a card.

The first thing to remember, when ordering them from your stationer, is that a visiting card for social purposes should always be engraved, never printed. To be impeccably correct, initials should not be used. The name should be engraved in full.

The correct form today for a young lady's visiting card is to place the prefix "Miss" before "Miss Mary Jane Dow." Some years ago it was not considered proper that the "Miss" be used before the name until she reached her final year in college. Now it is proper to do so upon her graduation from high school.

After the last World War, due to the fact that many young men returned from the Armed Services and resumed their schooling, common sense demanded that an old rule be modified. Until that time had been considered extremely poor form for a young man to use the prefix "Mr." before his name until he became a senior in college or attained the age of twenty-one. Today it is considered correct to use the "Mr." upon his graduation from high school, or after he becomes eighteen years of age.

Another sensible change has been made. Formerly, only a married woman placed her address on the card. Now, the address should be engraved in the lower right hand corner of all cards, just for the sake of clarity in our ever-growing cities and towns.

Question: I had the pleasure of attending the Inaugural Ball last month in Washinton. I purchased a very lovely gown for the occasion. With it, I wore the above-elbow-length gloves. On my right arm, over the glove, I wore my diamond and emerald bracelet. It was a Christmas present and I wanted to show it off, not hide it under the glove! I have been criticized for doing this, and would like to know if there is any ruling for, or against, it? Mrs. K. R. S., New York, N.Y.

Answer: There is no actual ruling regarding this. However, it is not considered very good taste to wear bracelets on top of a glove. You wouldn't place your wedding and engagement rings on the outside, would you? It follows that to do so with a bracelet is really being ostentatious, and obviously "showing off."

A Lift For Living

Too Much Emphasis on Speed

By DR. RALPH. W. SOCKMAN

This week, as we, in the United States celebrate the birthday of our nation's first President, let's look at an ancient description of great manhood. If ever there was a time when we need the heartening influence of heroic personalities, that time is now.

Irwin Edman, the late distinguished philosopher, said 20 years ago: "Men in the nineteenth century were sad that they could no longer believe in God; they are more deeply saddened now by the fact they can no longer believe in man." Whatever truth there is in that statement should bid us pause in a day when the world is engaged in a struggle for democracy. We cannot sustain democracy without faith both in God and man.

Let us, therefore, take the measure of great manhood from the prophet Isaiah. When Isaiah dreamed of the Messiah who was to deliver his people, he realized that the divine deliverer must have men around to match him. He describes these personalities: "And a man shall be as a hiding place from the wind; a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place; the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

First, "a man shall be as a hiding place from the wind, a covert from the tempest." To understand the force of that phrase, one should be exposed to the dry, devastating winds which blow across the desert, biting the skin with gritty sand, searing the eyes and lips, wearying the body with its relentless pressure.

When a traveller has been driven and buffeted for hours by such a wind, what a relief to reach the shelter of a great rock, where he can straighten up, rearrange his disheveled garments and reorient himself. This, says the prophet, is the service which a great man renders to driven humanity.

DRIVEN TOO FAST

Think of the people who are being driven today. You can spot them by their lined faces, restless manner, uneasy eyes. Think of those who are being driven by the high speed of their living and activity.

We are too hurried to stop and get our bearings; thus, we often have more drive than direction. We take our directions from the rear-lights of our fellow-speeders rather than the guideposts of God. We are are too hurried to enjoy the solid satisfactions of day-to-day living. We dash ahead for the delights we think will be ours when we have arrived, and in our ambition or greed, we neglect the joys of family and friends along the way. In our rush, we lose the sureness of touch which makes for effective action and artistic living.

When Da Vinci was painting "The Last Supper," the monks who watched him grew restless as they observd the artist stand sometimes for an hour gazing at his canvas without makin ga single brushstroke. But Da Vinci's explanation was: "When I pause the longest, I make the most telling strokes with my brush."

Yes, and this rushing through life makes us lose, not only the artistic touch, but also the poise of power. Among my acquaintances was a man who was once described as the greatest insurance man in America. Yet the trait in his personality which most impressed men was his quiet deliberation.

When he makes a statement or answers a question in casual conversation one always feels that he has put thought into his words.

When a person thinks before speaking, he does not have to repeat himself nor does he have to retract what he has said. I can well understand how that man's unhurried poise gave confidence to his colleagues.

In contrast, I think of a friend who is extremely hasty, and speaks on any and all subjects. His wife, who has a pungent wit, recently suggested that he make a New Year's resolution to count 20 before he spoke because to count 10 is not enough in this jet age. His actions remind me of Stephen Leacock's description of the man "who mounted his horse and rode off in all directions."

This week, recall Washington amidst the swirling passions of his time when the so-called "best people" were leaving the ill-equipped and straggling patriots. His towering stalwart personality stood as "hiding place from the wind."

Oh, I know this is a time of emergency, when the call is to speed up our economy. But just because we need to make every moment count, it is all the more imperative to keep our sense of direction, our sureness of touch, our poise of spirit. We must take time to be holy in order to be whole. The poised patience of a Washington will get further in the long run than the impetuous bluster of a Khrushchev.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Adult Children Should Fulfill Obligations to Retired Parents

By THOMAS COLLINS

What are the obligations of adult children to their retired parents?

This question arises out of a recent Golden Years column which laid out the obligations of retired parents to their children. Readers have suggested that the problem may have two sides.

Here are the things which children who have flown from the nest owe to the mama and papa bird who pushed them from it.

(1) Men who come up to retirement age — and they frequently transmit their emotions to mother — nearly always feel unloved and unwanted. No matter how important they have been on their jobs they see their influence and status fading away. And in additon they usually find themselves heavily burdened with the idea now abroad in the land that a 65-year-old man just doesn't matter anymore.

Children of such a man owe it to their father and mother to step in and give what spiritual vitamins they can. They must understand that people by age 65 are able to shield their emotions, to smile and joke about their great freedom that is coming, and to cover up remarkably well. Children should drop over once in a while and tell mom and pop how wonderful they are.

CANNOT REPAY THEM

(2) Adult children owe their security of food and shelter and medication for their pains — if they need it. Argue this as long as you choose, but children who are brought to maturity and launched into a decent life by their mother and father simply cannot repay them. No matter what, they cannot repay them.

Food and shelter are fundamental. Freedom from worry over whether or not you will have them at 65 is also funamental: People at 65 can shield their wants as effectively as they shield their emotions. Children should pry enough to make sure their parents have thier basic needs.

(3) Adult children owe their retirement-age parents the right to be wrong. The freedom of retirement, while not always desired, is sometimes an intoxicant to both men and their wives. They want to build a house, or start a business, or take a boat to Italy. There is not too much time left for making mistakes. Forget what it may cost you in the end and let pop pull a whopper if he wants to.

THEY'RE NOT SERVANTS

(4) Adult children are obligated not to turn their retired parents into free servants and baby-sitters. Retired parents weren't made for this, and though almost all of them would welcome a bit of it, they don't relish the on and on and on of it that they get. They seldom complain and won't refuse — aren't grandma and grandpa supposed to do these things? — but they suffer far more imposition from their children and grandchildren than they ever thought they would have to.

(5) Adult children owe their retired parents a little time of the day. Not five or six hours not even every day, but a little from time to time. As parents grow older their friends and companions decrease rapidly. Always they have fewer people to talk to and fewer places to go. A son's or a daughter's house to drop by, a little while for conversation and company, grow more precious all the time. After a while there is usually nobody to care if the children don't.

(6) Finally, adult children owe their retired parents grandchildren — for a couple of hours a day. Grandchildren are the greatest comfort since innerspring mattresses for 65-year-old people.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Common colds, uncommon climates and a strange fever in Singapore.

WHAT'S IN A COLD

The trouble with the commom cold is that the only thing common about it are the symptoms.

Any of a handful of known viruses and bacteria can cause the common misery of the common cold.

But no cause—either bacteria or virus — has been identified for at least 80 per ent of the common sporadic diseases seen in adults, says Dr. Alfred S. Evans, of the University of Wisconsin.

Bacteria are responsible for only some five to seven per cent of respiratory diseases, he says in an article entitled Sneezes, Wheezes and other Diseases. Flu viruses and adenoviruses, which are prevalent among military recruits, account for less than 13 per cent of such illness in adults.

Your health, good or bad, may be made by the weather —in spite of coats, radiators, air-conditioning, medicine and all.

Researchers find strange correlations between climate and disease.

Check these observations:

Colds reach a peak in winter, and in stormy climates with changing temperatures and pressures.

Digestive disorders are most frequent in hot climates and in hot summer months.

More diabetes is found in winter—and in winter insulin requirements increase.

Skin infections increase in summer, and in high temperature and humidity skin cancer is more prevalent in the sunny south.

Multiple sclerosis occurs most often in cool climates and in spring and fall weather changes.

FEVER IN SINGAPORE

An epidemic of fever broke out in Singapore last summer, striking all races and ages.

Fevers ran as high as 104 degrees. Immediate symptoms were headache, severe body aches and vomiting. Patients usually recovered in a week.

But the disease had another strange effect: Patients broke out in patches of bleeding rash.

FLUORIDE LOZENGE

A new lozenge aimed at lessening tooth decay is available by prescription. It contains sodium fluoride and is for use in areas where fluorides are not at a level deemed sufficient to inhibit dental decay.

The lozenge acts by applying fluoride directly to the teeth, and perhaps by dietary means, the manufacturer says.

Car Licence Renewals Slow Says Minister

TORONTO — Hon. H. L. Rowntree, QC, Ontario Minister of Transport, showed great concern today when he said, "Renewals of motor vehicle registrations and drivers' licences are far behind last year. Up to date less than 40 per cent have been issued.

"This means," the minister continued, "the department, with only 27 business days remaining before the March 15 deadline, has yet to issue some 2.5 million plates and licences. This could mean serious congestion and long line-ups if it continues."

Mr. Rowntree added that the department could handle the situation without any convenience to motorists, provided there was no further delay in applications being made.

The minister again warned that there definitely would be no extension of the March 15 deadline. He urged all those who have yet to obtain their new registrations and drivers' licences to do so now.

"Remember, there are only 27 business days remaining to March 15."

News and Views for Gardeners

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Imports of plastic flowers, foliage and fruits into England totaled £ 1,465,000 worth in 1959. And, the British manufacturers produced about £250,-250,000 worth. The garden magazines are printing many letters of protest against this trend. The conservative ones 000 worth. The garden mag- that will soon fade. Others believe that it is a passing fad fine for stores and public buildings but unsuitable for the home and especially not for use in the church during the summer when plenty of garden flowers are available from the parishioners.

Time study has hit the nurserymen. They are using films to assist them in using both hands in potting, moving plants and packing flowers.

Carnations are now grown without soil, culture and heaters are part of the transport truck equipment to keep the plants warm while being shipped and delivered locally.

The Shell Oil Company sponsored a competition in plastic designed articles. The second prize went to a man who made a wheelbarrow of high density polyethylene. The design is contemporary. Imagine how light this will be to handle.

Black plastics are gaining in popularity with truck and small fruit farmers and nurserymen. Mums planted through holes in the plastic rooted more quickly and made more roots than those planted in open ground. Then too they did not wilt as quickly as those without the plastic. The plastic conserves the ground moisture and keeps the roots cooler.

Growers report that perennial weeds must be cleaned out before plastic is laid down and that while planting through the holes is a little slower then in the open ground the saving of time in weeding, watering, and hoeing more than makes up for the initial labor.

A chrysanthemum specialist reports that white mums are by far the favorite, yellow and red comes next in popularity. There is an idea here. Why not plant a white section in your garden. White flowers among the varying shades of green always look cool and restful and a white garden is attractive even at night.

At a vegetable research station tests carried out to determine the best width for rows in carrots found that seven inch rows were best for medium sized carrots. This is closer than most gardeners beleived possible. They also questioned the practice of planting in rows. Perhaps in the future vegetable seeds will be broadcast in plots. These tests came about in using pre-emergence herbicides. Time saving methods were studied from planting to harvesting.

Speaking of seeds; seeds in pellets are now being offered in colors. Pink zinnias are in pink pellets, yellow, red and orage in pellets to match their color. The candy-like coating not only separates the colors, it includes a starting hormone. And fertilizer to ensure a good start. The large size pellets encourage widely spaced planting which makes for economy.

An apple a day — seems to have some truth. Studies reveal that in countries where large quantities of apples, citrus fruits and green leafy vegetables are used there is a marked absence of heart disease.

In England the Civil Trust has launched a nation wide movement to clean up derlict sites and plant out gardens in them for old people and children. This would be a good project for guides, scouts and service clubs in any town or city.

In the same "tight little island" weekend courses are being organized in rose culture. They begin Saturday afternoon and last until Sunday afternoon. The course is seven shillings, 13 for the course and meals and one pound for course, meals and lodging for one night.

The study of mildew on plants which also belong to the rose family goes on. Some apples have a greasy film which can be felt. This was is present in different degrees on many kinds of foliage. Some waxes encourage the growth of fungi, others discourage its growth. It is believed that this wax is the key to disease resistance.

CAMPBELLFORD

C of C Holds Annual Dinner Meeting, Names 1961 Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual dinner meeting of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce was held on Tuesday night in the Legion Hall, with more than 50 Chamber members, their ladies and guests present.

Mr. George Nicholls was chosen as president to succeed Mr. Donald H. Meyers, who announced his retirement after serving in this capacity for two years. Mr. Meyers thanked his colleagues for their co-operation under his presidency and turned the meeting over to Mr. Nicholls.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. J. F. R. Douglas conducted the election of officers for the coming term, which resulted as follows: president, George Nicholls; 1st vice-president, Douglas R. Maybee; 2nd vice-president, Gordon Oder; secretary, Mrs. Clare Ames; treasurer, Archie Crawford; directors, Ray Pettey, Austin Putnam and Morley Tanner; retail merchants committee chairman, T. Harry Burgis; publicity chairman, William W. Reid, membership chairman, Colin Collins; public affairs, William Dawson; tourist committee, Clifford Penhale (chairman), Dave Wilson, Hugh McCarten; industrial, R. J. Locke; L.O.D.A. representative, Douglas Maybee; Trent-Severn Waterway Association representative, Donald H. Meyers.

CLEAN CAMPAIGN

Mr. Nicholls, in outlining ideas for future consideration for the Chamber, mentioned the need for a "Keep Campbellford Clean" campaign and also the necessity for a planning board in town. In regard to the latter, a three-man delegation consisting of the president, W. W. Reid and William Dawson were named to approach the Town Council with a view to the possibility of forming a planning board, deemed of value in attracting new industry to the town.

Guest speaker was Mr. Don Kingdon, manager of the Lake Ontario Development Association. Mr. Kingdon is a resident of Peterborough, and was introduced by Doug Maybee, the Campbellford Chamber's representative to LODA.

Mr. Kingdon paid tribute to Mr. Maybee and Mr. R. J. Locke for their work in LODA. He stated emphatically that a community cannot stand still economically. He outlined the work of LODA on behalf of East Central Ontario in general and of the local area in particular. Mr. Kingdon stated that the lead which had resulted in the Cook Chocolate Company locating in Campbellford had been supplied by LODA. He told of the successful efforts of the association to have summer locking hours on the Trent Canal extended, and have statistics relative to the large number of industrial and tourist brochures prepared by experts, which had been widely distributed, advertising the LODA area and muncipalities.

COMPETITION FOR INDUSTRY

One of his most interesting revelations concerned competition for industry. "Our main competitors are not neighboring municipalities, but metropolitan cities like Toronto," he said, continuing with facts to that industry located in a member town, helped its neighbor in many ways. "They usually purchase building equipment and supplies in their own area and wages are often spent in near-by centres, an actually personally-conducted survey has revealed," stated Mr. Kingdon, mentioning numerous specific instances to prove his point.

"A Chamber of Commerce," he concluded, "has rightly been described as 'an organization of forward - looking citizens interested in promoting the welfare and betterment of their community in every line of progress possible."

A vote of thanks was tender-which Mrs. Lillian Shaw replied.

REPORT GIVEN

Mr. Hugh McCarten expressed to the ladies of the Legion Auxiliary who catered for the banquet by George Nicholls, to

The retiring treasurer, Mr. Austin Putnam, gave an end-of-ed the appreciation of the Chamber to Mr. Kingdon for his in-the-year report revealing a credit balance of $1,426.93, from which some sizeable expenses must yet be paid. One of the Chamber's main expenses during the past year was the pre-Christmas season when the children of the community were treated with candies and free matinees at the local theatre.

During the meeting, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholls entertained with several piano duets and Mr. Nicholls led in a sing-song. adjournment that the Chamber of Commerce meets the third Tuesday of each month in the Council Chambers, and members were urged to attend.

Your Car

Tired Plugs Cause Wear On Engine

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The economy-minded driver who squeezes the last mile out of spark plugs has already gas consumption. Tired plugs may still run your engine, but they also penalize it.

Plugs must withstand extreme heat, moisture, oil sludge, dirt, erosion, carbon, and lead deposits. In addition, their precise gap adjustments are influenced by service. Thus, cleaning and gap resetting must be undertaken at least every few thousand miles.

Often, performance is unsatisfactory because the plugs used are too hot or too cold for the conditions under which the car is operated. Constant high speeds require a plug colder than that which is most efficient for regular low speed driving.

But, failure to replace plugs when needed is the most common offence. After 5,000 miles, inspect them closely. They may be good for a few thousand more miles, but beyond that you are merely robbing Peter to pay Paul.

S.G. writes: "There was a thumping noise from my left front wheel, so I had the wheels balanced. Despite this, the thump is still heard and felt."

(A) Have the tire inspected for a slight out-of-round condition.

From J. K.: "The speedometer on my car does not show correct speeds. It runs slow."

(A) This can be due to faulty hairspring, or it may be the result of dirt or sludge in the mechanism.

G. C. asks: "My daughter's car, a 1954 convertible, usually coughs and stalls if driven above 35 or 40 mph. What is wrong?"

(A) Fuel pump trouble is indicated here. . . e.g., pump pressure may be too weak to supply the fuel necessary for higher speeds.

From N. R.: "On a low-priced 6-engine car, I say there is 10 miles per gallon difference in gas consumption between a standard shift model and the automatic transmission model. My partner says there is only about 2 miles per gallon difference."

(A) Your partner is almost right. With standard shift you usually get approximately 4 miles per gallon more than with automatic transmission.

So Lonely He Tamed Flies for Company

By MARK PRIESTLEY

BERLIN — In a two-day sitting the People's Court proceeded against the 28-year-old Britisher, de Wet and condemned him to death. De Wet was a paid spy in the service of the French Deuxieme Bureau, his task being the spying out of military installations. He was arrested by the German counter-espionage on German territory."

So began a news item in the German paper 'Volkischer Beobachter' one February day just 20 years ago. Clamped in manacles in an icy death-cell, young Hugh-Oloff de Wet used his teeth to open a copy of the newspaper smuggled in by the prison barber — and quietly determined to cheat his captors and kill himself.

Standing on the slab that served as bed, he smashed a windowpane and chewed up the splinters — but nothing happened.

As the years passed, de Wet's friends and relatives sadly gave him up for dead. Yet the death sentence was not the end but the beginning, an overture to a triumph of the human spirit.

For more than four years the condemned man lived, usually handcuffed and in solitary confinement, under the shadow of the guillotine, never knowing but that each day might be his last.

Every evening he heard the tramp of the guards coming along the death corridor to collect the new day's victims, the footsteps marching nearer, nearer; the crash of the next-door bolts often sounding like his own. Every morning he heard the hiss of the knife and from his window saw the stacks of short coffins, the puddles of blood . . .

There were many adventure-loving young men in the melodramatic 1930's. With his Don Quixote beard and moustache, his love of fine art and good company, his hatred of tyranny, Oloff de Wet served as a fighterpilot with the Negus against Mussolini, with the Spanish Republicans against Franco, with Benes against Hitler.

BETRAYED BY "FRIEND"

Finally, 1939 found him in Prague and Vienna as an unpaid agent of the Deuxieme Bureau, collecting photographs of documents dealing with German fortifications. Sometimes he sewed them in cushions matching the little detachable cushions of the Budapest-Paris express, making a brief journey aboard to substitute the cushions and send his French colleagues code numbers of the compartment. Until a "friend" betrayed him to the Gestapo, and he found himself behind the iron doors on the fourth floor of the Hotel Metropole, cigarets stubbed out on his hands, a rubber mallet skillfully tapped at the nape of his neck, finger-joints broken.

It was nearly two years before he came to trial. He was moved from one prison to another, from one diminutive cell to the next. At one time he resorted to hunger strike, and silence as a means of obstruction, and found himself caged in a lunatic asylum. At another prison the monotony was broken by companions in his cell, men undergoing interrogation who limped back from the Gestapo room on bruised feet and fell like drunks into sleep.

He eked out existence and kept his brain alert by deliberately trying to achieve the impossible. He promised one of his cell-mates, for instance, a feast of roast pigeon and rum for his birthday. De Wet patiently tamed a pigeon at the window, encouraging it to peck between a noose formed by his thumb and finger Cut up and repeatedly set afire while wrapped in newspaper on the cell dustpan, it made a tasty dish. A warder traded the rum for a pair of trousers from de Wet's effects.

Then one morning, at exercise in the yard, he picked up four inches of broken hacksaw blade. The discovery opened entrancing vistas of escape. Every night he drew the blades gently across an iron bar of his window, 3,000 strokes, neither more nor less Every night he filled the cut in the bar with bread kneaded into paste and darkened Within a few weeks he was through.

ESCAPED FROM CELL

With strips of sheets formed into loops, he hauled himself to the roof and then slipped down the earthing wire of the lightning conductor to freedom. From cell neighbors he had learned of an underground river that formed a rat-infested refuge of the desperate. In its impenetrable depths kindly apaches fitted him out with peasant clothes, plugged his nose with candle-wax to alter the contours of his face, stained his pale skin with sun-bronze and bade him good luck in a desperate bid to swim down the Danube to the Bosphorus.

But alas—a haysack tempted him one night and he awoke to find himself surrounded by farm-hands who took him for a long-sought poultry thief and turned him over to the police.

He was chained wrist and ankle as a bad prisoner and transferred to Berlin for trial.

In a dreadful cellar he was lodged with 500 others. One night the guards sprayed the cellar with machine gun bullets. And still de Wet escaped unharmed.

Yet when he was condemned to death by the well-fed judges of the People's Court it seemed that his charmed-life must surely end. Lodged in the death cell corridor of the dreaded Plotzeusee Prison, given food only every other day, manacled, he learned how to slip his practically fleshless hands from his fetters, how to unlock the more obdurate gyves with a small piece of bone — above all, how to control his racing thoughts as the death guards tramped down the corridor.

TAMED FLIES

For nearly two-and-a-half years he endured the grim wait under the sentence of death. Fourteen others went to their doom in a single dawn. Pent between stone walls, how can a man seize fast hold on reason as he awaits the end? De Wet learned to tame the flies in his cell, to sit perfectly still and enjoy their tender caresses. Each evening he attached a shred of black ribbon to his rags, signifying that he had changed for dinner — a crust.

Eventually the R.A.F bombed the prison. Because no accommodation remained for them in the smoking cells, 180 prisoners were hanged that night . . . and still death passed him by. De Wet was drafted to another prison for "execution of sentence."

And then at last, after four long years, the execution squad came for him. In a sentry-box cell he was ordered to strip and don a paper shirt. Along the line came the guards, taking out the doomed in rapid succession. His own door opened. "No," said the warder. "Dress. Have no fear. A try-out."

In 1954 the prison gates were opened by an S.S. man — and they stayed that way. The Americans had arrived. With them came freedom for de Wet and his brave companions.

STOLE POLIO VACCINE

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge T. A. Fontaine, noting that "a most revolting crime against humanity" had been committed, Thursday sentenced Gilles Hebert to four years in prison for stealing $34,000 worth of Salk vaccine at the height of a polio epidemic. Hebert, 23, surrendered to police several months after three masked men raided a University of Montreal laboratory in August, 1959, and stole 6,800 vials of vaccine.

"London Calling"

By LEWIS ROBERTS

LONDON — A few weeks ago I reported that a large London property company plans to convert famous Petticoat Lane street market into a huge, covered shopping arcade.

I now hear that there might soon be changes to another great London maket . . . Convent Garden. The powerful Industrial Development Group of companies is seeking permission to move the existing fruit and vegetables market to a site on stilts over the railway lines at King's Cross.

The scheme provides for five four-storey blocks with facilities for rail, canal and helicopter traffic. The planners say the new market would work ten times as fast as the existing Covent Garden centre. On the present market site they would build office blocks and flats.

Cost of the whole project — about $108 million.

That broth of a boy Brendan Behan has been at it again . . . writing plays, I mean.

His latest effort — Richard's Cork Leg — will be staged at the Theatre Royal at Stratford, in London's East End, in March. It was at this little theatre that the Theatre Workshop company gave first peroramnces of such hit plays as Taste of Honey, Fings Ain't Wot They Used T'be and Behan's The Square Fellow and The Hostage.

Of Brendan Behan's new play, director Joan Littlewood says: 'It is a comedy set in a Dublin graveyard — belaisian in its bawdiness and Swiftian in its satire". She adds that she is uncertain just how she is going to produce it.

Tucked away behind Piccadilly Circus is one of London's most famous theatres — the Windmill, known, among other things, for lovely girls, non-stop revue and the fact that it didn't close uring the heaviest wartime bombing.

Every Windmill program for the past twenty-five years has carried the words: "A Van Damm Production".

Now Vivian Van Damm, the man who introduced Windmill style entertainment to Britain 'way back in 1932, has died. But the Windmill is still turning out Van Damm productions. Vivian's daughter Sheila has taken over the business.

Sheila Van Damm, of course, is known throughout the world as a champion car rally driver. We had a cup of tea backstage the other day and I asked her how it felt to tackle her new, very different job.

'Well", she said, "you need the same basic qualities to run a theatre as you do to win an international rally — a certain amount of ability, a very good machine and a first-class team behind you".

Would she be making any changes in the Windmill shows? I asked.

"I think I might try to speed the show up a bit — you know, make them more like slick, modern sophisticated revues — but . . . ." and she laughed . . "I won't get rid of the girls!"

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

After many years of "inside" baseball there apparently is a yen on the part of diamond interests in Kingston to see what is going on in the outside world.

When the last edition of the Central Ontario League folded seven or eight years age, Roddenville withdrew into its limestone shell and slammed the baseball door behind it.

They did venture forth one or two seasons with junior clubs, but the road was rocky and tough and since they have confined themselves to district junior play and city senior league efforts.

The most recent effort at breakthrough came a few weeks ago when a letter signed by a Kingston baseball official, one Ken Matthews, was sent to various border centres with a view to getting opinions on the formation of a Border Baseball League.

Copies of the letter were sent to centres like Belleville, Watertown, Ogdensburg, Brockville, Kingston, etc. It called for a meeting in Kingtson on a certain date.

It is presumed Mr. Matthews attended his meeting. If so he was a one-man panel because nobody showed up. Apparently the invitation to the wedding got a reception colder than the heart of a tenement landlord.

The only glimmer of interest was a letter received from Belleville. Ken Soden, manager of the Ontario junior champion Kenmors, wrote asking the possibilities of the proposed league. Mr. Soden could have learned a lot about efforts to form a Border League from OBA vice-president Jack Carson.

After the demise of the COBL—that was the year two Toronto clubs, Oakville and Peterborough, were in the loop—Kingston interests with Max Jackson at the helm, endeavored to form a Border Baseball League.

Belleville, Cornwall, Kingston, Watertown, Clayton and three or four more American clubs said they were interested. At the moment it looked good. Several trips were made by Jack Carson, this reporter and others from Belleville and Kingston to various American centres. Eventually the entries frizzled and frazzled away until there was nothing but the two Canadian clubs left.

I do not understand Kingston's sudden yen to play district baseball. Unless all is not well within the city set-up. In any event any efforts to play "outside" baseball would have to be confined to an "outlaw" league such as the proposed border set-up—since the Limestone City is still under an Ontario Baseball Association suspension.

This was placed on the city east of here some time ago when, it is alleged, baseball interests refused to pay rightful OBA dues. According to Mr. Carson, Kingston could be reinstated with no fuss or bother, merely with the payment of a few paltry bucks.

Whatever Soden's motives were in writing the border league set-up is beyond me, but it seems the Kenmors have a fine opportunity to play eastern Ontario baseball this year without having to wander too far.

Thursday night the Lakeshore Intermediate League meets in Port Hope and from this bursitic sick-bed it looks like a fine kick-off not only for the Kenmors but for baseball fans of this city and immediate district.

At the first "feeler" meeting a few weeks ago, it was strongly indicated that two teams from Peterborough and one from Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Oshawa, Bowmanville-Orono and possibly another, would enter. That, as the mouse said when something tickled it, should be the cat's whiskers.

Particularly so, in view of the fact the Kenmors were Ontario junior major champions last year and three other entry clubs were runners-up in all Ontario finals.

Clubs Fined For Violating Waiver Rules

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes were fined a "nominal' $500 each Friday by Canadian Football League Commissioner Sydney Halter for breaches of the league waiver rules.

Halter said the Ottawa fine was assessed in connection with player Larry Hayes, who signed with New York Giants of the United States National Football League without being waived out of the CFL.

The Montreal fine resulted from tackle Bill Hudson's signing with Los Angeles Chargers of the American Football League without being waived out of the Canadian League by the Alouettes.

Halter said that because of what he called "extenuating circumstances," the teams were not assessed the maximum $10,000 fine for waiver rule branches.

He said all CFL clubs were warned at the league's annual meeting here last week that "any instance of a calculated, deliberate breach of the waiver rule would result in the imposition of the maximum fine."

He refused to discuss the nature of the extenuating circumstances in the Ottawa and Montreal cases.

The commissioner said he still has under consideration the case of British Columbia Lions and another former Lion, Randy Duncan who signed with another American Football League club, without being waived out of the CFL.

WILL BE IN RACE

WINNIPEG (CP) —Winnipeg Maroons will be in the hunt for the Allan Cup after all, the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association announced Friday.

The Winnipeg senior team which won seven, tied two and lost one in a tour of Czechoslovakia this season, had announced it would not compete.

However, MAHA secretary Abbey Coo of Winnipeg said Maroons will meet the Thunder Bay champions in a best-of - five Wednesday, March 8.

Quinte Curlers Win Zone Playdowns

Go To Ottawa On Wednesday

One shot down coming home and lying one in the 12th end of the third game for the zone playoff and the right to proceed to Ottawa to compete in the Provincial playdowns and if winner to go to Calgary to play for the Canadian championship in curling, Mac White skip of the Quinte Curling Club, calmly placed himself in the "hack," took careful aim and drew another with his last rock to defeat a Unionville rink in one of the most thrilling curling matches ever staged in this section of the Province.

It was a terrific finish to an exciting match that had over three hundred curling fans, crammed into every available space in the clubhouse at the fairgrounds hushed and completely silent as the skip delivered his last rock. When it arrived home on time, the crowd cheered, stamped their feet and rushed to congratulate the winners and to express admiration for the losers in a thrilling match, where the outcome of every end was in doubt until the last rock was delivered.

The rink of Al McCullam, T. A. Carruthers, Bill Riley vice skip with Mac White calling the shots, curlers of only four years experience defeated a rink of Ernie Lawrie, Keith Jewitt, Ray Grant and his father Andy Grant, who skipped the rink but played third stone, that are known far and wide for their curling prowess in the zone playoffs for two and three, two games to one in a bitter struggle that held the attention of the large gallery every minute of play. The White rink won what could be considered an easy win in the first game 9-4, lost a squeaker 4-3 in the second and came back to take the sudden death game 8-7 on White's brilliant shot in the last game and with the last rock.

CURLED SUPERBLY

The Quinte rink curled superbly all day. Sure they missed some shots but so did the oposition but when the chips were down the Quinte boys made the play that changed the complexion of the game. There were many thrilling shots, Ray Grant's double takeout in the second game that gave the Unionville rink the edge in the second game, and the shot by Mac White in the same game that could have won the match in two straight, when he negotiated a narrow "Port," came to the shot rock but rolled just an inch too far.

The front end of the rink, Al McCullam and T. A. Carruthers were on the broom, had good weight and missed few of the take outs while Bill Riley, vicing the rink, had one of his best days. He was steady as a rock, curled with confidence and did not wilt under pressure. At the end of the game he was completely exhausted and without fear shed tears for the great victory. Mac White, who guided the rink, was strong in his calls, did not get flustered, and was most kind to his rink. All of the rink made the key shots, curled like veterans and are worthy representatives of this section of the province and the rest of the rinks at Ottawa will know they are there before the laurels are handed out.

Probably one of the best games of curling ever played in any competition took place in the second game. The score was 4-3 and six ends were blanked during the match. White was one up coming home and the Unionwille rink got one well buried by Ray Grant, throwing last stone although playing third, drew "dead" to the "button" for second shot and the win. As Andy Grant, the skip of the rink and a curler who has been around many years, said later that it was the finest game of curling one could see anywhere. "They will not have any better game in the championship round than that game."

PLAYED ON ONE SHEET

The skips elected to play all of their games on the one sheet of ice and both of them knew it like a book although to this observer, White used better "ice" than did the opposition through the three games. In the first game Mac White and his boys got the jump on Unionville, scoring six shots in the middle ends that stood up. In the second game there was no score until the fourth end, when White picked up one shot. Unionville tied the match in the fourth with one and Mac went ahead with one in the sixth. In the tenth end Grant scored one to even the count but White was one up coming home. Grant, as stated before, made two big plays in the 12th to win.

There was only one three-ender scored in all the matches and Grant got that one in the last game. White broke in front with three in two ends but Grant got a two and then a one to even the match. Mac White went again to the front with a one on the 10th but Grant scored one in the 11th to have the advantage but White earned last rock on the last end which was the big difference in the game. The skip did not fail and with the help of his rink got one buried and then calmly drew another home to win.

SIMPLY BEDLAM

The enthusiasm around the clubhouse was simply bedlam when the last rock came to rest. The members of the winning rink threw their brooms high in the air, hugged each other and then quickly shook hands with their gallant losers, who wished them every success in their Ottawa jaunt. Bill Riley put it nicely when he said "I never played with a finer bunch of sportsmen than the Unionville rink" and the skip endorsed the sentiment. The win has given a decided boost to curling in this district and no doubt "Allan Cup" time will be lived over again in this city as the residents will watch with interest the rink's success in Ottawa.

There will be eight teams at Ottawa in a round robin series and the matches will start on Wednesday with two games, three on Thursday and two on Friday. The series is decided on a points system, two points being given for a win and the winners will be declared Provincial champions and proceed to Calgary in early March.

Best of luck to the zone winners. The results of the games:

Police Meet Firemen Here On March 10

On March 10 Charley Jacques "Untouchables" and Lee Culhanes "Smoke Eaters" have at it in a hockey match here.

Mr. Jacques, as is known, is a member of Chief Walter Probert's police academy. He will be aided and abetted by Jack Fullerton's O.P.P. (old puck pushers) colleagues currently administered by Inspector McDougall.

Mr. Culhane, who has been eating smoke and coaching softball and hockey clubs, since Khrushchev yelled for vodka in his pablum, is under administrative hand of one Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

In short the Police and Firemen will engage in their annual ice duel in Memorial Arena under the kindly fathership of Tom Lewis and his fezzered friends of the Belleville Shrine Club.

The winners? The Crippled Children of Belleville and district.

The admirable efforts of the Shrine Club in the interests of the crippled kiddies need no re-telling. Committees under Shriners George "Mickey" MacDonald, George Mueller, Tom Lewis and shrine president Ken Vivian have rendered yeoman service and will continue to do so.

Annually, the police and firemen lend willing shoulders to the wheel. This year Constable Jacques and Fireman Lee Culhane's squads are bigger and better than ever (so they say). They give their services, brusies and bumps free gratis.

They, like the Shriners, are doing an outstanding job for their crippled proteges. The public can do a small part by either attending the hockey game or purchasing a ticket, if it is impossible to attend.

It is understood rivalry between the brass-and-blue squads is keener than ever this year. There will be new faces, new talent, and new antics.

This is not a "set-up" or rigged game. Both the smoke eaters and the limbs of the law are deadly serious. Friendship will be laid aside with uniforms. The teams are practicing hard, each bent on victory.

The police squad, "Admirable" says Chief Probert.

The firemen, "Out of this World" says Chief Vance.

If playing on home ice is an advantage, then Montreal Canadiens have a slight edge over Toronto Maple Leafs in the clubs' battle for first place in the National Hockey League race.

The Canadiens, seeking a fourth straight league championship and a sixth consecutive Stanley Cup, play eight of their remaining 14 games at home.

The Leafs, who haven't finished first in 13 seasons, have 13 games left and seven of them are to be played on the road.

Toronto leads the Canadiens by two points as all six NHL teams head into action today and again Sunday.

Tonight, the Canadiens are at home to New York Rangers and the Leafs are host to Chicago Black Hawks. Detroit Red Wings meet Boston Bruins at home in a rare Saturday afternoon contest.

Sunday, the Canadiens are at Detroit, the Leafs at New York and Boston is at Chicago.

What's probably more important to Canadiens, who appear to have shaken a disastrous slump that knocked them out of first place in the standings two weeks ago, is that two of three games remaining with the Leafs will be played in Montreal.

The Canadiens were in high spirits at workout Friday and coach Toe Blake, referring to the team's 3-1 victory at Toronto Wednesday and a 9 - 1 smashing of the Bruins at Montreal Thursday, said: "We're in a little better position now."

"We've been playing better since we lost 7-2 in Detroit a week ago last Sunday," Blake said. "I think that was our low point. But I feel we've come out of the slump now."

The Canadiens won only twice in 10 games before beating the Lafs and Bruins.

Gaels Beaten By Varsity

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues moved into second place with Assumption Lancers when they defeated Queen's Golden Gaels 77-48 in senior intercollegiate basketball Friday night.

Tempers flared for a brief period in the second half. Queen's captain Bob Laughton received a technical foul for profanity and one minute later teammate Tony Tasporich was penalized a technical for unsportsmanlike conduct. Laughton followed at 13 minutes later after his fifth personal foul.

The Gaels, apparently held back by cramped floor space, were forced to shoot many times from outside the key. Toronto kept control of the backboards by their superior weight.

Blake Stewart and Al Raisbeck were top scorers for Queen's with 13 points. Stewart netted all his in the second half. Mike Muir led Toronto with 19 points, Jerry McElroy and Ed Bordas each getting 15.

SETS BOAT RACE DATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The world championship inboard and outboard motorboat races will both be held in Canada this summer for the first time, the Canadian Boating Federation said Friday.

The races are expected to attract some of the world's leading boat drivers. Wallace Wood of federation said at the Quebec Boat Show that the two races will be held at Picton, Ont., Aug. 5-8.

Macs Meet Whitby Here Tonight

Belleville McFarlands will be attempting to even their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group semi-finals when they play host to Whitby Hillcrests here tonight at 8.30.

Whitby won the opening game of their four-of-seven series in Whitby Thursday night by a 6-3 score and tonight's game here is a must for the Macs. Third game is in Whitby Tuesday with the fourth back here next Friday at nine o'clock.

Coach Gordie Bell is confident that his boys will return to form for this key game tonight. The club played badly for the first two periods Thursday and by the time they came to life in the third it was too late to pull out the win.

The Macs will be at full strength this evening and it is expected the biggest crowd of the season will be in attendance.

Winner of this series will meet the Kingson - Peterborough winner for the group crown and the George "Red" Sullvian Trophy. Peterborough leads the other set one game to none with the second game slated for Peterborough Monday night.

Will Appeal

NEW YORK (AP)—The State Athletic Commission said Friday it plans to appeal a decision of the appellate court division which Thursday voided a commission ruling.

The commission had barred the two co-managers of former middleweight champion Carmen Basilio for life from pro boxing in the state. By a vote of 3 to 2 the appellate division voided the banning of managers John DeJohn of Syracuse, N.Y., and Joseph Netro of Ithaca, N.Y.

DeJohn and Netro were barred by the commission after they told a hearing that they paid about $54,000 to Gabe Genovese, an undercover manager. Genovese was sentenced to two years imprisonment on being convicted as an unlicensed manager.

KILL EM KILL EM!
KILL OFF THOSE PENALTIES
2-18

"KILLING A PENALTY"

Rudy Pilous, coach of the Chicago Black Hawks, has always turned out teams adept at staving off the possible dire results of playing a man short. One of his secrets is selecting the best type of player for the job of killing off the penalty. Best types are fast, mobile skaters who can forecheck deep and still get back in time if beaten by the puck carrier at the far end of the rink.

Good tactics, featuring positional play, are also a sign of a Pilous trained team. For example, one forechecker goes in deep and harasses the puck carrier, trying to make him pass. The other checker floats around about 10-15 feet inside the blue line and in the centre of the ice, watching carefully in order to dart in quickly and intercept any pass or to quickly check a receiver before he can get going. Two determined forecheckers, using good positional play and calm alertness can often disorganize the attack very effectively. This is especially true in age-limit hockey.

When the puck is in your defensive zone the ideal positional strategy is to form a zone with the two defencemen 15' out from the goal and 15' out to the sides of the goal. The two forwards should be 15' out from the defensive pair and just a little wider apart. Each player should guard his half of the zone. If this system is used skillfully it will protect the ideal scoring area, forcing the opposition to shoot from the sides or from well out. Avoid being drawn out of this zone because if it is protected the odds are on your side. Crucial Game Coming up For Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The high-flying Portland Buckaroos clash with the Stampeders in Calgary tonight in one of the crucial games of the waning Western Hockey League season.

Buckaroos, always unpredictable, came from behind with seven consecutive goals Friday night to overwhelm Edmonton Flyers 7-2 and move to within two points of league - leading Stamps.

Vancouver Canucks, with goaltender Claude Evans earning his fifth shutout of the season, whipped the visiting Victoria Cougars 4-0 and are two points back of Portland.

At Edmonton veteran left winger Gordie Fashoway, who recently scored his 400th WHL goal, fired two goals for Portland, giving him 27 for the season.

Others were scored by Art Jones, Bill McCulley, defenceman Bill Davidson, rookie Ed Dudych and battling Arnie hmautz.

Seventh - place Flyers had taken an early 2-0 lead on goals by Roger DeJordy and defenceman Lloyd Haddon.

Vancouver scored two goals in each of the second and third periods to down Victoria, clinging to sixth place and the last playoff position.

Larry Popein, Danny Belisle, defenceman Ralph Keller and Bruce Carmichael scored for Vancouver.

Set Down

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—A 10-day suspension imposed by the Santa Anita stewards Friday on Ralph Neves will keep the Portuguese pepperpot out of two big races — the Handicap and the Derby. Neves was set down for causing interference while astride Snug Berth in Thursday's econd race.

FAVORED TO WIN

NEW YORK (AP) —Although he's been outpointed twice by Dick Tiger, Gene (Ace) Armstrong Friday was rated a 7-to-5 favorite to beat the Nigerian at Madison Square Garden tonight. Armstrong's only two professional defeats were at the hands of Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion. Each time, Armstrong was the favorite.

TV Rights Sold

CBC Outbid For Big Four Games

TORONTO (CP)—The richest Big Four television contract in Canadian football history is in the hands of a Toronto private station and the viewing future of many armchair fans outside the big population centres remains in doubt.

After a meeting of the league's TV committee, chairman Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton announced Friday a two - year contract at $375,000 a year was awarded to CFTO-TV, which began broadcasting Jan. 1.

It covers a minimum of 17 games, including the 10 interlocking encounters between Big Four and Western Conference approved this year. It does not include the Grey Cup extravaganza, for which rights are negotiated separately.

The CBC was the only other bidder mentioned. The publicly-owned corporation, which has carried Big Four games on its network in recent years, paid $325,000 last year but the amount of its 1961 bid was not disclosed.

GO TO OTHERS

The new Toronto station, whose broadcasting reach includes Hamilton, announced it has made arrangements for what amounts to a football network with new private stations in Ottawa and Montreal, the other Big Four cities.

Joel Aldred, CFTO president, said this combination reaches 77 per cent of the TV homes in the CBC's eastern and central regions.

But "outsiders" wondering how much, if any, of their favorite fall sport they will be able to enjoy via the TV screen won't get their answers for a while.

Stations carrying the previous football telecasts were either CBC outlets or CBC affiliates and Aldred said the corporation has stated in the past it is not prepared to relinquish its network time to private network shows.

There is the additional problem of arranging transmission facilities, he said.

Whether the football network could be extended would depend on the CBC's willingness to release network time and sponsor willingness to undertake the extra costs, provided the stations concerned wanted football. Another possibility was delayed broadcasts or the use of video tape if necessary.

The TV rights include interlocking games played in the Western Conference cities but whether they are carried "will be based on sponsors' wishes and the technical possibility of doing these games."

The football network requires the approval of the Board of Broadcast Governors but Aldred said no difficulty is anticipated.

CFTO's contract extends through the playoffs and includes the right to carry the second game of the two - game, total points final live in the city in which it is played unless that city is Ottawa.

Othedwise, normal blackout restrictions apply—no TV in the home city or within 75 miles, which eliminates both Toronto and Hamilton coverage of a game in either city.

Aldred said no thought has yet been given to carrying the Big Four playoffs to western stations, as was done by the CBC last year when it held both contracts. The Western Conference rights, bought by the CBC last year at $125,000 for 11 games, have not yet been announced.

Packed Field Moves Into Third Round

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) —Tourney wise veterans and upstart, hungry youngsters clustered near the top of the $20,000 Tucson Open as a tightly packed field moved into today's third round.

Jay Hebert, whose last win was in the Professional Golfers Association last July, and Buddy Sullivan, who seldom finishes in the money, were tied for the lead with nine-under-par 131s.

Florida's Frank Boynton, 24, is a stroke behind with 68-64—132.

At 133 were former U.S. Open champ Tommy Bolt, newcomer Bob Wagner, and Marty Furgol, 43.

Toronto's Al Balding was tied with two others at 136. He shot a 67 Friday, four strokes better than his first round.

Scores of other Canadians included: George Knudson, Toronto, 69-71—140; Jerry Magee, Toronto, 70-70—140.

SAILER WILL COME

TORONTO (CP)—Toni Sailer of Austria has agreed to forerun the course next weekend at Collingwood, in Canada's first professional ski tournament, organizers of the $4,000 event said Friday.

Sailer, now making movies in Germany, has won eight world championships and took three gold medals in the 1956 Olympics.

Two Linesmen May Leave

CALGARY (CP) — Two all-star linemen of the Calgary Stampeders said Friday they are negotiating with teams in the National and American football leagues.

The players are offensive guard Tony Pajaczkowski and defensive tackle Don Luzzi. Both were Westen Football Conference all-stars in 1960 and Pajaczkowski was runner-up to Ottawa's Ron Stewart as Canadian player of the year.

Barons Hold Third Place By Shutout

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Barons have righted themselves just in time.

With a spot in the American Hockey League playoffs jeopardized after losing five of six games, the Barons pulled themselves together and shut out the Hershey Bears Friday night 4-0 to strengthen their hold on third place.

At the same time, Rochester Americans continued their drive toward a playoff berth, defeating Providence Reds 9-2 to move into a tie with Hershey for the fourth and last place in the post-season competition for the Calder Cup. Each has 54 points.

The Barons, who trailed second-place Buffalo by one point, won on goals by Fred Glover, Ed Mazur, Cal Stearns and Jim Mikol.

The Americans built up a 4-0 lead in the first two periods and then broke loose for five goals in the finale. Duke Edmundson, Dick Van Impe and Hank Ciesla led the attack with two goals each.

No Hearing Contemplated

WASHINGTON (CP) — Ingemar Johansson's denials that he was drugged the night he lost the heavyweight boxing championship to Floyd Patterson apparently has headed off a formal Senate investigation of the story.

John G. Bonomi, counsel for the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, told a reporter that "as of now we don't contemplate any hearings."

Bonomi had asked the Florida state attorney - general's office to interview Johansson because of published reports that the Swedish fighter believed he might have been drugged and other published reports that Johansson denied he had been doped.

The bout in question took place last June, when Patterson regained by a knockout the crown he had lost by the same process to Johansson a year earlier.

Johansson gave an answer Thursday at Palm Beach, Fla., where he is training for his third title match with Patterson, set for March 13 at Miami Beach.

"A thousand times I have denied it," he said. "It never has been my theory that I was doped."

RINALDI HESITATES

ROME (AP) —Italy's Giulio Rinaldi balked Friday night at signing for a world title match with light heavyweight champion Archie Moore.

Rinaldi's unexpected stand came within hours after two officials of Madison Square Garden in New York arrived here to conclude arrangements for the bout, tentatively set for June 10.

The Italian's manager, Luigi Proietti, said he would try to make Rinaldi accept the contract. Proietti quoted Rinaldi as saying: "They offered me $25,000. But then I will have to slice away a portion for the American tax collector, and I do not know what will actually be left for me."

Russian High Jumper One of the Greatest

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — If there are any non-believers on the quality of Valery Brumel's high jumping, please take leave—he is great, just plain great.

"He's the greatest," John Thomas, six-foot - five Boston University junior, said today.

Brumel, 18, and Thomas, 19, clashed for the first time since last year's Olympics when they met Friday night in the New York Athletic Club Games at Madison Square Garden.

The sandy-haired, handsome Russian cleared seven feet, three inches, which equalled Thomas's best indoor performance. Thomas still holds the official world record of 7-3¾, but Brumel jumped 7-4½ three weeks ago in Leningrad on an indoor dirt floor.

When the bar was raised to 7-2 Friday night, only Brumel and Thomas remained in the competition. Both had cleared 7-1.

MISSES THREE TIMES

Thomas missed three times at 7-2 and Brumel cleared it on his first shot. The bar went up to 7-3. Brumel missed twice but went over on the third try and the 15,930 spectators went wild.

Brumel ordered the bar raised to 7-5 but missed on all three times.

"I thought I had it on the first jump," he said through an interpreter, "but you never can be sure.

"I like the board takeoff, but the music disturbed me a little. I'm not used to that in Russia," he also said the Garden "was a little stuffy."

Brumel avoided watching Thomas jump and sat facing away from the bar fiddling with his shoe laces.

"It's just a habit of mine," he said. "No matter who my opponent is, I don't watch him."

LIKES IDEA

He added that he liked the general idea of indoor meets.

"I was enjoying myself so much watching the races," he said, "that I almost forgot I was scheduled to jump against one of the greatest high jumpers in the world.

"I know Thomas can go higher than he did. I don't know whether I can keep beating him, but I'll try."

Said Thomas: "If anything was wrong with me, it was my takeoff. Otherwise, I was all right."

He meets Brumel again in the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union championships next Saturday and the Knights of Columbus meet at the Garden March 3. In the Olympics Brumel won the silver medal with a 7-1 jump. Thomas was third with 7¼.

SETS RECORD

The Brumel - Thomas battle overshadowed Ralph Boston's great indoor record broad jump of 26-1¾. Boston, Tennessee State student who holds all the world broad jump records, had a 25-10 indoor mark pending. He is the first broad jumper ever to soar 26 feet indoors.

Brumel's teammate Igo Ter-Ovanesyan, fouled on all six of his broad jumps. The third Russian, Evgeny Momotkov, finished third in the two-mile run behind 31-year-old Peter McArdle of the New York A. C., who won in 8:52.2, and Max Truex of the air force, who was second.

Egg Barrage Greets Habs In 2-0 Win

SUDBURY (CP)—Hull-Ottawa Canadiens skated to a 2-0 Eastern Professional Hockey League victory through a barrage of eggs Friday night.

Canadiens were leading 1-0 in the second period when the fracas began. Fans went wild and Sudbury Wolves coach Murph Chamberlain invaded the ice when referee Art Skov disallowed a goal which would have pulled the Wolves even.

Referee Skov ruled that Jimmy Pappin had kicked in the equalizer and hence, it didn't count.

The incensed fans, possibly anticipating just such a situation, let fly with eggs as the game wet on and Chamberlain tip-toed gingerly back to the bench.

Johnny Annable scored the first-period goal; Terry Gray iced the cake in the field.

SOMETIMES SHORTER

Air force pilots who bail out via an ejector seat may find themselves one inch shorter after the jump, due to pressure on the vertebrae.

TV TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Television has proven extremely popular with young and old, but some children are apt to adopt poor viewing habits — such as lying on the floor in front of the TV set. Get them in the habit of watching while sitting up at a reasonable distance in front of the screen. Since children's eyes are still developing, interrupting television frequently with normal play is a good idea.

Whether you are young or old, jumpy or out of focus TV pictures can tire your eyes. CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 260 Coleman St. specialize in restoring top performance to ailing television sets to give more pleasant viewing. For prompt service phone WO 8-6791.

Falls Flyers Find Tantrum Very Costly

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers had a tie going against St. Michael's College Majors Friday night when Flyer captain Ed Westfall took exception to a lineman's offside call.

His protest was too vociferous for lineman Jack Bell's liking and Westfall got the gate with a misconduct penalty. While he was off Andre Champagne scored the goal that gave the Majors a 4-3 victory.

The Majors, in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series by eight points, gained no ground on the flying Guelph Royals who clobbered Toronto Marlboros 10-1 before 3,300 fans at Guelph.

Guelph's scoring ace, Rod Gilbert, extended his points leadership to 97 with his 50th, 51st and 52 goals and two assists.

Bob Cunningham also had a three-goal night while Paul Andrea, Mike McMahon, Jean Ratelle and Terry Oliver added singles. McMahon had three assists, Ratelle four.

SCORED LONE GOAL

Bill Collins scored the lone goal for the last-place Dukes who are nine points out of the sixth and last playoff spot, held by St. Catharines Teepees.

After Champagne's goal early in the third period at Niagara Falls, the Flyers were checked into the ice for the next 17 minutes despite the urgings of 3,020 throats.

Ron Hergott, Jeannot Gilbert and Westfall scored for the Flyers who took a first-period one-goal lead, Paul Jackson, Larry Keenan and Bruce Draper scored for St. Michael's before Champagne.

The win moved the Majors seven points ahead of the Flyers who have 46, four up on fourth-place Hamilton Red Wings. Peterborough Petes have 33 and St. Catharines 32.

The Teepees will be bidding to jump to fifth place when they meet the Royals at St. Catharines tonight.

'Imaging' Will Accomplish Anything Says Cummings

By BOB THOMAS

TOKYO (AP) —Robert Cummings was in a Chinese restaurant in the Japanese capital talking about his TV show.

When Cummings starts talking, you're bound to listen. One of his crusades is bringing joys of food supplements to the unenlightened. He is working here on My Geisha, and he has most of the company hooked on his pills.

In between the shark fin soup and fried rice, he chomped on protein tablets and wheat germ pills.

"Imaging," he said. "That's the way you can accomplish anything in life. Once you image what you want—and if it is good for you and other people—all you have to do is start acting as if you already have it. And before long, you will!"

HE'S NOW 50

He illustrated with his career. For five years he pictured himself as a British actor and won his start in the threatre and films. He now sees himself still young and at 50 he keeps the appearance of a collegiate.

His latest reflection has accomplished the virtually impossible task of a third bigtime TV series. He did My Hero, which is still making the re-run rounds in the United States and elsewhere. He had a five-year-run with The Bob Cummings Show.

Next season, CBS will offer a different series, again named The Bob Cummings Show.

The story has Bob as a playboy with a home at an airport in Palm Desert, Calif. He's a sort of jet age Paladin, taking on jobs to help out people when he runs out of money.

As with his previous series, Bob will star in, direct and produce the show.

Another Cummings wish is the yen to do something to feed the world's millions. Reality: He now is involved with a dozen others in planting 1,500,000 acres in Australia with rice.

Dixie Four Off to Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Gurowka's Dixie foursome eliminated Alfie Phillips Sr. in consecutive games Friday to win the district championship and advance to the Ontario curling finals at Ottawa next week. Scores were 13-4 and 11-6.

CHURCH WORK

Two U.S. church groups have arranged to have the movie The Defiant Ones shown before integrated audiences in several southern states.

Woodstock Earns Win

WOODSTOCK (CP)—A two-goal edge they picked up in the first period and carried through the second wasn't enough Friday night as the visiting Strathroy Rocket were defeated 5-3 by Woodstock Athletics in Ontario Hockey Association senior action.

Strathroy jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first period and matched goals with Woodstock in the second, coming out ahead 3-1.

Athletics caught fire in the third, scoring four to one over the visitors.

Junior Barash cracked in two goals within 25 seconds in the third period to pace Woodstock. Jake Imola, Carl Hatt and coach Jack Stoddard backed him up with singles.

Harry Bentley, Jack Lane, Jack McCreight and Willie Haas scored for Rockets.

AT THE PARK — Grace Kelly stars with Raymond Milland and Robert Cummings in Alfred Hitchcock's "Dial 'M' for Murder", in Technicolor opening Monday at the Park Theatre. On the same program the big one "Oceans 11", in Technicolor stars Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford and Angie Dickinson. One complete show Monday, starts at 7.20 p.m.

General Tendencies: Until noon you are able to complete and to wind up thinking out the new ideas and the advanced plans of a lofty and high-spirited nature that appeal to you. Then the afternoon and evening find it necessary for you to really get down to specific actions and intelligent schedules to bring your own unto yourself.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Concentrate upon what you truly want in the days to come after you have attended services of your choice. Later, a fine opportunity presents itself to converse with an intelligent member of your family that will lead to greater prosperity.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Meditation upon your future plans is fine in A.M., but be sure you do not confide in others. Later, contact those persons informally, tactfully, who can be instrumental in helping you to gain your goals. P.M. go out and have fun.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) You are fortunate in having a good ally give you splendid ideas in A.M. which you should follow. The latter part of the day and veening is then ideal for enjoying musical or cultural activities. Be particularly kind with loved one.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Find out what your true position is with progressive individuals in A.M. Later, concentrate upon what you want in the future and discuss these ideas and plans with the right people. Evening is fine for sociability and pleasure.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Listen to the most spiritual person you know in A.M. and gain the strength to live a more happy and successful life. Later in the day is fine for contacting powerful individuals and gaining their favors, cooperation for the future.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into the so-called silence for awhile in A.M. and permit those fine hunches to come through. Later, be out and about meeting interesting and influential people so that you can plan your future on a more secure and constructive basis.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—A.M. is fine for coming to a better meeting of minds with vital persons in your particular sphere. P.M. stay at home and make plans that will please your associates and be very lucrative for you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Now you can live so inspiringly that others will emulate you. Be sure you get out among worthwhile social circles where you can advance and make your future more successful and infinitely happier. Live th eGolden Rule.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Show devotion, be kind to those who have been loyal and good to you in the past. Enjoy some fun with them in A.M. Later in the day, sit down and plan the days ahead most intelligently and in a practical fashion. P.M. play.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — important you are most thoughtful of close ties or servants in A.M. Later is then fine for going out socially or for enjoying your favorite sports. Be dynamic and carefree. Meet the right people and become more popular.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get your letters written in A.M. after you have attended the services of your choice where inspired speaker can lead you in the right direction. P.M. Inaugurate a new system at home that will be most pleasing to kin.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Meditate today on the fine principles under which you were raised and resolve to follow them once more, as well as incorporate the best philosophy which you have learned throughout the years. P.M. go out with good friends and have a ball.

If your child is born today .. he, or she, will be one of those fascinating youngsters who will possess a brilliant mind and get very high grades in school, and will delve into the most intricate studies out of sheer love of knowledge. The career starts rather late, but the success will be considerable since there is the ability to reduce large projects to a workable basis. Early give fine religious training.

General Tendencies: Excepting where the startling and the dramatic are concerned, in which you can certainly unwisely make some sudden changes, this is one of your best days in some time to think out what you really want, and then go after making it an active part of your every-day life. Prepare for very important decisions and activities tomorrow. Make all possible appointments with those of influence.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) A fascinating person who can give you the data you need at this time will also proffer excellent ideas you should follow for future success. Later, get all practical and property affairs in good order. P.M. take it easy, retire early.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) You are able to unite your efforts with good allies today and also have a good time with them en route. This applies to both business and social interests. See that you are absolutely fair with everyone. P.M. improve apparel.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Be sure to accept any favors which higher-ups, especially those in civic life, are willing to release to you. Then impress them with your truly patriotic trend of mind and your ability to perform the work needed. Be efficient, dynamic.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — A charming individual from out-of-town will now join your social group and this will prove most beneficial to you, since you are very close to this person. Be sure you give the most hearty welcome and are at your very best.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Surprise your loved one with a gift that will be truly appreciated and add prestige or help in some way with career. The evening with then be a most happy one spent at some lovely site that has the finest atmosphere.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)—Reach greater rapport with loved one by being charming, witty or giving a charming gift that comes from the heart. Later, garner the data you need. You will get excellent results from this that will brighten your horizon.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—You are inspired just what you must do to have greater income. However, don't become overly elated or permit a highly egotistical friend to lead you into some extravagant investment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—You are now capable of impressing higher-ups with your efficiency and ability to solve any problems extant. However, be careful you do not lower prestige or jeopardize the support you now enjoy from influential people. Be wise.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — The day for being most practical in all that you do so that you can have a greater abundance in the future. Raise your level of consciousness — expand. P.M. steer clear of overly-dynamic person who could ruin your ideals.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much of worth can be yours now provided you practice the Golden Rule. Pay no heed to a pessimistic advisor or penny-pinching mate who could ruin your chances of advancement. Carry through after thinking wisely. Grow.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you steer clear of peculiar-acting associates and follow through in your own quiet and easy manner, you can make big headway in all business or personal interests. Evening is fine for enjoying good music, or dancing.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Your best benefits can come today from good comrades, and it would be well if you got in touch with them early. Express your ideas and ambitions, get their co-operation. P.M. fine for sociability. Don't be extravagant.

If your child is born today—there will be every opportunity to gain from well-established professions or from new but round outlets, especially where the social life is concerned. Early teach to complete any task once begun before going on to another. Also, give the finest education and religious training possible that will fit him, or her for any distinguished profession where culture is a must. Great success indicated here.

A BIG BUNGALOW

Did you ever look at a new (brand new — just finished) brick bungalow and having looked be able to agree with the aggressive salesman that this home has real big rooms? Would you look at a lovely brand new brick bungalow that we have for sale on the East side? Would you then tell us whether or not that the kitchen is huge (a real joy for a family) and the 3 bedrooms (that are usually so small) — tell us what you think of them. We think it is a most unusual home at a most attractive price of $15,500. Consider also the garage and full basement. Don't let the down payment discourage you. Call

African Countries Not Ready To Call for Scalp of Dag

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It seems clear that while African countries see much to criticize in Seretary - General Dag Hammarskjold's handling of the United Nations Congo operations, they are stopping short of supporting the Soviet Union's call for his scalp.

This was pointed up Friday in a speech by the United Arab Republic's Omar Loutfi before the UN Security Council. Although the U.A.R. had been bitterly critical of UN policies and had withdrawn its troops from the Congo force, Loutfi carefully refrained from hitting directly at Hammarskjold.

While some observers surmised Loutfi was merely courting Western support for a proposed resolutuion, it was noted that the U.A.R. has preserved a comparatively moderate attitude toward Hammarskjold throughout the Security Council debate.

The other co - sponsors of the resolution, Liberia and Ceylon, also steered clear of castigating Hammarskjold and, in fact, the African country formally supported him.

Liberia's Ambassador George Patmore said that among African delegations he had been in touch with, "the overwhelming opinion is that the office of the secretary - general should remain as it is" and that the secretary-general should be given even more authority in The Congo.

NOT ALL DAG'S FAULT

In an Asian view, Ceylon said the way the Congo operation had been conducted was not always satisfactory. However, part of the responsibility had to be placed upon the Security Council itself, since member countries had not been able to agree on a clear mandate for Hammarskjold.

African delegates — with the exception of such governments as Guinea and Mali whose support of the Soviet line was regarded as almost automatic — tended to slam at some of Hammarskjold's policies and proposals without hitting directly at him.

Countries of the French Community voted as a bloc within a bloc on most issues during the UN General Assembly debate last year, but their speeches before the Security Council indicate varying criticism of the Congo operation.

They were generally agreed that Hammarskjold's proposal for disarming the Congolese Army would be a "ghastly" mistake on the grounds it would over-ride sovereignty of the republic and also might result in African UN troops killing fellow African Congolese.

Seldom did the Security Council debate become more bitter than when, for instance, Guinea charged French Community countries with submitting to tutelage. An observer suspects that French Community Negro representatives sometimes adopt a harsh approach to avoid the stigma of being stooges for their foreign imperialist masters.

Frost Astounded At Estimates For Education

TORONTO (CP)—An increase of $32,215,000 in estimates of the Ontario department of education for the fiscal year 1961-62 was described as astounding by Premier Leslie Frost when announced in the legislature Friday.

The estimates, which total $266,051,000, are based largely on a bigger school population but the biggest increase is for legislative grants, amounting to $189,415,000. This amounts to an increase of $18,055,000 over the present fiscal year ending March 31.

Grants to elementary school grants jump from $51,844,000 to $58,500,000. Education of retarded children will cost $915,000, increased from $850,000 in 1961-62. Public library grants will increase to $2,000,000 from the present $1,750,000.

Ontario scholarships and bursaries are boosted by $250,000 to $1,250,000.

University grants will be raised from $28,707,000 to an estimated $36,063,000 in the new fiscal year.

MOST FOR U. OF T.

The main university grants with comparative grants for the current year in parentheses are: University of Toronto, $17,093,00 ($13,500,000); Queen's University, $2,675,000 (2,500,000) University of Western Ontario, $2,675,000 ($2,715,000); McMaster University, $2,525,000 ($2,225,000); University of Waterloo, $2,100,000 ($1,875,000); Assumption University of Windsor, $2,050,000 ($1,900,000);

Carleton University, $1,600,000 ($1,285,000); York University, $1,550,000 (a special appropriation of $750,000 was made for 1930-61) and the University of Ottawa, $1,400,000 ($1,350,000).

Other grants include: The Ontario College of Education, $1,175,000; Ontario College of Arts, $535,000; Lakehead College of Arts, Science and Technology, $325,000 and Laurentian University of Sudbury, $250,000.

STILL A PROBLEM

Mr. Frost compared the estimated expenditures with the $16,000,000 required for education in the 1944-45 fiscal year and said the total for 1961-62 is not the end of the problem. The estimates will be considered Monday.

Before the orders of the day, Mr. Frost announced that the technical committee on portable pensions has agreed to prepare a draft bill that would provide greater portability and more plans.

He said the bill, expected to be completed within three months, will be made available for study to all members of the legislature, the federal government and all interested companies and individuals.

Just as Ontario led in a code for liquor and beer advertising, Mr. Frost said he hoped the province would obtain agreement with other jurisdictions towards creating a portable pension plan on a national or interprovincial basis.

lation was unfair and unnecessary.

He said the union now publishes a financial statement covering each of its locals.

One union official suggested that in some cases it might be difficult to sort out the Canadian income and expenses of international unions from the general total. He said that in some unions the Canadian and U.S. sections use central educational and research facilities.

John Lenglett, assistant Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC), said that although the Canadian section of the union had published a detailed accounting of its operations and offered to make it available to the membership, none of its 23,000 members requested it.

Mr. Lenglett said the statements, 1,700 of which were sent to union stewards and local officers, listed all salaries, including those of office girls, and showed every cent paid out by each local to every fund supported by the union.

"No company has published as detailed a statement as that" he said.

TORONTO (CP) —Shareholders of Toronto Elevators Ltd. and Maple Leaf Milling Company will be asked at separate special meetings next month to approve an amalgamation of the two companies. The new company will be called Maple Leaf Mills Ltd., if the plan is approved at the meeting to be held in March.

Mr. McMorran said also dispatchers worked three days on and three days off in shifts from 7 a.m. one day to 11 a.m. the next. Hours were recorded and provision made for payment of overtime.

The girls charged between $25 an hour to $100 a night or whatever the traffic would bear. The girls gave half their earnings to the "head office."

Canada Today

Much of Canada Discontent Due to Strong Economic, Cultural Pressure by U.S.

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP)—Many Canadians are looking to the new administration in Washington to remove some of the irritants aggravating U.S. - Canadian relations.

President Kennedy has made a good impression here. There is hope that next Monday's talks between Kennedy and Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be fruitful.

One of the first to back such talks was Lester B. Pearson, Liberal party leader who has been a leading critic of the recent trend of Canadian - American relations.

Pearson, urging Diefenbaker to invite Kennedy to make Canada the first country he visits, said:

"There is a new, energetic, courageous, young administration in Washington. A strong and creative basis for positive co-operation should be established with it."

Canadians acknowledge that much of the discontent in their country is due simply to the strong economic and cultural pressure coming from the U.S. side of the 3,000-mile border. It is a case of a country of 18,000,000 people being in the shadow of a giant neighbor of 180,000,000.

PRICES HIGHER

Some Americans who have studied the Canadian mind over the years feel many Canadians are victims of an inferiority complex, arising in part from economics. Canadian pay for comparable work is generally lower than in the United States but many things that today's home dwellers want, such as refrigerators and TV sets, often cost more here.

It may be wishful thinking, but a considerable segment of Canadians feels that more understanding of this country by people south of the border would lead to better feeling all around. This is on the edge of things Canadian leaders want to discuss with the new U.S. administration along with such solid problems as defence, foreign policy and economic relations.

One of the most frequently heard complaints here is that Americans know so little about Canada and that they hardly seem aware of Canada's problems.

"Often," says Finance Minister Fleming, "we wish Americans were as interested in Canada as Canadians are in the United States."

Pearson has offered two suggestions on how to make the United States and Canada better neighbors:

"The USA must show a greater awareness of the importance of the problems and of the possibilities of our separate national position; or our resolve not to mistake co-operation in defence, in foreign policy or anything else, for domination; or partnership for absorption.

"We, in turn, must show an equal understanding of the world responsibilities of the United States, responsibilities accepted out of duty, not for imperial ambitions."

FOWLER DROPS HINT

Robert M. Fowler, president of the Canadian pulp and paper association, suggests that U.S. companies coming to Canada to establish subsidiaries should take into account the different conditions and different aspirations that exist.

"These subsidiaries," he said, "must become good and active corporate citizens of Canada."

There is no doubt that a great many Canadians sincerely want to be friends with the United States. Despite the rise of nationalism, there are millions who still praise and admire the United States.

A leading Canadian magazine, Maclean's, said in a recent editorial:

"We above all should rememmember the easy open - handed generosity, never equalled anywhere at any time; the formidable technical skill and the readiness to share it with the world; the respect for weaker neighbors' views and preference, which wasn't always there but has now been maintained with laudable patience for 25 years."

MIKE LAUDS U.S.

Pearson notes that "plucking the eagle's feathers" is a popular pastime in Canada, but he reminds Canadians that U.S. capital has been responsible for much of Canada's economic development. He observed:

"I don't want to be tied to an American dollar, to an American Bomarc (missile), to Jimmy Hoffa, or even to adult westerns, but I believe we can deal with these and related matters without lapsing into demagoguery or denunciation."

The proper method, as he sees it, is consultation and co-operation.

"Co - operation should mean for both countries and for their allies the obligation to consult, not merely to inform, when policies are adopted which affect all. It does not mean a single foreign policy but it does mean a sincere desire and a strong effort to avoid differences and conflicts in such policy."

Diefenbaker Will Visit Kennedy In Washington

Tells Port Arthur Rally No Election This Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, accompanied by External Affairs Minister Green, left Ottawa this morning for a three-hour conference with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters at Uplands Airport that international affairs would be the main topic of the discussion, including his proposal for a NATO summit meeting. Economic affairs would only be touched briefly, he said.

The transport department plane carrying the Canadians left at 9:25 a.m. It was due in Washington shortly before noon. The Canadian party is epected to leave for Ottawa at 3:30 p.m. and arrive back in the capital at 5:30.

The prime minister left for Washington after a weekend visit to Port Arthur and a major political speech to northwestern Ontario Conservatives.

He told the Port Arthur rally that no election is planned for 1961.

But, he added, the government is ready to appeal to the electorate on its record.

He spent most of an after-dinner speech to the Northwestern Ontario Progressive Conservative Association outlining what his Conservative government has accomplished in its drive to encourage employment and development of Canadian resources.

But he indicated the government would not be forced into a quick general election by opposition pressures. "We are going to take this message to the people," he said. "We are waiting until we see the whites of their eyes."

Earlier, on his arrival at Port Arthur by train, he told a press conference that a 1961 election is "most remote." To correct any false impression he may have given, he later told the banquet flatly the government has no plans for a 1961 election.

Mr. Diefenbaker's trip to the Lakehead climaxed an organization tour undertaken earlier in the week by Allister Grosart, national director of the Conservative party, who accompanied him.

COUNTERS RUMORS

The "blitz" on the northwestern Ontario area was organized to counter any suggestion, heard in Conservative circles locally, that the party now in power is writing off the 11 constituencies which, in the 1958 general election, went to Liberal and CCF candidates.

On domestic affairs, Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada must face the fact that it has priced itself out of world markets, and must counter this by greater productivity. He said membership of the Productivity Council, authorized by Parliament before Christmas, will be announced in a few days.

On international affairs, Mr. Diefenbaker said that while there is no formal agenda for his conference today with President Kennedy, the international situation will obviously be the No. 1 topic.

He said it is characterized by

13 Boy Scouts Rescued From Flooded Island

TORONTO (CP)—A group of 13 boy scouts was rescued from a flooded island in Highland Creek just east of Toronto Sunday when the ice on which they had walked there was broken up by a raging torrent.

The boys, aged 12 to 14, clung to their slippery foothold for hours while their two leaders struggled waist-deep through the icy water to reach help.

Police said later if they had panicked and tried to reach shore, most of them could have drowned.

The boys walked across the frozen creek Saturday morning and set up camp near a sewage treatment plant on the island, some 400 feet off the mouth of Highland Creek.

The ice was still solid when they bedded down for the night about 7 p.m. Saturday.

CUT OFF EXIT

But rain and rising temperatures turned the creek into a raging river, cutting off their exit route.

Scoutmaster Roger Johnson, 28, and cubmaster William Thompson, 25, were awakened during the night by a scout who complained water was coming into his tent.

Looking around they saw there was no longer any path of solid ice to the mainland.

The two leaders moved the boys to higher ground and tried to span the creek with a 30-foot tree they cut down. When the tree proved too short, they struggled waist-deep through a 30-foot channel to shore, where they reached a house.

Firemen tried to reach the boys with ladders across the creek, but these also proved too short.

BROUGHT A BOAT

Former Toronto policeman Lorne Pinel, 33, now a boat sales firm owner, drove a boat and trailer five miles to the scene. With Metropolitan Toronto Const. Joseph McDonald they made two trips to the island and brought the boys ashore, working in darkness and dense fog.

Scoutmaster Johnson said the ice was between four and six inches thick when the group walked over it Saturday. "You could have driven a car on it," he said.

Cubmaster Thompson said he had to use an axe to cut a hole in the ice to wash dishes.

One of the scouts, Brian Rudd, 17, said: "We just kept on singing to keep our minds off the danger."

The rescued boys, all members of the 34th Toronto Bellefair United Church troop were: Barry Jarvis, Martin Gill, Joseph Ross, Wayne Rafferty, Stuart Brown, Alastair Lawrie, Thomas Hayes, Joseph Bessicon, Garth Young, Robert Simpson and David Gilmore. Also among them were two junior leaders, John Inglis, 18, and Brian Rucki.

BRITISH CABINET WILL DISCUSS RHODESIA CRISIS

Macmillan Fails To Break Impasse

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan conferred with his cabinet today as his government came under newspaper criticism for its handling of the now-deadlocked talks on the future of Northern Rhodesia.

Despite the deadlock, the government was expected to put forth later today or Tuesday a report outlining the kind of constitution Northern Rhodesia's 2,250,000 Africans and 72,000 whites can expect.

Also in the offing was a report to Parliament on the talks by Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod.

The situation in the protectorate has been reported as tense since the deadlock was reached Friday in the talks on the key issue of white and African representation in the legislative and executive councils.

EFFORTS FAIL

Macmillan Sunday failed in last-ditch efforts to break the impasse in an 83-minute personal meeting with African nationalist delegates to the meetings here.

The nationalist leaders said Macmillan warned them "to weigh our words in such a manner as not to excite our supporters."

However, Harry Nkumbula, head of the protectorate's African National Congress, commented, "there is nothing to weigh" and said the Africans are not "prepared to accept" the British-proposed new constitution for the protectorate because "it does not give the African majority which is our demand."

Kenneth Kaunda, leader of the African United National Independence party, told reporters after the Macmillan meeting that "the British government has betrayed us."

The Africans had demanded in vain to hear and discuss details of a reported three-tier franchise system proposed by Britain before it is published as a white paper.

The plan is believed to provide for a 45-member legislative council comprising 15 Africans, 15 whites and 15 representatives elected from a combined African and white voting roll.

The Africans want clear majorities in both the legislative and executive councils to replace present white control.

This is opposed by Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the federation which links the protectorates of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland with the self-governing colony of Southern Rhodesia. The ruling white United Federal party, which Welensky leads, boycotted the talks.

Revolt Smashed In Venezuela

CARACAS (AP)—The government of Venezuela announced that a military attempt to overthrow President Romulo Betancourt's regime was smashed early today.

The insurgents tried to seize the military academy in a surprise move, and simultaneously, four soldiers tried to seize radio station Rhumbos, the government said.

A communique identified the leader of the revolt as Col. Jose Edito Ramirez. He was seized at the military academy.

President Romulo Betancourt's regime has been the target of repeated revolutionary movements from both the left and the right.

Lord Russell, 88, Is Disappointed As Police Fail to Jail Sitdowners

LONDON (Reuters) — British philosopher Bertrand Russell said Sunday he is disappointed that police took no action against any of the 4,000 demonstrators whom he led in a mass civil disobedience protest here Saturday.

But Russell, 88, described Saturday's action as a "dress rehearsal" and promised future demonstrations that "the authorities cannot tolerate."

Russell, winner of the Nobel Prize for literature in 1950, squatted with the demonstrators for three hours Saturday on the cold sidewalk outside the British defence ministry in the centre of London. The sitdown was a protest against the U.S. Polaris submarine base in Scotland and the manufacture of nuclear weapons.

At a press conference Sunday, Russell said his civil disobedience movement against nuclear weapons "depends for its success on immense mass public opinion and we don't think we can get that unless we can arouse the authorities to take more action than they took yesterday."

Secret Contacts Have Begun Between French, Algerians

PARIS (Reuters)—Secret contacts have begun between France and Algerian Nationalists to prepare the way for full-scale negotiations aimed at ending the six-year war in Algeria, it was learned today.

Well-informed French sources here confirmed a Tunisian magazine's report that representatives of the two sides have made their first direct contact.

An official at the office of President de Gaulle told reporters "We are not prepared to make a formal denial of such reports."

The magazine, Afrique Action, is in close touch with the Tunisian government. It did not disclose where the contact took place but said that Krim Belkacem, foreign minister in the rebel Algerian provisional government, brought back an account of the meeting when he returned to Tunis Saturday.

Belkacem was in Cairo in the middle of last week.

The report of the meeting followed the arrival in Paris Sunday of Tunisian Information Minister Mohammed el Masmoudi to arrange a meeting between de Gaulle and Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba.

Afrique Action says France had decided on three measures to ease the negotiations toward a settlement with the Algerians:

1. An end to all executions of condemned Algerian Nationalists.

2. Bringing Ahmed ben Bella and other Nationalist leaders captured by the French in 1956 closer to Paris with a status similar to the one enjoyed by Bourguiba when he was a prisoner in 1954. Ben Bella and the other imprisoned Nationalists now are held on Ile d'Aix off the French Atlantic coast.

3. Concentration of French soldiers in Algeria in the towns, with their duties limited to protection of Europeans.

Many Cuban Industries Paralyzed by Shortages

HAVANA (AP)—Despite the Castro regime's boast that it has thwarted the U.S. economic embargo of last October, many Cuban industries are paralyzed by shortages of raw materials and spare parts or operating only sporadically, industrial sources reported today.

The sources cited the once flourishing tire industry as a prime example. Factories used to turn out 10,000 to 12,000 automobile and truck tires a week. Now the industry produces a trickle of about 300, all from one of four factories that used to be run by Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone and U.S. Rubber.

This plant will close its production line Tuesday because of acute shortages of raw materials, especially carbon black—"one of the essential ingredients in tire manufacture," said an industrial expert.

Sources said Cuban authorities made desperate efforts to get substantial quantities of carbon black in Canada but failed.

Washington banned U.S. exports of everything but food and medicine to Cuba four months ago in retaliation for Castro's virulent anti-U.S. campaign, his nationalization of almost all U.S. property in Cuba and his increasingly close ties with the Communist bloc.

The picture is the same in other plants seized from American or private Cuban owners, industrialists here said.

Egg Support Price System Failure Say Resolutions

OTTAWA (CP) — Dissatisfaction with the egg support price system is solidly registered in four resolutions at the Canadian Federation of Agriculture's annual meeting starting today.

The resolutions say the system has failed to discourage mass production by big operators, has hurt the small producer and discriminated regionally.

In all, this 25th CFA conference—back in Ottawa for the first time since 1942—has 98 resolutions before it ranging from rural mail delivery for every farmer to banning nuclear arms and examination of high drug costs.

Most have been well aired at preliminary meetings by regional or allied bodies of the CSA.

Eggs and poultry lead off the list and discontent is plain about the deficiency payment system inaugurated in 1959 by the federal government to curb mounting egg surpluses. Farmers are paid the difference between the average market price for the year and a floor price—if the average price is lower. Payment is limited to 4,000 dozen grade A large eggs.

The resolutions contend more eggs should be eligible for the payment so that the smaller farmer can be helped out. The request is made that the floor price differ regionally so that it can take account of low-price pockets across the country which fail to qualify for a deficiency payment because the national average is higher.

The resolutions bear out most continuing agriculture — and CFA—stands including support for the Crowsnest pass grain freight rates, the wheat board and orderly grain marketing and steps to curb the butter surplus — lower consumer prices and returns to producers at existing levels with the government paying the shot.

There are variations on the traditional support for free trade. Resolutions urge no tariff increases that might harm purchases of produce from this country. At the same time, higher tariffs are urged for some fruit and vegetable and oil-seed imports.

APPEALS FOR PENANCE

ROME (AP)—"It would not hurt anyone," Pope John said Sunday night, "to make some sacrifice during Lent . . . a word less, or even one small glass of wine less will not harm anybody." The 79-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church appealed to thousands of Romans for Lenten sacrifices at services in the Church of St. Giovanni Battista de Rossi.

EIGHT STUDENTS PUT ON BREAD, WATER IN JAIL

Negroes in Solitary Since Friday

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP)—Eight Negro students jailed following sit-in demonstrations have been placed on bread and water in solitary confinement. Prison officials say they called a sit-down in the jail and refused to work.

Charles Maloney, superintendent of the nearby York county prison camp, said, "We will let them out when they show us they are ready to go to work and obey orders."

Maloney confirmed Sunday the students from Friendship College at Rock Hill had been in solitary confinement since Friday. They were among 11 jailed recently when they refused to post $100 bail each pending appeal on conviction of trespassing during a variety store sit-in.

Rev. C. A. Ivory, president of the York county chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said one student was transferred to the York county jail for making a motion toward a prison official. The others began a fast and also complained of overwork.

At Greenville, S.C., 11 young Negroes, four of them women, faced trial for assembling in City Park Saturday without a permit in an unsuccessful attempt to get into a skating rink for whites.

In another development at Greenville, southeastern regional NAACP leaders completed a four-day meeting by calling on Negroes to stop buying from those who don't give them equal job opportunities.

Meanwhile, Roman Catholics in Georgia and South Carolina were informed that parochial schools will be desegregated not later than the public schools in their respective dioceses.

The policy was enunciated in pastoral letters read in all Catholic churches in the two states.

In Atlanta, hundreds of Negroes staged a rally in a Baptist church in support of 78 students arrested in sit-in demonstrations. The students decided to remain in jail rather than post bond.

Boy Breaks Both Legs, Pelvis In 275-Foot Fall Down Well

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A seven-year-old boy broke both legs when he fell 275 feet down a narrow pipe into a well Sunday. Recovering in hospital was Harry Stage, who also suffered a fractured pelvis and possible internal injuries.

Harry was playing on a ranch 25 miles southwest of Phoenix while his dad, Ed, a driller, was talking to ranch owner Webb Faublon.

Climbing on a platform, Harry jumped on a piece of plywood which concealed the pipe of an underground irrigation well.

"The boy just vanished," Faublon said.

Harry plunged down the 16-inch pipe with 250 feet of water at the bottom. But there was one thing in his favor.

"That board helped compress air in the pipe," said Stage, "and this undoubtedly slowed his fall. But he couldn't tread water because of his broken legs and pelvis."

From the bottom of the pipe came Harry's voice, "Daddy, get me out of here."

"We'll get you out," was the answer. "Just push against the sides of the pipe so you don't sink."

The men used a block and tackle and 300 feet of line with a loop on the end to haul the boy up.

Six Congolese Political Heads Are Executed

Transferred to Kasai By Kasavubu's Regime

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold reported today he has received word from The Congo that six African political leaders have been executed in Albert Kalonji's secessionist mining state after being transferred from Leopoldville by the central government.

Hammarsjold stunned the 11-member UN Security Council as it met to resume sessions on The Congo situation in an atmosphere already tense following the slaying of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba in secessionist Katanga state after being transferred from Leopoldville.

The secretary-general said the new executions had been confirmed by his special representative in The Congo, Ambassador Dayal of India, who had received a message from the "so-called justice minister" of South Kasai, the mining state.

"I bring this news to the council with revolt and shock," Hammarskjold said, adding that the action was "humiliating and corroding" to the UN operation in The Congo.

Hammarskjold, referring to Lumumba's execution, said he was at a loss to understand how Congolese leaders could behave in such a manner in the face of the world body's attempts to help their country.

STIRS SHARP PROTESTS

The secretary-general's announcement touched off a round of vigorous protests in the 11-country council. Liberian delegate George Padmore proposed that the council adjourn its debate until 3 p.m. and the council agreed to do so.

Padmore said he wanted to consult with other African nations on the latest incident. Chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson supported Padmore's proposal.

Hammarskjold identified the six executed persons as Finant, Fataki, Yangara, Muzungu, Elengesa and Nzuzi.

Soviet Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin recalled that he had protested vigorously Friday against adjournment of the Security Council meeting and he complained bitterly that the executions showed the council should not have been recessed.

The deportation first came to light in a UN report from The Congo Sunday that said Premier Joseph Ileo's government had secretly moved at least seven political prisoners to the mining state and three of them were rumored to have been killed.

The report came from Dayal, who expressed "grave anxiety" about the "perils" to which deported persons are exposed.

Hammarskjold sent a vigorous protest to President Joseph Kasavubu. He urged immediate action to return the deportees "and to permit them, with the co-operation of the United Nations forces, to obtain due protection as to their persons and their rights."

LOSES MAJOR POST

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Rasul Gulamov has been released as Communist party first secretary of the important Tashkent region of the cotton-rich republic of Uzbekistan, according to an edition of the party newspaper, Pravda of the East. No reason was given, but the change is the latest of several following last month's agricultural conference here in which Premier Khrushchev criticized agricultural shortcomings and warned of swift retribution.

Layoffs Started By U.S. Airlines Result Strike

NEW YOK (AP)—U.S. airlines, caught in the widest wildcat strike in their history, began laying off thousands of workers today.

The four-day strike of flight engineers which began Friday night has cut domestic and international services of the six airlines to about 10 or 20 per cent of normal.

Eastern Airlines announced Sunday night it was immediately beginning to release from 6,000 to 7,000 employees as a result of the walkout.

Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines, National Airlines and American Airlines said they would begin furloughing a total of close to 60,000 if the strike wasn't ended today.

AFFECTS MANY

The layoffs would affect about 20,000 employees at TWA, the same number as at American about 15,000 at Pan American and about 3,500 at National.

Western Airlines, the sixth major carrier hit by the walkout, made no announcement.

The announcements came on the heels of an acknowledgement Sunday by Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg that he had been unable to bring about a settlement.

The engineers, members of the Flight Engineers International Union, are protesting a Feb. 6 decision by the national mediation board ordering them to join the Air Line Pilots' Association as a single bargaining unit.

SEE UNION VANISHING

Pilots outnumber engineers on all lines, and the engineers say the decision might have the eventual effect of wiping out their union.

Domestic and foreign airlines not affected by the dispute were swamped with requests from stranded travellers for reservations.

One airline spokesman estimated that travel plans of about 75,000 people had been interrupted as of Sunday night.

Per Diem Rate of $2.53 Set For Maintenance of CAS Children

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society was held last Thursday. The president, Mr. C. B. Morgan welcomed Mr. Harleigh Hamilton ,reeve of Sidney and warden of Hastings County.

C.L. Hyde, treasurer, stated that the court had established the per diem rate which the Society will receive in 1961 from municipal sources for the maintenance of children in ward care at $2.53. Of this amount 32c is chargeable to a deficit which the Society incurred in 1956 and which, by reason of the steadily declining number of children in care, it has been unable to recover. He said the annual audit of the Society's accounts by the chartered accountants was now complete and that the auditor's statement was available for examination by all interested parties.

Bruce Kerr, the local director, said that January had been a busy month. A much higher than usual number of people sought counsel and advice, the majority of them with marital problems. He felt that the atmosphere of gloom, which is currently being spread across the country had much to do with the state of mind of many people.

The majority with whom the Society has contact are unemployed but their unemployment is seasonal in nature rather than the result of layoffs or cut-backs in production. The greatest hardship created seems to be the inability to meet credit buying payments and previously incurred obligations. The local welfare departments are doing a tremendous job and the basic necessities such as food, clothing and shelter do not seem to be grossly affected. Certainly the C.A.S. has not been called upon to provide care for children because a local municipality failed to provide assistance. Quite the opposite is true. In any number of instances had not the municipality come to the rescue, the children would have been neglected.

During the month fifteen children were admitted to care. Of this number six were born out of wedlock and the remainder by reason of neglect on the part of one or both parents.

"It is inconceivable to me," Mr. Kerr states, "that in this day and age a family can live in the midst of a prosperous community, grossly neglect their children, and yet not one single member of that community voice a word of protest until a major tragedy occurs. How people can do so and live with their conscience is beyond me. The services of the Society are available twenty-four hours a day."

The president announced that the annual meeting would be held early in March.

Progressive Conservatives Hear Minister of Health

PICTON — As the economy of the province permits, the government will assume a greater share of the tax burden borne by municipalities, Dr. M. B. Dymond, Minister of Health for Ontario, stated at the annual meeting of Prince Edward-Lennox Progressive Conservative Association here Friday night. He spoke to more than two hundred persons who filled the dining rooms of the Royal Hotel.

Stressing the need to open up the northern areas of the province and to process the province's raw materials, the Minister said "we should look and see if there are some thing we would like to have but could do without in order that such development might proceed, and thus help to create a more favorable economic climate."

"It is rather stupid to be selling raw materials to another country for processing and then buying them back," Dr. Dymond admitted. "In Ontario we have the human energy and spirit to bring about a new look. There is no reason we cannot develop these resources.

"In spite of problems and difficulties, there is no cause for throwing up our hands — this is the time when the people of Canada should rise to their greatest challenge. We are not in the midst of a depression; the potential of this province is greater than many dream."

NO SECRETS TO REVEAL

"I make no promises, for the politician's promise of today is the tax of tomorrow. I have no secrets to reveal — I do not know when an election will be held, but do not guess, be ready when it comes," Dr. Dymond urged.

Progress in Ontario during the past 15 years was the theme of Dr. Dymond's address. Solutions to many problems have been found in the past; we are challenged to find solutions to those of today.

Mental health is the number one health problem in Ontario, Dr. Dymond stated. Of the 92 million dollar budget for his department, 46 millions are for the care and treatment of those afflicted with mental disorders. with capital expenditure costs for construction an extra.

"Soon we will have bed for bed in general and mental hospitals. One out of every 12 or 14 persons of the general popualtion who lives through a normal life span will suffer some mental disorder," he stated.

"The attitude of society towards mental disorders has changed, finally recognizing it as a problem of great magnitude and one likely to affect all classes. The crusade of the Department may be costly but it is a problem which must be brought out into the open. Society must recognize that these people are ill and require treatment."

Dr. Dymond reviewed the increasing support the present government is giving to municipalities towards education and welfare. He praised Premier Frost as architect of the Hospital Insurance plan, with the insistence that it 'cover all.' This plan will cost 40 million more this year, he said.

Introduced by N. Whitney, MLA, Dr. Dymond was thanked by C. A. Milligan, MP.

MAYOR ANSWERS CRITICS

Mayor H. J. McFarland, replying to articles in the press which continued to advocate a bridge at Glenora, in addition to the one announced to connect Prince Edward and Hastings near Deseronto, asked, "Why should 14 million dollars be spent on a bridge at Glenora when we can get one (at Deseronto) for four or five million." He felt Bath and Adolphustown would benefit by removal of heavy traffic from Highway 33 and become 'little St. Petersburgs.'

Association President Fred McPherson of Wilson suggested a ladies' association be formed. He has served two terms. Barney Hepburn, Picton, is the new president with Col. Harry Babcock, Allan Anderson, Donald Walker, W. Briscoe as vice-president, Thomas Walker continues a secretary - treasurer and Earl Morrison as assistant.

Around The Tee

A rink of Dave Duffy, Charles Cox, Mac Moffatt with Ross Booth as skip, journeyed to Cobourg on Saturday and came home with second prize and accompanying awards. The rink won three games as did a rink from Oshawa skipped by J. Neil, but in the one-rock playoff, Neil drew 1½ feet closer to the button than Booth. Another local rink of Pete Acton, Hugh Murray, Bob Smith with Murray Johnson as skip, succeeded in winning two games but not sufficient score to figure in the prize money.

There were sixteen rinks in play from Simcoe, Toronto, Oshawa, Peterborough, Belleville and Cobourg, and were competing for the Corby trophy in competition for the first time and the Oshawa rink took it home.

Incidentally, Morris Booth, father of the second-place winner, succeeded with his rink in winning the two-high game score. The elder Booth is an enthusiastic curler and bowler and visits this city on many occasions.

Many bonspiels will be played throughout the Quinte district in the coming week with the spiel at Trenton starting on Thursday likely being the biggest. This spiel will be a combined effort by the Trenton Club and the RCAF club and will continue until Saturday with the finals on Sunday. A number of rinks are requested from the Quinte Club and entries can be made to Jimmy Duncan of the Trenton Club. There will be spiels also at Marmora and Kingston.

Two rinks of Rotarians journeyed to Kingston on Saturday to take part in a Rotary spiel in that city. A rink skipped by Jack McArthur with Everett Fairman, Dan Cowley and Harold Mott won the two-game high, while the other rink skipped by Bill Gault with Stuart Robb, Don McNevin and Pat Houston was second high for one. Game winner Leo Quinn, well-known in this city, helped out one of the rinks while the regular member was attending a funeral.

Phillip S. Carr Dies in Hospital After Accident

Well known Stirling district farmer, Mr. Phillip Sherman Carr, 74, of R.R. 2, Stirling, died early Sunday morning following injuries received when his car went out of control near Halloway and skidded into a tree.

The accident occurred Saturday afternoon and although Mr. Carr was not thought to have been seriously injured he died in Belleville General Hospital shortly before two o'clock Sunday morning.

Provincial police said Mr. Carr was driving alone on the Hastings county road when on a curve about a mile north of Halloway his car went out of control on the slippery road and slammed broadside into a pine tree. A freezing rain was falling at the time of the accident. It has not been decided whether there will be an inquest.

A native of the Stirling district, Mr. Carr was born in Rawdon and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Nelson Carr.

He was a former railway engineer and for many years had been a farmer in the Ridge Road, east of Stirling.

Active in community affairs, he was past president of the Ontario Rural School Trustees' Association and was secretary of the Hastings County Cheese Producers' Association and former president of the Evergreen Cheese Company at Stirling.

PAST COUNTY MASTER

He was a member of the Pentecostal Church at Stirling. Fraternally he was a member of the L.O.L., No. 300, at West Huntingdon, and was past county master. He also belonged to West Huntingdon, R.B.P., No. 770.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ada Stapley; three daughters, Mrs. Adam (Ila) Brummel, R.R. 7, Belleville; Mrs. Elick (Pearl) Brummel of Norwood, and Mrs. Leslie (Leah) McKeown of Marmora, and a son, Elvin, of R.R. 2, Stirling.

Also surviving besides ten grandchildren and three great grandchildren, are two sisters, Mrs. Frank Stapley, Stirling, and Mrs. Nora Phillips of Belleville. A brother died a year ago in Detroit.

The funeral is being held on Wednesday afternoon from his Ridge Road farm home.

CANADIAN STAMP

The first Canadian stamp was the red, three-penny beaver, issued April 23, 1851, by the province of Canada.

Freezing Rain Slows Traffic, Mishaps Few

Saturday's freezing rain which covered streets and roadways in the Belleville area with a film of ice slowed traffic in the Quinte area, but few serious accidents were reported by police.

One fatal accident occurred in the Holloway area when a car driven by Mr. Phillip Carr, R. R. 2 Stirling, skidded broadside into a tree.

City police reported a few minor accidents resulting from the slippery driving conditions but here again there were no serious mishaps.

Just over half an inch of rain was dumped over the area and although surface water appeared briefly in the depressions, it was not thought that district wells benefited to any extent.

Farmers' cisterns received a shot in the arm but farmers' today were still drawing water for their stock.

Plan Industrial Parley Feb. 22 For 3 Counties

The old established industry of a community is often overlooked if the municipality places too much emphasis on the acquisition of new manufacturing concerns, says A. H. LeMasurier, Senior Commercial Counsellor, Industrial Development Branch, Department of Commerce and Development.

Mr. LeMasurier will conduct a forum for Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward Counties' municipal councillors, planning boards, members of the various chambers of commerce and industrial commissioners, along with other assisting agencies such as banks, railways, gas and Ontario hydro, at the Trenton Golf and Country Club, Trenton, February 22.

The importance of local industry as the backbone of the community will be one of the topics under discussion at the round table conference.

Twenty-five similar meetings held in various Provincial counties this past year, have emphasized the need for councillors to have a continuity of programs from one election to another. In many instances, he says, communities do not have industrial commissioners and programs instituted by one council must be carried out by succeeding councillors if the community is to benefit. Certain basic rules have been adopted for this procedure and local municipal members will have the opportunity of discussing the vital subject during the conference.

According to Mr. LeMasurier, municipalities should be very concerned about the selection of industrial commission members. Greater care might be exercised in the selection of qualified personnel.

It has been found that a better understanding of the organization of the industrial committee is necessary by municipal leaders if the community is to prosper.

Liberal Member Says Election Coming June 12

VERDUN, Que. (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament Sunday predicted the federal government will call a general election for June 12.

In a radio speech over CKVL Verdun, Guy Rouleau, MP for Dollard, said:

"From what we can see, I wouldn't be surprised to see the prime minister call an election on June 12 next."

He said that "something transpired" at the fall session of Parliament—he did not elaborate — which, in conjunction with "the furious activity" in the chief electoral officer's office, "leads me to believe that we will have an election in June."

Mr. Rouleau's prediction went counter to statement by the prime minister in Port Arthur, Saturday.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a political rally there that chances of a 1961 general election were remote and unlikely.

Voters in Northern Cameroons, a UN trust territory, were given the choice of union with either Nigeria or Cameroon.

Says Argentina Setting Example To Latin America

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina, says its first freely-elected president after the Juan Peron dictatorship, already is giving an extraordinary example to the rest of Latin America of how a people can help itself. Says slender, scholarly Arturo Frondizi:

"The United States must appreciate that it is fundamental and absolutely necessary to co-operate with all Latin America in its economic and social development.

"The important thing is for the United States to realize that it is not giving charity to 200,000,000 Latin Americans, but making a contribution to the development of Latin America's people."

Frondizi's minister of economy, hard-driving Alvaro Alsogaray, gives the impression that he feels Argentina's government is involved in a race with time, to prove it can achieve what it has set out to do.

"If Argentina succeeds," he said earnestly, "then other Latin American countries can succeed, too. If we fail, then Fidel Castro will gain significant help and far greater possibilities in Latin America."

The Argentine Army, regarding itself as a sentinel over the constitution, has struck heavily against Peronistas, Communists and Castroists alike.

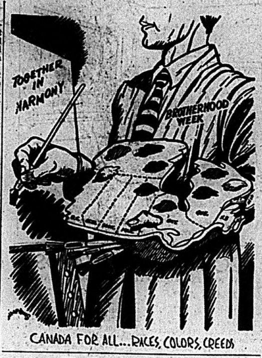
In the ranks of labor, Peron left a legacy of tough-core followers who now cast blank ballots in elections.

There have been instances of Communist-Peronista alliances on the union labor front and for purposes of terrorism directed against the Frondizi government.

It is possible that the Frondizi government will be forced into a program with a far more leftist look in an effort to persuade Argentina's workers that they have a stake in the government's future.

A major test will not be long in coming. Early in 1962 Argentina will elect half its Congress.

Peron nationalized virtually every aspect of Argentina's economic life. The Frondizi government has reversed much of the nationalization and has produced a peso which has been remarkably sound and stable for more than a year.



Labor Federation Wants Governments to Provide Technical Type Education

By BILL MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The Ontario Federation of Labor's weekend education conference heard gloomy predictions on the future unless there is immediate action to provide more education, especially of a technical nature

Speakers and delegates from the floor were pessimistic on the chances of reducing unemployment without fast government action towards facilities for turning out skilled workers and for retraining adults now unemployed.

Some of their comments:

Professor John Morgan of the University of Toronto's School of Social Work: "Young persons are entering the Canadian labor force at a rate of well ove 100,000 a year—or a probable total of more than 1,000,000 in the next 10 years. . . . They will constitute more than 25 per cent of the total labor force. Under our present educational system one-third of them will have no more than Grade 8; one-third will have less than Grade 12; less than 20 per cent will have senior matriculation; only six per cent will have completed a university or college course—and scarcely any of them will have had any systematic technical or vocational training . . . this is terrifying."

MUST CHANGE WAYS

Arthur Pigott, director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education; "Canada has one of the more obsolescent work forces of the western world. Seven million people here have not completed high school. . . . For a nation that has risen to the second-highest standard of living in the world, we show few signs of being able to maintain our position unless we change our ways."

David Archer, federation president, in an interview: "We live in a changing society with automation and new machines that need educational qualifications. Education is needed to broaden the minds of trade union members and give them better background to be able to adopt to new jobs as automation and other changes cut out their former jobs. It's one of our biggest problems."

Towards a solution, Prof. Morgan said "We must reorganize our educational system to bring it out of its 19th-century academicism and make it effective and attractive to Canada's young people. . . . We must create a massive program of technical training at all levels from Grade 6 to—and beyond—university level.

EUROPE AHEAD

European countries, some with lower standards of living, had left Canada far behind in providing technical education for both young and old.

Mr. Pigott cited a great need for adult retraining—"in the future adult education, continuous learning, will be the lot of all."

Prof. Morgan advocated a reorganization of federal government departments to improve welfare benefits.

He suggested splitting the present health and welfare department into two ministries, transferring to them "those health and welfare functions now being carried on in corners of other government departments, such as citizenship and immigration."

The reorganization would include abolishing the department of veterans affairs — "The clientele of this department are citizens of Canada and there is no logical reason for them to remain a privileged class."

The affairs of this department, as the caseload of veterans diminishes, would be better handled under several other departments, he said.

Ice Fisherman, Marooned All Night, Rescued

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — Five ice fishermen, from Buffalo, one of them an eight-year-old boy, were rescued Sunday after being marooned overnight on Lake Erie ice off Port Colborne.

Two of the party, the boy, Dickie Miskulski, and Frank Dudak, 41, are in hospital suffering from exposure. The others have returned to Buffalo.

Raymond Berczek, 44, managed to reach shore at 7 a.m. and went to a cottage. Mr. Dudak and his son, Kenneth, 16, reached the break - wall two hours later. Mr. Dudak was taken ashore by firemen in a flat-bottomed boat and Kenneth walked ashore.

The boy and his father, John, 51, were brought to shore by a helicopter which was summoned from Buffalo.

GROUP GOT LOST

The group had gone out about 7 a.m. Saturday morning. They began returning to shore about 1 p.m. but became lost when heavy fog rolled in.

Cries for help were heard offshore in Port Colborne Saturday evening but fog prevented rescue operations. A number of people drove cars to the shore, turned on their headlights and honked their horns. The fishermen could not see the lights although they heard the horns.

Two other men with the group separated from them Saturday night and reported them missing to the Buffalo border patrol.

Police from Port Colborne, Palmerston, Ont., and Wainfleet Township, Ont., along with the United States border police and coast guard, participated in the search.

At Leamington at the other end of Lake Erie police and firemen used wailing sirens and loudspeakers Saturday to guide lost fishermen from the fog-bound ice.

Police Chief Ay Boles of Mersea Township said all were guided safely to shore. It was not known how many fishermen were rescued.

Town's Dentists All Favor Fluoridation; Survey Shows Residents' Mixed Feelings

TRENTON — In his recent annual report to the Board of Health, Dr. E. W. Dow, Trenton's medical health officer, recommended fluoridating the town's water supply. Last year he recommended the same measure but no action has been taken.

In a reporter's telephone interviews with a cross-section of town residents, the reactions to Dr. Dow's recommendation were many and varied. Some were for it, some were against it, some said frankly that they "didn't a darned thing about it."

The most favorable reaction came from the town's dentists. In his report, Dr. Dow said, "the town's dentists are 100 per cent behind my recommendation."

Dr. J. E. Richmond, a dentist said, "Let's put it this way, Dr. Dow is 100 per cent behind the town's dentists on this. The Bay of Quinte Dental Society recommended this move 10 years ago In every community in Ontario where fluoridation has been tried, there has been as much as a 70-per-cent drop in tooth decay. The sooner Trenton water is fluoridated, the sooner the town's dentists will get some relief. The city of Brantford is a shining example of this method of preserving the children's teeth."

Other dentists contacted, backed Dr. Richmond's statement unconditionally.

Trenton physicians asked to comment, were inclined to leave the matter in the hands of the dentists.

"I haven't studied the subject enough to be able to express an opinion," said Dr. J. D. Beecroft. "The dentists should be the ones to judge."

"Some communities find that the fluoridation treatment is excellent," said Dr. W.W. Weaver. "Some are not convinced that it is a good thing. I think it's probably beneficial, but I'm conjecturing. I'm not an expert on the subject."

GOOD REPORTS

Clifford A. Baker, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission said, "I've never heard anything adverse about fluoridation."

Commissioner Charles Hilton said that he would go along with any recommendation made by the dental or medical profession. "They wouldn't do anything that would be detrimental to the community as a whole."

Rev. Ronald Reid of Bethel Temple, and a member of the 1961 school board, said "I haven't any personal ideas on the subject, but I'm all for anything that would improve the taste of Trenton water."

Mrs. W. L. Griffiths, school board member, said, "I think it's a very good thing. After all, there are certain purifying agents put into the water now. I don't think fluoride could do any harm. Enough research has gone into this to prove its worth. And dental care is so expensive."

Paul Tripp, chairman of management on the school board, said, "It would appear to be a good thing. If there are no injurious effects, I'm for it. And as far as I know there isn't any proof that fluoridation has had any injurious effects."

Councillor Ross Burtt said, "I'm going to be honest with you, I don't know anything about it. My wife thinks it's a good thing. I've drunk this water all my life and I'm still alive, if that proves anything. If it improves the young people's teeth, it must be good."

Frank Fillon, druggist, said that he hadn't made up his mind one way or the other. He said that he couldn't see why fluoridated water should be wished on families who don't have children.

H. S. Pane, chairman of the Board of Health, said: "I wouldn't care to state an opinion on the matter. I've made comparisons with other communities but I'm not personally convinced one way or the other."

On the distaff side, one town official, who wished to remain unidentified, said, "It's very, very dangerous to experiment with drinking water." He said he was against the idea.

One housewife who asked to remain unidentified, said: "I don't think it would be a good thing for anyone with stomach trouble. But I really wouldn't know. False teeth don't ache."

Another resident declined to comment because he had had "a full set of store teeth for a number of years."

"Why didn't they think of it sooner?" he asked.

Others contacted said they "didn't know enough about it to comment."

The most colorful comment came from Trenton's 92-year-old councillor, N. J. McNair.

"What fool thought this up?" he asked. "Leave the water alone. It's good enough as it is. My answer is absolutely no."

High School Activities

(By Sandy Brown)

TRENTON

Trenton High School has spent a relatively calm and uneventful week. Students are once more getting down to serious study for the forthcoming exams, which begin on March 10. Where did the time go?

On Monday evening, the doors of the school were thrown open to the public for the presentation of two senior plays. Sharp at 7 p.m. the members of the two casts arrived for the long, hard job of putting on makeup. From all reports, a few of them are still trying to get it off. Both plays went off with very few hitches. Gifts were presented to the directors by the student actors after the final curtain. The student choir entertained during the short intermission. We are happy to announce that well over $100 was raised for the retarded children. Those concerned may well be proud of their efforts.

The "Beatnik Dance" planned by the Teenaires has been given up in favor of a "Box Social-Record Auction." The date is Feb. 24. The place is Breadner school. All girls are asked to bring a box lunch for two. Those doing so will be admitted for 15 cents. No lunch . . . 35 cents. Records will be auctioned off during the evening. Everyone welcome.

Early last week the camera club will commence taking the final group photographs. Each group will be notified the day before the picture is taken so best bibs and tuckers can be got out of the mothballs.

Basketball scores:
Trenton seniors 37, Moira seniors 36. The bantam and junior games were won by Moira.

When our girls met the Quinte girls last Tuesday, the sparks flew as usual. Our girls took both basketball games.

Seniors: Trenton 57, Quinte 11; juniors: Trenton 34, Quinte 27.

High School Principal Surprised at Columnist's Interest in Personal Memo

W. J. HOUSTON

TRENTON — The following report appeared Friday in Pierre Berton's column in the Toronto Star:

"I'm puzzled by a directive handed out to teachers in a high school in Trenton. This is a 'Schedule for the Handing in of Marks', and it explains that 'since the average for the grade should be between 60 and 65 per cent, the average for the better classes should be 60 to 70 per cent and for poorer forms, 53 to 60 per cent. The directive addsd that 'heads should be concerned that this result should be attained and question results that are out of line.' Does this mean that no one is supposed to fail?"

On Saturday a reporter interviewed W. J. Houston, principal of Trenton's one high school.

Mr. Houston said that he was a little surprised that a Toronto columnist would have been advised of a personal communication from a principal to members of his staff, and that he was more than a little puzzled at Mr. Berton's question at the end of the item.

"I really can't understand what he is getting at," said Mr Houston. "Surely everyone must understand that there is a certain amount of 'streaming' carried out in all secondary schools. Students vary in ability. The forms are graded according to ability to a certain extent. The subjects a student wishes to include in his curriculum enters into the picture also. We must expect to find a certain percentage of failure. But what would be the object of setting up such a high standard of 'averages' that most of the students would fall below this mark? In dealing with students of lesser ability, what would be the object of setting up a standard which would be unattainable for the entire class."

SOME WILL FAIL

In answer to Mr. Berton's question, "Does this mean that no one is supposed to fail?" Mr. Houston said:

"Certainly some students will fail for one reason or another. Throughout the year, the teachers are expected to encourage the students to better their marks from term to term. Some students will apply themselves and show great improvement by the end of the spring term. Others will fall behind, whether from disinterest or the lack of ability to grasp the subjects.

"There isn't any supposition about it. At the end of this school year, some students are going to pass and some are going to fail. The teachers will do their best, but in the final analysis, it will be strictly up to the individual student. The teachers are instructed to adapt their teaching procedures to the average level of the particular classes involved, and to maintain standards. The basic points must be taught to and mastered by all students. Elaborations on less important areas can be omitted with students in classes of lesser average ability. This calls for judgment and forethought on the part of the young teachers.

"Is Mr. Berton inferring that there should be no direction in this matter to inexperienced teachers? Things would get in a rather chaotic state in a school where each teacher set his own standards, particularly if he had no standard to go by except his university standards, or the memory of his own school days to go by."

Few Accidents In Icy Rain

TRENTON — Despite freezing rain and icy pavement, only a few minor accidents were reported in Trenton over the weekend.

On Saturday, a car driven by Mrs. Lena Palmateer of Film Street, struck a car driven by James Clark Morgan of Carrying Place at the intersection of Wragge Street and Dufferin Ave. Rain was falling when the accident occurred. Mrs. Palmateer said that her vision was partially obstructed by her son, Wayne, who was riding in the passenger seat beside her. Damage to the two cars involved was slight.

Saturday at 5 p.m., one Trenton motorist got the worst of an argument with a parking meter when he failed to notice the meter at the end of a parking row on the municipal parking lot. Damage to the car was estimated at $100.

Sunday night, Joseph Barry of Trenton was bruised when his car went out of control on Highway 2, two miles west of Trenton, and slid into the ditch. Damage to the car was placed at $500.

Mistaken Identity

We note a report in The Windsor Star that a couple of American newsmen have noticed an anti-American feeling in recent news despatches from Canada. The recent legislation on the amount of American money invested here and the current Royal Commission regarding American publications and their effect upon the home publishers' activity and prosperity were, apparently, the major reason for this attitude.

We hope that not all Americans will fall into thinking that because we Canadians are more worried about our own Canadian interests than we are worried about the prosperity of American interests in our homeland that we are turning anti-American. Surely our neighbors to the south are not so self-centred or thin-skinned as to indulge in such shallow thinking.

Surely Americans realize that their greatest allies are those who can stand on their own two feet without relying upon American aid to exist. It is much better for a person to have a house full of independent friends rather than to have his quarters cluttered up with debtors and fair-weather friends. Surely the Americans must realize by now that the fair weather friendships which were acquired through heavy aid subsidies are relatively valueless, that such countries' friendship is up for sale to the highest bidder?

Then, too, one cannot hope for true friendship from a nation whose basic industries and financial institutions are controlled by him from abroad. This sort of familiarity with another country's life breeds little more than contempt and a desire on the part of its people for economic as well as political freedom. The Americans have experienced this feeling already, what with the "Yankee Go Home" signs and so forth.

If our neighbors mistake our desire to run our own affairs and to protect our own interests as indicative of anti-American feelings there is something lacking in their interpretation of friendship. If they feel that friendship is to be interpreted as control of other people's lives then perhaps our desire for economic and financial independence may be regarded as anti-American feeling.

Or are we Canadians just being old-fashioned in feeling that there is more to friendship than what may be measured in terms of dollars and cents? There is an old saw to the effect that the best way to lose a friend is to loan him a dollar. Perhaps the Americans might do better in their relationship with other countries if they were to discard the monetary approach.

Canadians certainly do not feel that Canada is turning anti-American but then neither do they believe that Canada should be an economic or political satellite of the United States. The latter is the sort of friendship which characterizes the Soviet bloc, and our people have little use for that sort of arrangement.

A Vital Difference

Eastview Citizens League, which provided the initial push for last summer's inquiry into the town's affairs, is not satisfied with the report of the provincial investigators.

"We've seen nothing but smoke," one taxpayer complained at a recent meeting.

Facts revealed by the inquiry certainly suggest that some action should be taken.

Both in Eastview and North York we have been amazed by some of the things which were done, apparently in the belief that there was nothing wrong with such actions.

Moreover, we are getting more than a little tired, every time some municipal shenanigans are uncovered, of seeing Belleville's name linked with Eastview and North York as among those municipalities in which "irregularities" have been charged.

Certainly there were "irregularities" here, as every Belleville citizen knows, but there was one real and vitally important difference. There was not one title of evidence that any person here, elected or appointed, profited by one single red cent from anything which was done.

SPORT OF COMRADES

Russia entered three steeplechasers for the Grand National. Since under British racing rules every horse must have an individual owner, Mr. Philip Pika, of the permanent Soviet trade delegation in London, became the first Russian since the Czars to own racehorses: "A formality you understand," he said.—(London Observer.)

We must commit ourselves to the idea of continuing education throughout our lives . . . It is too good a thing to be left to children—Robert M. Hutchins, former chancellor of University of Chicago.

May End Double Tax

Montreal Gazette

What would happen if Canadian corporations were permitted to deduct from their taxable income the dividend payments made to their shareholders

This question is receiving of late much lively consideration. There has always seemed to be an essential inequity in taxing the same money twice; for at the present time the money set aside for dividends is subject to corporation taxes (now running over 50 per cent) and the money is taxed again when the shareholders receive their dividends, through the payments they must make in personal income taxes.

It would seem more equitable if this double taxation were removed.

The question gains in interest and timeliness in view of the steps taken by Mr. Fleming in his baby budget last month to provide inducements to Canadians to invest more of their money in their own country. In his speech recently before the Canadian Club of Toronto, Mr. Fleming emphasized that it still appears more suitable for Canada to provide a greater proportion of capital from its own resources.

If this policy is to be carried forward into the forthcoming annual budget in the spring, would tax changes with regard to dividends be a means of promoting it?

Many think it would. If corporations were permitted to deduct dividend payments from taxable income, they would be in a position to attract more investment in common shares, by being able to increase dividends, without increasing their present costs.

Or, if they did not increase dividends, they would have the advantage of tax deductions on the present dividends—an advantage that could be used to save money to be reinvested in expansion, research, or better equipment.

Thirdly, a company could, if it chose, maintain present dividend rates (or limit their increase) in order to lower prices, and this would be a valuable possibility in this time of keener competition.

Every plan, of course, has its difficulties and uncertainties. This is no exception. It is pointed out that investors in common stock (in contrast with investors in bonds) are not, concerned so much with income as with prospects for growth. Then others point out that the bond market might be disturbed, if the rate of yield on common stocks became as favorable as that on bonds, or more so.

Yet it wouud seem that higher dividend rates, even if they would not be the major inducement for investment in common stock, would be a supplementary inducement, often of considerable importance. As for the effect upon the bond market, this might be only temporary; nor would the attraction of bonds, as having greater security than many common stocks, be removed for persons or institutions placing security first.

This question of removing the present double taxation from dividends has been raised in recent briefs to Ottawa, and in the pages of periodicals concerned with taxation and accountancy. It was one of the most prominent topics of discussions in the last conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation. At this conference Mr. Harvey Perry, the former Director of the Foundation, declared himself in favor of permitting Canadian corporations to deduct dividend payments.

No doubt there are many other means by which the Canadian economy could be aided in the next budget. But deductions by Canadian corporations of dividend payments from taxable income would have flexible results. They could make investment in Canadian stocks by Canadians more attractive; or they could make greater savings available to Canadian corporations for needful improvements; or they might make lower prices possible.

It would seem that any of these results would be very helpful to Canada — especially at the present time.

Strictly Personal

Frankness Not Necessarily Always Truth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have been reading the new novel, "Rabbit, Run," by the gifted young author, John Updike. When I got midway through the sexual passages, I was forced to put the book away.

These passages embarrassed me, not for my own sake, but for the author's. This is not pornography, nor "obscenity," by any stretch of the imagination, for Updike is a serious and sensitive writer; and I was not shocked, but simply saddened.

When a serious author writes extensively (and intensively) about sex, he makes me feel as if he lives in an adolscent fantasyworld of his own. For the essence of the sexual experience cannot be communicated, nor should it be.

Those who try to communicate it give me the impression that they have not absorbed the experience as a natural part of themselves. There is always something strained, something self-conscious and frenetic in their approach to sex. They seem like schoolboys talking among themselves, not like mature authors who have learned to utilize all the various strands in the fabric of human existence.

If we oppose such books on a "moral" basis, we are being as foolish as they; for, except for a small percentage of frankly porongraphic books, these novels are not "dirty" in intent. They are trying to be passionately honest, which is quite a different matter.

But it is impossible to be "honest" about sex in a work of art. No words can accurately describe the inward meaning of the experience and when we try, we inevitably distort it by magnifying or minimizing its meaning.

To be shocked by such efforts feel that they have touched or moved us. They redouble their efforts like a child who gets bolder and bolder each time he makes us wince with a dirty word.

I felt embarrassed for Updike when I laid down his book — and a little sad that so talented a writer should delude himself into thinking that he is giving us "reality" in his pages of sexual description. I wonder whether authors of this sort have ever really known the ineffable reality of the things they are writing about.

Shakespeare, in all his plays, does not have a line describing any physical contact between the sexes; yet who can doubt that he gives us a powerful and profound knowledge of the relation between the sexes? Art is physiology, and frankness is not always truth.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE YOU FULLY CONSCIOUS?

A friend who works in a small office with a gas space-heater complains that in cold weather he is anesthetized without even realizing it. As he explains it, the atmosphere in the room slowly comes to have more fumes and less oxygen, and he get groggier and groggier; but this takes place so gradually that before he knows that he is drugged, he is too drugged to know it. Only when some errand like lunch draws him outdoors does the blast of fresh air shock him into comprehending how nearly unconscious he has become.

My friend's experience is a common one, and it is not limited to those who work in offices with space-heaters. It is very easy to become morally and spiritually drugged too. We can go on living in a low moral atmosphere for so long that we become quite accustomed to it and do not even recognize it as a low one. We can gradually accept as normal conduct things which would have shocked or disgusted us a few years before. And the same process may take place in our spiritual atmosphere, too.

What we all need, at regular intervals, is a good breath of moral and spiritual fresh air to bring us back to ourselves. We should breathe it in church breathe it in prayer every day. And we should choose firends who live in this fresh atmosphere, too.

'Old' Hymns Are Dropped

Windsor Star

Some of the favorite hymns are on their way to being forgotten. The trend is to omit the poor ones from hymnals and gospel song books and replace them with those that are musically and textually better.

"The Old Rugged Cross" and "In the Garden" are two popular hymns today. But both have been dropped by major denominations in the United States, although southern Baptists retain the former.

While these two hymns are often thought of as "old," this isn't the case. The first came out in 1912 and the second in 1913. And even though they are being dropped by some denominations, "The Old Rugged Cross" was voted first and "In the Garden" was placed third in a poll of favorite hymns among 30,000 church-goers by the Christian Herald.

With younger people coming along and not finding the favorite hymns of today in their hymnals and song books, there isn't much hope of these hymns retaining their popularity.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

One of my old friends was recently taken ill, and there were some fears that it might be his end. He asked for me to come and see him to discuss his affairs, which flattered me, because I am not much of a business head.

"No, no," he said from his sick bed. "My business affairs are in good shape, my will and all that. It isn't that that frets me. It is all the little things. Who is going to attend to putting water in the humidifiers on the radiators every few days when I'm gone? Who is going to check that expansion tank up in the attic that keeps the level in the heating system? Who's going to remember where the dog's last year's tag licence is, when they have to get the new one? Who's going to change fuses in the fuse box? Nobody else knows how.

"There are a thousand things. I keep lying here and thinking of all these little things that somebody will have to look after. Will they remember the name of the little fellow who repairs the leaded panes in the downstairs leaded windows? Who will know what all those keys fit tat are in my desk there? They can't possibly know. I feel they'll be all right financially and everything. But they will be so helpless about all these small matters . . ."

So I wrote down at his dictation all the little things of his big life; and he got better; and we put my memorandum away in the strong box with his will.

Considerate Hostess Should Consult Diabetic Guests

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner:—As a diabetic, what do you do when you are invited to a meal at a friend's house and you can't eat what is served? She had apples cooked in syrup, jelly on lettuce, chicken, dressing, apple pie, cheese. Candy afterward. She knows I'm diabetic and should have realized I cannot eat those things — Mrs. M. T."

A good many of us would be better off, I have no doubt, if hostesses didn't try quite so hard to serve elaborate dinners, or, as the term was in my youth, "to set a good table."

For my own part, I have had plenty of experience with overly-substantial lunches and mammoth banquet menus. At second hand I've heard about women's luncheons where enough food to satisfy a lumberjack was served, while ladies of stoutish persuasion talked about their reducing diets and gobbled everything in sight. Silly? Sure!

For persons with diabetes, this sort of thing is more serious than just a matter of waistline. They are concerned with keeping weight down to a reasonable level, and eating in a way that keeps food intake in balance with the body's ability to use it.

A considerate hostess, knowing that a guest is diabetic, should consult the person as to what she can eat. Or, she should at least prepare a relatively simple meal so the guest can eat part of it without being conspicuous.

I frankly doubt whether mosts diabetics follow diets exactly, day in and day out. There are some serious cases in which it is necessary to weigh each food portion. Such patients, I dare say, stick to the proper food rigorously, although there are many who, with caution and good judgment, are able to eat out from time to time.

Most diabetics learn that if they eat a little extra one day, they can (and should and must) eat a little less the next.

Mrs. M. T. — I think, may have made a little too much of the predicament she found herself in. The chicken and cheese were good protein sources. The dressing could have been substituted for a portion of bread. Jello ordinarily isn't too highly sweetened, so some of it could have been eaten along with the lettuce. The apple cooked in syrup sounds too sugary, and should properly have been avoided. As to thrusting candy before a diabetic, well, that just isn't the thing to do.

A slight excess of carbohydrate or fat on a single occasion is not likely to upset a diabetic's balance. A little more exercise and stricter diet the next day will compensate.

As a physician, naturally I say, stick to your diet in diabetes. But in practice, so long as care is taken to keep an over-indulgencec small, and to compensate for it the next day without fail, I can see scant prospect of harm.

To everyone, I address this plea: If you have a diabetic friend, serve simple dishes and particularly avoid overly sweet ones. After all, your guest's concern is based on the demands of health and, indeed, even life.

The danger from German measles is in the first three months of pregnancy, but if the disease is warded off by gamma globulin after exposure, there is little likelihood that the baby will be affected.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR "DEAN OF AMERICAN POETS"

Encompassing the years 1921-23, the University of Michigan engaged Robert Frost — now "dean of American poets" — on salary. The job did not call for Frost to occupy a dignified chair and hold classes in a barren room. Rather, his work was to mingle with the students, to talk with them about poetry and to discuss the ideals that the poetic mind naturally created. He was to be just himself — to prove that beauty is an asset in the world — and that without an appreciation of it, as well as a living of it, we shrink in value.

Much of the trouble with our ordinary life is that it is warpped too suffocatingly in routine. There is too little color. It is also why this "Poet in Residence" assignment proved to be such a highly successful experiment. The University of Michigan grew in breadth because of the presence of one of the world's greatest poets in its midst.

It must have been an inspiring sight to see this stalwart poet walking about the Michigan campus. Just as it was on January 20th, Inauguration Day, when the now-86-year-old poet braved Washington, D.C.'s snow and biting wind to recite so feelingly his poem "The Gift Outright": and to heroically attempt to read its 'prelude' which he had written and dedicated to President John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

The dramatic effect of this Dartmouth College sage on the huge Inaugural assemblage, as on the vast radio and TV audience, I feel was so deftly expressed in lines written by Naomi Moss (one of my business associates) as to merit quoting. I do so.

He stood before the throng.
Bare head.
The wind dispersed the things he said.
Our land and all within rejoiced.
To hear his words, supremely voiced
To this, our country, and its choice.

So long as the world lasts the poet — as exemplified in Robert L. Frost — will remain as one of the inspirers of our hope and faith in all things good and great. Had our world more poets, there would be fewer hot and "cold" wars!

a transparent attempt by the Soviet Union to kill the United Nations—to "run it or to wreck it."

Canada can not afford to be a [illegible]-partner of the United States in North American defence, and must maintain its military strength while seeking international agreement on disarmament, he said.

ADVOCATES CANADA FIRST

He advocated a new Canada-first consciousness and declared the development program his government promised in the 1957 general election campaign and now is pursuing is essentially the same as President Kennedy's new frontier policy.

He said that Canada and other Western nations "will never meet Communists in any part of the world by placing them on some sort of expurgated list," but should carry on normal, cultural and economic relations except in strategic goods that might be used in a Communist war against the West. It was his explanation of Canada's trade policy with Cuba.

He declared in his banquet speech there is no hope for survival of Canada in any policy of neutralism. "We must maintain our defences until such time as there can be a reciprocal agreement for the contrary."

SPENT IN CANADA

On international aid, Mr. Diefenbaker spoke of Canada's commitment to contribute—$50,000,000 a year for three years to the Colombo plan of Commonwealth assistance to South and Southeast Asia. This money, he said, was spent in Canada for the purchase of supplies and equipment to be shipped to India, Pakistan, Ceylon and other countries, and every dollar spent represented jobs for Canadians.

On local issues he was asked at his press conference about the granting of an order for 20 Bobcat military vehicles to the Canadian Car Company plant in Montreal, in preference to the company's Fort William plant. He emphasized the order was only for a small number of preproduction models, and that when the big order for Bob-Cats is placed, it will be by public tender to the lowest bidder.

Canadian Car has already invested $21,000,000 in its Montreal plant, and it is close to army inspection services in Ottawa. To bring the Fort William plant into production would require $7,000,000 in capital investment, he added.

Owl Rates High As Man's Friend

HESPELER —Complaints are still being received by Ontario Lands and Forests conservation officers in the Lake Huron district that Arctic short-eared and long-eared owls are being killed, even though they are protected by law. Clubs have been used to kill them while sitting on fence posts and others have been shot, reports state.

In Trafalgar township, Halton Country, a migration of 100 short-eared owls are living in a reforested area where they can find food. Officers point out that owls do not attack poultry at this time of year and that they are a valuable foe to mice and so a benefit since mice rank high in the tons of food consumed by a single bird in its lifetime.

The owls migrate south when the mouse population declines in the Arctic, or die of starvation.

"They deserve everyone's protection while in the south," says E. R. Meadows, senior conservation officer here. "Those who see these birds marvel at their beauty."

Circular pattern identifies deposits scraped from combustion chamber. It tells researchers many secrets. To get this pattern, deposits are ground up and placed above a film. Electrons are beamed directly at the deposits. The beam is diffracted—scattered at precise and characteristic angles. This registers as the pattern of dots shown above. Reading this photograph, Shell scientists learn composition of deposits, determine how to neutralize them.

BULLETIN:

Weird electron "pictures" help Shell scientists develop improved TCP for today's Super Shell—to give your car top performance

Read how electron diffraction revealed the secrets of the combustion deposits inside your car's engine. How improved TCP was developed to neutralize these deposits, prolong spark-plug life, increase mileage—and release up to 15 per cent more power.

Here's the full story of today's Super Shell—and of the 9 ingredients that give your car top performance.

Today's improved Super Shell formula contains an aviation grade of TCP* that does its job better than ever.

It neutralizes certain harmful effects of combustion deposits—deposits that can prevent you from ever knowing your engine's top performance.

Why your power falls off

There's not a single engine with more than a few thousand miles on it that doesn't have this type of deposit in its combustion chambers. These deposits can cause real trouble when you need power most.

They glow red-hot and set off the fuel before the spark plug has a chance to get into the act.

The experts call this pre-ignition. The explosion punches the piston on the way up. Two forces meet head-on. No wonder your power falls off.

Deposits can also cramp your car's performance by short-circuiting the spark. This leads to misfiring.

Problem: How to add something to gasoline that neutralizes the effects of deposits.

Answer: Shell Research.

A scientific detective story

Shell scientists announced the first TCP additive eight years ago, after research had proved it could virtually end this misfire problem once and for all. TCP was hailed as the greatest advance in gasoline in thirty-one years.

To produce an improved, aviation grade of TCP, Shell used scientific detectives like the electron "photograph" (above). Such pictures helped Shell scientists to look engine deposits right in the face. And to find how best to neutralize them.

What today's TCP can do

Tests have already proved that TCP can help you get up to 15 per cent more power, up to 17 more miles per tankful. And it can make plugs last up to twice as long.

Yet TCP is only one of the nine remarkable ingredients in today's Super Shell. Read about the others. And how each helps your car deliver its top performance.

Ingredient #2 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 1000-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into livelier lighter ones.

Shell man checks furnace which pre-heats the petroleum before it is fed into cat-cracker. Stand near by, and the roar sounds like Hades.

The result is a high-octane ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

NOTE: "Cat-cracking" refers to the use of a catalyst—a substance that has the mysterious ability to alter molecules without changing itself.

Ingredient #3 is heavy alkanes—for both power and economy at all speeds

Shell scientists will tell you that gasoline can be too sensitive.

That's their unflattering description of a "touchy" gasoline that performs well enough when you're driving slowly, but causes knock and loss of power when you speed up.

So they put heavy alkanes into Super Shell. This ingredient is prized for its insensitivity. It keeps octane ratings high enough to give you plenty of knock-free power at all speeds.

NOTE: Heavy alkanes also have the advantage of lowering your fuel consumption. Your engine can use them up slowly—and still give you all the power you need.

Ingredient #4 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might suppose that two high-octane ingredients are enough to give you knock-free performance. But Shell scientists have ears like musicians.

They insist on adding a special anti-knock mix. A mix, so effective, one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by seven points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

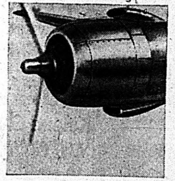
Ingredient #5 is butane for quick starts on icy mornings

By itself, butane is so volatile that it would actually boil in your refrigerator. In Super Shell, it helps your engine fire in seconds. Think what this means in cold weather. Your battery is relieved of strain—and so is your patience.

NOTE: Super Shell is primed with butane all year round. In winter, Shell scientists simply increase the quick-start dose.

Ingredient #6 is an "anti-icer" to stop stalls due to carburetor icing

Super Shell's formula is adjusted up to eight times a year for your area to beat the weather. Whenever the temperature is likely to be less than forty-five degrees, an anti-ice ingredient is added.



When Shell research scientists were tackling the problem of propeller-icing, they discovered that a "surfactant" film, one ten-millionth of an inch thick, was enough to help prevent ice sticking to metal. This same principle is the secret of the anti-icing ingredient that goes into today's Super Shell.

Why add an anti-icer at forty-five degrees? Because, even then, frost can form in your carburetor just as it does in your refrigerator. It can choke your engine dead.

Ingredient #7 is a mixture of pentanes for fast warm-ups on cold days

Pentanes are made by tearing gasoline apart, much as you split logs into kindling to start a log fire.

In this case, the "logs" are petroleum's heavier hydrocarbons. A special process transforms their molecules from slow-burning "logs" to quick-firing "kindling."

NET RESULT: Fast warm-up and top performance in a hurry.

Ingredient #8 is a special gum preventive to keep the fuel system clean

Even the purest gasoline can form gum when stored.

This can clog carburetors, fuel lines, and pumps. But, with Super Shell, you needn't worry.

A special gum preventive does the trick.

It acts like a policeman controlling a mob. Keeps an eye on unstable elements—stops them from clotting and forming gum.

Super Shell makes gummed-up engines a thing of the past.

Ingredient #9 is Platformate for extra energy, more mileage

It takes one million dollars' worth of platinum catalyst for Shell to produce its Platformate.

But fortunately for you and for us, this precious stuff can be used over and over again.

The platinum process, which gives Platformate its odd name, re-forms petroleum into super-energy components—such as benzene, toluene and xylene.

These three alone release 7 per cent more useful energy per gallon than the best 100-octane aviation gasoline.

But make no mistake. This is not untamed energy. Far from it. The super-energy of Platformate is harnessed by the eight other ingredients in Super Shell, where it behaves so well you scarcely know it's there. That is until you note your extra mileage. After that, there is no doubt.

Test Super Shell for yourself

Try Super Shell next time you fill up. You'll soon feel and hear a difference in the way your engine runs.

That difference is top performance.

Eastminster WF Hears Talk On Jewellery

Last Monday Mr. Mazer of the Avon Jewellery Company, gave a comprehensive and most interesting historical account of the art of jewellery making to the ladies of Eastminster United Church Woman's Federation.

Starting with the Egyptians, who were the first workmen in gold, he traced the development of the art through the Grecian, Etruscan, Byzantine, and Renaissance periods to the present day, describing the special contributions which each era made.

He told of the various modern methods of making costume jewellery and then showed the stages in the manufacturing of a lapel pin from the designer's drawing, model making, casting, polishing, plating, drilling and setting with stones, right to the finished article.

Trays of jewellery illustrated what Mr. Mazer considered to be a basic wardrobe of costume jewellery from business wear to formal evening wear.

Mr. Mazer's talk came at the conclusion of the February meeting of the Federation.

Mrs. Charles Lusk was in charge of the devotional period which opened the meeting, during which Mrs. J. Williams gave a splendid introduction to the new study book for the year.

COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

A most informative account of the founding, history and organization of the World's Council of Churches was presented. She told briefly of the many fields of work in which the World's Council of Churches is interested and of the many great things it is accomplishing in youth camps and emergency relief among refugees. The next meeting of the WCC is to be held this fall in Delhi.

Mrs. George Maybee, president of Eastminster Federation, conducted a brief business meeting during which letters were read from the missionary for prayer, Miss B. Gerhard of Newcastle, Alberta and from Mr. H. K. Sukuakueche of Angola, who is continuing his course in theology in Lisbon, Portugal.

Following Mr. Mazer's talk the ladies of Mrs. Lusk's group served a delightful Valentine tea.

Mr. Gordon Smith conducted a "True and False" Bible quiz. Mrs. Gordon Smith and Miss Beverley Wannamaker played an accordion duet — "Way Down on My Knees".

C.A. problems were discussed by the following panel; the Rev. G. Pierce; Miss Gail Walker; Miss Sandra Purvis; Mr. Keith Helm and Mr. Gordon Smith.

President, K. Helm thanked the panel for the discussion. At the next meeting the young men will compete with the young women in a Bible quiz.

The service closed with a time of prayer.

Ladies' Section QCC Sponsors 3-Day Bonspiel

The ladies section of the Quinte Curling Club held a three-day bonspiel, commencing Monday, February 13th, with 22-out-of-town rinks participating.

The clubhouse was decorated with pennants bearing the names of the various clubs represented in the bonspiel. The decorating committee was headed by Mrs. M. White with Mrs. A. Wolfenden and Mrs. R. Beare as assistants.

The festivities began on Tuesday afternoon with sherry parties at the homes of Mrs. E. Follwell and Mrs. E. Black. The co-hostesses were Mrs. F. Deacon, Mrs. P. McGuire, Mrs. H. Trepanier and Mrs. R. Bastable.

A delicious home-cooked turkey dinner was served on Tuesday evening. Mrs. W. Slade and her co-convener, Mrs. J. Black, assisted by a large, hard-working committee were in charge of the kitchen.

ENTERTAINMENT

Mrs. W. Gault and Mrs. H. Smith were in charge of the entertainment which was put on Tuesday evening. There was a delightful bit of 'buffoonery' on the ice with the girls presenting a satire on curling. This was followed by a warm, gay "floor show", and sing-song.

The tea on Wednesday afternoon was convened by Mrs. T. Carruthers. The ladies pouring were Mrs. J. McArthur, Mrs. H. Trepanier, Mrs. P. Houston and Mrs. H. Fuke.

The bonspiel came to a close Wednesday evening. The winner of the first event was a Kingston rink, sikpped by Mrs. Fran Millar.

The prizes were selected by Mr. H. Trepanier and Mrs. C. Niller.

Inter-Church Y. F. Holds Progressive Supper, Fireside

The annual Inter - Church Youth Fellowship was held on February 13 in the form of a "progressive supper," beginning at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church and ending at the Standard Church, with a representation of 84 young people.

Among the churches represented were Bridge Street United, Tabernacle United, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, St. Columba Presbyterion. Brighton Presbyterian Church, St. Thomas' Anglican, St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill (Anglican), Christ Church (Anglican), Victoria Avenue Baptist, Parkdale Baptist, Wesleyan Methodist, Christian Reformed Church and the Standard Church.

The theme, "Into All the World Together," was that used for "Youth Week," and in keeping with this, each church, representing a country of the world, was appropriately decorated, and served the native dish of that country, since Victoria Avenue Baptist represented China, chicken and rice soup was served.

Through the rain and icy condition of the streets, the large group wended its way to St. Andrew's where a tasty, hot, spicy dish, representing India, was enjoyed. Africa was symbolized by banana cake and coffee served at St. Thomas' parish house where the fireside meeting followed.

The main feature of the evening program was the discussion groups into which the assembly was divided, each group having a leader from the various churches. The discussion centred around the thought, "What young people can do to preserve and promote vital Christion heritage in a world where Christianity is now not only a minority world religion, but where the Western countries, founded on Christian principles, are perilously threatened by Communist infiltration." The fact that every Christian is a missionary in his or her own environment, was emphasized.

The Inter-Church youth supper and fireside, promoted by the Canadian Council of Churches, was organized by a committee of representatives from all interested churches, led by Mrs. Rodney T. Burr.

The offering is to assist in building the Christian Youth Conference Centre in Formosa, a project sponsored by the World Council of Churches.

Kinette Club Fashion Show Will Feature Summer Clothes

People have to be shown. They want to believe that next summer's clothes will really need no ironing. But on the other hand they view the whole subject of wash-and-wear with a certain scepticism.

At a fashion show being sponsored by the Kinette Club in the Belleville Collegiate on Wednesday evening a washer and drier will be stealing a good deal of the spotlight from the glamor. At the beginning of the show, an armful of "Terylene" dresses and sportswear will be placed in an automatic washer. Half way through, they'll be moved to a drier. At the end, fashion models will step up to don the freshly-washed garments on the spot to prove that ironing is indeed old hat.

The show will feature afternoon dresses in the rich prints which used to be associated only with pure silk but which are now appearing on fabrics which can be machine-washed without ironing. Lustrous new "Terylene" and cotton broadcloth will be shown in a wide range of sportswear. Fashions which can be made at home will be featured and the show will include original designs by well known Canadian couturiers.

Fashions will be modelled by some of Toronto's top professional models. Commentator will be Miss Norma Wildgoose of Toronto and master of ceremonies will be Paul Hanover, Hamilton, radio disc-pockey.

Avondale N.A. Holds Brisk Auction Sale

The February meeting was held in the home of Mrs. F. Denyes with the new president, Mrs. E. Hall, presiding. There were 22 members and four visitors present.

Mrs. L. Reid and Mrs. E. Bush presented the devotional. Mrs. Bush read a poem, "I Am Growing Older, and Some Day Will Be Old." Mrs. D. Hall also read a poem, "Thoughts For Any Day."

The reports were given. One telephone euchre of four tables was held in January.

An auction sale of white elephants and home baking was a highlight of the evening with everything from chocolate fudge, cookies and tarts to dishes, jewellery, scarves and ornaments being sold to ready buyers by a capable auctioneer Mrs. R. Griffith.

Mrs. Warkentin won a prize for buying the most. Other prizes were won by Mrs. F. Reid, Mrs. Elder and Mrs. R. Wallbidge for the lucky cup, lucky chair and for having an anniversary closest to the date of the meeting.

The lunch committee was Mrs. G. Day, Mrs. R. Wallbridge and Mrs. Frederick.

Q. Alexandra H-S Holds 'Open House'

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Club held its annual "Open House" recently, which was well attended.

The pupils work was on view in the class rooms and the class teachers were on hand to converse with the parents.

At the entrance to the auditorium there were tables loaded with popular home baking.

Mr. Down's wood working class had a most interesting display of their work in the main hall, with the enamel work especially well done.

There was also a great deal of interest shown in the work done by the home economics class.

Coffee and Valentine cookies were served in the auditorium at small tables centred with decorations made by the pupils.

BROTHERHOOD

As long as prejudice remains,
so long will wars be fought.
For prejudice is just the seed sown in the soil of thought.
As long as we look down upon another race or creed,
we sow the seed of prejudice, of hatred and of greed.

As long as we look first to see the color of the skin, before extending friendly hand, or saying, welcome in,
There'll be no brotherhood of man, no peace on earth shall reign, while "man's "inhumanity to man" brings suffering and pain.

As long as prejudice remains
take in that welcome mat.
'Til we with Robbie Burns can say "a man's as man for a'
that."
For God The Father made us all, the black, the white, the tan, and love of all can bring about true brotherhood of man.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

DO YOU KNOW WHEN TO STAND?

.. problem that seems to bother most people is when to stand and when to stay seated. I hope the following suggestions will help them.

TO THE LADIES

The gracious woman always stands when her hostess enters a room to greet her. The only time she should stand for a man is when he is very distinguished or old, or both. As to standing when other women enter the room, the following is directed to those who, shall we say, are approaching middle age.

My mother so insistently drilled into me the idea that I must stand when an older woman entered the room, that the habit has clung to me through the years. Recently, at a tea, I hopped up when an older woman entered. A friend laughingly cautioned me to act my age! She reminded me that since I myself am no longer young, my punctilious habit called attention to the other woman's age — making me anything but popular, as you can imagine! Now it will take a great age and eminence to budge me out of my chair. I'm getting used to having the younger women stand for me!

TEEN-AGE YOUNG LADIES

One young lady told me that her mother insisted that she stand when an older woman entered the room. I completely agree with mother. Young girls should stand. Learn to do it in a gracious way and it will soon become second nature. For example, if you are in the living room and your mother's friend comes into the room, you should rise and stay on your feet until she either seats herself or leaves the room — no matter how well you know her.

Until you are at least seventeen, you should also show the same courtesy to male friends of your father. If visiting in the home of a friend of your own age, rise when her mother comes into the room.

MEN — OF ALL AGES!

From the time a little boy is old enough to be taught "his manners," he should understand that he is to rise to his feet the minute a lady enters a room. This courtesy should carry on through the years.

At a recent party, I was amazed at how few of the young men stood when the hostess entered the room, and at the embarrassed manner of those who did! There is nothing to be embarrassed about. Those who stood were absolutely right — those who didn't, absolutely wrong. The latter either didn't know the code of a gentleman, or they just didn't care. I'm afraid that too many men, both young and old, just "don't care" these days. It's deplorable, to say the least.

'Child Shyness' Topic at H-S Association

The first official meeting of the Home and School Association of S.S. 2, Ameliasburg, was held in the school February 13 with an attendance of 38 persons.

A welcoming address and an invitation to all present to take an active part in the newly-formed Association were given by the president, Mrs. Earl Brett. Brief comment was made on the aims and purpose of the organization, to equip the children to meet the challenge of the world of tomorrow.

The executive and committee members were introduced, and each outlined the work of his committee. Volunteers were asked to serve on some of these committees.

SHY CHILD PROBLEM

The program chairman, Mrs. Ian Morch, and school principal Mrs. B. Teskey, presented an interesting movie produced by the National Film Board entitled, "Shyness." The problems of the shy child were viewed, and the possible lonely and inadequate future in store for the child whose problem was not recognized early enough to be corrected, was portrayed. The principal character in the story was a child named Anna, who was of average intelligence. Anna was loved by her mother who expected perfection from the child in doing tasks beyond the comprehension of a child her age. As a result of this, Anna was constantly failing to please her mother and herself, and she would not participate in group activity in fear of failure and criticism. The film compared Anna with her counterpart in later life who, because the same problem had not been recognized and treated in her childhood, was now lonely and missing opportunities in life because she was constantly selling herself short to others.

FILM COMPARISON

The film compared two boys who seemed friendless and shy. One boy when interviewed proved to be well adjusted, and had interests which occupied his time. The other was maladjusted and terrified of children his own age. An investigation revealed that the boy was over protected by his parents and was not allowed to share in the normal activities of boys his age, and therefore lacked self-confidence, and the ability to get along with others. With the proper medical treatment, a marked improvement in the boy's character was observed.

PROBLEM DISCUSSED

At the conclusion of the film, the problems of the shy child were discussed by Dr. James Nelles, who stated that the most valuable treatment of this problem is to make the child feel loved, and feel confident that he belongs in the family group. It was pointed out that a child should be allowed to perform tasks of his or her own choice without too many restrictive "don'ts" from the parents to be able to develop self-confidence. Facilities for dealing with extreme cases of child problems and their probable causes were outlined by Dr. Nelles. Following his address, a lively discussion period was held.

Refrehments were served by Mrs. Norman Lightfoot, the social convener, and her assistants, during a social hour which followed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. A. Y. — I'm afraid Rod will have a relapse. His stepfather is too stern.

James R. — Rod and I get along fine. He knows I'm absolutely fair.

Mrs. A. Y. — As Rod's grandmother, I've been watching a distressing situation snowball. I'm watching it from afar at present, but since Rod and his mother used to live with me, I see it clearly.

Rod is 12. His parents, my daughter and her first husband, were divorced when Rod was a baby. When the child failed to develop normally, our pediatrician pronounced him "retarded" and arranged for his admission to a special centre. After many tests, however, Rod was found to be a bright youngster, but "emotionally disturbed."

We transferred him to an expensive residential school. Gradually, he lost his fears and crept out of his shell. Meanwhile, my daughter remarried and now has her son at home. Her husband, Jim, is a high school teacher and a basketball coach. He says he'll make a man of Rod, but I think he'll break the boy just when he's getting on his feet.

When I visited them over the the Christmas holidays, Jim made Rod go out and clean up the yard in freezing weather. Then, because a few papers still lay around the yard, he made Rod stay in his room the rest of the day.

James R. — When I married Ella, I did so with my eyes open. I knew all about her difficulties with Rod, and has visited him with her several times at the boarding-school.

Rod's a good kid. All he needs is some firm direction. He's had too much hand-wringing and hysterics all his life, between his mother and his grandmother It would get any kid mixed-up and scared.

I've handled hundred of boys. Rod is a special challenge to me. He's the son of the bride I love, of the same mother my own children will have. His grandmother means well but she is obsessed by old memories of Rod's former condition. For her own, and I might add our, peace of mind she'd better keep watching things "from afar."

As for that outdoor episode — Rod knows we each have chores and assignments according to our capabilities. His mother and I don't lie down on our jobs. He must learn he can't pass the buck either.

The Council — "Where are you?" is the question we can't resist directing offstage, into the shadowy wings where Rod's mother, Jim's wife, and Mrs. Y.'s daughter stands, evidently still wringing her hands in childish inadequacy.

Into the vacuum created by a defaulting woman, two strong characters, Mrs. Y. and Jim, have rushed to rescue her child. Understandably, the grandmother is concerned about what she considers a threat to her grandson's progress which, N. J. (before Jim), was a product of her aid, love and probably money. Equally feasible is Jim's realistic program for Rod's future.

The best course here, for all concerned, would be to defer to the opinion of the school personnel at the "special" institution recently attended by Rod. Evidently Jim is guided by two educators considered Rod well enough to be transferred to a regular school with its unsheltered, unpredictable rough-and-tumble exposure; second, that Rod's mother was "getting nowhere" with him, in so far as preparing and fortifying him him for normal contacts.

With a clear picture, derived from Rod's previous records, of the boy's special blocks and sensitivities, and (this is most important) the full backing of the boy's ineffectual moter, Jim should be able to fill in the missing ingredients for him. At last Rod's life will have some predictability and consistency. He'll have an affectionate male figure around to demonstrate and inculcate the meaning of the word "responsibility." Seeing someone who makes and keeps promises, Rod will develop faith and trust in a reliable adult.

Grandma must retire from active duty and give the "new order" a chance. For consolation, recall Gilbert and Sullivan's "things are seldom as they seem." Although they may resemble Wicked Ogre vs. Cowering Lad, they are more likely Dedicated father-pal and Newly-come-alive Boy.

STONE CHURCH WMS - WA

A joint regular meeting of Stone Church W.A. and W.M.S. was held in the afternoon of February 15, in the 4th line community hall, after the teacher and school children had partaken of a pot-luck dinner which the ladies served at noon.

Mrs. Phillips, group leader, took charge of the W.A. business and a number of acitvities were decided on for the future: a quilting to be held the following week and catering to a Young People's supper.

Mrs. McMullin, the W.M.S. president, conducted the W.M.S. part of the meeting.

As it was Ash Wednesday, the worship service started by all reading a prayer, "A Confession of Sin." Mrs. H. Gray followed with the Scripture lesson and Mrs. McMullin led in prayer. Some correspondence was read.

The study book was given, the topic being "New Ways of Speaking." Mrs. McMullin acted as interviewer and Mrs. G. Lane, Mrs. G. Evans and Mrs. G. Tucker as the responders.

Old-Faithful Lemon Meringue Pie

By Mary Moore

In our house there were four requests for Lemon Meringue Pie on Saturday — the last one from Gary. That melted my heart, so on Sunday morning before Sunday School I made the crust. On my return I made the filling. This was made in a big aluminum pie plate 10" in diameter by 1 3-4" deep. It served two little boys, four reducing women and two hungry men.

OLD-FAITHFUL LEMON MERINGUE PIE:

One baked 10" pie shell: 1 1-2 cups unsifted flour, 1-2 cup plus 1 tablespoon best quality shortening, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 2 1-2 or 3 tablespoons ice cold water. Filling: One and one-half cups white sugar, 1-2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 cups boiling water, 3 large egg yolks, 6 tablespoons fresh lemon juice, finely grated rind 1 1-2 lemons, 2 tablespoons butter. Meringue: One-half cup sugar, 3 egg whites (2 o 3 more leftover egg whites may be added if you would like to make the meringue very high). In top of double boiler mix together 1 cup of the 1 1-2 cup amount of sugar with the flour, cornstarch and salt. When well mixed stir in the boiling water and cook over boiling water until thick and smooth stirring. Cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring twice. Beat the egg whites in large bowl, adding any extra — up to 2 or 3 to make the meringue extra high. Add the 1-2 cup amount of sugar (or 2 tablespoons sugar for each white), and beat until stiff enough to stand in high peaks. Knock off any excess whites from beater and just lift it into the bowl containing the yolks and remaining sugar (from the 1 1-2 cup amount). Beat until very foamy. Slowly pour hot cooked mixture into yolks, beating, then return all to double boiler and cook stirring for 3 minutes longer. Remove from heat, add lemon rind and butter, then lemon juice. Cool. Pour into baked high-sided pie shell. Top with meringue being sure it is sealed to edges of crust to prevent weeping and piled high. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. 25 to 30 minutes until evenly tinged with gold. Serve cold. Make this pie at least 4 hours ahead of serving time.

I would like to add the menu for our main course which preceded this lemon pie: Stewed chicken with thickened gravy made from stewing liquid to which I had added some onion, bay leaf, pepper and salt; fluffy mashed potatoes which we drowned in chicken gravy; new tiny yellow squashes (similar in size to green zucchinis) which I merely washed and sliced without paring and without removing seeds before cooking; green pepper and celery and lettuce salad with Italian French dressing.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Since the world began, events historical, sports-wise and run-of-the-mine have been marked by "upsets."

It probably started when David, youthful shot-put champion of the Hebrews, defeated Goliath, top-dog of the Phillistines, with a driving hole-in-one shot.

Sir Francis Drake had a stranglehold on the Queen Elizabeth Bowling Trophy at Plymouth when word came that Spain's King Phillip had sent a fleet of huge trawlers channel-wise designed to knock the bejabors out of the Royal Navy.

Drake led the English shrimp boats into action and scored a big historical upset when he scattered the Spanish men-o-war to the four winds only to return and be defeated by a lowly English squire in a bowling upset for the queen's pewterware.

Wellington "upset" Napoleon at Waterloo, changed the map of Europe, and had a village in Prince Edward county named after him.

Montcalm had almost converted the eastern part of Canada to pea-soup and champagne when Wolfe's mountain-climbing cockneys scaled the heights to Abraham's plains and scored another tremendous historical upset.

In the world of sport Ingemar Johansson's right-hand "Hammer of Thor" pummelled Floyd Patterson into unconscious submission in what the experts termed a "tremendous upset."

The next time out, Patterson "upset" the gambling apple-cart, and Sweden plus a number of American followers of the champion, by horizontalling Ingy, but good, in the fifth round.

The recent Olympics broke the "upset" records. Take Canada's Harry Jerome, the Americans' high-jumping Thomas and track sensation Ray Norton.

Then the biggest, or one of the biggest upsets of last year came with the defeat of the United States Davis Cup tennis team at the hands of the unheralded Italians.

And so it came to pass that the other day when a virtually unknown curling rink from the Bay of Quinte Club defeated a top Unionville quartet for a zone championship, it was duly recorded in one of the metropolitan newspapers as an "upset."

In fact so were the victories of two other rinks which had defeated, shall I say, the favorites in other zone finals.

The word "upset" according to this dictionary means, "being overturned, such as the wind overturned the vehicle."

There's a point there. Let's say the vehicle is as sturdy as it was last year, but the wind grew stronger to the point where it could upset the vehicle.

In other words there has been too much accent placed on the word "upset" and not enough emphasis given the improvement of play of the underdog.

The winning of the zone championship is a distinct feather, the first of its colors, in the achievement cap of the four-year-old Quinte Curling Club.

I am told this was no fluke. No let-up on the part of the favored Unionville four. There were no big "breaks," those intangible gremlins of sport, but sheer brilliant curling on the part of the Quintemen, particularly skip Mac White in the spine-tingling last rock.

Now they are entered in the Ontario tournament to decide a provincial representative for the all-Canadian curling championship.

Competing in the Ontario finals scheduled for Ottawa this week are Kingston's defending champion, Jake Edwards; George Parke, Woodstock; Tom Caldwell, Orillia; Stan Duval, Hamilton; Cliff Bliech, Owen Sound; Joe Gurowka, Dixie, and Don MacDonald, Guelph.

A goodly company, but a tough one. All are champions in their zone right. There are no pushovers. The chips are down and the pressure will be on.

The Quinte rink, in defeating the highly-rated Unionville four, showed remarkable coolness under fire and a refusal to be daunted by records.

So if it won by an "upset"—so be it. To me it looked like damned good curling. So to Mac White and his Fearless Four, the best of luck and as many "upsets" as can bring home not only the Ontario title but the Dominion crown, too.

Score Was 5-3

Smokies Trim Czechs

PRAGUE (AP)—Trail Smoke Eaters took a 2-0 first-period lead and went on to a 5-3 victory over Czechoslovakia's national team Sunday, their second victory in a row over the Czech nationals.

Both first-period goals were scored by rightwinger Jackie McLeod, Trail's high scorer. The Canadians and Czechs matched single goals in the second period and doubles in the third.

Sunday's game was played in the Czech city of Kladno. Trail won the first game against the Czech nationals here Saturday by a 7-6 score after wiping out a 5-2 lead taken by the Czechs.

The Smoke Eaters will represent Canada at the world hockey championships in Switzerland next month. Their victory Sunday was their ninth in 12 exhibition games so far. They have lost two and tied one.

Boomer, Beliveau Spur Habs To Top

Win Pair, Leafs Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bernie Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau, who own two of the hardest shots in hockey, have Montreal Canadiens riding high again.

The veteran forwards went on a scoring blitz during the weekend and got seven goals as Canadiens won twice to overhaul Toronto Maple Leafs for the National Hockey League leadership.

Geoffrion scored three goals and Beliveau two as the Habitants thumped New York Rangers 7-4 at Montreal Saturday. At Detroit Sunday night, they each scored once and Canadiens beat the Red Wings 4-2.

The Maple Leafs who four days ago held a six-point lead atop the standings, beat Chicago Black Hawks 5-2 at home Saturday but lost 4-2 at New York Sunday night.

Frank Mahovlich, Leafs' brilliant leftwinger, scored once in each game to increase his goal-total for the season to 45. He is only five goals behind Maurice (Rocket) Richard's season record of 50, and has 11 games left to play.

TIE FOR FIRST

The Canadiens and Leafs are tied for first place with 75 points each as a result of the weekend play. The Habs have one game in hand.

Lowly Boston Bruins lost 5-1 at Detroit Saturday and came from behind to tie the Black Hawks 2-2 at Chicago Sunday night in other weekend play.

The Hawks hold third place with 62 points, the Red Wings are fourth with 55, the Rangers fifth with 45 and the Bruins are last with 36.

Geoffrion also picked up one assist at Detroit to boost his point-total for the season to 78, the highest of his 11-year NHL career. His previous high was in 1954-55 when he won the scoring championship with 75 points. He leads Mahovlich by five points in this season's race.

Beliveau, who always seems to go better in late-season, had two assists beside his two goals Saturday.

Other Montreal scorers against New York were Ralph Backstrom and Dickie Moore while Billy Hicks and Don Marshall got the club's other goals against Detroit.

Marshall's goal came as a result of a freak play with only 47 seconds left.

YANKED GOALIE

Detroit, with a one-man advantage because of a penalty to J. C. Tremblay, yanked goalie Hank Bassen with less than a minute to go in favor of an extra forward. But Leo Labine's pass got through a maze of players near the blueline, skimmed all the way down the ice and into the open net.

Marshall got credit for the goal because he was the last Montreal player to touch the puck.

Johnny Wilson, Camille Henry, Red Sullivan and Earl Ingarfield scored for New York against Montreal goalie Jacques Plante Saturday while Sunday night the five-time Vezina Trophy winner was beaten by defencemen Gerry Odrowski and Gordie Howe.

Howe's goal was the 500th of his NHL career, 463 in regular season play and 37 in Stanley Cup playoff action.

PLANTE IS HURT

Plante was hurt three times in the game. He got his knee banged up on a hard shot by Alex Delvecchio in the first period. In the second, Vic Stasiuk banged him over the head with his stick and late in the game Delvecchio crashed him over the nets.

The Maple Leafs spotted the Hawks two goals in the first period Saturday but came back with three in the second and two in the third to break a six-game Chicago unbeaten streak.

Besides Mahovlich, rookie Dave Keon, Billy Harris, Bob Nevin and defenceman Carl Brewer also scored for the Leafs.

Chicago scorers were Ken Wharram and Tod Sloan.

At New York Sunday, the Rangers scored twice in the first period although they were outshot 25-9 and added two more goals within one minute in the second period to beat the Leafs for the first time this season on home ice.

Brian Cullen, Bill Gadsby, Pat Hannigan and Ingarfield got the New York goals. Mahovlich and Red Kelly tallied for Leafs.

MAKES HIS 20TH

Norm Ullman, who reached the 20-goal circle for the fourth straight season, won a wild, fist-swinging battle from Boston's Aut Erickson and led Red Wing's triumph over the Bruins Saturday.

The mild - mannered Ullman got his 20th tally early in the final period and got involved in his fight with Erickson 10 seconds later.

Other Detroit scorers were Howie Glover, Allan Johnson, Vic Stasiuk and Labine. Murray Oliver tallied for the Bruins.

Charlie Burns' goal at 13:17 of the third period gave the Bruins a tie at Chicago Sunday night. Tom McCarthy also scored for Boston while Wharram and defenceman Al Arbour tallied for the Hawks.

Commercial Hockey League Results

Joyce Real Estate turned the tables on Williams Brothers for a 5-2 victory last night, their first win in three games in the Commercial Hockey League best-of-five semi-final series.

In the other half of last night's doubleheader, Booth TV's edged Jones Motors 5-4 and lead that set two games to none with one tied. Fourth games in both series will be played next Sunday.

Jackie Elliott and Bryant each scored two goals, with Bryant also getting two assists, to spark the Real Estate crew's first win against two setbacks. Atkins added the odd goal, while Fox, Finney and Gilmour drew assists.

Jack Lucas triggered both Williams Brother's goals with "Wiener" Waite assisting on one and Doug Lucas on the other.

The game was a cleanly-played affair with Williams picking up the only two penalties.

The Jones - Booth game was a little different, however, with a four-man fight erupting at one point. Pug Kellar and Billy McGuire of Jones mixed it with Fren Cris and Don Bishop of Booths with all four getting majors. Jones' goalie Ron Dulmage also drew a misconduct.

John "Shaker" Baker fired two Booth goals with Doug Hull, Frank Cris and Gord Irwin getting the others. Doug Murray earned two assists with one each for Lougheed, St. Louis, Chuck Rowbotham, Bishop and Gary Rowbotham.

Pug Kellar potted a pair of goals and helped on another for the losers. Pete Weston had a goal and two assists and R. Pointer a goal.

London Favored To Beat Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP)—Brian London of England rules as a slight favorite to defeat George Chuvalo of Toronto in their heavyweight bout tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens.

London, former British Empire champion, is third in the Empire rankings and Chuvalo fifth. Chuvalo, however, is eighth in the National Boxing Association's world ratings while London is unranked.

Both fighters, expected to go into the ring at between 210 and 212 pounds, wound up training during the weekend and neither would come out with a prediction.

"I've been training the last two months," said London. "If I'm not fit now I'll never be. I don't want to make a prediction, but I've knocked out guys who beat Chuvalo."

One of them was Pete Rademacher, who gave Chuvalo a thorough boxing lesson here last year.

Chuvalo, the Canadian champion, said little except that he felt in the best shape of his career. Trainer Tommy McBeight said he will be aiming for a knockout.

Although both are heavy punchers, there appeared a good chance the fight might go the 10-round limit. They have demonstrated their ability to take punishment.

Chuvalo, 23, never has been knocked off his feet. London, 26, was downed just once, when he was knocked out by world champion Floyd Patterson.

London is expected to force the fight and Chuvalo has been concentrating on counterpunching during workouts.

London has agreed to a rematch here if he wins. In the event of a Chuvalo victory, matchmaker Deacon Allen will attempt to have Empire champion Henry Cooper of England meet Chuvalo here for the title.

Marlies Rally Whips Flyers, Petes Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros, trailing 5-1 going into the third period of Sunday's Ontario Hockey Association junior A doubleheader at Maple Leaf Gardens, fired a 6-5 win over the second-place Niagara Falls Flyers.

It was a dramatic finish for the cellar-dwelling Marlboros in their fight for a playoff berth. Six teams qualify in the seven-team loop.

In the second half of the double bill, Toronto St. Michael's College Majors came from behind to edge Peterborough Petes 3-2.

Saturday night, St. Catharines Teepees vaulted back into fifth place in the league standings with a 5-2 victory over league-leading Guelph Royals.

The Marlboro line of Ricky Hay, George Standing and Gaston Brassard did the most damage to Niagara Falls. But Gary Jarrett, replacing goaltender Ken Broderick in the final minute, popped home the winner.

Bob Ferguson, Hay, Brassard, Bill Collins and Frank Ridley contributed goals in that order before Jarrett's payoff.

DIETRICH HAD TWO

Howie Dietrich scored twice and Ron Harmer, Neil Glashan and Jeannott Gilbert fired singles for the Falls.

In the second contest, Wayne Boddy and Claude Larose tallied for Peterborough, Paul Conlin, Bruce Draper and Larry Keenan for the Majors. Keenan got the winner.

Saturday night, Doug Robinson led the Teepees with three goals and an assist. Ray Cullen fired a pair and added two assists, while linemate Duke Harris contributed two assists.

Jean Ratelle and Rod Gilbert were the marksmen for Guelph.

With play-off time only two weeks away the big question appears to be, can Marlboros catch Peterborough?

The Dukes have 25 points and Peterborough 33. Marlboros play the Petes twice before the schedule ends and have a game in hand.

Meanwhile, the Royals continue to lead the league with 61 points followed by St. Michael's with 55, Niagara Falls with 46, and Hamilton Red Wings with 42. St. Catharines and Peterborough have been juggling with fifth and sixth place for a couple of weeks now and only one point separates these two clubs. The Teepees have 34 points with two games in hand.

Bisons Loom As Threat In American

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Springfield Indians may be too far ahead in the American Hockey League to be caught but Buffalo's efforts to catch up are paying off at the gate and the Bisons could be the club to beat in the playoffs.

The Bisons, whose only defeat in the last 10 games was an overtime los to Springfield Jan. 11, got even for that one and moved back into second place Sunday night by blanking the Indians 4-0. They had 11,004 home fans on hand to see rookie goalie Dennis Dejordy turn in his third shutout of the season.

The victory put the Bisons a point ahead of Cleveland Barons, who had moved up to second with a 6-2 Saturday triumph over Providence Reds.

Rochester, a 4-3 overtime loser to Springfield Saturday, on Sunday trounced last - place Providence 5-2 while Hershey Bears shut out the floundering Quebec Aces 3-0.

GAVE THE PUNCH

The high-scoring line of Larry Wilson, Wayne Hicks and Dick Gamble provided most of Buffalo's punch. Wilson scored two goals and assisted on one by Hicks; Gamble had three assists and Hicks two. Barry Cullen was the other goal-getter.

Willie Marshall, Les Duff and John Mackenzie scored Hershey's goals and Bob Perreault blocked 29 shots by the Aces, who now have one tie and seven defeats in their last eight games.

Rochester also got nifty goaltending from Ed Chadwick and was leading 4-0 midway in the third period when the Reds came to life and scored both their goals.

Rookie Wally Boyer and Gerry Ehman each scored twice for the Americans, who took their ninth victory in 10 games against the Reds. Alex Faulkner got Rochester's other goal and Ray Ross and Danny Polizlani tallied for Providence.

SCORES 30TH

In Springfield Saturday night, Bill Sweeney fired his 30th goal of the season—his second of the night—at 2:23 of overtime to down the Americans. Bruce Cline, who also has 30, added the pair. Gerry Ehman, Dick Mattiussi and Dick Van Impe scored for Rochester.

The Barons, who splurged for five first-period goals against Providence, got two goals from Eddie Mazur and singles from Cal Gardner, Cal Stearns, Bill Dineen and John Ferguson. Bo Elik and Stan Baluik scored for the Reds.

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) Joy - Anne Moyer of Lachine, Que., Sunday won the senior women's event of the Eastern Canada figure skating championships, with a total of 562.9 points. Arlette Desgranges, also of Lachine, won the junior women's section with 206.9 points.

LONDON (Reuters) — Mighty Tottenham Hotspur took another step nearer the elusive "double" of winning the Soccer League championship and cup Saturday when it beat Aston Villa 2-0 in the fifth round of the English Football Association competition.

Having practically sewn up the league title with an eight-point lead, Tottenham reached the quarter-finals of the cup with a fine allround display.

Barnsley kept the third division flag flying by beating second division Luton 1-0. Two second division teams to reach the quarter - finals were Sheffield United, which beat Blackburn, 2-1, and Sunderland, which won 1-0 at Norwich.

The other quarter-finalists—all from the first division—are Burnley, Sheffield Wednesday, Newcastle and either Birmingham or Leicester who will replay after a 1-1 draw.

Burnley cruised to a 4-0 win over second division Swansea Town; Sheffield Wednesday scored a 2-0 away win over Leyton Orient, and Newcastle United scored a 3-1 home victory over another second division team, Stoke City.

BOTTOM TEAMS PLAYED

The main interest in the league play was centred on the bottom-of-the-table clash between Blackpool and Preston.

Preston gained two valuable points with a 1-0 win and pulled Blackpool down to the cellar with them—both with 19 points.

Everton was the only club among the leaders to play and it was held to a 1-1 draw at home by Chelsea.

Ipswich and Liverpool narrowed the gap at the top of the second division. Ipswich beat Leeds 4-0 and now is only one point behind Sheffield United. Liverpool, which won 4-1 at Derby, is a further two points behind.

The three top clubs in the third division all won. Queen's Park Rangers maintained its one-point lead with a 2-1 win over Hull; Bury beat Tranmere 3-0 to stay in second place; and Grimsby won 1-0 against Notts County to remain in third place.

Crystal Palace kept its five-point lead at the head of the fourth division with a 2-1 away win over Mansfield. Second-placed Peterborough beat Gillingham 2-0.

Holland Wins World Speed Skating Title

GOTEBORG, Sweden—(AP)—Henk van Der Grifft, 25, an auto mechanic, held off the challenge of European champion Viktor Kosichkin of Russia in the last race Sunday and gave Holland its first world speed skating champion in 56 years.

Van Der Grifft took the lead by winning the 1,500-metre race in two minutes, 17.8 seconds, then was forced to skate the fastest 10,000 metres of his career to stay in front after Kosichkin won the program-concluding 10,000 in 16 minutes, 35.9 seconds.

Needing to finish in 16:56.8 or better, the Dutchman sprinted desperately on the last two laps and hit the finish in 16:53.6.

He ended with 189.213 points to 189.375 for Kosichkin, the runner-up.

Trenton RCAF Just Misses Curling Title

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — A last - rock draw shot Sunday night gave Steve Stratford of Virginiatown his fourth royal Canadian Legion provincial curling crown in six years, the second in succession.

A fighting RCAF rink from Branch 110 at Trenton, trailing by two in the last end, had three counters in the house but Stratford, with his last stone, drew to the button to win 9-6 and earn the right to represent Ontario at the Legion's Dominion final to be held at Trail, B.C., in March.

Stratford went through the bonspiel here undefeated in his four games.

Flt. Lt. Bill Lewis, skipping a young pre-spiel underdog rink of airmen, forced Stratford to the limit. The Flyers entered the finals after defeating Rudy Steski of North Bay.

Stratford, an underground shift foreman of the Kerr-Addison mine, has been successful in previous Legion playoffs, in 1956, 1958, and 1960. He placed third at the Dominion finals at Summerside, P.E.I., last year.

Other members of the winning rink are vice Joe Cesnik, second Vern Baker and lead Helge Byberg.

Defeat Whitby 4-3

Macs Square Series

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville McFarlands built an early 3-0 lead and settled back to protect it for a 4-3 victory over the Whitby Hillcrests here Saturday night to even their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group semi-final series at one game apiece.

Third game in the series, shaping up to be a gruelling battle to the end, will be played in Whitby Tuesday night with the fourth back here Friday.

The Macs regained much of their earlier form here Saturday with five veterans, Ron Hull, Moe Hunter, Gary Goyer, Bill Moxon and Pat Asselstine playing the title roles.

Moxon turned in one of his better games between the Mac pipes, outshot by a 29-18 margin, while the other four looked after all the club's scoring points and played strong, two-ways games.

Belleville led 2-0 after one period and the teams split a pair of goals in the second heat. Whitby cut the lead to 3-2 early in the third only to have the Macs bounce back with a quick reply to regain their two-goal spread. Whitby fired the final goal later in the period and gave Moxon and his mates plenty of trouble in this hard-hitting period of hockey. The Macs did take over play completely in the game's last 90 seconds however, keeping the puck in the visitors' end of the rink to avoid the problem of a six-man Whitby attack. Gagnon's crew never got the opportunity to remove goalie Cliff Godridge.

Ron Hull participated in all four Mac scoring plays, potting two goals himself and assisting on the other pair. Moe Hunter earned one goal and two assists, Pat Asselstine a goal and assist and Gary Goyer three assists.

Ken Roberts topped the Hillcrests with a goal and assist while Gary McCullough and Len Bobbie also scored. Pete Shearer helped on a pair and Harvey Burke on one.

Referee Art Casterton dished out 16 penalties in all, Belleville drawing nine minors, including four to Mavety. Whitby scored twice with a man advantage. The Hillcrests' Lynn Middleton picked up a misconduct to go with an elbowing penalty at 10.08 of the third.

Hull's first goal, after only 17 second of the opening period, was a masterpiece of perfection. He took Hunter's pass on the fly, cut in on left wing and across the goalmouth to beat Godridge for the prettiest goal of the night.

Asselstine made it 2-0 at 3.08, sinking a blueline shot on a passout play with Hull and Goyer. Moxon protected the lead with some fine saves, one coming while his team was two men short and he had lost his stick at 10.30.

Hunter combined with Goyer and Hull to make it 3-0 after 1.12 of the middle heat, cutting in from right wing and ramming the disc home off the goaler's leg pads.

Moxon beat Roberts twice from point - blank range at 10.00 but McCullough got credit for Whitby's initial goal at 12.06. The puck came out from the side of the net and appeared to deflect in off a player.

Asselstine had just served four seconds of a penalty when Roberts took a pass across the goalmouth to make it 3-2 at 7.18 of the third. The Macs came right back seconds later with Hull's second goal to regain their margin.

Bobbie's screened shot along the ice caught a corner to close the scoring at 13.25, Mavety setting out a charging sentence at the time. Whitby continued to press and Moxon "stoned" Switzer at 15.40 and Napiorkowski at 18.00 for the key saves of the period.

Whitby: Godridge, Roberts, Ashby, Bobbie, Tripp, Chasczewski, Kadwell, Tran, Shearer, Napiorkowski, Luke, Middleton, Burke, Switzer, McCullough.

Belleville: Moxon, Asselstine, Reid, Mavety, Titterson, Weston, Kellar, McGuire, Goyer, Hunter, R. Hull, Ethier, G. Hull, McGuire, Smith.

Linesmen — Lionel Botly and Vern Goyer, Belleville.

Weird Battle

Tiger Whips Armstrong

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion from Nigeria, stopped Gene (Ace) Armstrong of Elizabeth, N.J., in 2:11 of the ninth round in a weird scheduled 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Tiger weighed 158¾, Armstrong 156½.

Before referee Ruby Goldstein called it to a halt:

1. Armstrong claimed he was hit by a low blow and jigged halfway around the ring in pain in the sixth.

2. Tiger, annoyed at Armstrong's back pedaling, held his arms out at the end of the seventh and called to his opponent to "come on in."

3. The crowd hooted, whistled and clapped trying to encourage Armstrong to get off his bicycle, but he wouldn't.

4. Finally, Tiger, knowing he had the fight wrapped up, began jumping up and down on both feet, obviously imitating Armstrong just before the bell in the eighth.

The end did not come unexpectedly. From the third round, when he knocked Armstrong down with a left hook, Tiger was in command. After the knockdown, Armstrong lost all interest.

The local team, accompanied by a number of fans and fellow-workers made the trip by chartered bus. They left here early Saturray morning and arrived home Sunday evening.

Jack Gill paced the Belleville team's attack with two goals and an assist. Cornell, Hurst, Petrie and Taylor also scored while Taylor added two assists, Cornell, Hutchinson, York and Soule one apiece.

London scorers were Wilcox, Bowegeon, Derehane and McLemon.

Referees Doyle and Hughes, of London, handed out a total of 11 penalties, all minors.

Italy Takes Bobsled Title

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Rain and warm weather gave Italy's Eugenio Monti his second straight grand slam by default in the world four - man bobsled championships Sunday and sent American ace Stan Benham unhappily into retirement.

Temperatures near 50 turned the usually slick and hazardous mile of the Olympic chute to unnavigable slush, forcing cancellation of the final two heats. That gave Monti the title on the basis of Saturday's opening pair of heats—by three-tenths of a second over Benham.

Benham, the veteran from Lake Placid who was a world champion in this breakneck sport in 1949, dejectedly called it quits after hoping to have announced his retirement with another title.

Monti sped down the run in identical times of one minute, 9.2 seconds Saturday for a 2:18.4 total.

Benham, holder of the course record of 1:08.88, completed his first heat in 1:09.22, and was timed in 1:09.48 for the second. That gave him a total of 2:18.7.

Monti won his fifth straight two-man title here last weekend.

The Tracks

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Alberta Ranches' Flutterby won the $59,200 San Felipe Handicap Saturday. The victory established him as the colt to beat in the coming Santa Anita derby March 4.

Ridden by Johnny Longden, the colt hauled down the $36,700 winner's purse.

Time for the 1 1-16 miles was a fast 1:42 1-5th. Flutterby paid $7, $4.60 and $3.60. Olden Times returned $5 and $3.80, and the longshot, Wire Us, paid $12.40.

MIAMI (AP) — Calumet Farm's Yorky the $125,800 Widener Handicap at Miami's Ialeah track Saturday by half a length over Main Chance Farm's Never Give In.

The fictory was worth $81,770. Yorky was a 3-5 favorite with his stablemate, On-And-On, the other half of the entry. On-And-On was last in the eight-horse field.

Yorky ran the 1¼ miles in 2:01 and paid $3.30, $2.50 and $2.30 across the board. Never Give In returned $3.60 and $3.30. The show price on Bourbon Prince was $4.70.

RACE RESULTS

Bets at Norway's nine pari-mutuel race tracks in 1960 totalled more than $6,300,000, of which the state received $697,000 in taxes.

PRAGUE (CP-Reuters)—Canadian skaters here are both glad and sorry that the world's figure skating championships have been cancelled following the deaths of the 18 members of the United States team in the crash of a Belgian airliner last week.

The Canadians, who arrived here last Wednesday, the day of the crash, leave for home today—travelling together in one aircraft. The championships were to have started this week.

Otto and Maria Jelinek, Czech-born brother and sister team from Oakville who already hold the North American and Canadian pairs titles, said Saturday they were "both glad and bitterly disappointed" at the cancellation.

"We had worked hard for these championships and it's a real blow that they are off. But it would have been awful to have gone onto the ice knowing that the American kids were dead. After all, we were real friends with most of them," Otto, 22, said.

FEELS BETTER NOW

Maria, 18, added: "When I first head the news I felt so sick at heart I thought I would never want to dance again. But I feel different now and we have already started working to win the championships next year."

The Prague winter stadium, where the figure skating championships were to have taken place, was the scene of a tribute to the American team Saturday night.

Both crowd and teams stood in a two-minute silence during a Canadian-Czech hockey game played under the decorations prepared for the championships.

The Canadian team, Trail Smoke Eaters, which will represent Canada in next month's world hockey championships, defeated the Czech squad 7-6.

WILL CARRY ON

Bruce Highland, a trainer who is in charge of the Canadian party, said "I know it seems queer for 17 of us to travel together in one plane after what happened last week. But we have all agreed that it is no good being frightened and it is best to carry on as usual."

PRAGUE (Reuters)—A Czech figure-skating official said Saturday the world championships should have gone on despite the deaths of the American competitors.

"All the experts thought the Americans would not have won any titles anyway," Emanuel Hanis, a member of the championship organizing committee said.

The 18 members of the American team died Wednesday in the flaming crash of a jet airliner near Brussels. World ice skating officials decided to call off the championships as a result of the crash.

Hanis pointed to the 1,000,000 crowns (about $100,000) spent on preparing the rink, reserving hotels for about 4,000 foreign officials, competitors and reporters and sending preliminary material all over the world.

He added: "Naturally we were deeply sorry about the tragic death of the American team. But cancelling the championships does not bring them back to life. We think they would have preferred us to hold a short ceremony in their memory and then to carry on with plans as arranged."

Minor Hockey

The Barons and Quinte picked up close one-goal decisions as the second round of the BMHA's bantam league playoffs got underway Saturday.

Quinte shaded the Macs 3-2 on the strength of Perry Soule's two-goal performance, both unassisted efforts. B. Pursey fired the other marker with D. Dickey helping. H. Bowerman and H. Townsend scored for the Macs with Al Mott getting an assist.

Barons squeezed out a 2-1 victory over the Maple Leafs in another hard-fought affair. B. Derry and M. Follwell scored for Barons with R. Post and R. Drysdale drawing assists. G. Lucas potted the Leaf goal, aided by D. Muldoon.

Both series are two-game, goals-to-count.

Three exhibition games were also played Saturday morning.

Bruins whipped Canadiens 9-1, led by S. White with three goals and an assist. F. Ritchie and C. Dougherty each contributed two goals, S. O'Brien and K. Hannah one apiece. O'Brien also had two assists with one each for M. Brennan, Dougherty, L. Wiley and B. Hallam. Soule scored for Canadiens.

Browns defeated the Black Hawks 5-1 on goals by J. Morgan, G. Blakely, D. Stickle, G. Moore and J. Meens, the latter also getting two assists. Blakely and G. Freestone also drew assists. K. Hannah scored in defeat with B. Knudsen helping.

Red Wings took a 7-4 win over the Rangers with S. Ethier firing four goals. D. McLean, R. Williamson and G. Muir had the other goals while assists went to A. R. O'Hara, P. Ford, D. Hewitt and S. LaMorre. D. McMullen earned two goals and an assist for the Rangers. D. Olsen and D. Chapman also scored while D. Rowbotham and M. Hume got assists.

DEFIED THE EXPERTS

CORTINA d'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP) — Three daring German mountain climbers were reported Sunday to have defied the experts and scaled 9,424-foot Cima Grande di Lavaredo by its treacherous northern wall. The experts said it couldn't be done in winter. Peter Liegert, 25, Horst Sieger, 19, and Rolf Zaeger, 26, all plumbers from Munich, were the climbers.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Portland Buckaroos' magnetic attraction to hockey fans extended to Calgary Saturday night as the leaders of the Western Hockey League clashed head on.

The league - leading Stampeders sent a standing-room only crowd of 7,700 home happy as rookie John Kosiancic scored in overtime to down the Buckaroos 5-4.

The victory extended Calgary's lead to four points over the Buckaroos.

In other weekend action, Spokane Comets whipped the seventh-place Edmonton Flyers 5-0 and 5-1 in games at Spokane Saturday and Sunday and Seattle Totems edged Victoria Cougars 5-4 in Seattle Sunday.

Kosiancic fired the winning goal, his second of the night, from about 20 feet out. Calgary's other goals were scored by Sid Finney with two and Wally Hergesheimer. Portland scorers were Bill McCulley, Larry Leach, Art Jones and Arnie Schmautz.

HAS SECOND SHUTOUT

Spokane's Gilles Boisvert had to handle only 17 shots Saturday to record his second shutout of the season. Edmonton's Dennis Riggin stopped 19.

Colin Kilburn led Comets with two goals and Del Topoll, Max Mekilok and Dick Lamoureux added the others.

Topoll scored twice for Comets and Al Johnson, Forbes Kennedy and Kilburn got the others. Lloyd Haddon scored Edmonton's marker.

Seattle remained two points behind the third-place Vancouver Canucks with its win over Victoria. Guyle Fielder, the league's leading scorer, got Seattle's first and last goals. Don Ciukpka also scored twice and Rudy Filion once. Barrie Ross, Doug Macauley, Hugh Currie and Wayne North scored for the sixth-place Cougars.

SETS DASH RECORD

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Olympic ace Wilma Rudolph set a women's indoor 70-yard dash record in the first Mason-Dixon Games and promptly broke it Saturday night. Miss Rudolph was timed at 7.9 seconds in a preliminary heat and sped along the boards at 7.8 seconds in the finals of the event. The old mark was 8.2 set 26 years ago by Stella Walsh.

Jack Johnson Wins Over Besmanoff

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The best blows fell outside the Queensberry rules and after the round-bells Saturday night as 242-pound Jack Johnson of West Jordan, Utah, won a 10-round heavyweight split decision over Willie Besmanoff of Milwaukee.

Referee Ken Shulsen spent most of the rounds urging Besmanoff to raise his shots to Johnson's large stomach, but Johnson brought boos from the 1,800 fans at the end of the second round with an after-the-bell blow.

Besmanoff, 205½, turned toward his corner and Johnson lobped a big right through the air that caught the German heavyweight flush on the side of the jaw and dropped him against the ropes and to the canvas.

Besmanoff's corner came out in a rage at that, but Shulsen kept the fight going for eight other hard, but relatively equal, rounds.

A couple of other times following the bells, Besmanoff and Johnson flurried for a punch or two, but as they got tired in the late rounds, they elected to save their swinging for the allotted three minutes.

Judge Maxie Kosof gave the decision to Besmanoff, 96-95, judge Del Markham had it for Johnson, 96-95 and Shulsen also gave Johnson the fight 96-95.

Coca and Horton Head All-Star Musical Cast

TORONTO — "Once Upon A Mattress," starring Imogene Coca and Edward Everett Horton, represents an unusual departure from theatre "on the road" across America.

The all-star cast is far stronger than the original production which played on Broadway without stars, and ran for nearly two years to packed houses.

Imogene Coca who plays the moat-swimming, weight-lifting, Indian-wrestling Princess Winnifred, is well known to audiences throughout the country as the star with Sid Caesar of television's "Your Show of Shows." She was seen most recently on Broadway in the political comedy "The Girls of 509."

Edward Everett Horton, who has apepared in such motion pictures as "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Top Hat," "The Gay Divorcee," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Lost Horizon" and "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," has also delighted audiences on the television shows, "Matinee Theatre," "The Ernie Ford Show," "The George Gobel Show" and "The Bob Hope Show." In the role of the henpecked King in "Once Upon A Mattress," Horton makes his musical-comedy debut.

Also starring in this whimsical treatment of the beloved Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale is King Donovan who is familiar to television audiences as Bob Cummings' old air force buddy "Harvey Helm" on "The Bob Cummings Show" and as "Roger" on "The Burns and Allan Show."

The colorful sets and costumes were designed by William and Jean Eckart. Among their many New York credits are the setting for "Oh, Men! Oh, Women!" "The Golden Apple," "Damn Yankees," "Li'l Abner," and "Fiorello!"

George Abbott, Broadway's top director, staged the show for Broadway and prompted critic Brooks Atkinson to say that "he makes every actor look like a genius." The youthful, energetic cast of this swiftly-paced musical hit is one more reason why "Once Upon A Mattress has critics singing its praises across the country.

The play will be seen at the O'Keefe Centre, March 27 to April 1.

Hull-Ottawa Running Away In E.P.L.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 3-2 Sunday win over Kingston Frontenacs left Hull-Ottawa Canadiens nesting high above their rivals in the Eastern Professional Hockey League and established a new point record for the twoyear-old loop.

The victory gave the Habs 78 points from 37 wins and four ties to move two points ahead of the mark set by Sudbury Wolves last year.

A 6-0 win by Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds over Montreal Royals kept the Soo 16 points behind in second place.

Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers made it a four-point weekend by defeating Frontenacs 3 -1 in Kingston Saturday and Sudbury Wolves by the same score in Kitchener Sunday.

The wins hoisted Beavers to 57 points—three behind the Soo and eight ahead of fourth-place Kingston. Sudbury trails six points behind with 45 and Royals are in last place with 43.

Hull-Ottawa marksmen were Cliff Pennington, Terry Gray and Billy Carter while Bob Attersley and Randy Miller answered for Kingston.

Pennington scored the winning goal with just 56 seconds left to play. Kingston goalie John Henderson was pulled with 15 seconds left but the six forwards were unable to tie the game.

Fred Hilts led with three goals when Thunderbirds blanked Montreal Royals. Other Soo scorers were Norm Guimond, Merv Kuryluk and Cliff Schmautz.

Saturday scorers for Kitchener were Art Stratton, Bob Sabourin and Ed Hoekstra. The lone Kingston marksman was Pete Panagabko. On Sunday Stratton scored a pair and Hoekstra notched a single. Jack Hendrickson scored for Sudbury.

RETAINS TITLE

The 26-year-old champion, who weighed 209½ pounds, floored the 30-year-old German for the count of nine in the seventh round. But Kalbfell weathered the onslaught and came back strong in the 10th, 11th and 12th rounds. Kalbfell weighed 210½ pounds.

Austrian, Canadian Miss Win Downhill Titles

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOUNT ORFORD, Que. (CP) Heli Summerauer, a seasoned instructor from Austria, and a little Ottawa miss about half his age are 1961 Canadian downhill champions.

Summerauer 28, and Vicki Rutledge, 15, topped a field of 51 skiers that took to the Three Creeks trail Saturday on Mount Orford, a touch 1 1-10th-mile course with a 1,550-foot drop.

A steady overnight drizzle followed by fog that swallowed up 2,500-foot Mount Giroux Sunday set back the two slalom runs, part the Canadian Alpine ski championships.

They were rescheduled as part of the Dr. Adams Memorial event March 11-12 in this Eastern Townships ski centre, 80 miles east of Montreal.

Canada's national ski team, now in Europe, is expected back at the end of the month and likely will bolster the entry list for the slalom runs.

Chunky, little Summerauer, from Ste. Agathe, Que., was the oldest competitor. A new ruling of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association allows instructors to compete with amateurs.

Oen of the few male racers who did not wear a crash helmet, Summerauer said he "played it safe, taking no chances" for his winning time of 1:43.8.

WAS RUNNER-UP

Another instructor, Russell Legare of Mont Tremblant, Que., was runner-up with 1:44.1 followed by Renaud Argouin of Thetford Mines, Que., with 1:46.2.

Ottawa's Arnold Midgley, the 1960 unofficial combined winner at Camp Fortune, Que., was seventh.

Miss Rutledge, who has been skiing since the age of five, won with 1:56.1. Runner - up with 2:02.5 was fellow - Ottawan Marge Hanna.

The women's combined winner last year, Lois LeBouthillier, of Victoriaville was not entered.

BROKE LIFT RECORD

MONTREAL (CP)—Allan Salter of Montreal broke the Canadian native record for the two-arm snatch in the bantamweight division during an RCAF invitational weightlifting tournament Saturday. Salter, attached to the Palestre Nationale Club, lifted 194¼ pounds to break the former record of 192 pounds. Salter weighs 123½ pounds.

The Lincoln Murder Case Provocative TV Program

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Dale Wasserman's The Lincoln Murder Case presented Saturday night on CBS was a meticulously constructed, carefully documented and provocative television program.

The selection and presentation in dramatic form of some of the mass of evidence pointing to a treasonable conspiracy in Lincoln's cabinet, was skillfully knitted together.

Maverick, that vintage western that took a light - hearted view of the Old West, seems nowadays to have lost much of its bounce and all of its impertinence.

Sunday night's episode, for instance, was cut strictly along familiar horse opera lines—a plot to get rid of the rich heiress and grab the money—and was played with completely straight faces.

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed, then are dull and listless during the day. When kidneys slow down wastes and excess acids stay in the system. Disturbed rest, tired feeling and backache often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you feel dull in the daytime—use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Then you feel better—rest better—work better. You can depend on Dodd's Kidney Pills. 73

Will Continue Road Subsidies

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government will provide subsidies for municipal road construction during the next fiscal year, Highways Minister Cass said today.

He told a meeting of the Ontario City Engineers' Association: "We anticipate being in a position to accommodate a reasonable increase in municipal spending," although all bylaws submitted to the department could not be approved.

Some $64,500,000 was voted for municipal road subsidies during the current year.

Mr. Cass said his department will pay five per cent of the pre-engineering charges on construction of street and bridge projects where the service was performed by the municipality's own staff.

Text of his address was given to the press before delivery.

Recent Efforts to Strike Down Salazar Solidify Control Maintained 33 Years

What did the Santa Maria incident and recent troubles in Angola mean to the future of Portugal's Salazar? Here is an appraisal by an AP correspondent who has spent a dozen years on the Iberian peninsula, reporting the news of Portugal and Spain.

By LOUIS NEVIN

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's dictator is beset by troubles but recent efforts to strike him down seem to have solidified rather than weakened the control he has maintained for 33 years.

Talks with opposition leaders, government officials and neutral observers, together with a study of the facts of life in this small country at Europe's southwestern tip, all lead to this conclusion.

The seizure of the liner Santa Maria, in an effort to muster support against Premier Antonio Salazar, was followed by brief uprisings in Angola, Portuguese colony in West Africa.

But opposition leaders inside Portugal expressed chagrin at both developments. They considered them a blow to hopes of eventually toppling Salazar.

When it was all over, the dictator went off for two days' rest at his home in Santa Comba Dao, near Coimbra.

DIFFICULTIES GROWING

Even so, Salazar has difficulties and they are growing.

Perhaps the most serious is the tide of independence that has been sweeping Africa. There is a threat of nationalism in the colonies that Portugal closely controls — Angola, Mozambique, Guinea and the islands of the Gulf of Guinea. All these areas keep Portugal afloat because their goods more than make up the trade deficit that the homeland suffers every year.

Most neutral observers believe the people of Portugal on the whole are not discontented. Over the years, many have come to trust Salazar even though Portugal has the lowest income in western Europe—$299 per capital in 1960, according to government statistics.

"I don't like the dictatorship but I'm more afraid of what might come after," is the way one person puts it.

STOOPED AND GREY

Salazar, now stooped and grey at 71, still runs things with the quiet voice that has ruled Protugal since the late 20s.

He was teaching political economy at Coimbra University when a ruling military junta selected him to be minister of finance with full power to run the country. He became premier in 1930.

How has he maintained himself in office so long? There is no simple answer. It is a combination of many factors and conditions.

First, he took over after a period of political chaos during which cabinet had succeeded cabinet for years. Economic affairs under the two years of the military junta were a catastrophe. The nation had reached bankruptcy.

He brought political stability with a military dictatorship based on the army and an efficient secret police. Civil liberties were suppressed as were all political parties except his own national union.

He brought order to government finance through orthodox methods of economy. Frugality was made the national watchword and in the first year he balanced the national budget. It has not been unbalanced since.

Salazar saw to it that people had enough to eat. They were clothed, not luxuriously but adequately for a country with a low standard of living. Prices of basic commodities were controlled.

With these methods of living within the national means, he gave the country one of the soundest currencies in western Europe.

ISN'T EASY FOR PEOPLE

It hasn't been easy for the people for the last two years although the government's financial situation remains sound. Prices of basic commodities imported by Portugal have gone up on the world market. Fishing for cod, a staple of the Portuguese diet, has been bad.

Salazar's personal character commands the nation's respect. He is a Roman Catholic in a Catholic nation. There has never been a hint of financial scandal or corruption attached to his name. The people know he practices the frugality he preaches.

To top it all, he has shown himself to be a wily politician. No successor has been permitted to rise to a position from which he might threaten the master: He gets the axe first.

Salazar will be 72 April 27. He was seriously ill last year with the flu and the year before with pneumonia.

WHO'S NEXT?

His followers, fearing what may come after if no orderly succession is prepared in advance, would like him to decide on an heir apparent and groom him to take over. But Salazar, like Gen. Francisco Franco of Spain, knows that heirs may try to take over before the boss is ready to step down.

For years many believed Salazar's successor would be Marcello Caetano, former president of the National Assembly and former minister of the presidency, a position equivalent to the vice premiership.

But after the 1958 presidential elections, Caetano was ousted from the cabinet and became rector of Lisbon University.

One by one, hopefuls of the regime and of the opposition have aged until today there seems only one man of sufficient political stature in the country and ability under 60 years old.

He is tall, husky, Dynamic Pedro Theotonio Perreira, 59, who succeeded Caetano as minister of the presidency. Able and urbane, he served as ambassador to Rio de Janeiro, Madrid, Washington and London.

Among opposition leaders only Gen. Humberto Delgado, who opposed Salazar's candidate in the 1958 elections and lost, is under 60. He is 55 but his prestige in Portugal is at a low ebb since the Santage Maria affair.

All indications are that Salazar is in a position to continue running the country until he dies or becomes physically or mentally incapacitated.

Where do you stand?

For example, what about those insurance policies you haven't looked at for some time? Would they be paid out the way you want? Or have you unintentionally "disinherited" a child?

Do you know how much your family will get under your life insurance program? How long could they live as you want them to live?

The answers to such questions may be even more important to a man of modest means than to the man with a fortune.

Now, Metropolitan—the company you look to for authoritative information on physical health—offers all fathers straightforward answers on financial health.

4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions—one which makes good sense for you.

UN APPROVES USE OF FORCE IN CONGO

Prime Minister Invites Kennedy To Visit Canada

Wants President to Head Early Meeting of NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Monday he has tried to persuade President Kennedy to come out in favor of an early meeting of NATO heads of government.

Announcing to the Commons that he invited Mr. Kennedy to visit Ottawa during the current parliamentary session, Mr. Diefenbaker also said:

"I drew the president's attention to my continuing view that there are certain problems facing NATO which will require the attention of heads of government as soon as it is possible for them to be assembled."

Canada has been suggesting a NATO summit conference since last summer and proposed it to the last NATO ministerial meeting in Paris in December. Officials here are definite, however, that the NATO meeting scheduled for Oslo in early May won't be converted into a summit conference.

SUGGESTED QUEBEC

Mr. Diefenbaker on previous occasions has suggested that such a meeting might be held in Quebec City.

The Prime Minister informed the Commons that Mr. Kennedy will come to Ottawa at "a time convenient to both countries." It was hoped that the president would address a joint session of Parliament as presidents Truman and Eisenhower had done.

The Prime Minister was reporting on his flight to Washington and meeting and lunch with the president earlier Monday. The invitation to Mr. Kennedy was the only concrete announcement made by the prime minister on his three-hour talk with the president.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "This meeting should not be measured in terms of its duration or in the number of flags unfurled but in the opportunity it offered for better acquaintanceship, better understanding and also making possible a discussion of Commons problems in a businesslike and informal manner appropriate to the closest of neighbors and friends."

He said subjects discussed included The Congo and the United Nations; Laos; NATO: North American defence; economic problems; food sur-

PEARSON HITS MONEY POLICIES OF GOVERNMENT

Mismanagement Of Fund Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson assailed the government's monetary policies Monday, blaming financial "irresponsibility" and "incompetence" for prolonging the recession and increasing unemployment.

He said the situation demands an immediate statement of financial policy from the government to "clear up some of the confusion."

The Liberal leader told the Commons that "gross mismanagement" of the Unemployment Insurance Fund last year cost the fund nearly $70,000,000.

Moving a non-confidence motion on which debate continues today, he said the government has demonstrated its incompetence to manage the public debt, "resulting in unduly high interest rates, erosion of business confidence and consequent deepening and lengthening of the economic recession."

Mr. Pearson said that in 1958 the unemployment fund's $300,000,000 investment in victory bonds was converted to conversion bonds to comply with government policy—"a fantastic decision."

Later, he said, the fund had to start unloading these bonds to meet rising obligations, and by January of this year had lost $27,000,000 in this operation.

"When the full impact of the government decision taken in

Katanga Govt. Rejects All UN Proposals

ELISABETHVILLE (AP) — The Katanga government today ordered the general mobilization of all able bodied people—Negro and white—to oppose any attempt by the United Nations forces to carry out a resolution adopted by the Security Council.

Announcing the mobilization at a press conference, President Moise Tshombe said: "I mean by mobilization, first of all civil mobilization. That means everybody has to remain at their post whatever instructions from a foreign power may be."

Tshombe earlier had rejected a part of the UN resolution calling for withdrawal from The Congo of all Belgian military and political advisers. The Belgians are the brains behind Tshombe's provincial administration and army.

His mobilization order was designed to meet head-on that portion of the resolution authorizing the UN troops in The Congo to use force if necessary to prevent civil war. Tshombe's army is trying to drive rebel Baluba tribesmen from northern Katanga.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis — A storm centred over Louisiana is moving slowly northeastward and is forecast to spread rain into Southern Ontario by tonight. The rain may be preceded in some areas by a brief period of snow or freezing rain. Scattered snowflurries will continue across the north country today with snow expected Wednesday.

Oshawa Medical Building Burns

OSHAWA (CP) — Fire today destroyed the medical dental building on Simcoe Street South.

There was no immediate estimate of damage.

The downtown building housed the offices of nine medical doctors and one dentist and the medical pharmacy.

Cause of the fire was not known. The two-storey building was unoccupied at the time of the outbreak, which was discovered by the caretaker of a nearby store. He got a passing motorist to notify police.

Federal Cabinet Will Study Plan To Give Food to Nation's Needy

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet is expected to study shortly a plan for supplying food to Canada's needy.

Informants said today an initial plan has been rejected by Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton and a second one is being worked out.

One formula might be food stamps by which persons legitimately in need would be able through retailers to obtain the foods they are hard pressed to buy.

Initially, the idea was indicated unofficially as a program that would seek to funnel surpluses—such as wheat and butter—to unemployed heads of families or individuals.

However, informants now say, the view is that these surpluses would be unsuitable alone and that the federal government would go into the market to buy the stocks required.

One reason is that government stocks held by the agricultural stabilization board are thin—in pork, dairy products other than butter, fruit or other food supplies.

Butter is the exception at some 95,000,000 pounds and the government is planning devices to cut the consumer price, stimulating demand in relation to cheaper margarine and spreads while retaining the return to dairy producers.

Informants emphasize two points about any program, while stressing that cabinet approval still must sanction such plans.

One is that distribution must be based on some sort of means test to confirm need. The other is that there must be a plan

Off-Duty Police Officer Kills Armed Bandit

MONTREAL (CP) — An off-duty police constable, who volunteered his services as a guard at an east-end caisse populaire (credit union), killed one gunman and critically injured another in an abortive holdup Monday night.

Constable Remi Robert, 24, was shot in the shoulder during the furious exchange of gunfire. A woman customer was shot in the leg and slightly injured.

Three armed and masked gunmen burst into the Caisse Populaire due St. Albert le Grand on Charlemagne St. and moved towards the cash wickets.

Constable Robert, who was standing behind the door, opened fire.

FLURRY OF SHOTS

Some 20 shots were exchanged.

Constable Robert told police he shot one suspect in the leg and when the man turned to retaliate, shot him in the stomach.

As a second bandit headed for the door Constable Robert emptied his revolver at him.

The man, later identified as Marcel Fournier, 30, an ex-convict with a long police record, fell dead in the doorway.

The badly-wounded man and his companion fled.

HAD TO DUCK

"It happened so fast," said caisse president Hughes Gervais, "all one could do was duck."

Within 30 minutes two men, one wounded in the leg and stomach, arrived at a nearby hospital to seek treatment.

Detectives arrested the pair on the spot.

The injured man was identified as Armand Lauziere, 35. He was placed under guard and ordered held for questioning in connection with the attempted holdup.

A 43-year-old man is also being held.

Constable Robert was released from hospital after treatment for a bullet wound in his shoulder.

Dramatic Change in Govt. Thinking on Defence Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — There appears to have been a dramatic change in recent weeks in the government's thinking on defence.

The trend seems to be toward acquisition of nuclear weapons for the armed forces and of a supersonic jet interceptor for RCAF Air Defence Command.

Conversely, the trend appears to be away from empahasis on the possibilities of an East-West disarmament agreement.

In short, Defence Minister Harkness is in the saddle and External Affairs Minister Green out of it.

Whether the apparent current trend will be translated into firm government announcements on defence policy in the near future remains to be seen.

One obvious reason for the government's change in attitude would be Russia's attack on the United Nations and its secretary-general, Dag Hammarskjold.

Let alone the wider ramifications, no Canadian government could be indifferent to the Soviet Union's attempts to stir up trouble in The Congo, where there are Canadian servicemen doing their best to assist the UN.

Mr. Green has been almost silent in recent weeks on the subject of disarmament. This is sharp contrast to a few months ago when he never missed an opportunity to bring up the subject.

This is not to say that the government is abandoning disarmament schemes. The work in this field goes on.

But meanwhile, Mr. Harkness has been heavily attacking in public speeches persons he describes as neutralists, unilateral disarmers and arm-chair strategists.

It used to be obvious that Prime Minister Diefenbaker was on Mr. Green's side.

Mr. Green pulled the government away from an all-but-firm

3 Major U.S. Airlines Shut Down, 84,000 Face Layoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the largest airlines in the United States were shut down completely today as a result of a flight engineers' wildcat strike that has caused the greatest tieup in American aviation history.

Three other airlines snarled in the five-day-long walkout were continuing to operate—at least through today—with drastically reduced service.

Trans World Airlines, American Airlines and Eastern Airlines have stopped using all their equipment for the duration of the strike, with 84,000 employees due for layoffs.

Pan American World Airways and National Airlines planned to maintain token service. Western Airlines, already down to four jet flights a day between Los Angeles and Seattle, also continued a token effort.

From Miami to Boston and from New York to Los Angeles thousands of passengers already have been inconvenienced by the walkout of the 3,500-member Flight Engineers International Union. Eastern Airlines flights from New York to Montreal were cancelled also.

Airline executives estimated that through Monday night travel plans of at least 125,000 persons in metropolitan New York alone had been disrupted. An estimated 700 flights affecting 35,000 persons were cancelled in the area Monday.

Trains, buses and the major airlines untouched by the strike said they were flooded with requests for reservations.

Major airlines not strikebound include United, Delta, Braniff, Capital, Northeast and Contin-

Agriculture Minister Makes Pitch for CFA Support Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A pitch for support of the government's big—and costly—rural rehabilitation and development program was sounded Monday by Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

"It will be a tremendous cost," he told the Canadian Federation of Agriculture's opening conference session.

Cost might run between $300,000,000 and $800,000,000 "over the years," Mr. Hamilton said, in describing general details of the plan to shift use of marginal farm land, provide new occupations for permanently-depressed rural areas and extend water and soil conservation programs across the country.

He called for co-operation of governments, farm groups and farmers to implement the scheme now before the Commons—still in general outline—and predicted that failure might confirm farmer discouragement.

The program is "something that will either destroy me as an individual, and perhaps the government with me, or bring vital change," he said as the lead-off speaker to the convention, marking the federation's silver jubilee.

About 300 persons gathered on opening day of the four-day convention—there are 79 official delegates representing CFA affiliates—to begin discussion of 98 resolutions ranging from free trade to dissatisfaction with egg support prices.

H. H. Hannam, Canadian federation president, who has been with the Canadian group during its 25-year life and has been active in international farm group activities, is to address the annual banquet tonight.

Mr. Hamilton said the initial reaction has been good from provinces which must share in the cost of the federally-inspired farm rehabilitation program. Cost shares would vary

YOUTH STAYING IN SCHOOLS YEARS LONGER

Training Schools Will Be Set Up

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's students are staying in school longer today than they did during the post-war boom, Education Minister Robarts told the legislature Monday night.

In asking approval of his department's $248,368,000 estimates for the 1961-62 fiscal year, Mr. Robarts said Ontario is reaching the stage where most students will reach secondary school graduation.

It is apparent, he said, that at least 56 per cent of the students who entered Grade 9 last September will reach Grade 12, and 30 per cent will reach Grade 13.

By comparison, only about 39 per cent of the students who entered Grade 9 in 1947 reached Grade 12, and only 20 per cent went on to Grade 13.

Mr. Robarts said the "wastage rates" are still substantial, but every effort is being made to reduce them.

PLAN NEW SCHOOLS

The education minister also indicated the province plans to set up trades training schools as part of the educational system, and hinted at the introduction of night university courses.

In answer to opposition demands that the government do something towards training young people without academic ability, he said the government supports the principle of trades training schools but hasn't decided what course to follow in their establishment.

He said such a system might

Four Canadians Plead Guilty To Passing Bills

DETROIT (AP)—Five Canadians were held under bond Monday after four of them pleaded guilty to passing phony $20 bills in Port Huron, Mich., over the weekend.

A similar charge against a sixth man, Clifford Reaume, was withdrawn for lack of evidence.

One man, Harold Snyder, 37, of Sarnia, Ont., was named by the others as the one who provided the counterfeit U.S. currency.

Snyder was arraigned separately before U.S. district Judge John Feikens who set bond at $5,000.

Three other men and a woman all pleaded guilty at their arraignment to passing counterfeit money, and were held under $1,500 bond each.

They are Arnold Mussey, 52; his wife, Evelyn, 49; John Ashton, 41, and Ben Reaume, 39, all of Tilbury, Ont.

William A. Carlson, chief of the U.S. Secret Service office at Detroit, said the four Tilbury people were arrested in a Port Huron bar Friday after they had cashed a bogus $20 bill.

Carlson said they implicated Snyder who was caught trying to pass another bill in a Port Huron jewelry store. Carlson said Snyder refused to reveal where he had obtained the bills.

U.S. Space Capsule Is Recovered In 'Worst Possible Conditions' Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—An unmanned space capsule soared 107 miles high and 1,425 miles down the Atlantic missile range today in its most severe test and was recovered.

The spacecraft was fired at 9.10 a.m. on the nose of an Atlas missile and it landed 13 miles from the nearest of a fleet of waiting recovery ships about 400 miles east of Puerto Rico.

There was no immediate word here on what damage, if any, had been done to the capsule.

Aim of the test was to determine what happens when such a spacecraft returns to earth under the worst possible conditions.

Twenty-five minutes after lift-off the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced:

"Preliminary indications are the Mercury-Atlas spacecraft flew its programmed trajectory, hitting a peak altitude of approximately 107 statute miles and landing approximately 1,425 statute miles down range. The approximate peak velocity was 12,850 miles per hour."

These figures were near those sought in the test—a 115-mile altitude 1,400 miles down range and 13,000 m.p.h. speed.

The spacecraft is like the one that successfully carried Ham, the space chimpanzee, on a short flight Jan. 31. There was no living thing aboard today, however.

The test was a critical one for both the Capsule and the Atlas booster, a strengthened version of a missile which exploded on a similar flight last July.

Afro-Asian Plan Endorsed 9-0, USSR Abstaining

Security Council Votes Are Defeat for Russia

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Ending a brain-numbing series of meetings, the United Nations Security Council early today approved a broad Afro-Asian peace plan for The Congo, authorizing the use of force by UN troops if necessary, to avert civil war.

The final sessions which began at 10:58 a.m. Monday ended at 4:22 a.m. with a defeat for the Soviet Union and a victory for UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

The meetings ranged all the way from drama to laughter—and attempts by some delegates to evoke tears on behalf of the suffering Congolese people.

The 11-member council passed a resolution sponsored by Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic strengthening the UN role in The Congo. But it defeated another proposal by the same three countries condemning political assassinations in the chaotic African republic.

RUSSIA ABSTAINS

The vote on the first Afro-Asian measure was 9 to 0 with two abstentions — Russia and France—following a debate that centred around the newly-announced execution of six followers of slain Patrice Lumumba, former Congolese premier.

On the second, the vote was 6 to 0 with five abstentions after the Soviet Union used its veto to kill amendments proposed by the United States. Seven votes were needed for passage.

No one was surprised when a Soviet resolution demanding dis-

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet commentators today tongue-lashed leading United Nations figures while reserving comment on Congolese issues before the world assembly.

The Soviet news agency Tass picked out for a special attack Dag Hammarskjold, whom Russia has accused of responsibility in the murder of deposed Congo premier Patrice Lumumba.

The agency accused the secretary-general of "hypocritically shedding crocodile tears" over the execution of six more politicians in The Congo.

A Moscow radio observer noted that the council's resolution on The Congo did not include dismissing Hammarskjold, "whose activities led to the tragic situation in The Congo, the murder of Patrice Lumumba and the other national leaders in The Congo," the radio said.

RAP U.K. DELEGATE

At the same time, British delegate Sir Patrick Dean came in for a special abuse from Tass.

The agency charged Dean with making "a show of his regrets concerning the death of Mr. Lumumba." But he did not say "a word to brand the killers and energetically defended Dag Hammarskjold, one of the main authors of the monstrous crime," the agency added.

Veteran Lived Three Years In Small Cave

ACTON, Ont. (CP) — A 68-year-old veteran of the First World War lived for three years in a small cave "because he didn't want to bother anybody," a court was told Monday.

Archibald Shaw was arrested by provincial police on a charge of vagrancy after residents of the area complained.

Cpl. Charles Wilkinson said Shaw was suffering from a painful hernia and his clothing was in tatters. He had an old sweater and two pairs of pants. He had no shoes under his overshoes.

Magistrate K. M. Langdon dismissed the charge after Shaw agreed to go to the Halton county home for the aged.

Cpl. Wilkinson said Shaw's cave was near an Acton dump, about 25 miles northwest of Toronto. He said the cave contained only two boards on which Shaw slept and two boards at the entrance, which substituted for a door.

Shaw said later he lived on an occasional rabbit he trapped, table scraps at the dump and bread brought him by some boys.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Monday, Feb. 20

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that President Kennedy has accepted an invitation to visit Canada before the end of the current session of Parliament.

The prime minister, reporting to the House on his talk with the president in Washington, said it is hoped the American leader will address a joint session of Parliament while in Ottawa.

Liberal Leader Pearson moved a motion of non-confidence in the government declaring that it refused to accept and discharge its proper responsibility in the field of monetary policy.

The Liberal leader demanded an investigation into "gross mismanagement" of the Unemployment Insurance Fund in losses incurred by converting the fund's victory bonds to conversion bonds in 1958 to comply with government policy.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) described Mr. Pearson's speech as a "pop-gun oration" dealing only with one segment of the unemployment situation and not the "cannon's roar" the socialist group had hoped for.

Revenue Minister Nowlan denied that he gave away any pre-budget secrets in weekend remarks that in view of the international situation one could almost assume that increases in taxes were as likely as reductions.

Gave $25,000 To Form Co. Says Witness

TORONTO (CP) — Graham Snelgrove of Hamilton testified Monday he contributed $25,000 in 1958 to a company formed to acquire mining claims in the Peterborough area.

He was a witness at the preliminary hearing of Kenneth A. Weldon and Frederick William Jackson, charged jointly on five counts of fraud.

Mr. Snelgrove said he signed an agreement April 23, 1958, regarding property near Peterborough because of his acquaintance with Jackson. He said he was introduced to Weldon and a company was formed.

He said Weldon, Jackson and another man were to contribute $50,000 to make the capital $75,000.

An Ontario Securities Commission solicitor, W. A. Macdonald, said Weldon and Jackson represented themselves as being joined with the complainants in the purchase of the claims when in fact they were not.

Jackson also is charged with a total of 13 charges of forgery, uttering and fraud.

Rotarians Hear Story of Meeting At Toronto

Local Rotarians were treated to an excellent description of the various activities at the recent district conference by Rotarian Joe Demeza at their weekly dinner meeting in the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon.

The conference consisted of fun, fellowship, good speakers and entertainment and Rotary information advised the speaker, who is superintendent at the Ontario School for the Deaf. The serious parts of the gathering emphasized the theme of a "World Community" and how Rotary Clubs could help to contribute towards this goal, Mr. Demeza said.

Reporting on an address by Dr. Stanley Jones, noted missionary the speaker noted the former's emphasis on the need for world government if international crises were to be solved. Dr. Jones compared the present condition of the world to that of the wild west when everyone was armed and ready but there was no proper system of law and order. He suggested that this world government would have to come a-surrender of the individual bout through the voluntary states' national sovereignty, reported Mr. Demeza.

More directly affecting the operation of Rotary Clubs, it was pointed out, through various speakers that the asset of a Rotary Club in a community was its ability to organize and promote a community project either as an individual club or in co-operation with other local service clubs, the speaker informed his fellow members.

Carried over from the fun of the convention, which five local Rotarians attended, was an open-door policy for entertainment and fund-raising. More precisely it was half a door which Rotarian Virgil James put up for the members' consideration under the able auctioneering of club president Bill Hurst. High bidder was a guest, Rotarian August Kaiser of Picton, who gave the door back to Mr. James to be pressed into future service next week.

The birthdays of Rotarians Perc McQuire, Bert Houston, Harry Davis and Irv Dickey were observed by their fellow members with both cake and song. Th emeeting was under the chairmanship of president Bill Hurst.

82 Students of Peterborough Teachers' College to Visit City Schools on March 6th

Commencing March 6th elementary schools in Belleville will be invaded by students from the Peterborough Teachers' College as the young aspiring teachers get in a bit of actual classroom experience.

This year 82 students from the Peterborough Teachers' College will be coming to Belleville.

Schools superintendent Lawrence A. Kells noted today that this was the greatest number of teacher trainees ever to come to Belleville the number being almost double that of last year.

"It will tax our facilities almost to capacity," he said.

Little more than routine business was handled at the February meeting of the public school board held in the Bridge Street board rooms Monday evening.

The school superintendent's report showed the enrolment at the end of January to be 4,494 pupils. Attendance at 93.51 per cent was average for the month and relatively good for January.

The board granted teachers permission to meet on three occasions per month instead of the one meeting which has previously been the custom. However only one school division will meet at one time and this will permit the schools supervisor to attend each meeting.

WILL SET DATES

On the days on which the teachers meet classes will end at 3:30 pm. The change comes within school regulations which call for five hours of school. Dates on which the teachers meet will be set by the school superintendent.

The board has been advised that March 11th will be the earliest date on which boards will be permitted to advertise for teachers.

Interviews with student teachers at Peterborough Teachers' College will not be permitted until May 1st, which is later than in previous years.

Teacher delegates to the Ontario Education Association convention to be held during Easter week will this year be granted an allowance of $15 by the school board instead of the previous $10. From 10 to 15 teachers are named delegates by the teachers to attend the meeting.

Members of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association have advised the board they will contribute $100 toward the purchase of a new tape recorder for the school.

The school board will contact the Murray Brantford Roofing with a request to make good the roof on the Sir Winston Churchill school. Since completion of the school the roof has developed leaks which have defied correction. The roof was laid under specifications of the Brantford company and is bonded for 20 years.

Board members still lack details on whether or not Belleville this year will benefit by special schools grant regulations with regard to annexation. Last year under the special grant regulations Belleville received an additional $18,000 from the province. The special grant regulations program covers a ten-year period but specific municipalities do not necessarily receive addition grants each year.

Representation has been made to the board by the Belleville Home and School Council asking for additional schools guards and also asking the board to use its influence for the retention of the present speed limits in the Avondale area.

Also the board has been asked to host a regional school trustees meeting planned to be held in Belleville this spring. The board decided to ask for additional information before committing itself.

February accounts amounting to $53,642.18 were passed.

Attending the meeting were chairman Lyle Langabeer and board members B. Bishop, F. Clarke, G. Hutchison, M. Lovelace, N. McKibbon, J. Ritchie, Mac Smith, W. VanTassel and G. H. Trill.

Roslin Native Teaches at Same School and Desk for 30 Years

By MAXINE JONES
of The Windsor Star

If that old chestnut about taking apples to the teacher was observed faithfully, Mrs. William Brand would have collected enough of the red polished variety to open a fruit store. For Mrs. Brand taught at the same school, in the same room and at the same desk for 30 years.

Thursday, February 16, at 7.30 p.m., in Victoria School, Sandwich East, former students, friends and families honored Mrs. Brand at a tea organized by the Victoria Home and School Association. Many of the former students included parent-and-children teams, for 30 years easily encompasses two generations.

Contrary to the popular conception of women in the teaching profession, Mrs. Brand is a slim, attractive brunette with a charming personality. She was born and raised on a farm north of Belleville, except for two years when she started school in Toronto. It was here, while enrolled in kindergarten, that Mrs. Brand's ambition to teach youngsters was sparked. She returned to Toronto to attend Teachers' College and accepted a position at Victoria School immediately. That brought her to Windsor the same year the depression arrived, 1930.

A blue serge dress which she sewed for one tiny and cold student and the purchase of 10 yards of white flannelette for diapers for a student's baby sister are two events she remembers from those days, when her teaching voluntarily included sewing clothes for destitute youngsters.

Now she can number members of the medical and teaching professions among those who passed under her guidance. Although most students lose touch with her after leaving the school, often an adult will introduce himself as a former pupil.

One humorous incident she recalls is when a mature young man approached her at a New Year's Eve dance, explained he was a former student and gave her the traditional kiss on the cheek which the midnight hour permits.

All of Mrs. Brand's memories of her days at Victoria are pleasant. She taught music to each grade and organized the presentation of the cantata every Christmas, making costumes, directing the production and teaching the music. At her home she still' plays the piano frequently, preferring semi-classical seelctions.

Mr. Brand is a lieutenant with the Windsor Police Force. They have been married 18 years and designed their home on Windermere Rd., which they have occepied for 10 years. The furnishings of the comfortable five-room brick house reflect the original tastes and interesting personalities of the residents. Several paintings of Canadian scenes are featured and delicate colorful figurines grace the mantel of the mirrored fireplace.

Mr. and Mrs. Brand go out dancing frequently, enjoy entertaining and are enthusiastic gardners. In the summer Mr. Brand and his golf clubs are inseparable and in the winter Mrs. Brand boasts a 164 fivepin bowling average. They are members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and both enjoy travelling, both planned and impromptu trips. A future European tour is one of their projects.

A new chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, an international sorority for women teachers, is being formed in Windsor and Mrs. Brand has been invited to join. Painting has always been one of her interests and when she retires she hopes to do some brush work herself. She joined the staff of John A. McWilliam School on E. C. Row Ave. in September and is teaching Grades 2 and 3 there.

Although conscious of the disappointing percentage of Canadian students who continue to higher education, her optimism comes to the fore concerning gifted children. The clever ones always find a way, she said.

Mrs. Brand's father, Mr. Charles Chapman of Roslin, was expected to be present for the party. Her mother was unable to travel to Windsor.

Editors' Note: Mrs. William Brand was a native of Roslin, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chapman, and resided in her native community for many years before moving to Windsor.

Achievement Day Is Staged By 4-H Clubs

South Hastings 4-H Homemaking Clubs held their Achievement Day in the Stirling Community hall last Saturday.

Provincial honors for completion of 12 projects were presented to Donalda Kerr and Mareen Wright of Rylstone club; Pearl Tucker of Wallbridge club, and Mrs. Lola Clarke and Mrs. June Dafoe of Quinte club.

County honors for completion of six projects were presented to:

Elaine Lindenfield of River Valley club; Carolyn Fox of Melrose club; Dorothy Parks of Plainfield club; Mary Clapp and Marlene Mitchell of Quinte club and Mrs. Carol Ketcheson and Patricia Shorey of Wallbridge club.

Assisting Miss Lane, county home economist, with the Achievement Day, were Mrs. Marion Smith, home economist for Northumberland and Prince Edward, and Miss June Lillicrop, home economist for Durham, Victoria and Peterborough.

The project completed was "Working With Wool," for which each girl made an exhibited a wool skirt or jumper. Ninety girls completed the project, all of whom were presented with sterling silver spoons by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The 19 leaders received similar presentations; also Mrs. Milton Grills, Mrs. Donald Kerr and Mrs. F. Wellman received certificates from the Canadian Council of 4-H Clubs for having been leaders for five years.

The 1961 spring project is "Dressing Up Home Grown Vegetables" and the leaders' training school will be held on March 6th and 7th in Stirling for South Hastings and on March 8th and 9th in Madoc at Trinity United Church for North Hastings.

Sale of Permits Moving Slowly Says Issuer

A considerable number of Belleville and district motorists are going to be walking on March 16th unless the sale of auto licences picks up in the very near future.

"There are only three weeks to go before the March 15th deadline and we have over 6,000 sets of auto markers to go out before that time", it was noted today by local licence issuer George Olsen.

"Unless motorists start coming in soon in greater numbers we will be unable to handle the last minute rush and I am afraid a number of motorists will be walking until they can secure their 1961 plates".

Approximately 12,000 sets of passenger licence plates are sold annually at Belleville, of which about 9,000 go out by the March 15th deadline. So far only about one third of the plates have been sold.

And despite repeated warnings motorists still persist in coming in for their plates with-certificates. That means they have to go back to their agent or pay an extra $5.

Another item which motorists are forgetting when renewing their licences is to fill in the insurance coverage statement on the inside of their last year's permit card. This has to be filled in when applying for new licences.

BIRTHS

BUTLER. — Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Butler, (nee Avery), of 46 Ascolda Blvd., are happy to announce the birth of their son, Glenn Thomas, (5 lbs., 11 ozs.), on Monday, February 20th, 1961, at Scarboro General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

COOKE. — In loving memory of a dear father, George F. Cooke, who passed away February 21st, 1939.

Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.
—Lovingly remembered by the sons and daughters.

KNOTT. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Joseph Henry Knott, who passed away February 21st, 1955.

There is no parting from those we love,
No distance can divide;
For today in memories' garden,
We still walk side by side.
Each dawning day a thought of him,
At eventide a prayer;
And in the hearts that loved him,
He always will be there.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by his wife Mary Ann.

KNOTT. — In loving memory of a dear father, Joseph Henry Knott who passed away February 21st, 1955.

We lost a dad with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold;
Without farewell, he was taken away,
With only memories for us to keep.
We have lost, but God has gained,
One of the best dads the world contained;
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times, they see us smile;
But they little know the heartache,
Our smiles hide all the while.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughters, sons-in-law and grandchildren.

Royal Bank To Build In Toronto

TORONTO—The Royal Bank of Canada today announced plans for the construction of a new headquarters building in Toronto on a site immediately west of the new Prudential Insuracne Company of America building on King Street. The property on which the new building will stand includes a parking lot and the Manning Arcade which have been owned by the bank for several years.

Preliminary planning for a multi-storey building has been under way for some time. The announcement to proceed with the project came at the conclusion of today's meeting of the full Boar dof Directors of the bank held in Toronto, at which the details were discussed.

Executive officers of The Royal Bank of Canada discuss plans for a new Ontario headquarters building in Toronto. Announcement of the project was made following a full board meeting held by directors in Toronto on Monday. Shown here, left to right, are: D. S. Anderson, Toronto, assistant general manager; W. Earle McLaughlin, Montreal, president; C. B. Neapole, Montreal, general manager, and J. H. Coleman, Toronto, general supervisor.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 1 3-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, reported the Bank of Montreal near noon today. Monday's noon rate was 98 29-32.

At last night's Rotary-Scout dinner, Rotary president T. A. Spruston graciously stepped down and allowed Cub Dennis Graham to take over the presidency for a matter of minutes. Too long for the Rotarians. The first thing Dennis said upon assuming the presidency was: "I fine every Rotarian one dollar!" Ouch. Larry Wilcox, provincial Boy Scout field commissioner at left, not being a member of the club was vastly amused.

New Official Town Plan Approved in Principle By Trenton's Councillors

TRENTON — Town Council handled a variety of matters on its agenda at last night's meeting.

The town's official plan, which has been changed, modified and approved by the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, was approved in principle by council. The list of modifications and changes suggested by the planning branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs will be kept in the clerk's office until next Monday for councillors to examine.

The plan will then be sent for approval to the minister of planning and development.

The Board of Education had written to ask council to appoint one of its members to sit on the planning board with a view to greater understanding between the two boards as to the need for, size, locations, etc., of future schools. Council found that it may not, by law, appoint any additional members to the planning board at this time, but agreed to permit the school board to appoint an "observer" to sit in on planning board meetings.

Council will not take out membership in the Chamber of Commerce. It was felt that the two bodies are an integral part of each other, and that it would be ridiculous for council to become a member of the chamber.

H. B. Smith, secretary of the chamber spoke briefly to council, pointing out that Kingston and Belleville support their chambers financially.

"But the chamber isn't taking for a grant at this time," Mayor MacDonald said.

"I can't see giving the chamber financial help," said Councillor Vagn Lange. "Business and industry should support the chamber."

Council passed a resolution to permit R. L. Walmsley to erect a motel in the vicinity of the Queensway Hotel, provided that the owner pay town taxes, less Murray township taxes.

The developer will be allowed to hook onto the town sewer main.

GIVES SUPPORT

James Brown wrote council, supporting the need for a fire hall on the east side of the river. He said that lots for the building were available and that men were available to run the new hall. In reference to the town being able to call on RCAF firefighting equipment in an emergency, Mr. Brown said that the town did not need RCAF charity, but instead needed sound administration.

"This east side protection has been proposed a number of times", said Mr. Brown, "but there is always one log in the pile to hinder it'.

Mr. Brown made it clear that in this case, the "log" was Councillor Lange, who opposes an east side fire hall at this time.

"I've been called worse things than a log", said Councillor Lange.

"Mr. Brown doesn't realize the cost of maintaining a fire hall", said Councillor Burtt. "The additional firemen needed would cost the town $16,000 annually".

"Twenty thousand", said Councillor Lloyd Worrall.

"Anyhow", said Councillor Burtt, "I will submit plans for a new hall at budget time. Then it will be in the lap of the gods, or rather, in the lap of council, if we get it".

A. Gordon Davis wrote council to point out the pressing need for a senior citizen apartment house. He suggested that council find some way of acquiring a lot at the corner of Wragge Street and Division St. which is adjacent to a townwhic his adjacent to a town-owned property. The cost price of the lot would be absorbed by service clubs.

It would be necessary for the town to expropriate the lot as the owner has refused to sell.

Councillor Burtt asked that the public works committee examine the sewer conditions in this area before coming to a decision on the suitability of the lot. Council has voted to place a token fixed assessment on any lot used for the apartment house. Councillor Burtt wondered if the tax collected could come under the school tax.

"There won't be any children coming from the apartment", said Councillor McNair.

NEW SCHEDULE

At the suggestion of Councillor Worrall, the Department of Transport will be asked to approve a new bridge opening schedule which would allow for the town bridge to be swung at half-hour intervals during the summer with closed intervals being observed between 11.45 a.m. and 1 p.m. and 4.30 and 5.30 p.m. in an attempt to please the water-travelling public, as well as the motorists.

Councillors Worrall and Fraser will represent council at a meeting called at Warkworth later this month at which council representatives will decide on the advisability of setting up a Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority.

A request from the Godden Development Company that the new subdivision be allowed to hook into town sewers was deferred until annexation discussions take place. It was felt that thi might prove to be an inducement to the out-of-town residents not to fight annexation.

Clare Finkle, president of the VON and Douglas Jagges, treasurer, appeared before council to ask that the grant to the association be increased to about $3,900 this year as the VON will operate on a deficit again if additional money is not acquired. Their request will be considered at budget time.

Handy Stand Entered, Police Arrest Suspect

TRENTON — Mike Osgrowski, 32, of Toronto, is in custody in jail here after being apprehended by Constable R. E. Miller early this morning near the Brown's Handy Stand on Byron Street.

Constable Miller was patrolling the area when he saw a man running from the front of the store. He gave chase and soon apprehended the man. Taking him to police headquarters, returned to investigate and found that entry to the building had been gained by breaking the glass in the door and also the lock.

At the rear of the building the constable found three large boxes piled outside a door and filled with articles from the store.

Osgrowski was expected to appear in magistrate's court today and be remanded until further investigation is completed.

Child Swallows Oven Cleaner But Recovering

TRENTON — Billy Vincent, 3 1-2 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Vincent, R.R. 1 Carrying Place, was admitted to the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto early Sunday morning after he had swallowed a quantity of oven cleaner at his home on Saturday.

He was rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital and attended by Dr. W. Bailey, who decided the child should be sent to Toronto for further treatment.

It is understood the child obtained the cleaning fluid from a cupboard while his mother was pre-occupied with other household duties. The parents have two other children, two and six years of age, and, as the mother said "It is pretty hard to watch three children at such tender ages all the time and keep them out of mischief."

Reports from the hospital in Toronto indicate that the child is making satisfactory recovery.

Council Says Day Trespassed On Town Line

TRENTON — Acting on the advice of town solicitor Roderick Campbell, town council decided last night to notify James Day, or the present owner of the lot on Lorne Ave., where excavation has been carried out into the base of Mount Pelion, that the dirt, top soil and sod must be returned to the excavation and the lot returned to its original shape. If this is not done by the owner, the town will be free to take action, and would be entitled to damages for trespass and injurious effect, involving town property.

Council recently engaged a surveyor to go over the property and he found that Mr. Day had trespassed on town property in the excavating operations to the extent of 17 feet in one spot and six feet in another.

The surveyor estimated that the cost of returning the slope to its original state would cost about $1,000. He said that daily erosion of the lot was moving the line farther north onto town property.

It was the opinion of council that the owner may be faced with quite a problem when he attempts to restore the lot to its original shape, as the dirt and top soil may not hold when it is replaced. However, that will be the owner's problem, say councillors. All they want is action.

Worrall Suggests Calling Bids for Ambulance Service As Hospital Sends Regrets

TRENTON — Councillor Lloyd Worrall has come up with a solution to Trenton's ambulance problem.

At last night's meeting of council, he proposed that the town call for tenders for a locally-operated ambulance service. Tenders would be called for by March 15 and the contract would be effective until December 31.

The motion was seconded by Councillor Ross Burtt, who said he did so "to get it out of the fire department."

Councillor Burtt referred to the proposal made by health officer Dr. E. W. Dow, that the town operate an ambulance service and that members of the fire department be responsible for its operation.

Councillor Burtt said that complications could come out of this system.

Councillor Worrall said that on December 5 of last year, the people of Trenton had voted to have the town supply an ambulance service by one means or another, and that he felt council owed it to the people of the town to make arrangements to supply the service. He said that the town's physicians agreed that an ambulance located in Belleville was inadequate for Trenton's needs.

Mayor James MacDonald agreed with the proposal. He said that council had kicked the subject around long enough and that the radio stations, television stations and newspapers were "making hay" with the situation.

The town will finance the successful bidder for the service if any of the bids are accepted.

Councillor McNair said that while he knew the answer to the problem, it would involve financing the person involved and that he did not feel like putting up the money.

"I have been accused of making a personal issue of this," he said. "I have been crucified. But I have proved that it isn't a personal issue. I don't appreciate criticism without a concrete alternative being offered."

Town clerk O. W. Larry read a letter from the board of directors of Trenton Memorial Hospital, declining with regret a suggestion that the hospital be responsible for the operation of a service. The board said that the hospital staff had its hand full with the opening of the hospital's new accommodation and administrative wings.

Mr. Larry also read a letter from a former Trenton resident, Roy Chapman, who now lives in western Canada. Mr. Chapman was critical of Councillor McNair's attitude. He said that council should not have expected the Weaver Ambulance Service to "subsidize" the town.

Councillors Graham and Fraser were absent from the meeting. Councillor Graham is vacationing in Florida and Councillor Graham was indisposed.

Attends Parley

TRENTON — Last weekend Dennis Atkins, Trenton's probation officer, attended the third annual magistrates' eastern regional conference in Cornwall. Probation officers and magistrates from the Quinte area attended.

Magistrate Bergeron of Cornwall, was host and chairman of the conference. Lectures by Dr. Turner of the forsenic clinic at Toronto, and Dr. Atchison of Thistledown were heard.

Discussions on the sex deviate formed the largest part of the agenda. Probation officer Donald MacKinnon of Belleville, also attended the day-long seminar.

Will Prosecute Colored Spread Distributors

The Ontario agriculture department will prosecute distributors of a colored spread being sold in the province, Everett Biggs, assistant deputy minister of agriculture for marketing, said Monday night.

The department has seized several thousand pounds of the spread, he declared, and officials intend to prosecute one distributor Friday.

Sale of spreads colored like butter is banned in Ontario. Penalty is a fine and confiscation.

Mr. Biggs spoke to a farm union meeting in Hastings County.

Questioned following his remarks, Mr. Biggs did not disclose the identity of the distributor.

Favor Portable Pensions

During the past few years we have more than once suggested that consideration ought to be given to making it possible for a worker to keep his pension rights when he leaves a job, for whatever reason.

Recently so-called portable pensions have become the subject of considerable interest. The Ontario Government appointed a committee to study such a proposal and, rather surprisingly, the committee has presented a preliminary report favoring such a system. We say "rather surprisingly" because there are obviously powerful interests which will be adversely affected.

In some instances a by-product of pension plans has been a reduction in labor turnover. Because employees leaving a firm's employ after a comparatively short period in a pension plan generally receive back only their own contributions, it has been possible for companies to reduce the cost of such pension plans to them, or, in the alternative, to provide higher pensions than would otherwise be possible.

We do not know whether the latter alternative has, in fact, been utilized, as it would make it almost impossible to tell an employee the exact amount of the pension he would receive. It is still theoretically possible, though, and a similar situation, small payments to those who abandon an investment plan, has been used by a top-ranking investment firm to guarantee to those completing the plan a much higher return than would otherwise be possible. Then, too, there is the affect which portable pensions would have on plans operated through the great unions. These plans have made the unions amongst the biggest capitalists in the U.S. It is difficult to see, however, how any portable pension plan could be operated if the administration of pension funds were left in the hands of the unions, or of joint union-management committees.

Against all these obstacles, there is the great advantage that portable pensions would protect the worker himself, insuring him against loss through the change of his job, either by reason of being dismissed or because he desires to quit. Insofar as they would eliminate pension rights as a present barrier to leaving a job voluntarily, they would increase labor mobility.

Moreover, no wholly new principle is involved. In order for pension payments to be exempt from income tax, it is now required that a right to employers' contributions must be vested in the worker after a certain number of years. A simple change would be to reduce or eliminate entirely this period-of-service, requiring that, for tax exemption purposes, the plan must permit the employee, on leaving, to transfer to his new employer's pension plan not only his own but also his previous employer's pension plan contributions on his behalf, with the exception of such employer's contributions as were made by reason of past service prior to the institution of a pension plan. Such a change alone, though, would not produce a portable pension system, since it would be possible for employer and employee to elect to forego tax exemption and thus ignore the "portability" feature of the plan. The technical committee appointed by the Ontario Government has recommended increased government supervision and it is obviously intended that the "portability" feature should be compulsory, rather than optional, with a possibility that provisions would be such as would discourage employees electing to "cash in" their past contributions when leaving one firm for another. A Federal Government-controlled corporation has been suggested to handle the pension funds of workers who change jobs.

Premier Frost has emphasized that the preliminary report must not be considered a final judgment "on what is admittedly a very complicated subject" but it is certainly an interesting and thought-provoking document.

MOTORIZED MADNESS

In the United States some mad fool has invented motorized roller skates that will do forty. These are likely, as well as boosting the accident figures, to provide some fascinating legal puzzles. Will your car insurance cover damage done by speeding pedestrians? What is the status of a skater at a street crossing? Will learners have to pass a police test? (Punch, London).

Individuality is the salt of common life. You may have to live in a crowd but you do not have to live like it, nor subsist on its food.—Henry Van Dyke.

Odd Numbers Historically Called Lucky

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was talking with a man who used to be a croupier at Monte Carlo. He had some amusing stories to tell of the superstitions of the gambling gentry.

"Whatever their systems," he said, "they all had one thing in common — they preferred the odd numbers to the even. Almost everybody does, you know."

This did not surprise me. Since the most ancient of times, odd numbers have had some mystical appeal for mankind and the numbers 7, 11, and 13 still sway the majority of people all over the world.

According to the Pythagoreans, who flourished 500 years before Christ, odd numbers are the "fundamental notes" of nature and 9 is the number indicating the Supreme Deity.

In most nations, odd numbers came to be considered "great" or "lucky". In China, odd numbers belong to heaven and even numbers to hell. Odd numbers play a tremendous role in the Hebrew Bible, which doubtless borrowed from older Assyrian and Chaldean legends.

In music, a major chord consists of a fundamental or tonic, its major third and its just fifth. This "music of the spheres" permeates all myth, extending into literature, history and philosophy.

The Godhead was three persons; so in classical mythology Hecate had threefold power and Jove's symbol was a triple thunderbolt, Neptune's a sea-trident, and Pluto's a three-headed dog.

The Fates were three, the Furies three, the Graces three, and the Horae three; the Muses three-times-three. In Christianity there are nine orders of angels; in some religions there are nine heavens; and Milton speaks of the "nine rivers of hell" in Paradise Lost.

Seven was long considered a "holy number." There are seven days in creation, seven spirits before the throne of God and seven phases of the moon; every seventh year was sabbatical; and seven times seven years was the jubilee. Dozens of similar examples could be adduced from all world religions.

One of the most venerable of Latin sayings is that "the Gods delight in odd numbers." Nine, five and three were the mystical numbers derived from the diapason and the diapente of the Greeks. It is not singular that such worship persists in the pagan temples of chance at Monte Carlo.

Aesop's Tale Is Recalled

Cleveland Plain Dealer

In his inaugural pledge to help weaker peoples "because it is right", President Kennedy obviously expected nothing in return. But it is conceivable that such assistance might one day result in a grateful return to helpfulness. At any rate, it reminds us of one of Aesop's fables, to wit:

"A horse and an ass were on a journey with their master. 'Take a share of my load', said the ass to the horse, 'if you want to save my life'. But the horse would not, and the ass, worn out with fatigue, fell down and died. Their master then put the whole load on the horse's back, and the ass's hide into the bargain. The horse began to groan and set up a piteous lament, 'Alas', he cried, 'what misery have I let myself in for! I would not take a light load, and now look at me: I have to carry everything, hide and all'.

"The moral is that the strong should help the weak; so shall the lives of both be preserved".

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 21st, 1941.

The Belleville Public School Boys' Band, conducted by Mr. Alfred Cooper, rather astonished the large audience of relatives and friends that crowded the I.O.O.F. Hall to hear their concert on Wednesday night. Mr Cooper has worked wonders with this group of boys, ranging in age from seven years to sixteen years; and it says much for the leader's rare patience and musical ability, that he has been able to bring the lads to such a high pitch of excellence in so short a time.

Passers-by on Front Street have been admiring a beautiful oil painting on display in the window of John Lewis Company, this week, the work of the eminent Canadian artist, Manly MacDonald, A.R.C.A., a native of this district. This painting, very generously has been donated by the artist to the University Women's Club of this city, to aid in their war work.

The annual ice carnival and winter sports program of the Ontario School for the Deaf was held on the spacious open-air rink of the school over the past week-end. Gay costumes featured the carnival performance, while keen competition marked the winter sports that featured the events.

POWER AT ITS HIGHEST

A word which appears often in the Greek New Testament is "dunamis." It means "power." From it we get the English words, "dynamic" and "dynamo."

What is this power about which the New Testament speaks? It is spiritual power. Our twentieth century is often referred to as the power age. We have made more discoveries and invented more new devices than any preceding generation. Recently a huge section of a bridge spanning one of our principal rivers was assembled at the factory, and move dby barges to the gaping span it was to fill, then lifted into place by cranes of inconceivable power. A marvelous feat — yet in today's world, not by any means unprecedented.

But spiritual power is so much greater than physcial power that they hardly admit of comparison. The power of moral conscience, the power of consecrated personality, the power of determined human effort — these are vast reservoirs of spiritual power. And there are spiritual powers greater even than these. The power of faith, the power of prayer, the power of God's providential hand thrust down into the affairs of mankind — here is power at its highest.

That power is available to us all. We can lay hold on it if we will. It is ours for the asking — and for the using. It is especially important to remember that it is given only to those who will use it.

Lives in Cell Thirty Years

London Times

Brother Walter Wilman, a religious recluse who has lived for 30 years in a bare room attached to the church of All Saints, North Street, York, was 74 years old on Saturday.

His refuge, resembling a covered pulpit, is reached by steps winding up from the churchyard. An anchoress had her cell on the site of the Middle Ages, and early in the present century the then rector, the Rev. P. J. Shaw, built the cell for someone who wished to emulate her. Through a "squint" in a corner the church interior can be seen.

Brother Wilman has now been by far the longest occupant of the present cell. They long since ceased to wonder about his life. They are touched with sympathy as they see him doing his shopping, his body becoming more bent. Yet Brother Wilman appears to be a happy man. Until recently he kept up a lively correspondence with people in many parts of the world.

He is helped when necessary without having to ask. The policeman on the night beat keeps a watchful eye on the cell. Recently when a broken pane brought the cell's temperature down to near freezing in spite of an old electric fire, called to repair the window.

Born in Bradford, Brother Wilman worked in cloth trade until 1914-18 War, when he served with the Royal Garrison Artillery in Belgium. After the war he turned to the Church, failed to gain admittance but clung to his decision and worked in Yorkshire parishes as a lay reader until he was offered the cell.

So Brother Wilman passes his life, observing the church when he does not feel well enough to attend, reading religious books, cooking simple meals. The cell is his rent-free for life and his old age pension pays for his food and electricity.

Letter To The Editor

Says Land Use Plan Would Prove Costly

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

One wonders after last Wednesday evening's public meeting if the citizens of Belleville realize the vital importance of the proposed land use plan. The plans alone have already cost the taxpayer $11,000. That alone should have aroused at least some curiosity.

If this plan should go into effect unopposed, thus unchanged, it will not only be adverse to some but costly to all ratepayers.

One example is the proposed relocation of Hillcrest. Regardless of the fact this area is regarded by some in an unfavorable light, this writer doubts if these people are going to give the city their homes and property for the "privilege' of being relocated in Belleville's version of Toronto's Regency Park.

The relocation alone is to cost one quarter of a million dollars. Does no one want to know whose dollars?

Another example is the open space or green belt policy. One area designated for future parks is the west side of Front Street from Bridge Street to Victoria Park. Will this proposed park become in the future the camping grounds for the inebriate' derelict?

Further, can Belleville afford to change a large asset in assessment value, offices, hotel, restaurant, and garages, into a burden on the taxpayer such as our present parks seem to be?

Would not the vacant land on the proposed plan not be the logical land for the city to acquire?

If a beautiful city is to attract industry would not the cost of such beautifying not act in a different way — the terrific taxes discouraging industry?

More meetings will be held in the future and it is to be hoped the ratepayers will be present to hear Alderman Barlow of the Planning Committee explain the proposed plan. Since it will affect the city for the next twenty years it is of vital importance to every citizen.

—"One Frustrated Citizen."

Venus Days Are Lengthy

Ottawa Journal

We look to Venus with a new sense of neighborliness (and to the Russians with a new sense of respect).

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says that the surface of the planet is shrouded in thick cloud which contains small quantities of oxygen and water vapor at its outer edge. Astronomers more recently believe that there may be more oxygen near the surface of the planet itself. The planets diameter is about 7,700 miles and its weight (mass, the scientists would say) is four-fifths that of the earth. These similarities to the earth suggest, astronomers believe, a probability that Venus supports some form of life.

Venus revolves around the sun once in 225 days at a distance of 67,300,000 miles It is the planet second closest to the sun. Mercury is closest (36-000,000 miles) and Earth third (93,000,000 miles). The planets cloud cover has made it difficult for astronomers to say with certainty how long a day on Venus is but 68 hours is the most popular theory.

The planet glows with a brilliant lustre because the sunlight which strikes it is twice as intense as that reaching Earth. When properly situated it is visible to the naked eye at noon. But apart from its beauty it has been a disappointing subject for astronomers. Many have failed to detect any mornings, except for shifting irregularities in the mantle of cloud.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

Such is the natural vanity of human nature that we have built a vast historical literature celebrating the greatness of man in the world's progress. But there is another way of looking at it, say, in the growth of Canada, in which it appears that it was Canada herself, her land, her resources, her assets, that not only dominated but shaped and directed the activities of the men, both the so-called leaders as well as the led communities, to whom we are in the habit of giving credit for their vision, their enterprise and their courage.

What Canada had to offer was so obvious that if one man hadn't accepted the offer, a thousand others would have. Her countless waterways, not only begging to be explored but making exploration simple! Her furs? How much vision did it require to collect furs from the Indians? Her immense timber, standing there at the water's edge? How bright had we to be to decide to chop it down and sell it? It wasn't financiers who found our mines, but lumberjacks stumbling on them and railroad builders blasting for a cut. Continental railroads? What else could we have done but build them? It was nip and tuck whether one political gang would do it or another.

We should think more of what Canada has done for us than of what we have done for Canada. We might thus fall in love with her rather than with ourselves.

Cervic Ulcers Not Serious But They Should Be Treated

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner; I want to ask about the occurrence of ulcers of the womb during pregnancy. Are they contagious? Can they hurt the baby in any way? Are they serious? Do they occur when a woman isn't pregnant? — Mrs. R. F."

I've boiled this letter down to the essentials, and the fact that this has occurred to several women you know, regardless of whether they are related by marriage, doesn't essentially matter. These are ulcers of the cervix, or the neck of the womb. Another term for such ulcers is "erosion of the cervix," a not uncommon matter.

They are not contagious.

They do not and cannot harm the baby in any way.

Yes, they occur in women who are not pregnant.

Are they serious? Not particularly. They are, usually, due to what we call a low grade infection and hence not likely to explode into any serious situation.

At the same time, these ulcers represent an irritation to the cervix which ought to be treated. These nagging, but not very explosive, infections represent a continuing trouble spot which in the course of time takes its toll of physical robustness. You might well compare them to a trivial but persistent cought (assuming that there is not serious trouble underlying the cought), or to a sinus which is irritated and ought to be cleared up. Or, to take a quite different type of thing, compare them to a corn or bunion or callus that doesn't disable you, yet steals its little bit of comfort from you each day because it is painful and irritating.

Ulcers (or erosion) of the cervix can be the cause of a vaginal discharge. There are many different causes for such discharge. It may be due to small but annoying organisms such as protozoa, or from some slow but hardy bacteria, or whatnot. In some cases, the irritation may be a sign or something virulent. But for most, the thing to keep in mind is that an irritation is present and ought to be eradicated. Sometimes the application of medication locally may do the trick. Sometimes cauterization of the irritated spot is the answer. Either way, it is not a worrisome or difficult process.

"Dear Dr. Molner: You quoted a doctor as saying that phenobarbital was a poisonous drug. I meant to reread the article but it disappeared.

"As I have quite a supply of small phenobarbital tablets on hand (for nervousness) I would like your opinion: Should I or should I not use them any longer? — Mrs. F. C."

Did I quote somebody on that? I'd forgotten doing so, but it doesn't matter. Every trained doctor knows that phenobarbital is a poison, as are a great many other drugs, if taken to excess.

Small amouts, taken occasionally, are a good sedative. The trouble is that some poeple begin taking more than their doctors prescribed, and think that they are getting away with it. Some of these same people ultimately acquire phenobarbital poisoning.

No, I don't suggest that you stop using it. However, adhere rigidly to your doctor's instructions as to how much to take, and how often, and for how long.

Teen-Ager Wins Praise

Sudbury Star

A Moose Jaw motorist's car broke down on a street in Regina. The motorist wrote to the Regina Leader-Post;

"A young, nice - looking, teen-ager came along, asked if I was having trouble and I said 'Yes, I've got a short in this motor' and he looked in and said 'Here's your trouble.' So I was then able to proceed back to Moose Jaw.

"My reason for writing this is that I find in my travels that all teen-agers are not running around with duck-tail haircuts and black leather jackets and no brains. I have found that there are many of them who are very intelligent, helpful young people . . . It is very definite that the bad ones are in the minority but unfortunately these are the ones we hear about the most."

These are words of truth that are gradually getting through to adults who brand all teen-agers as juvenile delinquents. One little incident in Regina may be just a pebble in the ocean, but multiply it by hundreds of thousands and it will be found that our teen-agers are fine young people.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEVER BE STUMPED

There is hardly a day but some one of us arrives at some cross street in our lives and wonders which way to turn.

Usually we get very welcome advice at such a time. Advice costs nothing; therefore, it becomes a cheap and convenient thing to give away.

But the main thing is not to be stumped. Keep cool. Think. Then decide — and go ahead. You may have decided wrongly — but it won't be long before you will find that out. The great thing in life is not to hesitate too long over anything.

Never be stumped!

If you seem to have run out of ideas one way, turn around and take up a new line and travel in some other direction. Success does not limit itself by direction.

When I go home to my library tonight and pick up a favorite book, I shall be sure to pick up one that was written by someone who refused to be stumped.

Perhaps it will be one by Mark Twain, or Carlyle, or Gissing.

Play with you plans. Keep looking ahead. Try to learn what the other fellow is thinking about. And whatever you do, seek to do it better than it has ever been done before. Take discouragement as a matter of course.

But — never be stumped!

Rangers whipped the Macs 9-0 and 20-1 on the series. T. Meagher scored three goals, A. Jones two, G. Hopkins, B. Hewitt, J. Blatchford and B. James one apiece.

Winners of the individual awards in the squirt division were also announced last night. pluses; trade; and the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development.

On The Congo and the UN, the prime minister said:

"We (Canada and the U.S.) are agreed on the importance of preserving the independence and the integrity of The Congo and the vital necessity of avoiding civil war in that country.

"We are agreed that in order to keep the Congo out of the cold war it is imperative to support the United Nations fully.

"Only in this way will it be possible for the Congolese, in freedom and without violence and without interference from the outside, to re-establish the international stability of their country and to provide a new cement to the structure of their political institutions so as to work out their political destiny."

The communique issued by the two leaders after the meeting said the Canada-U.S. cabinet trade and economic committee will meet at Washington March 13.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "I have returned to Ottawa reinforced in my conviction that with good will and constructive endeavor on both sides there is no problem which we cannot surmount."

PRAISES VIEW

He praised Mr. Kennedy for his "broad and far-sighted view of international affairs."

The president had revealed a ready desire to preserve the "distinctive quality" of the Canadian - United States partnership.

Opposition Leader Pearson said neighborhood is a fact of geography but that good neighborliness is a political achievement.

"I hope the prime minister's visit to Washington will strengthen and confirm that achievement."

CCF Leader Argue said Mr. Diefenbaker's Commons statement seemed rather bare of any concrete conclusions on a number of important problems, including nuclear weapons and markets for Canadian farm products and oil.

Campbellford Town Council Allowed Time to Appeal For Private Bill on Bylaw

TORONTO (CP) — Campbellford town council Monday was allowed time to appeal to the legislature seeking a private bill to make a town bylaw legal.

The bylaw, passed in July, 1959, grants a fixed assessment of $3,000 on property owned by Mayor F. M. Rutherford and leased to the Bata Shoe Company.

At a Supreme Court hearing Monday R. J. Locke of Campbellford sought to have the bylaw quashed.

Erdman Friesen, acting for Mr. Locke, called the bylaw "illegal and void" since the Campbellford electorate had not voted on it.

Mr. Horace Krever, for the council, said the bylaw was in effect only as long as Bata had the property, and that the agreement only lasted for 10 years. He said the bylaw was "aimed apparently at creating employment" in Campbellford and that if the bylaw was quashed "there may be dislocation of industry resulting in unemployment."

In referring the case to the legislature, Mr. Justice Donnelly spoke of a political feud between Mr. Rutherford and Mr. Locke and, since Bata employs between 65 and 75 men, he was "reluctant to do anything that would harm the community."

"It is unfortunate for the community that their elected representatives led them to a situation like this," said Justice Donnelly.

He said his order to quash the bylaw will be delayed to allow town council time to appeal to the legislature, with an extension clause should the appeal be delayed this session.

according to the type of agreement signed.

He said getting the right personnel to run the plan is a main difficulty now.

He also told a press conference that he plans to add a farm organization representative to the Canadian wheat board and to expand the board's advisory committee—now consisting of six of a possible 11 members—to include an Eastern farm representative.

Lack of cash income is the main farm ailment, he said. The federal government was torn in this position between providing some relief in temporary form such as Prairie acreage payments of a maximum $200 a farmer and turning that money toward export aid that would benefit producers.

Canadians Must Produce Goods People Want to Buy

- - Hees

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Trade Minister George Hees warned Canadians Monday night they cannot rid themselves of unemployment until they produce goods people want to buy.

"You can't employ the people of Canada on public works projects," he said. "There aren't enough to go around."

With representatives of 12 countries, he was attending the Trade Winds banquet, organized by St. Thomas Board of Trade to promote export sales of area firms.

After lauding the city as a "trail blazer" in the world export market drive, Mr. Hees waded into the country as a whole.

"Our job, yours and mine, is to produce the goods people will buy. We must do what the people of Europe did.

"Fifteen years ago they had 100-per-cent unemployment. Now they are on top."

WORKED AT PLAN

This was made possible, he said, because management, labor and government sat down and co-operated in working out a plan of industrial rehabilitation.

If Canadian industrialists took a lesson from Europe, Mr. Hees said, full employment would be possible in Canada — perhaps within six months.

He said Canadian producers need more drive, more selling effort, more desire to succeed, and products at costs that can compete in the world market.

Mr. Hees suggested an eight-point program of Canadian citizenship for American companies operating in Canada.

He said if Canadian industry is to grow, foreign capital will be required in increasing amounts. However, it followed that foreign countries in Canada should pursue policies that are in Canada's interests, and attuned to the Canadian way of life.

"In other words, Canada welcomes foreign subsidiaries if they conduct themselves as good Canadians should.

"I think that the economic position of these subsidiaries would be improved and the general attitude of Canadians toward foreign investment would be improved, if American companies did not regard Canada as an extension of the American market, but rather came to an understanding of Canadian interests and aspirations, and put into practice some basic principles to achieve these ends."

Mr. Hees attended the Trade Winds banquet with representatives from 11 nations in Ottawa. The banquet was held in connection with efforts by the St. Thomas Board of Trade and the city's industrial development board to attract more industry to the St. Thomas area.

GIVES A LIST

Mr. Hees listed what he termed "a few specific things that a U.S. company in Canada should do if it is to be a good Canadian citizen with the interests of Canada foremost in its operations. They were:

1. Offer to Canadians opportunities to buy equity stocks in the subsidiary (American) companies operating in Canada.
2. Encourage and train Canadian personnel to take an increasing part in the management and professional positions in subsidiary corporations.
3. Carry out more research work and undertake more new development in Canada.
4. Promote exports from Canadian subsidiaries, including components for use in parent company plants.
5. Use as many Canadian materials and component parts in Canadian operations as can be economically justified.
6. Do more processing of Canadian materials before export, where this can be done on a competitive basis.
7. Give local management greater autonomy in operating Canadian subisdiaries.
8. Encourage branch plants to participate in the life of the community.

If such things were practiced, foreign subsidiaries "would become an integral part of Canada, and the Canadian people," Mr. Hees said.

The minister said there never has been a time when increased export sales have been so necessary to the Canadian economy.

Celebrating BOY SCOUT WEEK

By CHRIS LEGGAT

Avondale Boy Scout Ladies' Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. M. Twiddy, Wright Avenue, for their meeting of February 15th, with Mrs. Joy Wonnacott presiding. Twelve members were present.

The president welcomed two new members, Mrs. A. LeFevre and Mrs. Robert Young.

Reports were given by the treasurer, social convener, group committee and sewing committee, and the president expressed her thanks to the faithful telephoning committee. As the sewing convener reported that slings were needed for First Aid practice for the Scouts, several members volunteered to assist her in this project in the form of a "Sewing Bee."

Mrs. Wonnacott gave a most informative report on the "Workshop Meeting" held on January 26th which she attended accompanied by Mrs. Elliott. As a result of this meeting the Avondale group is including in its future meetings instructions from the book, "Policy, Organization and Rules" of Cubbing and Scouting.

The first instruction, under the topic "Policy," was given by Mrs. Pugh. Mrs. Elliott reported re "Programming" and a pamphlet, which she acquired at the Work Shop meeting was discussed and plans laid out for future meetings.

Talent money for this month was collected and other members pledged theirs for following meetings.

Luncheon was served by Mrs. Twiddy, assisted by Mrs. Young and Mrs. Williston.

Thanks to Mrs. J. MacKinnon for this report.

How do I save?

I'm a working girl, so saving isn't the easiest thing in the world. But I've found how to make it easier . . . I use the "Royal's" 2-Account Plan. I like the way it keeps my saving and my spending quite separate.

I use a Personal Chequing Account to pay bills. My Savings Account is strictly for saving. I'm really getting ahead, now I've stopped dipping into savings. They're building up, earn interest too . . . it works!

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY UNITED W.A.

The regular meeting of the Holloway St. United Church Women's Association was held on the afternoon of February 15th in the church parlor, with Mrs. G. Coulter, the vice-president, in the chair.

As it was the week of the World Day of Prayer, the meeting was opened with a poem, "Prayer," followed by the singing of "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Prayer was given for the United Nations and world peace by Mrs. B. Moorman.

Committee leaders made their reports. The W.A. is invited to join with the evening group of the W.A. for the March meeting.

Mrs. G. Dobbs, Mrs. O. Denyes and their group took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Dobbs read the poem "Let Me Live in a House by the Side of the Road," and then read a new version of that poem, its theme being "Let us walk with the crowd in the road, by the side of our friends and help them carry their loads."

DEVOTIONAL

The devotional period was led by Mrs. T. F. Townsend, who gave a message on "Love"—how many great saints have been martyred for love, and saying that "much love mentioned in the Bible is often termed as unspeakable, such as the gift of God—joy unspeakable, unspeakable words. Language fails to understand these unspeakable gifts, for God's love proves to be so high, so wide, so deep and so broad, yet we are in the midst of it. Let us be thankful for God's goodness, His gospel, church, Scriptures and for His great unspeakable gifts." Prayer for love in this world of tension closed the devotional.

SKIT GIVEN

A skit entitled "Let's Get With It" was presented by Mrs. E. Hubbs, Mrs. F. Roluf, Mrs. A. M. Smale, Mrs. W. Phillips and Mrs. G. Dobbs. The setting for this skit was a meeting called to plan a W.A dinner, but their intentions were greatly upset, when conversations kept wandering back to what they thought women's place should be in church and community affairs. Finally the decision was the women must work in the kitchen all right, but they should also take their place with the men in discussions, be independent thinkers, be able to speak and express themselves, but also to know how and when to listen. "If we lose ourselves in service to God—we find ourselves. So let us examine our aims and objectives of our W.A."

One minute of silent prayer was observed in memory of three departed members, Mrs. B. McMurray, Mrs. Mary Martin and Mrs. A. Smith.

Lunch was served and a social half hour spent.

K.G. H-S Assoc. Given Safety Talk

The February meeting of the King George Home and School Association was held on the evening of February 13th with Mrs. C. Scott presiding. During the brief business meeting, Mrs. Scott read the "Ten Commandments for Parents," to the audience and stated that copies were available for those who would like one.

A beautiful rendition of "Rose Marie," was sung by Mrs. P. Downes and Mr. E. A. Hughes accompanied on the piano by Mrs. E. Burkitt in honor of St. Valentine's Day.

An interesting talk on "Safety," as taught in the Elementary Schools, was given by Sgt. Blatchford, who stressed the need for parents to continue the teaching of 'Safety' to their children at home and how important it is for the parents to obey the Safety rules.

Sgt. Blatchford was thanked by Mr. H. Leach for his informative talk.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

'Education For Children' Topic At PTA Meet

Our Lady of Fatima P.T.A. held its February meeting in the school on Thursday evening last with the president, Mr. Jack Howe, presiding.

The Rev. Father Bolger opened the meeting with prayer.

Following a short business meeting the president introduced the guest speaker, Father Bolger, who spoke briefly on "Education for the Foundation of Children." He stressed the duty of parents to see a child has training as an individual to prepare his soul for heaven, and to fit in the society of men. He stated the teachers give children moral training as well as academic training.

Mrs. Piwowarski, vice-president, thanked the speaker for his informative talk.

A panel consisting of the principal and teaching staff enabled the parents to present questions of a general nature. One of which was the possibility of having a school guard. A committee was formed with Mr. T. Schrieder, Mr. K. Murphy and Mr. Jodwa to look into the situation.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Peter Brinkman are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Beverly Ann MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward MacDonald of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Brinkman, of Zanndam, Holland.

BRINKMAN — MacDONALD

At high noon in Christ Church, Belleville, a very pretty winter wedding was recently solemnized before an altar banked with white chrysanthemums, by the Reverend Everett P. Smith, assistant rector of the church, in a double-ring ceremony, when Beverly Ann MacDonald, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward MacDonald, became the bride of Cornelius Peter Brinkman, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Brinkman, of Zanndam, Holland. The guest pews were designated by white satin bows.

Mr. John Croyden Withers, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the choir of nine boys in their rendition of "Lead Us, Heavenly Father," before the processional; "The Birds of Aristophanes' 'and during the signing of the register, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and "Psalm 67."

Given in marriage by her father, the radiantly lovely bride wore a floor-length bridal gown of pure white silk organza, fashioned with molded bodice having a deep rounded neckline and short sleeves, with elbow-length lace and organza mitts pointed over the hands ,accented by tiny seed pearls and crystals, which also enhanced the bodice of the gown. The full skirt cascaded into a chapel train. She wore a crown type headdress encrusted with seed pearls and crystal beads, with scalloped, pearl accented shoulder-length veil of silk tulle illusion, and carried a white Bible crested with deep red Sweetheart roses and knotted rosebud streamers.

Mrs. Sandra Stephens, of Belleville, was matron of honor; Miss Bynda MacDonald of Belleville, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and little Miss Suzanne MacDonald, also a sister of the bride, was flower girl. The senior attendants were dressed alike in deep red velvet gowns in street length with matching hats, mitts and shoes, while the little flower girl, also in red velvet, wore white gloves and shoes. All carried nosegays of white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Stewart Stanley, Trenton, attended the bridegroom, and Mrs. James MacDonald of Oakville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Dean Pond of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at Club Canara, with music provided by Mrs. E. Warham, as pianist.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with the traditional white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a cluster of white wedding bells mingled with pink roses and lily-of-the-valley ,and misted about the base with white silk tulle. The tall white candles and bouquets of the bridal attendants lent a lovely nuptial accent.

The bride's mother received the guests ,attired in brown lace over beige, in sheath style with beige satin cummerbund, beige flowered hat, matching gloves and corsage of Talisman roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, by motor, the bride chose a blue knitted suit, beige flower hat matching gloves, and corsage of deep red Happiness roses.

Guests attended from Oakville; Toronto; Newcastle; Strathroy; Trenton; Bancroft, and Belleville.

The bride, prior to her marriage, was entertained at a pantry shower with Mrs. Brenda Branscombe as hostess; at a miscellaneous shower with Mrs. Sandra Stephens as hostess; at another miscellaneous shower with Mrs. Margaret Archer as hostess . and Mrs. Kathryn Rushell, as co-hostess; and at a presentation, given by her co-workers at the Northern Electric, of a lovely wool blanket and a cheque from the Northern Electric Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Brinkman are residing at 34 Charlotte Street, Belleville.

Double Standard Flourishing Loaded in Woman's Favor

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Men are always saying it's a woman's world. Some even sound as if they might believe it.

The truth is, says Emanuel Demby, president of Motivation Research Associates, that the United States does have a double standard flourishing today that's loaded in favor of women.

The U.S. culture, he explains, permits women fuller freedom in expressing their own images through the way they dress and behave socially. Men are hemmed in by certain standards and conformity created by films, television, radio, magazines and contemporary literature.

Demby uncovered the double standard during research for an over-all psychological and sociological exploration of anxiety and tensions among men. A part of the study, sponsored by a manufacturer of safe-in-suds sports shirts, has just been completed.

An illustration of the double standard lies in the sexes psychology of shopping, Demby points out. "Men will buy because they need something; women because they want to feel like something."

It works like this:

The weather turns hot and a man needs a sports shirt. So he buys one—or about 80 per cent of the time, Demby found, he has his wife do it.

WOMEN ANTICIPATE

But a woman shops ahead for herself, in anticipation. She buys with the view in mind of what kind of person she will look like at a certain place—a demure matron at an afternoon function, a seductive siren at an evening party.

Her image is fragmented—she can be one thing today and another tomorrow—and she can pull it together any time she wants to.

But a man's image is a unit. He feels he's subject to criticism if he doesn't dress or act the way he thinks he's expected to, according to his position. Subconsciously, he believes he's expected not to relax the standards set for his type of work.

"A wife is aware of his unconscious self-concept, and buys for the man she married, not for the vice - president who comes home to her at night. She rehumanizes him," says Demby, gamely adding that men don't know nearly so much about women.

American men trust their wives' judgment in picking the correct image for them, and "we find women most often right," agrees Demby.

PACKAGING COST

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—"From the cradle to the grave you are under the influence of packaging," Frank Stephenson, a consultant to the packaging industry, told Guelph Rotarians. "The reasons for packaging are to protect the goods and attract the shoppers. But manufacturers today have a tendency to over-package goods, to the extent that the cost of packaging may equal, and often exceed, the value of the product."

HOW MUCH IS PEACE OF MIND WORTH?

Children stray. Or a husband is late getting home. Or you are worried about someone who is ill. So often a simple telephone call—from you or to you—quickly sets fears at rest. Any time of day or night the telephone can suddenly become one of the most important things in your life!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Frances T. — I want to move back to town so Vernon can be home early each day.

Vernon T. — I think I'm home the right amount. I enjoy the suburbs.

Frances T. — I love my husband and I'm an old-fashioned believer is as much togetherness as possible. But living way out here, with his business in the heart of the city, cuts at least three hours a day off the time Vernon can spend with me and the children. So I'm eager to move to the city.

We have a daughter, 10, and a son 8, and we never al sit down to a meal together, except Sundays. Vernon leaves before they get up, and by the time he returns they're engrossed in TV or homework. They can never pin him down for a relaxed hour together.

I believe we'd all be better off in town. I grew up in a big city and most of my friends are still there. Besides, the children would have the advantages of all those fine museums, libraries and galleries; and Vernon could have more family life.

Vernon T. — I like it this way. One reason Frances and the kids love me so much, as she claims, is that they don't see me when I'm frothing at the mouth about my business. There's such a thing as too where people see the cranky side much togetherness when people see the cranky side of each other more than is necessary.

Besides, I like commuting. Usually I get a nice quiet hour to read my paper on the trains, or I have an interesting chat with a fellow commuter. I enjoy my friends in the neighborhood, and our home is more spacious and comfortable than a city apartment would be.

Also, Frances is mistaken if she thinks I'd be home more in town — quite the contrary. It would be a terrible temptation to just keep working at the office, since there's no train to catch, just the subway. And I know I'd stop in "to catch up" over the weekend, too.

The Council — It's hard to extract the real motives here, but it's evident that Frances wants more and more of something which Vernon wants less and less of, namely, family-togetherness. But, as Vernon hints after she gets what she wants she won't want it! He knows he's not the "togetherness type."

Although Frances makes a good case for life in the metropolis, we agree that this particular family is better off, for the present, dominated by Vernon's A. M. dash for the 7:19. While the children can't have many joint projects with their father during the week, there's still Sunday. And the b[illegible]ef changes may be no less than those in homes where Dad's around all day. If Vernon makes it a point to have some communion with his youngsters each day, a good relationship can be achieved.

But the real issue here, we feel, is not country vs. city life, but Frances vs. Vernon on how much of each other's company the other should have. It's true that the suburbs keep mates apart. A French sociologist blames suburban life for divorce, saying mates are deprived of each other's company because of the wife's community activities and the husband's commuting. However, a man like Vernon who dreads over-domestication, wouldn't be around the house much in the city, either.

No, Vernon is pleading the case for sympathetic and judicious "apartness," and he has something there. We commend to Frances's attention the ditto of Prof. Charles Frankel of Columbia University: "The real secret of family life is a little separateness. Few families have ever got along if their members did not occasionally have a chance to be alone."

Observe World Day Of Prayer

FRANKFORD—World Day of Prayer was held on the first Friday of Lent, February 17, in Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle.

Mrs. G. Curry welcomed the gathering.

The theme was "Forward Through the Ages in Unbroken Line." The call to worship was given by Mrs. G. Curry with the congregation in prayer, in unison. The hymn, "Forward Through the Ages," was sung.

"We Come in Joyful Remembrance of God's Leading Over the Years," with the leader, Mrs. S. Bartman in charge of Immanuel Church, and Miss M. Forbes, and Mrs. D. Brown leading in prayer. The hymn "O God Our Help In Ages Past" was sung.

"We Come In Confession and Penitence" was given by leader, Mrs. G. McLay, of Frankford United Church in charge. The hymn, "Breathe On Be, Breath of God," was sung.

"We Come In Assurance and Dedication," with the leader, Mrs. Judd Sine, of Frankford Free Methodist Church in charge.

"Intercession" was by leader, Mrs. C. Cooney, of Trinity Anglican Church and Mrs. O. Farrar of the Anglican Church led in prayer. Mrs. C. Lohnes of the Church of the Nazarene, Mrs. C. Judd of the United Church, Mrs. G. Orr of Immanuel Church and Mrs. G. Pierce and Mrs. F. Miller of Frankford Full Gospel Church, led in prayer.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Laurie Price, of Calvary Temple, Belleville, was the special speaker and brought the message from St. Matthew 16:13 who spoke on "The church established by Christ and our duty, consecration and faithfulness be wholehearted to Him."

Mrs. G. Curry thanked Mrs. Price for her message of the afternoon.

Usherettes Mrs. A. Watson and Mrs. M. Patrick received the offering, followed by prayer. The hymn, "The Day Thou Gavest, Lord Is Ended," was sung, followed by the benediction.

Women's Activities

HALLOWAY U.C.W.

HALLOWAY — The February meeting of the Halloway United Church Women was held on February 15th, at the home of Mrs. Ronald Kelly, with a fair attendance.

Mrs. Freddie Wellman opened the meeting with the theme hymn, "Let the Beauty of Jesus Be Seen In Me," followed by prayer. Mrs. E. Tufts led in the worship service, using the theme "Jesus Christ, the Light of the World In the Church's Unity." The hymns used included "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "What A Friend We Have In Jesus." The Scripture was chosen from Romans 12:4-21 and was read by Mrs. B. McMullen. "Be ye kindly affectionate one to another," the Apostle tells the church members of Rome; an up-to-date recipe for the successful working of any society. The offering was taken and dedicated and prayer closed this portion of the meeting.

BUSINESS PERIOD

In the business, the president, Mrs. Freddie Wellman, drew attention to the W.A. annual meeting to be held this coming Monday evening and Tuesday in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. Mrs. P. Dixon, leader of citizenship, gave a fine paper on social welfare and Mrs. Tufts gave a reading on the same topic. Mrs. Dixon spoke of six ideas that could change the world, namely: (1) a realization that refugees are people; (2) poverty, hunger and diseases are causes of war; (3) nations can agree if there is trust; (4) fear is the real enemy; (5) we are now members of a world community and (6) welfare of each depends on welfare of all. She summed it up in these words: "Love and persuasion have more influence than weapons and war."

A quiz followed on trees, plants and flowers mentioned in the Bible. Mrs. Ed Emerson gave a reading, "Life Needs Us All," and Mrs. Wellman read, "Does It Pay To Visit."

The meeting closed with the hymn prayer, "God Be In My Head and In My Understanding."

Mrs. Kelly, assisted by Mrs. K. Denyes, served refreshments.

Measuring Heads Of Unborn Babies Now Possible

LONDON, England — A device which enables doctors to measure, with great accuracy, the heads of unborn babies has been developed by scientists working with the Western Regional Hospital Board in Scotland. More than 100 assessments before birth have been made and comparisons taken after birth show estimates accurate to two millimetres.

The new instrument, an ultrasonic cephalometer, is a modification of a commercial flaw detector.

Besides assessing disproportion, the method has been used to confirm the diagnosis of abnormalties and to check the presentation of the child.

The technique can also be applied in other realms of medicine; for example, in the investigation of abdominal masses, assessing brain displacements, visualizing soft tissue structures and differentiating tumors.

QUESTION BOX

The following questions obviously stem from the same problem. Let's take a look at it from both sides!

Question — I am sixteen and attend high school. Unfortunately, I am very tall — five feet eleven, to be exact. I am terribly conscious of my height, although there are other girls in my class who are just as tall. I wear the lowest heels I can find, even to dancing parties. For some reason, it seems that the shortest boys present are always the ones to ask me to dance and I feel like a fool peering over the tops of their heads! Can you offer any suggestion as to how I can politely get out of dancing with boys who are shorter than I am? — Miss L. P. W., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — You should be proud of your height. Use it as an asset, not something to hold you back! I can sympathize with you because I am almost as tall as you are, But I learned (the hard way) to conquer being shy about it. I used to slump over, sticking my head out like a turtle, hoping to cut my height. My father broke me of this, many years ago, by slapping me hard, between the shoulder blades, every time he caught me at it.

Today, I wear medium-high heels for dress-up (flats never look well with a party gown) and hold my head high. If you do the same, you will gain confidence and poise. As for the short young man who asks you to dance, stop worrying about it! He wouldn't ask you if he didn't want to, and obviously your height doesn't bother him at all! So why let it upset you?

Question — I am a senior in high school. Unfortunately, I am quite short — only five feet seven. Among my classmates are several girls who are inches taller than I am. Every time we have a dance at school, I ask them to dance and they always seem to hesitate. Is it because they are embarrassed about dancing with a man shorter than they are? I wouldn't ask for a dance if I didn't want to, and I only do because I like them. Naturally, I wish I was taller, but there isn't anything I can do about it but accept it! Should I stop being attentive to these girls an djust pay attention to those who are shorter than I? — Mr. R. B., New York, N.Y.

Answer: You and the young lady from Chicago should get together! You, more than she, seem to realize that height has nothing to do with our social contacts. If you like a person, you like them, whether they be short, tall, fat, or lean! Being self-conscious about your personal appearance is definitely the wrong approach. We can only make the best of what we were born with. Lamenting that we are too tall, or too short, can only result in our being miserable and unpoised. By all means, continue to ask the taller girls to dance with you and stop worrying about it!

Tricks With Butter

Make pancakes your favorite way — a little butter in the recipe makes them extra light and tender. For a really delicious flavor surprise add one of these to the batter. About half a cup of thick applesauce; a sprinkling of finely-chopped pecans; a ripe banana sliced thin. Serve the pancakes steaming hot with a generous pat of butter on top, and have a pitcher of syrup nearby.

TO MEASURE

It's easy enough to measure the soft butter for recipes in a measuring cup. But if you're having trouble measuring the chilled butter you need for such things as pastry crusts and tea biscuits try cold water and an application of simple grade school addition. Say a recipe calls for 1-4 cup chilled butter, fill the cup 3-4 full of cold water, then add pieces of chilled butter until water reaches the 1 cup mark.

TASTY SAUCE

Whitefish, haddock, halibut, salmon — there's a variety of salt water and fresh water fish available for use during Lent. You may broil it, bake it, fry it in fillets or steaks. You'll find that the simple addition of butter sauce makes fish so much tastier and more appealing. Serve the melted butter in a warm container — or add a few drops of lemon juice. And add finely chopped parsley if you want to add color, too!

GOLDEN PASTRY

For the frozen or baked pies you buy, brush the top with soft butter before warming in the oven — the crust will be golden and short to taste! For your homemade pies, try brushing butter on the underside of the pastry for the top crust before covering and baking. You'll be surprised at the extra shortness and appetizing color of the top crust. So often a little touch of fresh butter makes a big difference in cooking.

Desserts You Will Remember From Your Childhood

By Mary Moore

Because we had a jarful of hard sauce left over from our second Christmas dinner in January, we decided to make Apple Tapioca. I changed the old regular routine to Baked Apple Tapioca because I had the oven on baking a meat loaf. It was so popular with adults and children — partly because of the huge dollops of hard sauce they added — that I decided it rated column space.

I am including a recipe for simple blanc mange too, which we served topped with fresh frozen raspberries or you could use other fruits.

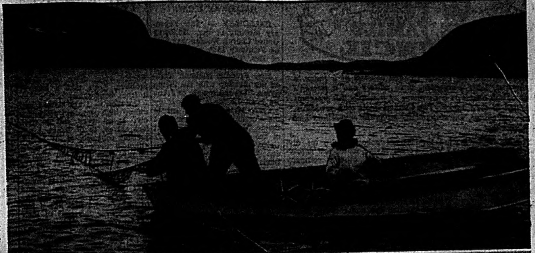
Ilkalupik: King of the Arctic

In photo at right, Eskimos stretch nylon gill net across the mouth of a small stream near Port Burwell on Ungava Bay. Catch is loaded aboard motor boats and sped to Port Burwell fishery where, last August, 18,600 pounds of choice-flavoured char filled the freezers to capacity. Here it is cleaned, flash-frozen, and loaded aboard refrigerated ships for transport to southern markets. Biological studies ascertain the quantity of char that may be taken without depleting fishing grounds.



Cleaning char is done with meticulous care to assure fish reach market in top condition. At Port Burwell Eskimo child gets on-the-spot view of the operation.

A fisherman's dream is this rack of Arctic char beauties! Increasing numbers of sportsmen are being attracted northwards to Eskimo-operated tourist lodges near Frobisher Bay and at Camp Dorset by the spunky, fighting char.

Arctic char from Canada's north is adding to the taste thrills of many southern gourmets who specialize in epicurean delights. Fashionable clubs and restaurants in New York, Chicago, Boston, Detroit and major Canadian cities offer the delicate-tasting char to their discriminating clientele. In the past couple of years, three Arctic fisheries have been established. The fishing, freezing and shipping of char to southern markets has given a small group of Eskimos a new source of income in a land where the traditional means of making a living is rapidly changing through contact with the civilization of the white man. For a limited number of Canada's 12,000 Eskimos this added income, which reduces their dependence on the vagaries of a fluctuating food supply, is now a reality. In the frigid waters of the Arctic Lakes char reproduce at a comparatively slow rate so the fish are never likely to be in abundant supply. Eskimos call the char "Ilkalupik", which means special fish, and, at $1.25 a pound, the succulent char seems slated to hold its lofty position for some time to come. First overseas shipment of char went to Paris for a banquet of the French Nature Protection Society—a body that takes pride in serving its members something new, if possible exotic, in the way of foods. To those in the know, Arctic char is just that.

Henry Anatuk takes the order of a young Eskimo mother at co-op store at Port Burwell. Here, skins, carvings and work done at the summer fishing camps, are exchanged for pipes, tobacco, sugar, tea and other necessities.

On Labrador coast, Eskimo fishermen unload char nets from their canoe. Everyone works hard during brief char-fishing season—mid August to end of September. Rifle ensures a daily diet of fresh meat while at the fishing grounds.

Watching Solunar Tables Work

We should be used to it by now but somehow we always find it interesting to see how the creatures of the wild respond to the promptings of a solunar period. It doesn't make any difference what sort of wild creatures you are watching. Birds, animals, fish, reptiles, even flowers and plants — all of them show the reaction in keeping with species.

One of the things I like to do in the outdoors is to sit beside a quiet pool in a big trout stream or on the shaded bank of a placid lake and watch a major Solunar period "come in." For some time prior to the scheduled activity period, the water will be glassy calm. Then, with the arrival of the period the surface will be broken by a dimple here, a rise there and then heavy splash after heavy splash as the larger game fish go on the feed.

Up in our northern latitudes this time of year those glassy surfaces now are frozen over. However, we can watch the solunar tables at work just as easily and, certainly, more comfortably, from our living room. Mrs. Knight operates a feeding shelf each winter. What that shelf costs me in wild bird food, sunflower seeds, and cracked corn I hesitate to think, but she likes to see the birds, so we have it, cost or no.

DEPENDABLE CUSTOMERS

Of course, our most dependable customers are the English sparrows. We have a standing attendance each year of not less than 25 of those little freeloaders and they spend their days in the hedge beside the feeding shelf, stuffing themselves periodically with nice, expensive bird food. All is not lost, however. Actually, these little puff-balls act as decoys of a sort to indicate to the other birds — migrants, mainly — where to find a free hand - out.

As I say, these sparrows spend much of their time stuffing themselves. However, between solunar periods they spend a great deal of time sitting in the hedge, digesting, no doubt. But with the arrival of a solunar period no hedge-sitting takes place. All of them are hard at work, putting on the feed bag.

Hardly does the period start but that they are joined by a good many of our winter residents — chickadees, juncos, blue jays and cardinals. Under the feeding shelf, on the ground, we scatter a liberal supply of cracked corn on which four ringneck pheasants dine sumptuously. By and large, the feeding shelf does an excellent business throughout the winter.

But every now and then the weather vane swings around into the East. Then business at the feeding shelf falls off seriously. An East wind is the indication of an approaching storm. The birds, somehow, know about this even before we do. The number of sparrows diminishes, only a few of the diehards still hanging around. A solunar period brings few, if any, new customers. Evidently just about all of the birds settle down in sheltered places and there they stay until the storm has passed.

As you know, the advent of a storm is accompanied by a drop in the glass. The creatures of the outdoors seem to have a built-in barometer that is more sensitive than anything man can make. Thus, when nature sends its warning they heed the message. Before our last snow storm the ringneck pheasants failed to show up for two consecutive days. Solunar Period or no, these and the cardinals, the blue jays, etc., were not in evidence. As soon as the storm had passed and we had a chance to shovel snow away from the shelf and put out some food, all of our birds were back again in full force.

Earlier I spoke of flowers responding to solunar periods. They do, as do plants, shrubs and trees. Consider the following, for example. A friend of mine, a professional scientist, had his laboratory a few miles from Boston, Mass. Beside the building grew a large white birch tree. Being curious about the electrical set-up in trees in general, he sank two terminals in the trucnk of this tree, one on each side, and ran the wires from these to a super-sensitive ammeter in his office.

In this way he could keep track of the electric potential of the tree from time to time. Not only did this potential fluctuate in rhythm with the barometer; also, it reflected the influence of the solunar periods.

One day his secretary, whose job it was to take daily readings, came to him and said that the ammeter was broken. Investigation showed that the needle had risen so that it was clear past the top recording on the scale. Two days later a hurricane struck the New England states leaving death and devastation in its wake. When it had passed and things had returned to normal, the needle on the ammeter returned to its usual position. The tree had obviously been preparing itself, as best it could to weather the storm.

Every now and then I receive letters from people who are not satisfied with the solunar tables. That, I suppose, is to be expected. Just the same when I receive such a letter, mentally I put down the writer, as one who knows little about the outdoors. There is too much evidence for any good outdoorsman to lose faith in the solunar tables. Try it yourself this year. Keep track of the daily solunar periods. You'll see what I mean.

IN WORLD SPOTLIGHT — The seizure by a band of rebels of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria focused world attention on the authoritarian regime in Portugal of Antonio de Oliverira Salazar, 71, (left), prime minister since 1932. The Santa Maria Incident Gave Salazar More Support But Galvao Opened Eyes

The Canadian Press sent a staff man to Portugal to observe popular feeling there after the Santa Maria incident. In this story he reports on the undercurrent of anxiety in the little Atlantic country.

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LISBON (CP) — The first effect in Portugal of the Santa Maria incident was to rally popular support behind the authoritarian regime of Prime Minister Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

But in spite of this, Capt. Henrique Galvao's seizure of the cruise ship has achieved at least one objective. He succeeded in turning the eyes of the world on the suppression of political and other elementary freedoms in the tiny Atlantic country and its colonies.

"We have proved," said Galvao in Brazil after he was forced to give up the Santa Maria, "that the dictator, Salazar, is not invulnerable. We beat him and we ridiculed him before the entire free world."

Both Galvao and Gen. Humberto Delgado, long an enemy of the world's most durable dictator, said they were confident that eventually there would be a revolution in Portugal.

FEAR GROWS

And some Portuguese are beginning to fear they may be right. They are wondering what will happen when the old man, approaching 72, is gone. They draw little comfort from the prospects.

But they have concluded, too, that Galvao and Delgado are not the men they will support. The official explanation that Galvao is responsible for piracy and murder appears to be accepted by the Portuguese generally.

Salazar has given no indication how he will deal with the problem of passing power to others. And many Portuguese remember that before the 1926 revolution governments lasted an average of four months. They talk of assassinations, revolts, coups and violence, which toppled governments and shook confidence in money values.

"The country was in deplorable condition," says Dr. Marcello Caetano, once Salazar's deputy and now rector of Lisbon University. "The National Union we created guided its reconstruction."

BENEVOLENT DICTATOR

In 1928 Salazar was coaxed away from his post at Coimbra University to become finance minister. This publicity-hating, studious and unambitious man used old-fashioned methods of economies and accountancy to solve the long-standing financial muddle in a remarkably short time.

He soon emerged as the dominant figure in Portugal. He gave the majority of people what they wanted — stability, peace and the knowledge that a benevolent, austere figure was giving all his energies to public service.

Salazar ruled with an iron hand, relying heavily on the Roman Catholic church, the army, secret police and a small group of trusted politicians.

Fear of reverting to the turbulent past was enough to make people overlook the stagnating economy and political arrests of thousands. Social and economic changes elsewhere in the world made little impression here.

Portugal remains a country of monopolies where a small band of wealthy men control almost every important financial undertaking and the overseas territories with full blessing of the regime.

CRITICISM INCREASES

At the bottom of the social scale is the huge mass of peasants and workers earning a dollar or two in a 10-hour day.

In between is the slowly growing middle class of teachers, lawyers, doctors, journalists and tradesmen. This appears to be the group feared most by the government. From this class and from the new generation comes increasing criticism of Salazar's regime.

The young and some of the priests who guide tham are indignant about social injustices they see. They are restless and anxious for a change. They blame the prime minister for failing to deal with poverty, poor housing and pressing social problems.

"Salazar and his men are old," a post-graduate student said. "All around us the world is moving ahead and we are still staying in the same place. I think only a revolution will bring the changes and improvement we need."

A tradesman in his 50s who remembers the pre-Salazar days admitted he was frightened by the possibility of a violent change but he too felt it was time to give younger men with fresh ideas a chance.

DEMAND CHANGE

Open opposition from the moderates came early in February. A group of 39 sent an open letter to the president stressing the need for a return to more democratic government.

Three of them were later received by the president. They demanded a return of "fundamental liberties which the constitution promises," saying the Santa Maria incident was "the beginning of a political revolt on the national territory by Portuguese."

The heavily-shackled press printed in full the text of the communique issued following the meeting. Publication was welcomed, and people wondered if, at last, the old man had started to mellow.

Their speculation was shortlived. Next day a heavy barrage of press criticism was fired at the opposition. The government clearly was trying to discredit its opponents by saying their activities were dividing the people in a time of crisis when national unity was needed.

Perhaps the most cohesive and best-organized opposition comes from the outlawed Communist party. No one seems to know a great deal about its activities but it has cadres who are well-enough concealed to print and distribute leaflets and other propaganda under the noses of the plain-clothes secret police.

MORE ARRESTED

The policy of the regime has not changed. If anything, it has stiffened. There has been a growing number of reports of people being quietly arrested or disappearing mysteriously.

Walking along the picturesque, cobbled streets of Lisbon in the days following the Santa Maria coup de theatre and the brief but violent rioting in the African colony of Angola, one would think that Portugal slumbers on as a haven for tourists and exiled royalty.

But there was an undercurrent of anxiety and a feeling that the drama on the Spanish Main could eventually bring about achievement of the goal set by Delgado, a 1958 presidential candidate now living in exile in Brazil.

After leaving the asylum of the Brazilian embassy in 1959, he went to London where he said he wanted to create an international public opinion opposed to Salazar's regime.

"I want to help create a climate so hot that the army will act."

Peppery Premier Smallwood Wins His Financial Fight On Federal Grants Issue

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Newfoundland's peppery Premier Smallwood seems to have won his financial fight—though not his constitutional argument—on the issue of special federal grants to his island province.

The result has been a thaw in the cold war of words between St. John's—Liberal—and Ottawa—Progressive Conservative. The premier has even thrown a verbal bouquet or two to the Diefenbaker government.

The truce developed with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal last October that an $8,000,000 annual grant to Newfoundland be continued for five years beyond 1962.

This was the grant which Mr. Diefenbaker, early in 1959, said would be guaranteed only until 1962 in "final and irrevocable settlement" of the controversial Term 29 of Newfoundland's confederation agreement. At the time Premier Smallwood cried "betrayal" and said Ottawa was obligated to continue the grants in perpetuity.

MAY WIN ARGUMENT

Now, observers here see the possibility that Mr. Smallwood will win his argument in fact, if not in law.

The reason is a political one. The longer the $8,000,000 is paid, the more it will become an entrenched precedent. It is conceded in official circles that five years from 1962 it would be harder than ever for the federal government to reduce the amount, if it wanted to.

What's more, Ottawa appears to have left the door open in future for Newfoundland to seek an upward revision of the payment if circumstances warrant.

Thus when the premiers assemble here Thursday for another round of Dominion-Provincial tax talks, it's expected "Term 29" will no longer be a war cry.

In the Newfoundland legislature Feb. 1, Premier Smallwood pictured the federal government as retreating, bruised and battered, from the fray.

The five-year extension of the grant, he said, was the result of the 1959 provincial election, fought on the Term 29 issue, which "wrecked the Tory party in Newfoundland."

"Newfoundland is the last government in Canada that the Tory government in Ottawa wants to have any more rows with."

Next day, the premier said the federal government's special adjustment grants to the Atlantic provinces represented "the greatest thing ever done in Canada by any Canadian government."

"Now, that's generous praise from me," he added.

PREFERRED TO GRANTS

He was referring to the $25,000,000 annual grants, begun in 1958, by which Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick receive $7,500,000 each and Prince Edward Island gets $2,500,000.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in his tax proposals last October, stipulated a five-year continuation not only of the $8,000,000 grant to Newfoundland but also the special Atlantic provinces adjustment grants.

In any formula on dividing federal equalization payments to less-wealthy provinces, the prime minister said, each of the Atlantic provinces must get at least as much as it now receives from equalization payments, adjustment grants and the special grant to Newfoundland.

When this proposal was made, the usually voluble Premier Smallwood refused to make any public comment. The apparent thaw in his outward attitude to the federal government didn't appear until later.

The present atmosphere is a far cry from the early days of the Term 29 battle when the premier decreed three days of official "mourning" in Newfoundland and draped provincial buildings in black.

STILL SOME FRICTION

Some points of friction between the two governments remain.

Newfoundland still has two breach-of-contract lawsuits against Ottawa pending in the courts. One, in the Exchequer Court here, is over the federal government's refusal to send RCMP reinforcements to Newfoundland during the bitter loggers strike in 1959. The other, in the Newfoundland Supreme Court, concerns a federal-provincial housing development in St. John's.

Moreover, neither side has budged from its legal position on Term 29—a key part of the terms of union under which Newfoundland joined Canada in 1949.

That term provided for a royal commission to recommend eight years later what extra financial aid Newfoundland might require to continue public services at the standard reached at that time without heavier taxation than that obtaining in the other Atlantic provinces.

A royal commission headed by Chief Justice J. B. McNair of New Brunswick recommended annual payments mounting to $8,000,000 in 1961-62 "and thereafter."

WOULD MAKE REVIEW

When Mr. Diefenbaker, in March, 1959, announced a cut-off of the payments March 31, 1962, he said the province's situation would be reviewed in the general Dominion-Provincial negotiations on an over-all tax agreement to take effect then. The royal commission's use of the word "thereafter" was "rather nebulous," he said.

Mr. Smallwood and the federal Liberal party contended that the federal government had no constitutional right to make its own decision on the handling of the special grants. The review proposed by the Progressive Conservative government, they said, ignored Newfoundland's constitutional guarantee under Term 29.

Three Veteran Social Creditors Now in Running

EDMONTON (CP)—Three veteran Social Crediters have declared themselves candidates for the vacant post of national leader of the party, it was learned Sunday.

They are Robert N. Thompson of Red Deer, president of the Social Credit Association of Canada; George Hahn of New Westminster and Real Caouette of Rouyn, Que., president of the Quebec Provincial Social Credit Association. Both Mr. Hahn and Mr. Caouette are former members of Parliament.

The three are the first to let their names stand since the party announced last year it would hold a national convention in Ottawa in July to pick a successor to retired national leader Solon E. Low.

There has been much speculation about the possibility of Premier Manning of Alberta or Premier Bennett of British Columbia taking over the national leadership. Both have said they do not wish to become a candidate or enter the federal political field.

But the door is still open.

Education Minister A. O. Aalborg of Alberta, chairman of the party's national leadership nominating committee, said in an interview that the committee "is unanimous in the hope that one or both premiers can be persuaded to reconsider" before the leadership convention July 4th to 7th.

MAY BE OTHERS

Mr. Aalborg said other names "may come forward."

Mr. Low, 61, retired two years ago after holding the leadership for 16 years.

He lost his seat in the House of Commons in the 1958 general election that saw the Social Credit party lose all its 19 federal seats. He has stepped out of politics and now is a family court judge for Lethbridge.

Mr. Thompson was elected association president last year at a convention in Ottawa when the party re-organized for a new drive for federal power. He has been a Social Credit member since 1934. He has pent 15 years in Africa, seven of them on loan to the Ethiopian government as an education adviser.

Mr. Caouette, an auto dealer, won a byelection in 1946 and sat as Social Credit representative for Pontiac for three years.

Mr. Hahn, a native of Killaly, Sask., taught school in Alberta for 13 years. He was elected Social Credit member of the Commons for New Westminster in the 1953 general election.

Information on Farm Ponds And Their Use Now Available

AYLMER WEST — Winter permits farmers of southern Ontario time to plan farm improvements and the Department of Lands and Forests has received many inquiries in the past few weeks concerning the building of farm ponds and their management for fish and wildlife.

The Department's interest in farm ponds is threefold, officials say, and point out: "New ponds can become valuable in providing angling if they are built to provide suitable conditions for the species of fish desired.

"Wetlands are necessary for practically every species of wildlife. Impoundments can be built to encourage various species of game and provide suitable habitant for game and non-game animals.

DAMS WASHED OUT

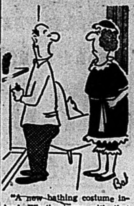
"Also, a great number of dams built in the past ten years have washed out. Because the building of dams may have an effect on the landowners up and down stream from the impoundment, all dams must be approved by the Department to prevent detrimental effects on other landowners or on fish populations. Assistance in planning a dam may often be obtained by consulting the Conservation Authority or the local agricultural representative. Assistance in planning the size, shape, depth of the pond may be obtained from the local Lands and Forests conservation officer.

"Ponds which have been specifically built for one kind of game fish have proven more successful than those built without previous consideration of the habitat needs of fish or wildlife. Many landowners have built ponds for water storage and later found them not easily managed for trout or bass.

"During the past five years we have learned much about speckled trout in ponds. We have found that the quicker stocked trout are harvested, the better. We have found very few ponds in which trout reproduce and very few trout over three years of age in ponds which have been stocked.

"The same principles which apply to game seem to apply to most species of fish. The greater the harvest in initial years after the fish or game species reaches a satisfactory size, the greater is the return in both numbers and total poundage".

"Jest a Second"



"A new bathing costume indeed. What's wrong with that one?"

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight at the Club Canara, say about eight o'clock, a gavel will rap sharply on a table and the Belleville Fish and Game Club will be away to what is expected a fine 1961 season.

If it isn't it won't be the fault of the new executive. The club is headed by Gordon Magee who succeeds former president Bruce Kerr, who did an excellent job during his tenure of office. Vice-president Jack Layton and the old reliables treasurer Fred Clarke and secretary Ken Yorke round out the governing body.

The club which "busted the seams" out of former meeting places, now threatens to stretch the walls of the Club Canara lower hall. It has mushroomed from a small membership within the last few years to one that now boosts well over 300 hunters and anglers, not forgetting not a few of the distaff side.

It is a live ,enthusiastic organization. Its meetings are well attended, and many themes pertaining to hunting and fishing are discussed. A highly successful 1960 season was climaxed with the annual meeting and dinner which attracted some 275 members and their ladies.

The club will "kick off" its new season with something of a serious nature. It will discuss the edict of the Department of Lands and Forests which restricts the daily limit of lake trout to three from five, in this part of Ontario.

Queries to the department following the announcement of the reduction, brought the reply that commercial fishing and other forms of obtaining fish had resulted in a sharp decline of the lake trout population. Reduction of the daily limit, the club was told, would help rectify this situation, or words to that effect.

Be that as it may. The Belleville club was not satisfied with this answer, and feels that the situation in this particular district does not warrant the reduction.

As was noted the matter will be thoroughly discussed at tonight's meeting—and in all likelihood some action may be taken.

And if the club is project-minded it could take a tip from the Kingston District Rod and Gun Club. This club made good use of a lesson learned when construction workers unwittingly built a fine spawning ground for fish at Loughborough Lake bridge in 1956.

During a county works program at the bridge freshly-quarried rock and gravel was dumped into the lake along a shoulder of the road near the bridge. Later it was learned that the stones and gravel had been discovered by lake trout and the shore used for spawning grounds.

But there were problems. People with minds on a fresh trout dinner began removing the spawning fish until the limbs of the law stepped in and put a stop to it.

But the idea of creating other artificial spawning grounds proved attractive to the club, and it decided to carry out such a program as part of its conservation activities.

A short time ago club members with conservation officer Bruce Paige of the Lands and Forests Department accompanying them, went to the lake and tried to establish a similar spawning ground at Salmon Point.

Truckloads of rock and gravel were delivered and spread on the ice in a pattern about a foot deep, 160 feet long and 18 feet wide. When the ice melts, the material will go to the bottom and, it is hoped, provide the fish with an increased spawning area.

The club plans to keep the area under close supervision for the next year to determine the success of the undertaking.

I do not know if the Belleville club has any projects in mind, but I believe it is open to suggestion.

The Kingston project is a good one and it is hoped it will make the results widely known for their efforts are bound to be observed with keen interest by all other fish and game clubs.

Two much-sought forty-minute films taken by Doug Hook of the Hook Camps on Separation Lake in the English River section of Kenora will be shown at tonight's meeting. They have been shown across the United States and at several Sportsmen's Shows.

The big draw? A nine-by-nine canvas tent and two sleeping bags.

Three Nautical Spectaculars

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A trident of spray-tossing sports spectaculars will highlight Picton's Civic Holliday weekend this August.

The golden girl of the trio, two of them world championship events, is Canada's second defence of the famous Harmsworth trophy.

The champion, "Miss Supertest III", will meet the challenge of the American lone entry "Gale V" on Saturday, August 5, Monday, August 7, and if necessary Tuesday, August 8.

The world's fastest C Class racing outboards will race for the John Ward Trophy, emblematic of global supremacy also on Monday, August 7.

On Sunday, August 6, North America's speediest .266 cubic inch hydroplanes will vie for the Prince Edward Yacht Club Gold Cup.

The racing dates were announced yesterday by Commodore Jay Sprague and his directors of the P.E. Yacht Club.

ON LONG REACH

All three events will be raced on a course or courses on Picton's now famous Long Reach waterway.

The John Ward Trophy races and the Gold Cup events will be run over a three-mile course. It is not yet decided if the Harmsworth races will be contested over a five-mile or three-mile raceway.

The Harmsworth Trophy races a best-of-three series, are scheduled to start at six p.m. on Saturday and Monday, possibly Tuesday.

The John Ward Trophy races, will be an elimination series culminating in a two-heat race. It is possible that some forty entries from all parts of the world will participate.

A Canadian Boating Federation official has stated that Canada alone can contribute 25 Class "C" outboards for the event.

Commodore Sprague said yesterday that he expects a "full regatta" will precede the final events for the Prince Edward Gold Cup on August 6.

The two world events will be under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Boating Federation, Canada's top motorboat racing body.

The Gold Cup races and regatta will be held under the sole supervision of the Yacht Club directorate. It has CBF permission to race C.O.D.'s; 48 cubic inch; 135 cubic inch; 266 cubic inch (Gold Cup) and 280 cubic inch craft.

FIRST IN CANADA

The symbol of world champion outboard racing, the John Ward Trophy, will mark its first competition in Canadian waters on the Long Reach.

According to Bob Finlayson, executive director of the CBF, the trophy is named after the first secretary of the Union of International Motorboating, formed in Belgium in 1922. This world body has permanent headquarters in that country.

CREATED IN 1925

The trophy was created in 1925 by the UIM and placed for competition for C Class outboards to represent all the outboard racing classes in a world championship event.

It has been competed for in the United States on two occasions.

Following its success in organizing Canada's first defence of the Harmsworth Trophy, the CBF applied to the UIM for the privilege of running the John Ward Trophy race this year.

Poland, among other nations, also applied, and held grimly to its application after all world entrants but Canada had withdrawn. Later, difficulties over racing facilities developed and Poland withdrew.

The UIM selected Canada and the Canadian Boating Federation accepted the honor.

East Germany won the trophy last year at Baad Salburg. German drivers also won the trophy in 1957 and 1958. Italy won it in 1959, that country's second triumph.

The United States has won it four times from 1952 to 1955. A three-time winner in 1927-28-29 was the Argentine. France has won it twice and England once.

England's victory came in the first year of competition, 1926. At the helm was Marion Carstairs, famous woman driver who later tried to take the Harmsworth Trophy from the United States' Gar Wood on three different occasions.

Finlayson says that top outboard racers from several European countries are expected to compete in Picton, plus a large entry from the United States.

The world record for C Class outboard hydroplanes is 79.046 miles per hour.

It looks like a rousing foam-tossing weekend for Picton, the Long Reach and Prince Edward County.

City Minors Meet Kingston Here Tomorrow

Boomer Leads The Pack

Habs Big Three Pile 26 Points

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's big three—Bernie Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore—amassed an amazing 26 points last week and hold three of the top four positions in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

Geoffrion, having his best season since breaking into the NHL with Canadiens 10 years ago, regained the leadership from Toronto's Frank Mahovlich by scoring six goals and picking up four assists in four games.

Official league statistics released today show the Boomer with 38 goals and 40 assists for 78 points.

Mahovlich, last week's leader at 69, got two goals—his 44th and 45th of the season — and had two assists in three games to raise his point total to 73.

Beliveau matched Geoffrion's 10-point production on five goals and five assists and jumped into third place from a tie for fourth a week ago. The big centre has 26 goals and 45 assists for 71 points.

MOORE IS FOURTH

Moore, who fractured a bone in his foot Saturday and is expected to be lost to Canadiens for at least three weeks, had two goals and four assists in three games but dropped one notch to fourth place. He has 35 goals and 34 assists for 69 points.

Glenn Hall of Chicago retained the lead in the race for the Vezina Trophy—awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the team that allows the lowest number of goals.

Hall has given up 150 goals in 58 games for a 2.59 goals-against average. Johnny Bower of Toronto missed his club's three games with a pulled muscle in his left thigh but remained two goals behind Hall.

Habs Lose Moore for Three Weeks

MONTREAL (CP) — Dickie Moore, all - star winger with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, will be lost to the team for at least three weeks because of a fractured bone in his foot, it was announced Monday.

Moore suffered the injury Saturday when slashed by Irwin Spencer of New York Rangers during a game at the Forum here. The injured foot was placed in a cast for at least two weeks.

However, Claude Provost, out with a torn ligament in his left knee, Jean Guy Gendron, also with knee miseries, and Gilles Tremblay, suffering from a wrenched angle, all skated Monday.

They may be ready for action Thursday night when Canadiens meet Toronto Maple Leafs here in a battle for first place in the NHL. The two teams now are tied.

Smokies Win Over Czech All-Stars 5-2

PRAGUE (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters won their fourth straight exhibition game in Czechoslovakia Monday, defeating a Czech all-star team 5-2 after giving up a 1-0 first-period lead to the Czechs.

The Smoke Eaters scored two unanswered goals in the second period and another three in the last 15 minutes of the third period after the Czechs had opened the period with a tying goal.

They have one more game left to play in Czechoslovakia before continuing their exhibition tour in East and West Germany preparatory to the world hockey championships in Switzerland next month.

The Czechs tallied after only two minutes of play and kept the Smoke Eaters off the scorecard for the rest of the period. Cal Hockley tied the score 1-1 early in the second session and Jackie McLeod put Trail ahead at the 10-minute mark.

The local team, an assortment picked from Czechoslovakia's First Division, fought back to tie it up after five minutes of the third period, but from then on it was Trail all the way.

Hal Jones scored almost immediately afterwards and Dave Busnell followed with Trail's fourth goal just two minutes later.

Playing coach Bob Kromm wound up the scoring.

More Goals in NHL

Mr. Campbell Explains

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Larger squads, better coaching and public demand for more goals were the reasons given Monday by National Hockey League experts for higher-scoring games this season.

"We have an average of 5.9 goals a game this year and that's about what it should be," said Clarence Campbell, NHL president.

"Back in the 1930s," Campbell added, "the average was about 3.5 goals and there were too many dull games, scores of 0-0 and 1-0. The average moved up to 4.8 in the mid 40s, but even that wasn't enough. Five years ago we decided it would make a better show for the public if our officials called restraining (interference, holding, booking, tripping etc.) penalties closer.

"With more men off the ice because of penalties, it led to more goals. Another result of this closer officiating is that players are more careful about being penalized so that the attacking teams have more freedom of movement and thus more opportunities to get a good shot at the net.

GOALIE WORKS HARDER

"The goalies today are as good if not better than they were years ago. It wasn't unusual for a goalie 15 or 20 years back to have no more than 20 saves a game. Now, they have 35, 40 and sometimes more than 50."

Campbell also explained that where most NHL teams are carrying 18 players plus a goaltender this season, each club had only 14 or 15 men during the pre-First World War era.

"In those days," he said, "each team had one good line, a second line that was fair and a third line composed of bench-sitting also-rans. Today, most of them have three good lines and a couple of high-scoring defencemen."

Maurice Richard, holder of many NHL scoring records, including the marks for goals in a season (50) and lifetime (544), claims improved coaching is the reason for more scoring.

Yank Hurlers Work Out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Fifteen of the 17 pitchers on the New York Yankees' roster held a light workout Monday as the battery-men reported for spring training. The only absentees were right - hander Bill Stafford and southpaw Luis Arroyo.

Stafford is in the army and not scheduled to be discharged until April 15. Arroyo, a Puerto Rican, was detained in San Juan under quarantine.

Arroyo pitched last week in the Caribbean world series in Carcas where there was an epidemic of bubonic plague. When he returned to Puerto Rico during the weekend, San Juan health officials slapped a 10-day quarantine on him and other arrivals from the Venezuelan capital.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"MAKE IT PAY OFF"

For many years Sports College has had observers at NHL games studying the play in order to find out the most effective techniques used by the player, the most successful form of tactics and strategy, what makes certain plays tick and others fail and things such as what type of shot scores most frequently. This "brain-busting" [illegible]one in order to develop ma[illegible] to help the young player and coach.

One of the things we have noticed is how rarely a two on one situation pays off for the offensive pair. In one stretch of 15 games in which this play situation was observed, of 79 times the situation occurred it resulted in only three goals and 21 dangerous shots on goal! One reason, of course, is that the average NHL defenceman plays this situation very well, backing in slowly, trying to force a hasty pass or slow the play down until a backchecker comes to the rescue.

Don McKenney of Boston is one of the players who seems able to make this two on one situation pay off. He does this by good faking. For example, he will fake a pass and then, when the checker moves to cover it, he will move around [illegible] or at least get a clean shot on goal. Alternately, McKenney will fake as if going around the checker and then when this draws him over he passes to his teammate. If the checker backs in too far McKenney will hold the puck and shoot, using the checker as a screen. The young player should remember that if the checker is playing the situation well you must get him to commit himself and McKenney's system is very effective. Flu Postpones Chuvalo Fight

$12,000 Or No Bout, Says London

TORONTO (CP)—A strategically-timed attack of the flu bug on George Chuvalo Monday night forced postponement of his heavyweight fight with Brian London of England.

It will go on next Monday night—maybe.

As far as London is concerned, it won't go on at all unless he gets a fat increase in his purse. In fact, unless promoter Frank Tunney deposits $12,000 in a Toronto bank this morning, London and his retinue plan to be winging their way back to Blackpool before nightfall never to return.

As of late Monday night, Tunney was having no part of London's terms.

The postponement was announced only five hours before ring time at Maple Leaf Gardens. Chuvalo's handlers said the flu attack, which they at first hoped would be only temporary, made it impossible for him to continue.

At the noon weigh-in the 23-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto had hit only 204½ pounds, a veritable shadow of the 211 he had weighed the day before. It would have been the lowest fighting weight of his professional career.

There was high indignation when word of the postponement reached the camp of the Londons—the 26-year-old fighter, his father-manager Jack, like Brian a former British Empire heavyweight champ, and his brother-trainer Jack Jr.

"If he's sick, why did the doctor pass him at the noon weigh-in?" asked Brian pointedly.

His next move was to head for Maple Leaf Gardens with the purpose of donning fight garb, presenting himself at the ring and demanding his purse in fulfilment of his half of the contract.

That manoeuvre failed when he couldn't get past the foyer. Anyway, the ring had been removed and Ontario athletics commissioner Merv McKenzie said he didn't see how the Briton could collect money for fighting when there was nobody to fight.

London then sought out Toronto lawyer Dave Rose and had him present the ultimatum to Tunney—$12,000 plus continued expenses or it's back to Blackpool. He originally had been due for $5,540 or 25 per cent of the gross gate, whichever was greater, plus expenses and transportation both ways for the London family.

Tunney and matchmaker Deacon Allen had been thinking in terms of a $40,000 gate from a crowd of about 10,000.

It was the third hitch in less than a year involving Chuvalo bouts. Last June 7 his match with Nino Valdes was cancelled on fight day when physicians discovered after the weigh-in that the big Cuban was all but blind in one eye.

OPPONENT WAS LAME

Chuvalo was scheduled to meet Bob Cleroux of Montreal here Feb. 6 in a return match for the Canadian title but that went by the boards when Cleroux turned up lame in practice.

Before London decided on the new financial approach Monday, he was all for dropping the whole business.

"I wouldn't think of staying another week," he said. "I'm at the peak of condition and I don't feel like getting out in the Toronto winter, running the streets."

Said the harassed Tunney:

"The Londons aren't being reasonable."

Will Oppose Private Station

CBC Still In Grid Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC has been rocked back on its corporate heels by being outbid for Big Four football television rights. But it's still in the fight.

A corporation spokesman said Monday night that the CBC was bitterly disappointed when its lower bid was shelved by the league in favor of the higher $375,000-a-year offer from Toronto's new TV station, CFTO-TV.

And he indicated that the CBC probably would have gone that high itself if the league, instead of requiring sealed bids, would have thrown the TV rights open to free bidding. This, despite the fact that the CBC still believes even $300,000 is too much.

Meanwhile, the CBC itself will have to make the next move in question of Big Four TV coverage and it appears it is ready to stick with its guns, and take the unpopular course.

PLANS TO BROADCAST

CFTO-TV has said it plans to broadcast the games over a network comprising the second English-language stations in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, and also the second French-language station in Montreal—areas where, until this year, the CBC held monopolies.

This would mean that other stations in eastern Canada which had been carrying the games from the CBC network now won't have access to the games—unless the CBC agrees to drop its network reservations with each of those stations, allowing them to take the game from the Toronto station.

The corporation already is on public record as being staunchly in opposition to any suggestion of what it calls "network splitting." And informed sources here indicated Monday that it is not likely to make an exception in this case, despite public complaints.

But the corporation may still be in the position of being able to provide football to these outside stations—and also compete with the private group in their own cities.

It could do this by winning the Canadian TV rights to United States National Football League games, as well as American college games. It also could get the rights for the Canadian college games.

COULD SKIM CREAM

Armed with these rights, the CBC could skim the cream from all schedules and come up with a varied football diet that would go at least part way toward satisfying fans in areas denied Big Four coverage—and, as a bonus, give the private group stiff competition for viewers in the major cities.

Even without this competition, according to one CBC official, CFTO-TV stands the risk of losing money on the Big Four deal. The CBC bid $325,000 for the rights last year and made money on the arrangements with sponsors, but it delivered an audience taking in all stations in Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

There is doubt among corporation officials that CFTO-TV can earn revenues by confining its broadcasts to three of the four league cities, all of them subject to league-enforced blackouts on home games.

The subject came up Monday in the Commons broadcasting committee but Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors, indicated that the governors are taking a "wait-and-see" attitude.

FISHER WONDERS

Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) wondered whether the board would consider Big Four games in the category of national interest. For such programs, the BBG can require stations to join the network carrying them.

The BBG chairman said the Grey Cup game could be considered as of national interest, but he doubted whether the board would view, say, a Toronto-Hamilton game in the same terms.

Mr. Fisher suggested that Dr. Stewart is not a sports fan.

Dr. Stewart replied that the board gets letters from persons across Canada "complaining of the amount of football foisted on them."

Thomas Aims To Defeat Young Russ

BOSTON (AP)—Unwilling to concede he's second best to Russian Valery Brumel — or anyone, John Thomas returned to the high jump pit Monday.

His philosophy — Think in terms of seven feet, six inches.

His formula—Relentless, hard work.

His aim—beat Brumel.

A rematch will be held Saturday in the National Amateur Athletic Union meet in New York.

A year ago the Boston University student was unchallenged among the world's high jumpers. Yet last Friday night a seven-foot-one-inch effort, his 58th at seven feet or higher, was well behind Brumel's seven-foot-three. Thomas was third behind Soviet Robert Shavlakadze and Brumel at the Rome Olympics.

When asked if Thomas will be able to beat Brumel, coach Ed Flanagan replied:

"Let's put it this way: I think that John can jump much higher than he ever has up to now (7-3¾). It's pretty evident Brumel also can (7-4½)."

NEW YORK (AP) — Valery Brumel, Russia's whiz-kid high jumper, was full of apologies Monday.

"I'm sorry," he told the weekly meeting of the New York Track Writers Association, "that I didn't do better last Friday night in the New York Athletic Club meet."

All he did was clear seven feet, three inches, equalling John Thomas' best indoor jump. This was on his first appearance on boards before a large crowd.

"But," he added, "I hope to do better this Saturday in the National AAU championships. I have been practicing very hard."

Brumel, who won't be 19 years old until April, got off a seven foot 4½-inch jump less than a month ago in Leningrad. That's the highest anyone ever has gone. Thomas' official world record is seven feet 3¾ inches.

Services Dart League Results

Lucky Lews upset the front-running Skyliners 7-4 last night in a regular Belleville Services Dart League game. This marked the first defeat of the season for the Skyliners.

In other games, Northern Electric dumped Legion 8-3, McEvoys also won 8-3 over Parsons, LaPalms edged Wilkinsons 6-5, El Ranchos defeated the OPP 7-4 and Atchesons took an 8-3 decision over RCAF.

Wings Thump Irish 6-1

HAMILTON (CP) — Buddy Blom had his bid for a second consecutive shutout spoiled at 7:29 of the third period Monday night but his Hamilton Red Wings still trounced Toronto St. Michael's College Majors 6-1 before 2,702 Ontario Hockey Association junior A fans.

The victory lifted Wings to within two points of third place. Majors are six points behind league-leading Guelph Royals.

Placed by the line of Larry Jeffrey, Lyle Porter and Lowell MacDonald, with 10 points between them, Wings led 3-0 at the end of the first period and scored two more unanswered tallies in the second.

The teams divided third-period markers.

MacDonald led the parade with two goals and an assist. Jeffrey had one goal and three assists and Porter helped on three of his linemate's tallies. Keith Walsh, Pit Margin and Howie Menard scored the other Hamilton goals.

Dunc MacDonald's screened shot was the only reply by the Irish.

The teams divided 10 minor penalties evenly. Two of the winners' goals came off power plays. Hamilton out-shot the opposition, 46-20.

Bay of Quinte Basketball

The second-place Trenton Wilsons had their hands full last night when they tangled with the tail-end Belleville Lightfoots and took a tight 47-46 win in one half of a Bay of Quinte basketball twin bill at Moira.

In the other game, Northern Electric rolled to a 74-49 triumph over the Belleville Teachers.

The Lightfoots trailed by scores of 9-3, 21-14 and 35-33 at the quarters but at one point near the end of the third quarter they overtook the Wilsons and led 33-28.

The final outcome was decided on the foul line with Trenton sinking 13 of 21 attempts while the Lightfoots connected on only six of 13.

Bob Burleigh paced Trenton with 14 points, the only double-figure man in their lineup.

Don Smith hooped 16 points for the Lightfoots while Denny Farnsworth hit for 11.

Northern Electric led all the way in their victory, by scores of 28-16, 45-30 and 56-36 by quarters.

Canadian Curling Championship

'Campbells Are Comin'

REGINA (CP)—The 1961 Canadian curling championships at Calgary March 6-10 will have at least three familiar faces, Garnet and Glen Campbell of Avonlea, Sask., and their number one fan, father A. N. (Sandy) Campbell.

Garnet, 34, will be making his fifth appearance, but this will be the first time he will not be skipping the Saskatchewan entry. That honor belongs to Jack Keys, 33, of Milestone, Sask., 28 miles east of Avonlea, who has been skipping the Campbell entry now for two years.

Glen, at 44 the oldest member of the Saskatchewan entry, also will be making his fifth appearance in the championships, but it will be his first time at lead.

Keys and second man Bob Pickering, 28, of Wilcox, 20 miles northeast of Avonlea, are both rookies in the Canadian championships.

WON TITLES

The first Campbell rink to win the Saskatchewan championship was in 1947. In 1954 Garnet, Gordon, Glen and another brother, Donald, won the provincial title then placed second to Alberta's Matt Baldwin in the championships.

The next year, with the title playoffs being held in Regina, the Campbells ran up a 10-0 record to give Saskatchewan its first Canadian championship.

In 1956, the Campbell rink won the southern Saskatchewan title, but lost out to Jimmy Hill of Delisle in the provincial playoff.

They were back in the Canadian championships the following year, only to place second again to Baldwin's rink.

After that year, the rink broke up temporarily, with Garnet and several of his brothers taking "pro" teaching positions in Ontario. Don still is in Ontario.

Lucky Lews Win District Dart Tourney

The Lucky Lews team of Belleville came out on top of a 16-team dart tournament here on the weekend to earn its way to the Sportsman's show in Toronto next month.

Ten teams from Belleville, five from Trenton and one from the RCAF took part in the elimination tournament. The Lucky Lews eliminated the pack and will represent the Belleville district in the March 10-18 Sportsman's Show.

Members of the Lucky Lews are Rolly Winstanley, Hank Boyle, Fred Dainard, Murray Bennett and Lou Evans. Evans is the captain of the team.

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. James A. Gibson, dean of Carleton University's arts faculty, Monday was elected president of the Canadian Writers' Foundation Incorporated. He succeeds Guy Sylvestre, associate parliamentary librarian, as head of the foundation, a benevolent trust that gave $13,300 to "needy" Canadian writers in 1960.

Malone Did It in 22

Leaf Star Sets Mark

MONTREAL (CP)—Even if Big Frank Mahovlich doesn't score another goal this season he has already established one National Hockey League record.

The goal the Toronto Maple Leafs' marksman scored Sunday against New York Rangers was his 45th this season and made him the highest scoring left wing ever in the NHL.

The record Mahovlich broke was one of the oldest in the league—set back in the 1917-18 season by Joe Malone of Montreal Canadiens in 22 games. It took Mahovlich 59 games to get 45 goals.

Malone's total of 44 in that 22-game season stood as an all-time high for any position until Maurice Richard set the mark that Mahovlich is really gunning for—50 goals in a 50-game season in 1944-45.

Malone's position as the highest-scoring left wing in league history was seriously threatened until the 1958-59 season when Montreal's Dickie Moore—who also did some duty at right wing that season—collected 41 goals.

RIGHT-WINGERS STARRED

The league was dominated for many years by right-wingers—men like Richard, Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe, Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, New York Rangers' Andy Bathgate and Chicago Black Hawks' Eddie Litzenberger.

But now a new era seems to have dawned.

In addition to Mahovlich the left-wingers count among their ranks two of the most valuable players in the league—Montreal's Moore and Chicago's Bobby Hull.

At 30, Moore's best years may be behind him, but Hull and Mahovlich at 22 and 23 respectively are just hitting their peaks.

Many Outstanding Exhibits Will Be Seen at Sportsmen's Show

TORONTO — The world's first underwater endurance competition. A 'Jiger" a new outdoor mode of transportation for land, water, snow, ice and swamp. Special shoes which make it possible for a person to walk on the surface of water. A speedy hydrocopter. A sailboat in operation inside a building.

These are some of the interesting and novel things which will be seen at the 1961 edition of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show to be held in the Coliseum here from March 10 to 18.

Reputed to be the finest show of its kind in the world, this year's big sports and outdoors extravanganza covers more than 9 1-2 acres under one roof. There will be a huge display of all that is new for outdoor sports, recreation, travel and camping. In addition, there will be a boat and marine show an automotive show, a cottage show, a travel show, three dog shows and indoor retriever field trials.

Ten skin divers, all of whom already hold underwater endurance records, will participate in the underwater endurance competition which is being sponsored by Supreme Divers of Toronto.

This unusual event will take place in a specially-constructed glass tank containing 15,000 gallons of water as well as a special filtering unit and heating system. The contestants will attempt to shatter the official world record of 101 hours, 13 minutes and they will vie for cash awards and equipment valued at more than $7,000.00.

Now under construction in Toronto, the world's first "Jiger", a sportsmen's all purpose vehicle, will be demonstrated at the 1961 sports extravaganza. Somewhat similar to a caterpillar tractor it weighs slightly over 200 pounds and can transport people side by side. It is driven by two gasoline - powered, air-cooled motors. Traction is by means of rubber treads which run over a new type of wide, spongy tire containing as little as a half-pound of air-pressure. Its designer, John Gower of Toronto ,reports that it will have a cruising land speed of 25 miles per hour.

The 14th annual presentation of the Sportsmen's Show will be sponsored as a public service project and the entire proceeds will again be in aid of conservation. Over the years since the show was inaugurated back in 1948 more than $1,000,000 has been raised for conservation projects through the sponsorship of this annual activity.

A colorful opening ceremony is planned for March 10, after which "The Outdoors Girl of Canada" for 1961 will be selected and crowned.

Teresa Stratas To Be Heard At Belle Here

Miss Teresa Stratas, Canadian born Metropolitan Opera star, appears in "The Canadians", which opens in 150 theatres across Canada on February 24th, including the Belle Theatre here.

Born in Oshawa, on May 26, 1939, Teresa is the daughter of Manual and Arego Stratas, natives of Greece. The five-foot brunette was educated in nearby Toronto and early showed a talent for singing. By the time she was 11 she was singing at Greek gatherings, on radio in neighborhood theatres.

In 1958 she won the prize festival role in LaBoheme at the Toronto Opera Festival when she climbed on the stage unbidden and sang for the judges. She had felt it an affront that not one Toronto singer had been invited to audition for the festival and when she had completed her arias Dr. Walter Susskind, world-famed conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and one of the judges, said of Teresa: 'The' most magnificent voice I have ever heard".

Last summer she signed for the only feminine role in "The Canadians" which was filmed on location in the Cypress Hills in Saskatchewan. The film deals with a true incident involving the Royal North-West Mounted Police and the Indians who fled the U.S.A. after the massacre of General Custer and his men a century ago.

Twentieth-Fox wants Miss Stratas for a picture this summer, when she is on vacation from the Met. Being weighed are a film to be made in Canada, one set in The Holy Land, and a third to be about the Greek underground.

ASKS CLOSER TIES

TORONTO (CP) — North America's future prosperity might best be assured by closer economic ties between Canada and the United States, the head of a U.S. insurance firm said Monday. H. Ladd Plumley, chairman and president of State Mutual Life Assurance Co. of America, said Canadians and U.S. citizens seem to be basing their economic thinking on purely nationalistic terms rather than considering alternatives.

He Does It Just For Kicks

LONDON (AP) — George Armstrong, 16, has got himself the job that any soccer player just dreams about—goalkeeper on an otherwise all-girl team.

It came about when Vivien Willis, George's 17 - year - old girl friend, pointed out that the team had 10 girl players, but no goalkeeper. So George, reluctantly, agreed to play.

"Now that I've got over my shyness, I'm quite happy to be among the girls," George said after a trial match.

The team — named the Heart-Throbs — comes from Whitley Bay, Northumberland. A challenge soon is likely from the Smashers—an all-girl team in Lincolnshire.

Audrey Hepburn Is Biggest Film Sensation in Japan

By BOB THOMAS

TOKYO (AP)—The secret of film success in Japan is a movie must have heart.

The Alamo is a big hit in Tokyo. Spartacus is a flop. Reason: the former has heart, the latter doesn't.

The success of The Alamo is a puzzler to this visitor, since it has had rough going in the United States. Besides heart, it has three prime elements for Japanese fans: Length, John Wayne and an unhappy ending.

Biggest sensation of Hollywood stars is Audrey Hepburn. You see hundreds of teen-age girls with the Hepburn hairdo. They often buy movie magazines just so they can show their hairdressers how they want it done.

LIKE MUSIC

Another big factor for film success: Music; movies with haunting themes are big hits. Younger fans know Charlie Chaplin not because of his comedy but because of the Limelight theme.

Yet Hollywood musicals usually flop. Gigi did no business nor did Can-Can. But Daddy Long Legs was a hit. Why? It had heart.

The big Christian epics are not sure - fire hits in Japan. Sources here say a lot of Japanese were fed up with Christian teaching during the occupation. This could mean trouble for the upcoming King of Kings and Greatest Story Ever Told.

Many Japanese teen - agers are favoring the French films, which are offering bright young performers. They are tired of the middle - aged Hollywood stars.

Brigitte Bardot never caught on in Japan. Nor are the Japanese wild for Monroe, Mansfield or other sex symbols.

AT THE PARK — Grace Kelly stars with Raymond Milland and Robert Cummings in Alfred Hitchcock's "Dial 'M' for Murder", in Technicolor showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre. On the same program the big one "Oceans 11", in Technicolor stars Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford and Angie Dickinson. One complete show starts at 7.20 p.m.

Quiz and Game Shows Back In Greater Numbers on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—In the fall of 1959, as an aftermath of the quiz show scandals, a lot of U.S. television programs disappeared from the networks. Most were programs in which the audience participated.

Now, however, the quiz and game shows are back in greater numbers than ever before, although the financial rewards aren't as great as they once were. Most of them are in daytime spots with a predominantly feminine audience.

At the moment, audience-participation shows use up 37 weekly hours of network television—more than westerns or even situation comedies.

NBC is currently undisputed king of audience-participation. It put on seven shows every week day. In addition, it has the Groucho Marx Show on a week day night, People are Funny on Sundays, and its prime-time evening version of its daytime success, The Price is Right is rated among the top 20 shows in TV. All this consumes 19 hours of NBC time each week.

ABC devotes 12½ daytime hours a week to its audience participation shows. CBS, which discontinued all its audience participation shows in the fall of 1959, is quietly getting back into business.

James C. Hagerty, ABC's new vice-president in charge of news, has been criticizing, in his writing and speaking, news broadcasters who use material developed by others. He means it: His first two appointments on the expanding ABC Washington staff have been veteran newspaper men with little or no broadcasting experience.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, February 22, 1961

General Tendencies: There is a very restless and alive feeling in the air today and most everyone is looking at their problems in a logical and objective manner. Be sure to take advantage of this good aspect to put across whatever ideas are yours, for persons can sell others on what they want them to believe today — and tonight!

Aries (March 21 to April 19) It would be a good idea to get in touch with those whom you wish to have allied with you in future and express your ideas and desires. Then take time to shop for whatever you need, call upon the trade or friends, etc. Be active.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) If [illegible] handle your practical affairs most intelligently today you can soon have a far greater income. Be sure you set up a better bookkeeping system, too. P.M. take the health treatments you need and retire early.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)— A day for thinking almost exclusively of yourself and your needs, ambitions, etc. Know what it is you want and what you want to accomplish in the future. Follow through aggressively. P.M. meet worthwhile people socially. Grow.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Handle any personal matters early. Then find out what allies expect of you in your joint relationship and resolve to carry out your end of the bargain. Contact authorities, also. Get advice. P.M. fine for going to club, or other place of entertainment.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — By contacting associates and clever friends, you can express your ideas and thereby become allied in some very lucrative and pleasant ventures. Make the future brighter. Evening is then fine for social life. Be gay, charming.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — So many situations come into the open now that may alarm you, but realize that this will clear the air and they are actually stepping-stones to greater sucess. Get your affairs on a more solid footing. P.M. have fun tonight.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — There are many fine opportunities about you right now and you would be wise to look into them quickly. Find the best way to operate in the future and put wheels in motion. Grow.

Scorpio (Oct. 23to Nov. 21)— If you set up more efficient ways of keeping accounts, the future can be more successful because of such exactitude. Start now to get all in order. P.M. fine for relaxing at the theatre or with loved one. Be gentle, kind.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — By getting together with all partners and allies and going over your joint affairs thoroughly and discussing separate views, you can come to a better understanding that will lead to greater success in the early future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your best benefits today come from laboring religiously. Don't permit anyone or anything to deter you from what it is you want to do, then full speed ahead. Co-operate with co-workers so that all goes off harmoniously.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There can be great happiness today if you get an early start to the meetings, shopping, other constructive activities awaiting your attention. P.M. get out for recreation and fun in the company of loved one. Be most attentive, kind.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Your greatest happiness and benefits come today from being thoughtful of the needs and desires of close kin. Also, see that your abode is made more lovely by adding the right touches. P.M. invite guests in for a little party.

If your child is born today—he, or she, will be one of those rare youngsters who can work well with the hands as well as think very clearly. The superior salesperson is in this chart, so be sure you give an education slanted toward this end. However, be certain to give right spiritual training also so that all efforts will be directed toward that which is right and ethical for greatest success.

More Comfort Wearing FALSE TEETH

Here is a pleasant way to overcome loose plate discomfort. FASTEETH, an improved powder, sprinkled on upper and lower plates holds them firmer so that they feel more comfortable. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH today at any drug counter.

missal of Hammarskjold and withdrawal of the UN force rom The Congo within a month was defeated.

Russia cast the only affirmative vote. Eight countries were pposed and Ceylon and the United Arab Republic abstained.

The resolution also asked for anctions against Belgium, former ruler of The Congo, and for the arrest of Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province and Maj.-Gen. Joseph Mobutu, commander of the Congo army of President Joseph Mobutu.

While the votes on two resolutions came after midnight, deba[illegible]on the one concerning poli[illegible] assassination dragged on for hours.

Its defeat came as a surprise, since the council had reacted with universal shock at the opening of Monday's meetings when Hammarskjold announced the six new executions n South Kasai province.

Although the U.S. and Britain joined in expressions of revulsion, they said the resolution made it appear that atrocities were being committed only on one side. "It sets up different categories of atrocities," said Sir Patrick Dean of Britain.

Russia wielded its 93rd and 94th vetoes to stop amendments proposed by Adlai Stevenson of the U.S. that would have deleted from the resolution specific mention of Leopoldville, Elisabethville and Kasai Province as scenes of assassinations.

France joined Russia in abstaining on the Afro-Asian resolution regarding the UN role in The Congo apparently because of its troubles in Algeria in which some countries want UN intervention.

GET BELGIANS OUT

The Afro-Asian resolution, in addition to authorizing the UN to take all measures for halting civil war including force as a last resort, urged this general course of action:

1. Immediate measures to withdraw all Belgian and foreign military personnel and mercenaries from The Congo.

2. An appeal to all countries to prevent departure of such personnel for The Congo from their territories and to deny transit facilities to them.

3. An immediate, impartial investigation into the death of Lumumba and his associates.

4. Reorganization of the Congolese Army to eliminate any interference in the political affairs of The Congo and the convening of the parliament of The Congo.

Supporting the Afro-Asian draft were Britain, the United States, Turkey, the U.A.R., Chile, Equador, Liberia, Nationalist China and Ceylon.

Hammarskjold welcomed the resolution's adoption, saying it gives "a stronger and clearer framework for United Nations action." In carrying out its terms he would seek advice from his 18-member Congo advisory committee, which includes 15 Afro-Asian countries and Canada.

LEADER ASSAILS

July, 1958, is known—the full impact of exchanging victory bonds for conversion bonds—the total losses incurred by the fund will be close to $70,000,000."

Mr. Pearson said this "mismanagement" should be investigated before Parliament is asked to replenish the dwindling fund.

Referring to the unemployment fund as "no ordinary fund," he said:

"It is a trust fund financed 40 per cent by industry, 40 per cent by the workers and only 20 per cent by the government. This is a trust fund and it should have been considered as such."

The government was shirking responsibility for monetary policy, citing the powers held by the Bank of Canada.

The Liberal chief said the bank's manipulation of the money supply was erratic, increasing money in boom periods when credit restrictions were called for and tightening up the supply channels in slack times when the economy required a spur.

WORKS AS AN AGENT

The bank's money manipulation was, in fact, being used as "a mere instrument of debt management," working as a fiscal agent of the government instead of in its rightful role of controlling fluctuations in the general level of production, trade, prices and employment.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) supported the Liberal motion but complained that the CCF group had sat awaiting "the cannon's roar on unemployment" only to hear a "pop-gun."

He was "amazed" that Mr. Pearson had not dealt fully with the unemployment question instead of confining his address to one segment of the problem.

W. H. McMillan (L—Welland) said the 1958 conversion loan issue was costing the government nearly $600,000 a day in extra interest charges. The loan had led the country into a financial trap.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound - Muskoka) said unemployment is the country's only problem in "a good financial and economic picture."

YOUTH STAY

have to be provincially-ted apart from local schoolns because of its specializere.

Asked by Andrew Tson (L — Toronto Dort) whether consideration being given to night usity courses, Mr. Roberts the matter is under studs he lacked authority to mal announcement.

ASK RE FIRE REPO

Earlier, opposition mpls failed to force the goment to make public a fire shal's report on fire hazardsEssex County schools.

Arthur Reaume (L Essex North) sparked a violdebate by accusing the govent of refusing to make the rt public because of its cont.

"If there are anyildren burned to death in se fire traps their blood will on the hands of all of you," shouted to the government bes.

But Attorney-GenerRoberts said the report waptdated, and added that only of the 42 schools reported be unsafe have not yet imented recommendations of ire marshal's report he ored last May.

'TAKE IT EASY'

When the attorneyneral began to shout, Mr. Rame said: "Take it easy, yo have a stroke. . . , You're gg to blow a fuse and they'll he to carry you out of here on stretcher."

He insisted on geng a copy of the report, whichr. Roberts said is outdated.

"If I can't have copy, give it to the press," said Mr. Reaume, adding tt he wants to obtain a pictur of general school conditions across the province.

Mr. Frost said t report will not be released t the public, but will remain matter between the government and the school boards concerned. School premises e the responsibility of the boads, he added.

"Our position to endeavor to co-operate and o counsel and help school boads. . . . It is not our desire to make it harmful to them."

CCF Leader MacDonald said the opposition had attempted to have the report made public on another occasion and the government had only succeeded in acting "just plain silly."

The fire marshal as a civil servant, is working for the public, not the government, said Mr. MacDonald.

"The facts should be known to the parents so they can light boards," he added.

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer asked what the education department could do if a school board refused to carry out the recommendations of the fire marshal.

"The only control we have is that school grants are discriminatory," Mr. Robarts said. "We can't tell them to have a red door or a black door. . . ."

"That's not what we're talking about," Mr. Wintermeyer fired back.

Mr. Reaume moved a motion that the estimates of the education department under discussion be deferred until the fire marshal's report is made public. The motion, supported by both Liberals and CCF, was defeated by the large Progressive Conservative majority.

Mr. Wintermeyer accused the government of "measuring progress in education" in terms of the number of dollars spent.

He said all that Ontario's education system received from the $3,000,000,000 spent in the last 10 years were a lot of buildings, the labor of 50,000 teachers, the concern of 2,000,000 parents and the "soul searching" of thousands of school trustees.

"An estimate of education . . . must lead us to the conclusion that while a great many have learned to read and write, far too few read much beyond the headlines or write more than personal correspondence. . . ."

He said only three students graduate from university out of every 100 who start Grade One. Teaching standards have deteriorated; more hockey players have been produced than physicists; 70 per cent of the unemployed have never been to high school.

Want to Study Radio and TV Electioneering

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Commons broadcasting committee hinted Monday that they want a full-scale study of radio and TV electioneering—a subject dear to their hearts, as well as their pocketbooks.

Alexis Caron (L—Hull) complained that both newspapers and radio stations double their advertising rates for politicians during election campaigns, and said there is a danger that the same trend will appear in television.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) stepped into the opening provided by his colleague to reiterate a favorite proposal—that such campaign costs should be met from public funds, so all parties will be on an equal footing.

The only reply they received from Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors, is that the board has no power to control advertising rates.

The committee decided to leave the question of political broadcasting for later debate. Meanwhile, it heard statements from Dr. Stewart Monday:

IS OVER 70

Mrs. R. G. Gilbride, Montreal widow and grandmother, is resigning as a part - time BBG member because she is over 70, the statutory age limit imposed by Parliament. However, she has not revealed her age.

Other BBG members have been asked to bring their birth certificates to a board meeting here later this week. Only member whose age could not be learned immediately was that of Dr. Mabel Connell, a dentist in Prince Albert, Sask. Of the others, the oldest is 63.

Dr. Stewart said he would like to see general legislation against the use of deceptive advertising—but applying to all ad users, and not only broadcasters. He is prepared to ask the other governors if they would request such legislation.

He also described as "ridiculous" the conclusion reached by some people that the rule requiring 45 - per cent Canadian content on TV stations will mean that Canadian programs will displace top-rated American shows.

Dr. Stewart said the programs that will be displaced will be third - rate American films, not the highly rated programs such as the Perry Como [illegible] The rule becomes effective April 1.

ental.

The six strikebound airlines already have laid off more than 81,000 of their workers because of the curtailed service.

Airline executives indicated that total cessation of flights by the strikebound airlines might force the hand of the government in its attempts to end the snarl.

The engineers are protesting a Feb. 6 decision of the national mediation board ordering their union and the air line pilots' association at United Airlines to vote for a single union as bargaining agent for both.

Pilots are in the majority and the engineers say they fear the ruling might mean eventual death for their own union.

In Los Angeles, Kansas City and New York various strikebound airlines sought contempt citations and filed multi-million-dollar damage suits against the Engineers' Union. Trans World Airlines asked $3,500,000 in a suit at Kansas City.

Prime Minister's Mother Dies in Saskatoon Hospital

SASKATOON (CP) — Mrs. Mary Florence Diefenbaker, 88, mother of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, died Monday night.

Mrs. Diefenbaker, in hospital for several years, died following an "acute pulmonary edema," a heart condition.

In addition to the prime minister, she is survived by another son, Elmer of Saskatoon.

Her husband, William Thomas Diefenbaker, a school teacher, died in Saskatoon in 1945, two years after their 50th wedding anniversary.

HAD LUNG INFECTION

Mrs. Diefenbaker suffered a lung infection several months ago. She was on the critical list at University Hospital from late November until early January. Prime Minister Diefenbaker flew from Ottawa late in December to visit her.

The funeral is expected to be held Wednesday. Final arrangements will be made tonight when the prime minister arrives by plane from Ottawa.

Dr. David M. Baltzan, the attending physician, issued a statement which said: "Mrs. Diefenbaker developed acute pulmonary edema due to sudden heart muscle weakness. This happened early today (Monday). She responded to treatment in the first six hours. A relapse followed and she progressively declined. She passed away peacefully at 9:03 p.m."

Although Mrs. Diefenbaker was confined to a wheelchair in hospital during the 1957 general election that gave her son the post of prime minister, she arrived at the polls in an ambulance to vote.

Her health had failed further by the 1958 general election but she insisted on voting again—from the wheelchair. In that election Mr. Diefenbaker won the greatest Commons party strength—208 members of a total 265—ever enjoyed by a Canadian prime minister.

KEPT HER POSTED

Mrs. Diefenbaker followed the prime minister's career in detail even after her health made it difficult for her to read newspapers. Besides his frequent letters, the prime minister sent her pictures and clippings about his activities.

Elmer and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hay were with her during the day. Mrs. Hay is Mrs. Diefenbaker's niece.

Mrs. Diefenbaker was born [illegible] Port Elgin, Ont., Oct. 26, 1872. She was one of several children.

John and Elmer were born in Normanby Township in Grey County, Ont. The Diefenbakers came west in 1903 and settled in the Carlton district of Saskatchewan.

In the final years of her life, Mrs. Diefenbaker remained a strikingly handsome and imposing woman. Friends said she had one vanity—her hats. In the earlier years she wore large picture hats, gorgeously plumed.

1959 decision to acquire nuclear weapons.

He has been so opposed to pronouncements from the defence department while the possibility of progress in disarmament remained that last fall he was reported to have objected to any announcement about RCAF participation in the North American air defence exercise known as Skyshield.

Some recent remarks by Mr. Diefenbaker indicate that the prime minister now is on Mr. Harkness' side and that Mr. Green's influence is waning.

He said at the Lakehead last weekend that there can be no security for Canada in half-partnership in defence with the United States. The North American air defence agreement must be maintained.

NEED WARHEADS

The implication was that Canada would have to arm its two Bomarc anti - aircraft missile squadrons with nuclear warheads and obtain a new interceptor to replace the aging CF-100.

Mr. Harkness said at Toronto last Friday: "The RCAF must operate warning systems, intercept and identify intruders in our air space and maintain our sovereignty over it."

The previous week in Montreal, Mr. Harkness indirectly criticized persons who have "fiercely opposed" nuclear weapons for the RCAF.

Mr. Harkness recently announced a now armored personnel carrier will be acquired for the army. And before that Mr. Diefenbaker gave a hint that submarines will be built in Canada for the navy.

such as food stamps to get the food into the hands of the needy through regular channels.

Perhaps deals might be made with welfare agencies qualified to handle such work. To be worked out are cost, rations, distribution and eligibility.

The idea isn't new and was first suggested by various unions and welfare agencies.

The United States makes available its surplus food stocks, held in greater variety than in Canada at present, and President Kennedy recently ordered an increase in rations to unemployed—his first executive act on coming to office.

200 People Were Starving Daily in Bakwanga Before UN Began Food Airlift

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Some 200 men, women and children were starving to death daily in the Bakwanga area of The Congo during the late months of 1960, the United Nations estimates.

Today a big UN food airlift directed by Canadians has reduced the toll at least by half and there is every hope that it will be cut further and finally eliminated.

Air Commodore Cecil G. W. Chapman of the RCAF recalled that at the first famine relief meeting here in early December it was predicted that the airlift would last from four to six weeks.

"By the time ground and water transportation comes fully into play, we will have been involved up to our ears for something like 12 weeks or more," he said.

As UN air commander in The Congo, Chapman heads an air transport force of nearly 300 people from nine nations operating 45 aircraft and helicopters and employing many chartered planes. Working under him are Wing Cmdr. Howard B. Russell of Trenton, Ont., and Wing Cmdr. Kenneth C. Dobbin of Ottawa.

BALUBAS FLED

The Bakwanga relief program is the heaviest burden thrown on the air transport staff.

Under the former Belgian rulers, when peace and security were generally maintained between traditionally hostile Congolese tribes, thousands of members of the Baluba tribe from the Bakwanga area were scattered throughout The Congo to work in mines and on plantations.

When Belgian rule ended amid civil disorder last July, the Balubas found themselves confronted by vengeful neighbors. By the thousands they fled back to their original tribal area in the Bakwanga area of central Kasai province, 110 miles west of the provincial capital of Luluabourg.

There the ordinarily sparse crops failed. The sudden influx of some 250,000 Balubas exhausted the meagre supply of food.

When the first investigating teams reached the area they found men, women and children dying by the hundreds. Their emaciated bodies lay where they had fallen because the survivors were too weak to bury them.

SOME STILL STARVE

It was initially estimated that 100 tons of food a day were needed. But transportation and loading facilities — not to mention food supplies themselves— were adequate to provide only 40 tons a day.

Since early December the amount has risen steadily until now, Chapman said, between 70 and 80 tons are being airlifted in daily.

"You cannot deal with absolutes in a situation like this," he said. "If 100 tons are required — and it's only an estimate — then what does 40 or 50 or 60 tons do?

"Do people still die from starvation? Probably, but certainly far fewer than would have died before. More likely they suffer instead from general malnutrition. Now our job is to correct this."

Cost of the program is striking. While it may cost only a few pennies a pound to buy fish in neighboring Uganda, it may mean between 12 and 15 cents a pound to transport it in chartered aircraft to the famine areas.

HINDERED BY STRIKES

Air Commodore Chapman estimates that about $850,000 is being spent each month for charter aircraft in the operation. The planes have been picking up food and supplies from Leopoldville, from Ndola and Salisbury in Northern Rhodesia, Entebbe in Uganda and Luanda in Portuguese Angola. They fly their cargoes to Luluabourg where it is transferred to planes for the airlift to Bakwanga.

Wing Cmdr. Dobbin said there are other problems.

"'The Lulua tribes in Luluabourg are enemies of the Balubas. Every now and again the airport workers go on strike and refuse to load the relief planes because the aircraft are carrying food to their tribal enemies."

The UN relief operation is expected to grow. Plans call for the U.S. Air Force to fly 1,000 tons of supplies to Kamina, in Katanga province, with UN aircraft to shuttle this at the rate of 100 tons a day to Bakwanga, 240 miles to the northeast.

SHIP BY WATER

The Congo River and its tributaries will also play a part. Shiploads of relief supplies are to be left at the Congo River port of Matadi. They will be taken by train 240 miles to Leopoldville. From here barges will carry them up the river system 450 miles to Port Francqui, then trains will be used for another 200 miles to Luluabourg. Finally planes or trucks will complete the trip to Bakwanga.

As complicated as this operation will be, the air commodore said, it will mean cheaper transport of greater quantities of supplies than can be handled by plane.

"'It is very important, even urgent, to get surface transportation going on the problem."

What about a final solution?

Among the supplies going to Bakwanga are assortments of seeds. From these it is hoped the crops will come in the fall to feed the Balubas until they can be resettled in other areas or until other answers to the problem are found.

Discarded White Trappings Become Badges of New Status for the Congolese

The headlines on The Congo crisis go over stories of United Nations deliberations and the efforts of Congolese politicians to make their weight felt. How does the ordinary Congolese fit into this picture, nearly eight months after his country won its independence: An AP correspondent tells in this dispatch of the way life goes in The Congo today.

By PATRICK MASSEY

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Outside a mud hut in the remote Congo village a gleaming white refrigerator stood proudly in the dust. A laughing Congolese woman swung open the door and extracted a plateful of rotting fish.

"Now," she exulted, "we eat food like the white man."

The inside of the icebox was hot as an oven. It had not worked since it was looted from the house of a fleeing Belgian planter. It did nothing for the food except keep off flies.

What counted was the image of shiny splendor, the bright symbol of independence.

The discarded trappings of white men become badges of new - found status. Their use value is unimportant.

SOMETHING LACKING

In some village huts can be found piles of phonograph records but no phonograph to play them. Sometimes the women wear fashionable lingerie over the top of their long native robes.

Congolese take satisfaction in the disappearance of color bar restrictions in hotels, restaurants and neon-lit bars here in Leopoldville. But few can afford to eat European-type meals at $5, drink scotch at 60 cents a shot or patronize the luxury pools at 50 cents a swim.

Economically, the main impact of independence on ordinary Congolese was the heavy wave of unemployment that followed the closing down of many European enterprises in the panic exodus of last July. Recently, with Belgian businessmen pouring back, the situation has been improving.

A Congolese with a steady job still earns high wages by African standards. The lowest salary for a man is around 2,500 francs or $50 a month.

On this pay he can rent a small apartment or house, usually measuring about 14 by 10, for an average monthly rental of $7. He can buy enough food for a day for about 50 cents. This will give a diet of mostly fish, manioc cereal, fruit and a little meat.

SKILLED LIVE WELL

Artisans, mechanics and clerical workers usually earn 5,000—8,000 francs a month and on this they can afford to rent some of the showplace African dwellings built by the Belgians—or even buy a small house for around $700.

A big item is liquor. A survey conducted before independence showed that the average Congolese spent more than half of his pay on drink—usually the locally-brewed beers.

Another heavy consideration is clothes. The Congolese townfolk are snappy dressers. Nearly all the men are neatly clad in spotlessly clean shirts and well cut pants.

European dress finds little favor with the women. For them the long African robe, brightly colored imported cotton draped round and round the body, is still the mode.

Even in the poorest shanty-town areas, most women take pride in keeping their homes clean.

CANNIBALS REMAIN

For most Congolese, food is not a major problem. The big exception is south Kasai with its famished population of Baluba tribal refugees. In this area cannibalism is actually practised as a means of obtaining food.

Shortages exist in a host of commodities ranging from spark plugs to spoons and typewriter ribbons.

Hardest hit territories are the eastern provinces controlled by Lumumbist rebels. Their Congo River supply route has been sealed off by the Leopoldville authorities.

The economic and political problems of independence have little meaning for those people who live in isolated communities in the interior. Money is unknown because the people can neither read nor count. Their economic needs can be satisfied either by their own labor or acquired through barter. Hunting, fishing and elementary husbandry take care of the food problem.

RHODESIA PREMIER CALLS OUT TROOPS

Board Endorses Fluoridation Of Municipal Water

Recommends It Be Made Available to All People

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission report Tuesday wholeheartedly endorsed fluoridation of water to reduce dental decay and recommended that the Ontario government act to make it available to municipalities.

The commission, which spent two years delving into the contentious issue, found no objection serious enough to bar it.

It recommended legislation enabling municipalities to fluoridate water supplies, without the necessity of a referendum, as an essential step towards reducing dental cares, "a serious and major problem" in Ontario.

The commission's 177 - page report was tabled in the legislature Tuesday by Health Minister Dymond to the chagrin of opposition members who voiced loud protests over the government's manner of presenting it.

HADN'T READ IT

Dr. Dymond did not say what it contained and Premier Frost, asked what the government stand is on fluoridation, replied that government members had not yet had a chance to read the report.

The commission consisted of Mr. Justice K. G. Morden of the Supreme Court of Ontario; Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario in London, and Mrs. Egmont L. Frankel of Toronto who was replaced because of illness in February, 1960, by Mrs. Cameron McKenzie of Beaverton.

Reaching its conclusions from which much private study and hearing 91 briefs from individuals and organizations, the committee unanimously recommended:

"That legislation be enacted empowering municipalities to fluoridate their water supplies;

"That such legislation should authorize municipalities to introduce fluoridation by bylaw without the necessity of a referendum;

"That legislation be enacted authorizing the fluoridation of water supplies which are not controlled or operated by municipalities;

KEEP UNDER REVIEW

"That the appropriate departments of the Ontario government should keep under constant review alternatives to fluoridation of municipal water supplies which may prove feasible for people living in areas not served by communal water systems;

"That a sound, converted program supplying accurate nutritional information to the people of Ontario as part of a total program of general health and dental health education be implemented."

The committee made no bones about its support of fluoridation and its concern over the present Ontario situation. It said in the report:

"We are convinced that the incidence of dental caries in Ontario is of such magnitude that it must be regarded both as a serious and a major public health problem and that adequate treatment of dental caries in the whole population is beyond the resources of the dental profession. . . .

'CONCLUSIVELY PROVED'

"We are convinced that it has been conclusively proved that the presence of fluoride, either naturally occurring or mechanically added in a municipal or communal water supply in concentrations of approximately one part per million, strikingly reduces the incidence of dental caries when such water is consumed during the period of tooth development and that the caries-reducing effect of fluoride extends into adult life.

"We are also convinced that the long-term ingestion of fluoride at approximately one part per million over a very wide range of water intake is not harmful to bodily health and that no fluorosis (mottled teeth) of esthetic significance is specifically attached to it."

Remarking "With some degree of astonishment and with much concern" on "the inadequacy of our over-all nutrition in Ontario," the rport emphasized its authors' belief that the reduction of the incidence of dental caries is "a problem of prevention, not one of cure."

Although fluoride in concentrated doses can be lethal, the commission saw no possibility of danger to health — present machines for adding fluoride to water are "mechanically adequate"—or of damage to water mains, pipes, and fittings.

The cost of fluoridating a municipal water supply is "very reasonable in relation to the health benefit to the community."

ANSWERS OBJECTIONS

No stones are left unturned in the comprehensive report in answering objections — some objectors have not hesitated to mention that fluorine compounds are used for rat poison —in the comprehensive report.

It firmly denies any objection to fluoridation on religious or ethical grounds:

"We hold the firm opinion that the fluoridation of municipal water supplies by the authority of appropriate legislation would not be a denial of any fundamental or basic civil right or liberty which the legislature of Ontario should protect and preserve."

The problem of dental health had been brought before the public but there apparently still was "a widespread indifference to the problem of dental health and in some areas actual neglect on the part of parents with respect to dental caries in their own children."

It was so bad that "data unquestionably shows that even the adequate treatment of dental caries in the whole population is beyond the resources of the dental profession."

Two - thirds of Ontario residents did not receive adequate dental care. The incidence of tooth decay had to be reduced before the dental profession could provide more effective service.

Charges Church Talks Brotherhood But Practises Race Discrimination

TORONTO (CP)—The church talks brotherhood but practises racial discrimination and has become a major ally of communism among the people of Asia, Africa and Latin America, a United States clergyman said Tuesday.

Rev. Marshal L. Scott, dean of the Presbyterian Institute of Industrial Relations at McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, was addressing the annual meeting of the United Church board of evangelism and social service.

"The genuineness of our daily lives and the extent to which we demonstrate our love of God and love of neighbor by our self-giving among the hurt people will be our true witness," he said.

Dr. Scott said technological revolution is sweeping across Asia, Africa and Latin America and the free world should either join with the newly-emerging industrial nations, share their struggles and help them in their choices or they might emerge "without us, in spite of us, and possibly even against us."

Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service, warned against making church membership more exclusive under the influence of the social powers of elite members and the "increased numbers of posh congregations."

Dr. Mutchmor said the trend to exclusiveness must be resisted within the church and urged strong opposition to "such powerful media of communication as television with its snob appeal advertising."

He also proposed establishment of a royal commission to study crime in Ontario. He said crime costs Canada an estimated $3,000,000,000 a year.

Rev. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of the board, said the church should never compromise its message for the sake of getting a good hearing.

He said good public relations may be "the mark of a church feverishly seeking popularity, frightened for its own life amid an alien world which it ought to challenge."

He recommended that the church should "strive to do the will of God and let the chips fall where they will," instead of worrying about public relations.

Say 15 Congolese Politicians Executed By Lumumba's Supporters at Stanleyville

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Fifteen Congolese politicians detained in Stanleyville were executed Monday, qualified informants said here today.

The report came 24 hours after United Nations authorities here warned the Antoine Gizenga government in Stanleyville against such executions.

UN headquarters here had no immediate confirmation of the reports. Stanleyville, capital of Oriental Province, is controlled by followers of murdered deposed Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba.

Among the 15 persons reported executed was Alphonse Songolo, a former senator who was imprisoned in October.

Lumumba was ousted from power a few weeks earlier by Congolese strongman Lt.-Gen. Joseph Mobutu.

Lt.-Gen. Sean MacKeown, Irish commander of UN forces in The Congo, returned here by air today from a peace-making mission in Equator Province. He conferred there with Mobutu about a UN Security Council resolution Tuesday giving the United Nations authority to use force as a last resort to prevent civil war in The Congo.

A UN spokesman said MacKeown's meeting with Mobutu at Gemena in Equator Province took place in "a cordial atmosphere." He said MacKeown had suggested setting up a neutral zone on the borders of Equator and Oriental provinces.

In this zone, the spokesman said, MacKeown could meet Gen. Victor Lundula, commander of the Oriental Province forces. MacKeown had originally planned to meet Lundula in Stanleyville.

ROBERTS' DAY IN LEGISLATURE A BUSY ONE

Faces Barrage On Estimates

TORONTO (CP) — Fluoridation, a fire marshal's report, illegal stock brokers and a police training college shared the spotlight in the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

It was Attorney-General Roberts' day as he asked approval of his department's estimates of $22,383,000 and faced a barrage of questions from opposition members.

Among his answers was a statement that a $2,000,000 Ontario police training college will be established near the proposed site for a government headquarters to be used in time of nuclear war.

The Ontario government has held one survival exercise in the Barrie area near Camp Borden.

Mr. Roberts did not specifically mention Barrie, but said the police college will be a dual-purpose establishment to be located outside the disaster area.

Katanga's Premier and UN To Freeze Troop Movements

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga announced today that his government and the United Nations have agreed to freeze all troop movements.

In a communique, Tshombe said "at a meeting this morning between the representative of the United Nations and cabinet ministers of Katanga an agreement was reached whereby all movements of troops likely to lead to friction would be stopped."

It was an abrupt shift for Tshombe, who calls this mineral rich province independent. Tuesday he had ordered a mobilization of all Negro and white Katangans to prevent any attempt by the UN to neutralize his armed forces, as called for in a Security Council resolution.

Tshombe said he and three cabinet ministers met the UN representative in Katanga, Ian Berendsen, and Col. Anders Kjellgran, Swedish commander of UN forces. They discussed details of instructions to carry out the resolution of the Security Council designed to halt civil war in The Congo.

Ealier today the UN warned Tshombe to free a number of hostages, including the wife of a Congolese politician.

A UN statement said the president of the breakway province is holding the wife of Mwamba Ilunga, president of the "State of Lualaba" in northern Katanga.

Ilunga's forces, who seized the Katangan area, are followers of murdered Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Tshombe was told in a note that any mistreatment of Mrs. Ilunga or other of his hostages would have "grave consequences."

Negotiations on New Tax Agreement Open Thursday

OTTAWA (CP)—The rubber match comes this week in the drawn-out negotiations between federal and provincial governments on a new tax agreement.

After two exploratory conferences last year, leaders of the 11 governments get down to brass tacks—and to millions of dollars—on Thursday and Friday behind the closed doors of a committee room on Parliament Hill.

Whatever decision emerges will have an impact on federal and provincial budgets and on taxpayers for five years or more after the present tax-sharing agreements expire in 1962.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is scheduled to spell out the federal proposal at the opening session Thursday.

It's still a closely - guarded secret whether he will stick to the suggestion he made at the last Dominion-provincial conference in October: That the provinces levy their own income taxes and succession duties.

Many of the premiers were strongly critical of this idea—a basic departure from the tax-rental system of post-war years whereby in most provinces Ottawa has levied a single corporation and personal income tax and succession duty and turned over a share to the provinces.

Mr. Diefenbaker's suggestion was that the federal government would back out of the three tax fields, but only to the extent of the present share going to the provinces.

One indication of the importance of this conference to the provinces is the Ontario government's decision to postpone its annual budget until it hears Ot-

BANK OF CANADA RESPONSIBLE FOR MONEY SUPPLY

- - Fleming

House Vote Favors Minister's Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — Who's responsible for monetary policy in Canada?

The Bank of Canada, says Finance Minister Fleming.

The government, says Opposition Leader Pearson.

The Commons kicked this subject around for two days and voted 147 to 41 Tuesday night in favor of Mr. Fleming.

Which was hardly surprising in view of the fact that Progressive Conservatives hold 202 seats and the combined opposition 59.

The crux of monetary policy, in Mr. Fleming's words, is control of the money supply.

And responsibility for this policy, he maintained, was invested in the Bank of Canada by Parliament.

MOVED MOTION

Mr. Pearson Monday moved a motion of non-confidence in the government on the grounds of the administration's "refusal to accept and discharge its proper responsibility in the field of monetary policy."

The motion also said the government had demonstrated incompetence to manage the public debt in the interests of the Canadian people, "resulting in unduly high interest rates, erosion of business confidence and consequent deepening and lengthening of the economic recession."

The CCF added a rider that blamed "a deepening of the unemployment crisis" on government policies.

Both these motions were defeated by identical votes of 147 to 41, the Liberals and CCF supporting each other against the Conservatives.

TRADED QUOTES

In the two - day debate, the Liberals and Conservatives traded copious quotes to back their positions. Both quoted mainly from Commons comments by former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris.

The Liberals quoted Mr. Harris to the effect that the government must, ultimately, be responsible for monetary policy.

Mr. Fleming quoted Mr. Harris as taking the opposite stand.

George McIlraith (L—Ottawa West) said it is unthinkable that the government of any sovereign nation would not be responsible for monetary policy. Such a position had never been suggested until Mr. Fleming assumed the finance portfolio.

Mr. Fleming denied Mr. Pearson's charge that the Unemployment Insurance Fund has been grossly mismanaged.

The Liberal leader said Monday the fund's investment committee lost the fund $70,000,000 when it converted $300,000,000 worth of Victory Bonds into conversion bonds and then had to sell off some of the latter to meet increasing obligations.

Mr. Fleming did not deny this loss. But he said it would have been bigger if the fund had held

Two Satellites Placed in Orbit By Single Rocket in U.S. Shoot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Two new U.S. satellites orbited around the earth today, both propelled aloft by a single rocket.

The double header shoot Tuesday night was only partially successful and the orbiting devices are not living up to expectations, a spokesman for Johns Hopkins applied physics laboratory said today.

The pair of space travellers achieved orbit, the spokesman said, but the path apparently is slightly more than 100 miles above the earth instead of the target height of 500 miles.

He added that there are some inlications the two units may not have separated as they were intended to do.

The laboratory, an affiliate of Johns Hopkins University, is in charge of the tracking of the space messengers. It also supplied some of the instruments.

The fledgling space voyagers are the navy's 250-pound Transit III-B navigation satellite and a 54-pound "hitchhiker" sphere —called Lofti—to study space communications.

Both soared into space from this test centre in the nose of a Thor-Able-Star rocket at 10:45 p.m. Two hours later the defence department reported they were in orbit, beeping valuable information to ground stations.

Putting satellites up by the bundle is nothing new to the Able-Star. It did the trick last June with Transit II-A and a radiation satellite.

One of the string of 1961 successes in the swiftly-moving U.S. program to conquer space occurred earlier Tuesday at Cape Canaveral.

An Atlas missile launched an unmanned model of the project Mercury man-in-space capsule on its most severe test and advanced the day when an American astronaut will take a rocket ride.

The capsule, streaking 12,850

Charges British Govt. Proposals Mean Race War

Rejects Plan to Extend Vote to 70,000 Negroes

SALISBURY — Premier Sir Roy Welensky mobilized his white supremacy government of the Central African Federation today against a race war he charges the British government is inspiring by insisting on more self-rule for Negroes in Northern Rhodesia.

Sir Roy called up 5,000 territorial troops and summoned the federal Parliament of the Federation — linking Southern and Northern Rhodesie and Nyasaland—for an emergency session Friday.

From the federation's capital in this Southern Rhodesia city he rejected the British plan to enlarge the North Rhodesian Parliament to give Negroes a larger voice in governing the protectorate.

In Northern Rhodesia the five members of the government executive council from Welensky's United Federal party resigned in protest against the British plan. John Roberts, party leader in Northern Rhodesia, termed the plan a "diabolical and unacceptable gamble."

ALLOW MORE VOTERS

Under the new constitution proposed by London the property, income and educational qualifications for voting would be relaxed to increase the number of Negro voters by 10 times to a total of about 70,000.

Sir Roy, 53-year-old former boxer and trade union organizer, says most of the Negroes are not capable of governing themselves in Northern Rhodesia, where they outnumber whites about 2,250,000 to 72,000.

In a broadcast Tuesday night Sir Roy said constitutional arrangements should be given to men who contribute to the wealth and welfare of the country and who are "capable of exercising it with judgment and public spirit."

Welensky said Britain would have to "accept full responsibility for the consequences" of its plan.

BACKED BY WHITEHEAD

Sir Edgar Whitehead, prime minister of Southern Rhodesia, supported Welensky's stand.

The British were caught in a cross-fire, for nationalists are clamoring for Negro rule of all three areas of the federation, Britain's biggest remaining bastion in Africa. But the British government in London announced Tuesday it is determined to impose the new constitution for Northern Rhodesia.

The Northern Rhodesian constitutional conference in London broke up last week when Negro delegates walked out, complaining not enough of their people were being given the vote.

Welensky was sharply critical of Colonial Secretary Ian Macleod, author of the plan put forward Tuesday following the three-week constitutional conference in London. The conference was boycotted by Welensky's party.

Macleod maintained in London that his plan honors the principle of non-racialism.

Southern Rhodesia has reached an amicable agreement with the British on a new constitution that ensures continued white rule although they are outnumbered approximately 2,600,000 to 215,000. With some reservations, Negro leaders in the territory have approved the plan, which extends their voting rights and gives them representation in Parliament.

Finance Minister Fleming vehemently denied "gross mismanagement" of the Unemployment Insurance Fund as charged by Opposition Leader Pearson.

External Affairs Minister Green said the likelihood of a special UN General Assembly session on The Congo would seem to have been reduced by events in the Security Council.

Fish, Game Club Does Not Want Trout Limit Reduced

The Belleville Fish and Game Club will send a resolution to the Department of Lands and Forests requesting that the daily limit of lake trout be left at five instead of being reduced to three.

The club last night voted in favor of the measure at its first regular meeting of 1961 held at Club Canara. Fish and Game Club president Gordon MaGee expressed pleasure over the rapid growth of the club's membership and noted that Jack La on had sold more than 80 new memberships since the last regular club meeting. Judging from the size of the crowd at last night's meeting, it appears the club will have to negotiate with the Department of National Defence for permission to use the colossal new hangar at RCAF Station Trenton for its meeting if the membership increases much more.

Mr. MaGee suggested the club should send a resolution to the Department of Lands and Forests asking that the daily limit of lake trout in the Tweed forest district be left at five. The department last year planned to reduce the limit to three but bowed to a request to leave it at five. The department, however, has indicated it wishes to reduce the limit this year to three but, according to Mr. MaGee and other club members, it has given no reason for the reduction.

A spokesman for the Bancroft Fish and Game Club said the three-per-day catch would be "absolutely no good" to the Bancroft area as resort operators wanted anglers to come and stay a while.

Another club member, noticing that the membership was slow in taking up Mr. MaGee's suggestion, asked why the Belleville club should sit idle and let the department reduce the limit without giving its reasons for doing so.

NO OBJECTIONS

When Mr. MaGee called for a show of hands in support of the resolution, almost every hand in the place was raised. No objections were aired.

Mr. MaGee noted that when Highway 401 is opened through to Toronto, Hastings County will experience a greater influx of hunters and anglers from outside the county. He said that an employee of Ontario Hydro had told him that the Commission's loss through damage caused to poles, insulators, etc., by hunters totalled about $15,000 a year in this county. He said he understood the Bell Telephone Company suffered a similar loss. He urged Fish and Game Club members to be particularly careful not to damage Hydro and Bell Telephone property and requested them to make sure of their target before squeezing the trigger of their rifle. Some townships in Ontario are being closed to hunting because of farmers' losses of livestock to careless hunters.

Young Mike Follwell received the club's trophy for catching the largest brown trout last year. Mike, a teenager, was not present at an earlier meeting when trophies were presented to winners of the club's annual fishing contest. When Mr. MaGee asked the lad to say how big his fish was and how and where he caught it, Mike replied: "I don't remember."

Entertainment was provided by Tom Holmes of Campbellford, former guide at a fishing and hunting camp on Separation Lake, 38 miles as the crow flies north of Kenora and by the Bell Telephone Company.

Mr. Holmes showed two colored movies of life at the camp, while Bell Telephone showed a film about the mouth-to-mouth techique of artificial respiration.

Mr. Holmes said that during his three years as a guide at the camp, which is accessible only by air unless one wishes to make seven portages by canoe, he saw only one party of four anglers who were Canadians. The others were from the U.S.

COST IS HIGH

Cost per day per person at the camp is $27 in addition to $22 return air fare from the camp to Kenora. The camp rate is reduced depending upon the number of members in the party.

Mr. Holmes said Separation Lake abounds in northern pike, bass and wall-eyes. It wasn't unusual to see two or three 15-pound northerns landed every day by anglers who were taken out into the lake by experienced guides, most of whom were Indians. The largest fish caught while he was there was a 32-pound northern.

In other club business, past-president Bruce Kerr, who served as president for the past two years, was presented with a pair of the "largest hunting boots in town" as a token of the club's appreciation for his leadership.

Perhaps no one was more flabbergasted than Carl Sills, East College Street, who joined the club last night and found himself the winner of the club's first door prize — a 9 x 9 tourist-type tent and two sleeping bags.

D. R. Burns, 46 Dunbar St., won a flashlight in another draw and R. J. Charleton won some spinning line in the third draw.

All Business On Agenda Not Completed

Consideration of the report of Inspector Lorne Johnston on the three Belleville high schools took up the major portion of the time at last night's regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte High School Board.

Due to the lengthy inspector's report all business on the agenda was not completed and board members will meet again next Tuesday evening.

Although they are requesting certain minor fringe benefits Belleville high school teachers this year are not asking for any salary increases.

Principals and vice-principals however, have asked for salary increases and these will be under consideration next week by the board.

Bell Telephone Net Income Is $53,511,907

Net income of The Bell Telephone Company of Canada for the year ended December 31, 1960, was $53,511,907, equivalent to $2.52 per share or a return of six per cent on invested capital, according to the company's 81st annual report issued today.

The report, signed by Thomas W. Eadie, president, compares the 1960 results with earnings of $50,283,578 or $2.48 per share in 1959.

Last year's telephone construction program of $208 million was the largest in the company's history, the report states, and 184,130 telephones were added to those in service.

Evidence of the company's expansion and improvement program was seen in Belleville, through the addition of some 738 telephones, bringing the total number in service at year's end to 15,344, said Mr. R. S. O'Rourke, Bell Telephone manager here.

Dividends for the year totalled $2.20 a share and surplus was increased by $8,072,867 to $52,732,735 or $2.47 a share.

These include secondary schools in Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville, Smiths Falls, Brockville and Ottawa.

Peterborough CVS will present scene one, act three of "Pygmalion," by George Bernard Shaw.

Cobourg will stage "The Courting of Marie Jenvrin," by Owen P. Ringwood.

Quinte Secondary School, Belleville, will produce highlights from the play, "The Boy Friend."

Glebe Collegiate, Ottawa, will enact "A Battle of Wits," by Norman Williams.

Smiths Falls Collegiate Institute will be seen in "Stolen Identity" by Charles Emery.

Brockville CIVS will stage act two of "The Heiress" by Ruth and Augustus Goetz.

St. Mary's High School, Brockville, will produce "The Last of My Solid Gold Watches" by Tennessee Williams.

Honorary adjudicator will Mme. A. R. C. Duncan, wife of Dean Duncan of the Faculty or Arts and Science, Queen's University.

Besides the Milburn trophy, the awards will include the Faculty Players plaque, awarded to the group which gives the second best presentation. The best individual performance by actor and actress is recognized by a gift.

Dr. William Angus whose department is sponsoring the festival, said the purpose of the festival is "to stimulate an interest in good dramatic work by comparison of one's work with that of others, by interchange of ideas and by the benefit of competent adjudication."

Will Abolish Committee if Plan Vetoed

TRENTON — William Menzies, chairman of the conservation committee of Legion Branch 110, Trenton, said Tuesday that if the 17 representatives at a March 29 conference in Warkworth veto a suggestion to form a Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority, it would be wise to abolish the branch's conservation committee.

The committee sponsored the conservation authority idea.

He said that much time had been spent on the project and that it was not receiving the support it should.

Mr. Menzies said that he had travelled throughout the watershed, talking to the farmers and that he had learned that it was costing them about $12,000 a month to draw water to their farms. He said that the wells in the area had been without water for more than a year and that each farmer had spent at least $500 a year in having water delivered by tank truck. One farmer is paying $10 a day for water and he will not be able to hold out if the situation continues. Some farmers have built ponds at their own expense and were not having any trouble with water on their farms. Mr. Menzies said that if a conservation authority existed, other farmers would be able to receive financial assistance to build similar ponds.

Directors from the department of planning and development will be in charge of the meeting at Warkworth. A two-thirds majority vote is necessary to establish a conservation authority.

Fine 2 Men, Re-arrest Them On Warrant

TRENTON — In magistrate's court here yesterday, Jack Chesley Pritchett and Gordon Allen Ford of London, who were picked up in Trenton Feb. 13, by Constable Garry Davis and were charged with being in possession of an unregistered automatic revolver and vagrancy, were each fined $50, released and re-arrested on warrants from the St. Thomas detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police on armed robbery charges.

The men were held in Trenton jail until today when officers from St. Thomas picked them up and returned them to St. Thomas. The vagrancy charge was dropped when the men pleaded guilty to the more serious charge of being in possession of the revolver.

As a result of the investigations carried out here, Donald Charles Neilson, 18, of London, will appear this week in London city court charged with the theft of the revolver, a German Mauser, from a London resident. This phase of the case was the result of close co-operation between Trenton and St. Thomas police.

Break-in Suspect Said Escapee From Burwash

TRENTON — Yesterday, through the combined investigations of Inspector John McLaughlin of the Belleville police department, Chief Constable F. J. Taylor and Inspector R. J. Rutherford of the Trenton police department, it was learned that Mike Ostrowski, 32, who was apprehended by Constable R. E. Miller of Trenton early yesterday and was being held in Trenton while a break-in at Brown's Handi Stand was investigated, had escaped from Burwash Reformatory four months ago.

Inspector McLaughlin read the report of the break-in in last night's Ontario Intelligencer. He suspected that the man being held in Trenton might be Mike Kundeus, who was charged in Belleville November 17th, 1959, with breaking, entering and theft. The man also went under the alias of John Bogush.

Inspector Rutherford checked RCMP files and found that the man being held in Trenton and the escapee from Burwash were one and the same.

Legion Notes

TRENTON — At Monday night's meeting of the Trenton branch of the Legion, employment committee chairman Garry Clegg reported that during the past three months he had secured employment for about 100 veterans. He urged district veterans to contact him if they were out of work and promised to see what he could do to get jobs for them.

President Ken Craddock said that Comrade Clegg was doing an outstanding job, considering the difficult times.

Service officer Ross Grier reported that he had handled more than a dozen applicants for various pensions during the month and that all were being processed through the regular channels.

Zone Commander E. Donaldson presented six new members for initiation by the president, first vice-president Bob Wright and sergeant-at-arms Norman Baker. They were John J. Wall, Charles M. Petty, Edward F. Pike, Harold W. Harvey, Hilliard George Rowe and Victor Searle Corrigan.

A vote of thanks to retiring executive member Frank Ursich was moved by Comrade Ken Kenny. Comrade Nick Nickolson was elected to fill the vacancy on the executive. He will be chairman of the house committee.

Sports committee chairman Orval Smith introduced the chairmen of his sub-committees. George Mountenay will be in charge of bowling; Bill Smith, darts; Carl Taylor, cribbage; Charles Chard, euchre. There will be a games tournament in the hall every Saturday at 2.00 p.m.

Carman Livingstone, curling committee chairman, reported that branch curlers had gone to the provincial playoffs in Kirkland Lake but had lost out to the Orillia rink by one point in the provincial championship.

Finance Committee chairman Art Collette reported that he had asked Eric Gordon to sit on his committee and that they were reviewing the insurance, studying the purchase of a new cash register and attending to various other items.

Nostrand Sprague, chairman of the Legion public speaking contests, reported that there were 14 contestants in the recent branch contest. He said that the competition had been very successful but he urged legionnaires to come out in greater numbers to future contests to encourage the youngsters participating.

Bill Lawson, chairman of the bar committee, said that he had added Ross Brummell and Garny Rosenplot to his committee and that new rules had been submitted to the executive committee for consideration.

Comrade Donaldson proposed that a guest book be placed in the downstairs bar and in the upstairs auditorium and that guests be asked to sign the book when visiting the hall. The members approved and these books will be purchased.

Comrade Donaldson said that there now are 265 paid members for 1961, and that he was revising the mailing list to bring it up to date so that he will be able to notify other members of the annual drive for new membership.

Has forever been called away.

But many silent tears are shed,
When others are asleep.

Kiwanians Hear Timely Talk On Brotherhood

"Are we serious about brotherhood?" queried the Reverend R. D. MacLean, past president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, at the local Kiwanis Club's weekly meeting yesterday afternoon. He pointed out that many lofty ideals were being expressed during Brotherhood Week but questioned their effect upon life within this community or any other observing the occasion.

Pointing out that it is easy to are far away and remote from one, but quite another situation when they accept other people when they are one's next door neighbors, the Dalhousie University graduate suggested that there are a number of discriminatory barriers within the individual personality which have to be broken down before he can actually accept brotherhood.

Brotherhood is a spiritual gift or achievement, not a right or condition of birth, commented the speaker pointing out that the first brothers in the Bible participated in fratricide.

It is essential to think of all people as persons or indivuals and to treat them as such, to teach one's children that prejudice is wrong; not to use words or phases of a class or racial discriminatory nature, cautioned Mr. MacLean. Brotherliness will overcome and overleap any differences between people if people will not allow jealousies to befog their reasoning, suggested the speaker.

The most common affliction of modern man is his loneliness. Faced with many problems he is in need of a little help and understanding. Such good will is not impossible, the pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church intimated, for men have both lived and died for it in the past. There are many small things which can be a start towards brotherhood for many people, he added.

Referring to the humorous observation that going to church on Sunday is something which a person will recover from on Monday and be all right because it is just a habit, Mr. MacLean concluded his address with the query, "Will all those talking brotherhood this week be 'all right' next week or will some of it stick?"

Members of the Belleville Ministerial Association were the guests of the Kiwanians for the day. President Bob Brain was chairman of the meeting.

SALES AND AD CLUB . . . members were treated to an Advertising Night at which the above persons spoke yesterday evening (left to right): George Hume, master of ceremonies and committee vice-chairman; Gene Adams of Canadian General Electric from Ottawa; Jack Bond of The Ontario Intelligencer; Ed Woodland of Shell Oil; Tom Tomkow of CKWS-TV from Kingston and O. K. Sloane of the local Deloro Stellite firm.

Advertising Night at Sales, Ad Club Draws Large Crowd

Last night was advertising night for the 125 members of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club meeting at the Columbus Hall. A galaxy of nine star speakers was in the limelight as program chairman Jerry O'Connor, assisted by George Hume, made every effort to exceed last year's counterpart, which won the local club national distinction and recognition.

The purpose of the evening was to provide every member with an insight into the various media and types of advertising by having persons with practical experience at either local or national levels speak on how a particular phase or method has proven successful with their firm's endeavors to promote its product.

Newspaper and periodical advertising on a national level proved to be the mediums dealt with by Ed Woodland of Shell Oil in relating the success of his firm's current advertising campaign for its gasolines. Uniformity of technique utilizing a different style which both gains attention and fully emphasizes the complete picture which the advertiser wishes the consumer to receive were the points emphasized by Mr. Woodland in order to have a successful program.

O. K. Sloane of Deloro Stellite covered the techniques, advantages and procedures necessary for a successful direct mail advertising campaign. He pointed out the particular usefulness of this style of advertising for a firm which had many products of wide application and use which could appeal to many different firms and businesses spread across the continent in place of maintaining an enormous sales staff. Mailing of circulars designed first to draw the attention of the proper company executive to the firm, then to draw a reply or enquiry about its product and finally to obtain a request for a quotation have proven quite satisfactory to the local firm, Mr. Sloane said.

Gerry Wishart of Mead Johnson gave an interesting account of the style and presentation of the advertising connected with campaign promoting the product which brought his firm from 12th in sales in the industry to fifth within six mo —Metrecal.

NO PLANS MADE

Basically, as a pharmaceutical firm, Mead Johnson advertises only within the medical profession, with the exception of the product, Pablum, Mr. Wishart explained. Originally no plans had been made for a consumer level of advertising for Metrecal but such was dictated by the unexpected success of the product in the United States through word-of-mouth that it was felt a proper advertising campaign directed at the consumer should be implemented. Prior to this, however, ethics dictated that the medical profession be thoroughly advised about the product. Following this program the editorial style of newspaper advertisement fully explained the product at the consumer level and was in turn followed by ads placed in various periodicals aimed at reaching specific segments of the population.

The creation of employee enthusiasm for a firm's product was the theme of Mr. Fred Cressey of the Bell Telephone as he described his firm's campaign to make the Princess telephone the foremost topic of close to 40,000 Bell employees across Canada during the period when that product was being introduced to the consumer. The creation of this enthusiasm was implemented by attractive visual displays and material. Novelty awards were provided to employees for the sale of the Princess phones.

This intramural saturation of product awareness and enthusiasm was then followed by direct consumer advertising via newspaper, magazine and direct mail. The results of this style of campaign were eight times what had been anticipated, Mrs. Cressey stated.

William Huyck of Canadian Industries Limited emphasized the value of point of sale advertising to the successful promotion of his firm's product, Terylene. Used as a follow up to national periodicals and television advertising, he emphasized the importance of catching the consumer's attention at the moment he had the money and inclination to buy.

The use of color advertisements in magazines was cited as the best way to build prestige to assist consumer acceptance of the credibility of the editorial content accompanying the picture or art display. "Advertising must be considered a full-time employee," concluded Mr. Huyck.

START NEW CAMPAIGN

Gene Adams of Canadian General Electric gave an example of advertising directed at the retail merchant in his firm's recent campaign to overcome the effects of loss leader sales on the sale of their small appliances. Following government legislation designed to curb this practice, his firm immediately got a program under way directed at the retail merchant via a "profit improvement program" packet designed to explain the situation to the retailer and recreate an interest in the products which he had shied away from because of their use in loss leader sales. Full color catalogues of the products involved coupled with price lists and editorial folders explaining the company's position and suggestions regarding profit improvement were included in the packet or kit. This, coupled with a meeting of the company with its 90 Canadian distributors, has resulted in increased sales of the small appliances with more retailers handling them, Mr. Adams said.

The advertising media were represented by Jack Bond of The Ontario Intelligencer, Frank Murray of radio station CJBQ and Tom Tomkow of CKWS television station. Each gave a very interesting account of the method of material presentation and of the various advantages unique to each as an advertising vehicle. Of special note was the fact that each stressed the importance of ads placed by national firms to the economic well-being of the local merchants and the recognition of local representatives by the consumer through association when a medium carried national advertising.

The ordinary business portion of the meeting was carried out under the direction of club president Phil Flagler.

Joachim Jaenicke Tells Canadian Club of Germany's Endeavors

Last evening Mr. Joachim Jaenicke, Counsellor at the German Embassy in Ottawa, addressed an intensely interested mixed assembly of the Women's Canadian Club in Queen Alexandra School, on the subject of "The German Situation, 1961."

The speaker, who was introduced by the president, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, expressed his thanks for the opportunity of speaking to the club, and considered it not only a privilege, but also a benefit to himself.

His secondary education he received in Germany and Shanghai. He also attended the University of Geneva, the Graduate School of International Studies, the Fletcher School of Law Diplomacy in Medford, Mass., and later entered the West German diplomatic service when it was first created. He has also served as Vice-Consul at New York and as Second Secretary in Washington.

INFLUENCES AT WORK

Mr. Jaenicke prefaced his remarks by stating he would not speak about the German problems, but rather about what it was endeavoring to do, and of some of the influences at work in his country. "Germany," he stated, 'is in the centre of world tension, and is one of the principal theatres in which the world peace struggle is taking place."

In mentioning the features which tended to mold the German character he listed history and the geographical influences, the latter of which denied time for solid growth. The whole nation, he said, for years had been subjected to an onslaught of German militarism, interjecting how Germany fits into the Free World and the "Unfree" World, being dominated by the East and West struggle. In the democratic world there is time for faults to be corrected; not so in the Communistic world; the Russians are paying the price for a too rapid advance. The Germany of pre-war days is no more, due to Hitler, whose dictatorship led Germany to ruin.

BERLIN

Berlin, centre of freedom, is occupied by 4 million people, consists of three sectors, and depends on the West for freedom. It is the gateway to freedom, with 3,000,000 having fled to it for shelter. The western part included 60 percent of prewar territory, and is known as "The Federal Republic of Germany," with a population of several million, and in size about one-quarter of the province of Ontario.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

The speaker enumerated what the Germans have done in the free part, which has been most generously assisted with financial aid. This included the rebuilding of the physical country from the devastation of war; showing their desire for freedom, with a willingness to work. They have rebuilt democracy anew; and have paved the way for a new development of German foreign policy in which the old idea of rivalry must be relegated to the past, as it is not acceptable to the new freedom which must be preserved for a common European level.

This principle has been applied between Germany and France. There has also been the establishment of a common European market which has become successful, in which Canada has greatly benefited.

In mentioning the problems, that of the freedom of Berlin is paramount.

The Germans today read reports of what is going on, and accept them. They have a book market, study history and diaries. The story of "Ann Frank' has become the best seller since the war, and has now been made into a play with 35,000 performances viewed by 2,000,000. In the T.V. they get the history of the third Reich, and the young people are reacting to this as it is the first time they have seen the terrible events.

The Government lends its support in education, and the administration of the German provinces is hunting up the former criminals and the cases receiving just sentences with 750 Nazi trials coming up in the next few years.

The Germans are making massive restitution for all the misdeeds done to war victims. Already $6,000,000 has been made to the Jews, which was a voluntary act. Laws have been passed to bring restitution into operation for life, health; property, and those who suffered from loss of professional and economic opportunity are to be reimbursed. There were 2.7 million who had filled claims, and 1.4 of these claims have been looked after, with the program continuing until all are satisfied.

In compensation, Germany has paid $2,000,000; $500,000,000 to Isarel, and $2,400,000 still to be paid, which are but a part. No payment can make amends for what went on, but in other ways an effort is being made in an endeavor to ameliorate the suffering caused.

New enterprise includes a substantial amount for defence; and the development of unoccupied country.

In closing, Mr. Jaenicke quoted the exhortation of the Federal President to the German people, that "they have patience; a willingness to sacrifice; a steadfastness of purpose, and moderation."

Following the address, an interesting question and answer period revealed the present situation in East Germany, and the great cloud under which the people are living due to Communistic administration.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. B. E. Burley, on behalf of the Club members.

Later, coffee was served by Mrs. Fred Wilson and her assistants.

The Communist Purpose

For an inexcusably long period of time the reaction to the words and actions of the Russian Communists and their leaders by the western powers and their leaders has been disgustingly predictable. Confusion, befuddlement and indecision have been the inevitable result.
